GRASPING THE OPPORTUNITY

What Has Made Men Rich

Trace down the pages of the biographical history of the wealthy men of our country and you will find at least 75 per cent. of them who began life as a poor boy, but industry, economy, and energy have made their names household ones in the business and professional world. You will say that luck makes men wealthy. It is not so; though there are cases—a small percentage—where a windfall dropped into the lap of some man by his predecessor or his relationship or in the game of chance. But where there is one thus fortunate there are ten others who started on life's highway with strong arm and a clear mind, without friends, without money, and without influence, to battle against the whole world and mold for themselves by energy and endurance a fortune honorably made.

My dear wage-earner, if you desire the proof and convincing evidence of the headline of this advertisement, how men became wealthy, go out and ask the first successful man you know what made him rich—how did he start on nothing and become wealthy. He will repeat what we have said: GRASPING THE OPPORTUNITY.

The poor man, or the young man to-day without means, has greater chances and finer opportunities of getting rich than the boy or man twenty years ago.

Dame Fortune Knocks To-day at Your Door and Shouts, "Invest Now in the Suburbs! Grasp the Opportunity!"

Land Has Increased in Price Since 1900 in Westchester 500 Per Cent. Land Has Increased in Kings Since 1900 300 Per Cent. Land Has Increased in Queens Since 1900 500 Per Cent. Let Us Picture Now for You the Next Five Years and the Locality Where You Can Get Rich If You Will Grasp This Opportunity.

The great activity for investment and for homes will in the next five years be just outside of Greater New York on Long Island—just where the wage-earner can reach inside of 30 minutes for a 5 or 10 cent fare; where the line of travel by steam or electricity will be frequent day and night.

The Star of Prosperity Is Now Rising in the East, Coming Over the Fertile Fields of Long Island, and To-day It Reveals a Tale of Prophecy and Makes Known the Future Outside of Greater New York.

TO-DAY.

60 Trains a Day. One Every 20 Minutes. 10 Minutes from Jamaica. 30 Minutes from New York. 5 and 10 Cent Fare.
Finest Roads. Cheapest Land. Best Railroad Service Outside of Greater New York. Population 5,000.

1910.

Beautiful Parks. Beautiful Homes. Largest Municipality on Long Island. With a Population of 30,000. Great Industrial Centre.

Lots and plots of land at Mineola will increase in value 500 per cent. in 5 years. Why not? Star of New York destiny says so. Lots at the Bronx have increased from $500 to $5,000 in the past 2 years.

MINEOLA.

It lies just three miles outside of Greater New York—just twelve minutes' ride from Jamaica by steam cars, where three lines of the Long Island Railroad centre—all trains from the North Line, from Oyster Bay and Roslyn, all trains from the east on the Main Line, from Greenport west; all trains from the south, Hempstead and Garden City; and, in addition to all, the connection with New York by the Queens County electric car line. No such railroad facilities or transportation anywhere outside of Jamaica. WHERE CAN YOU GET SUCH SERVICE? WHERE CAN YOU GET SUCH AN ACCESSIBLE PLACE FOR A HOME?

WE HAVE BOUGHT $150,000 WORTH OF THE MOST CENTRALLY LOCATED LAND IN MINEOLA.

We have bought it close to schools, churches, stores, and within a few blocks of the depot, where every choice residence lot we have ought to be business property in ten years. And the announcement of this sale will pass through this city into the homes of hundreds of thousands of investors and homeseekers to-day. AND WE BELIEVE EVERY LOT WE HAVE WILL BE SOLD IN TEN DAYS. Such things have happened to us before. Therefore, we want you to be there at the

We have provided for 10,000 people during the six days at Minsola. Lunch will be served under our spacious tent, and accommodations with horses and carriages to see all our properties there. CAUSES BROKER'S ARREST IN $100,000 STOCK DEAL

George M. Wheeler in Jail on Philadelphia Firm's Charge.

COULDN'T GIVE $1,000 BAIL

As the Metropolitan Trading Company, Wheeler Is Accused of Getting Securities by Fraud.

George M. Wheeler, who calls himself the Metropolitan Trading Company of 415 Broadway, was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff William T. O'Brien on a werrant issued by Supreme Court Justice McCall in a civil suit snd committed to Ludlow Street Jail in default of $1,000 bail. He is accused of obtaining $110,000 in notes and $100,000 in stock by fraud from the American Interlaced Curled Hair Company of Philadelphia.

Reno R. Billington of 44 Broadway, attorney for the plaintiffs, said last night: "My clients have brought a civil action against Wheeler and have had him arrested because it was the only way to hold him. The American Interlaced Curled Hair Company advertised last July that it would sell some of its stock at par. The firm needed the money to improve its plant. A few days after the advertisement appeared the company received this letter from the Metropolitan Trading Company of 415 Broadway, signed Wheeler Brothers: 'If you heve $50,000 or $100,000 worth of stocks, and it has paid a dividend, we can get for you a certified check for doubls the amount of one year's interest for a loan of the stock for a year. If you pay 10 per cent. dividend end lend our client $100,000 worth of stock, we can get $20,000 for you in advance.'

"Correspondence between Wheeler and the company followed," said Mr. Billington, "and they sent a representative to New York to confer with him. On Aug. 1 my clients received another letter from Wheeler, saying: 'We have an opportunity to place your paper at once. So if you send on a ten-thousand-dollar note to get discounted and also a hundred-thousand-dollar accommodation note, in all $110,000, we can get $10,000 for you in a few days.'

"The company sent on $110,000 of notes and $100,000 of stock as collateral, and got no money in return. Nothing was heard of the Metropolitan Trading Company until Sept. 9, when this was received:

"'We hereby agree to turn over $5,000 to you in cash on Sept. 13 and the balance not later than Sept. 18.'

"That was the last letter received by the company from George M. Wheeler. His office, at 415 Broadway," continued Mr. Billington, "consisted of one room, one desk, one chair, and one man. He was the Metropolitan Trading Company, and was occasionally assisted by his brother, William, whom we shall need later on.

"I called at the office and saw Wheeler on Monday morning and asked him for the notes and stock. He refused to give them up."

Mr. Billington said that in spite of the fact that Wheeler had no money, and apparently no property, he had received letters from prominent business firms in all parts of the United States in answer to his advertisements.

"He ran a notebroking business," said Mr. Billington, "and got securities from all classes of people. Some of the firms in their letters to Wheeler pointed out that if, as he said, he did not want eny commision for his good offices, where were his returns for all his time and trouble? Yet they did business with him."

A FAINT SET HER FREE.

Girl's Plight in Court Arouses Judge Cowing to Pity.

Lulu Crawford, 17 years old, was in Part III., General Sessions, yesterday, charged with grand larceny. She entered a plea of guilty, and Judge Cowing told her attorney, Mark Alter, that he hed decided to send her to a reformatory. The lawyer pleaded for a suspension of sentence, telling the court that the girl had committed the theft to save her parents' home from sale under a mortgage.

Judge Cowing told Alter to submit his statements in the form of an affidavit, and that he would defer sentence until to-day. Thereupon an officer started to lead the girl to a cell. The girl threw up both hands and fell in a faint on the floor. Her mother, who was in the courtroom, sprang from her chair, reeled, and also fell in a faint. There was much excitement in the room, and when it had subsided and the two women had been revived Judge Cowing called the girl before him.

"There must be some good in you," he said, "when you faint at the mere mention of a cell. I shall let you go with your mother if you will promise me that you will never again do anything that will bring you into a court again."

"I promise you, Sir," said the girl.

"Go, then," said the Judge, "and see that you keep your promise."

Miss Crawford was an errand girl for a dressmaker in West Sixty-fourth Street. One day she started with two silk gowns to deliver them to a customer, and instead of doing so she pawned them for $175. She gave the $175 to her parents, explaining that she had earned it.

GROTE'S WOOING TOO ARDENT.

Magistrate Makes Him Promise Not to Annoy Louisa Andres.

Louisa Andres, 20 years old, of 204 East Sixty-fifth Street, who is housekeeper for her brother-in-law, Eugene Fuchs, and his two children, complained in Yorkville Court yesterday against John Grote, an upholsterer of 236 East Fifty-sixth Street.

The girl told Magistrate Finn that Grote had forcibly kissed her in a surface car, and that last Sunday morning he climbed the fire escape and suddenly appeared outside her window. The girl said she called her brother-in-law and Grote escaped. She considered her life in danger.

Grote told Magistrate Finn that his only excuse was that he loved the girl.

The Magistrate then imposed four pledges: First, Grote promised he would never kiss the girl again; second, that he would not climb up the fire escape any more; third, that he would not go near the house, and, fourth, that he would never speak to or look at the complainant again.

After Grote had given his word Magistrate Finn fined him $5.

Queries About Biography Data.

Dr. John S. Billings, head of the New York Public Library, informs THE TIMES that inquiries are being made about a young man said to be soliciting biographical information on behalf of the "Department of Biography of the New York Public Library." "I wish to say," Dr. Billings writes, "that there is no such department connected with the Astor (or any other) branch of the New York Public Library, and that no person employed by the library is authorized to collect data for any such purpose." The last inquiries came from Newark, N. J.

Cars for Grand Trunk Pacific.

It was reported on good authority yesterday that the Canada Car Company, which is controlled by the Pressed Steel Car Company, has received a contract to furnish 12,000 freight cars and 250 passenger cars to the projected Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The cost of these cars will amount to something like $10,000,000.

JAMAICA TRACK CROWD JOINS IN A MAN CHASE

Mistakes an Alleged Betting Swindler for a Pickpocket.

MOB QUICKLY CATCHES HIM

Fugitive Equipped with a Printing Outfit—Police Say He Forged Badges and Collected Big Bets.

T. O. Moore, alias Harry Johnson, with a cry of "Stop thief!" behind him, jumped two fences at the Jamaica race course yesterday and astonished several thousand racegoers by starting out on the track in flight before a mob of pursuers. Before he reached the third fence incloising the field the fugitive was caught and knocked down by the foremost of his pursuers.

He was rescued from serious injury by Pinkerton track policemen, who dragged him from under the crowd that plied on him. Moore was held a prisoner in the race course police room until the races were over, and then was teken to Long Island City to answer for grand larceny. The charge was made by bookmakers and the Pinkerton police that he had swindled bookmakers out of several large sums of money by altering the numbers on admission badges, and so collecting bets made by other men.

Moore has been suspected for severel days, and the Pinkerton men were watching him yesterday. As they were about to arrest him he took fright and bolted. The crowd in the betting ring at once concluded that he was a pickpocket and gave chase as Moore fled from the crowded betting inclosure. Two fences, one back of the other, separate the grand stand lawn from the track, and Moore made such a poor effort to scramble over the double obstacle that his pursuers, though many of them fell between jumps, easily overtook him.

When searched, Moore, who is said to be from Albany, had a small printing outfit, with type, ink, inking roller, and a compact press, the whole in a case about eight inches square and three inches deep. According to the Pinkerton police Moore has made a practice of swindling bookmakers by altering the numbers on badges to correspond with the numbers on the badges of men who made bets on the races, end then collecting the wagers made by other persons.

Each admission badge has a number, the numbers being recorded when bets are made in preference to the names of the bettors, as the bedges furnish a more satisfactory means of identification. Moore's plan, the police say, was to wait in the crowd about the bookmakers and listen until he heard a large bet called out. He selected bets mede on horses that seemed likely to win, and it is charged would at times duplicate badge numbers recorded for bets on several horses in a race to make sure of winning.

When he took fright and fled yesterday he had just presented to Bookmaker William Jackman a badge bearing the number 10,519, which was the number recorded by the bookmaker's sheet writer for a bet of $100 on Leonora W., a winner at odds of 7 to 5, or $140 to $100, making the amount to be paid to the bettor $240. Moore was captured with the badge still in his possession. Over the original number on the bedge a strip of very thin but dense and opaque paper had been pasted, and on this new numbers, corresponding with those of the bet on Leonora W., had been printed, in exact duplication of the type of the orlginel. The alteration had been so cunningly made that it required close scrutiny to detect the change.

Moore did not get the $240 in this case, but specific charges are made against him of heving collected $400 from Bookmaker Ed Gaines on Saturday and $250 from Bookmaker S. Hammerslag yesterday.

It is said by the Pinkerton police that swindlers, of whom they believe Moore to be one, have collected several thousand dollars by means of altered badges recently. Moore will be arraigned in the Police Court of Long Island City to-day.

WHO HAS A JOB FOR REISS?

He's Sober and Willing, Magistrate Whitman Says, but Out of Work.

Magistrate Whitman, who is sitting in the Essex Market Court, would like to know if there is anybody in the city who will give a job to John Reiss, 47 years old, and a sober and industrious man.

Reiss appeared before Magistrate Whitman yesterday and asked to be committed for vagrancy. He said that for two months he had gone from one end of the city to another, trying to get work, but couldn't get anything of any kind to do. He had left his name at all the free employment egencies in town, he asserted, and nothing ever came of it. The man showed references where he had been employed for thirty years, and the Magistrate had Probationary Officer Thomas investigate them, refusing to commit him at all. He believed the man from the start, and on Thomas's report later in the day that what the man had said was true, he provided him with enough money to see him through until to-day when he hoped the publication of his wishes would bear fruit.

Reiss was clean cut in manner and speech, seemed to be of sober habits, and fired with a determination to work at anything he could get. He is single.

STOPS USING MAIL TUBES.

Government Discontinues the Service Here Owing to Litigation.

Postmaster Willcox received a communication yesterday from Second Assistant Postmaster General Shellenberger ordering him to discontinue the pneumatic tube system until further notice.

The order of the Supreme Court placing the penumatic tubes out of commission affected only the tubes in Manhattan and does not include the tube connecting the General Post Office in New York with the Post Office in Brooklyn. The New York Mail and Transportation Company offered to continue the Brooklyn service, but the Government has no means of determining what portion of the $155,000 paid annually for the entire service should be allowed for the Brooklyn tube alone. Hence the entire service is discontinued until the contracting company makes some arrangement with the company's creditors and bondholders that will enable it to resume business.

SAYS WARRING SYRIANS ARE A PUBLIC DANGER

Magistrate Calls Conditions in the Colony Alarming.

REIGN OF TERROR FOR MONTHS

All Those Who Took Part in Monday's Street Affray Held for Trial.

The Syrian colony in lower Washington Street, never particularly peaceful, is now, according to Magistrate Wahle, who knows it, in a really alarming state.

The rival Tongs in Chinatown are not more bitterly opposed to one another, he says, nor are their members ready to go to greater lengths to gratify their enmity than are the adherents of the warring clans in Little Syria.

"There has been a reign of terror in the colony for months past," said the Magistrate. "Business men there tell me that the quarter hae suffered losses aggregating hundreds of thousands of dollars, and I can readily believe this, for I know that the annual volume of trade there is more than $5,000,000.

"Outsiders, upon whom the quarter largely depends for patronage, are actually afraid to enter its precincts, lest they become embroiled in one of the fights that are constantly breaking out. Merchants do not dare to replenish their stocks for fear that their stores will be burned or looted. There is always the danger of an outbreak, and outsiders are as likely to get the worst of it as are the particlpants."

At least four men were stabbed in Monday's riot, and the probabilities are that many others suffered injuries, and were hustled away to their homes by friends. Numeroua arrests were made. When the prisoners were arraigned in the Tombs Court yesterday morning the corridors of the building were packed. Every Syrian in the crowd was excited, and it was necessary to clear the corridors before the cases could be taken up.

When the first case was called yesterday—that of Tony Sabi, a grocer, of 87 Washington Street, accused of feloniously assaulting Moussa Abalan, another grocer—Magistrate Wahle heard the tangled story, and then held the accused for the action of the Grand Jury, under $1,500 bail. The hearing occupied an hour and a half. The quarrel between the two was fomented by the arrest of Hajlz Abelmelick, another Syrian, on complaint of Abalan.

Abalan complained to Policeman Moran, who took Abelmelick to the police station. Capt. McNally refused to entertain a charge, and as Abelmelick was going home Sabi, his friend, took Abalan to task. Sabi drew a revolver, and when it was taken away from him he pulled out a knife.

Michael Scheiv of 45½ Washington Street was placed under $100 bonds to keep the peace by Magistrate Wahle. Nicola Dibs and George Shari of 75 and 87 Washington Street, respectively, were held in $1,000 bail for examination on Nov. 1. Other cases growing out of the riot went over to the same day. N. Maloof, an importer, gave bail for Scheiv, Dibs, and Shari.

Fog Holds Up the Caronia.

It was foggy off Sandy Hook last night. The Cunard liner Caronia, from Liverpool and Queenstown, reported southeast of Fire Island at 4:05 P. M., anchored outside the bar on account of the thick weather. The Caronia will dock about 8:30 A. M. to-day.

GIVES 26,000 MOTHS.

William Schaus Enriches the American Museum of Natural History.

The American Museum of Natural History received yesterday a valuable collection of moths, embracing 26,000 specimens, mainly from Mexico, Central and South America. The collection is the gift of William Schaus, formerly of this city, a son of the late William Schaus, founder of the firm of Fifth Avenue art dealers.

Mr. Schaus has been for many years a tireless traveler and an enthusiastic entomologist. Four years ago he gave to the Museum a collection of 5,000 butterflies gathered from the Old World, including rare specimens from Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, and New Zealand. The present collection of American insects is the result of some three years of patient collecting, much of it under Mr. Schaus's personal direction, in the centre of the Western Continent.

William Beutenmuller, Curator of the Department of Entomology at the Museum, was busy yesterday afternoon unpacking the endless cartons and tin biscuit boxes in which the collection arrived.

"A very valuable accession," said Mr. Beutenmuller, "particularly as the Museum has almost no specimens of South American insects. The first thing to do is to get them out of their papers and cotton and put them in a moistening box to make them soften and spread out. Then we'll have three months' work classifying, mounting, and labeling them. We have just finished labeling and rearranging our whole stock of North American Lepidoptera. This new collection of South American material will join on admirably."

Mr. Beutenmuller added that Mr. Schaus, who is now in Washington, had promised to forward to the Museum a large and recently gathered collection of Cuban insects. Mr. Schaus is now on his way South to begin a riding trip through Mexico.

OLD TEACHERS ANXIOUS.

They Want to Know Which of Them Are to be Retired.

Old teachers who have recently applied for pensions are anxious to find out whether or not their applications have been acted upon favorably. The Board of Retirement passed upon twenty of these applications at a meeting last Wednesday. The names of the teachers recommended for retirement, however, cannot be given out until the Board of Education affirms them.

President Tifft of the Board of Education, who is Chairman of the Retirement Committee, explained yesterday morning why this information could not be made public.

"If we were to announce that certain teachers had been recommended for retirement by the Retirement Board," he said, "those teachers would naturally think that they were retired, and would make preparations to leave school immediately. The pension fund is not a large one, and only the most needy cases can be affirmed. Hence, as there is a possibility of the Board of Education refusing to retire some of the teachers we have recommended, it would not be fair to raise their hopes only to dash them to earth again."

The Board of Education will act upon the names of twenty teachers at to-day's meeting.

Nine Months for Carrying a Revolver.

Edward Brown of 245 West 127th Street was sentenced to-day by Justice Olmsted in the Court of Special Sessions to nine months in the penitentiary for carrying a loaded revolver. On Oct. 18 he went into the office of Wilberforce Sully, at 29 Broadway, and demanded money, pointing a revolver at Mr. Sully's head to emphasize the need for haste.

A Gavel for Judge Rosalsky.

Lawyers practicing in the Criminal Courts Building and other friends of Judge Rosalsky presented to the new member of the bench of the Court of General Sessions an ivory, silver-trimmed gavel yesterday. Ex-Judge William M. K. Olcott made the presentation speech, and Hugh O. Pentecost also addressed the Judge.

SOUTH RUSSIA RISES; THE CZAR ISOLATED

Railway and Mail Communication with the Capital Cut Off.

FATAL RIOT IN ST. PETERSBURG

Many Victims There and in Other Cities—General Strikes Beginning and Famine Threatened.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES
Special Cable. Copyright, 1905.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 25.—South Russia is in open revolt. The workmen have erected fortifications and wire entanglements.

The people of St. Petersburg are becoming panic-stricken, fearing the downfall of the Government and the proclamation of mob rule.

The editors of the Liberal papers have decided, in consequence of the arbitrary treatment of the Nasha Zhizn, which has been suspended because it supported the strikers, to boycott the censorship and defy the Government.

ST. PETERSBURG, Thursday, Oct. 26.—Confronted by a situation more threatening than any since the beginning of the political and social upheaval of Russia and which, at the time this dispatch is filed, shows no sign of amelioration, the Emperor's Ministers, under the Presidency of Count Witte, spent almost all of yesterday in conferences in the hope of finding some way out of the crisis which the Revolutionists and Socialists have caused.

The strike on the railroads is complete, except in a few border provinces, and St. Petersburg, Moscow, and other large cities are almost as closely beleaguered as if they were invested by besieging armies. At the same time the industrial strike has assumed large dimensions and the turbulent elements in several localities are offering open resistance to the troops.

The Ministers, who hed been in session during the day, resumed their meeting after a short interval for dinner and continued their deliberations until long efter midnight. The result of these deilberations is not yet known.

The Ministers were summoned to meet not as the Committee of Ministers, of which Count Witte is President, but as the Council of Ministers, of which Count Solsky is properly the Chairman, and the selection of Count Witte to preside, which was done by the direction of the Emperor, shows that a Cabinet is actually, though not formally, an accomplished fact. It is understood that an edlct establishing a Cabinet will be published on Saturday, together with a rescript addressed to Count Witte intrusting to him the office of Premier.

The Emperor has been cut off from railroad communication with the capital. M. Manukhin, the Minister of Justice, who went to Peterhof yesterday morning to report to the Emperor, could not return by train and drove beck in a carriage in a drenching rain to be present at the meeting of Ministers.

Yesterday a general strike was proclaimed on the two lines running out of St. Petersburg which had not previously been affected. The Finland Railroad to Helsingfors and the steamers constitute St. Petersburg's only means of communication with the outer world this morning. The postal authorities are now refusing to accept any kind of mail, and commercial correspondence is at a standstill.

There is an enormous extension of the strike elsewhere. All the lines in Poland are tied up, and a strike has begun on the great Southwestern system, covering the territory southward from Kieff toward Odessa.

No trains are ruaning in the Baltic provinces, and the situation at Riga and Libau is reported to be very bad.

The workmen of the Putiloff, Kolpino, Obukhoff, Alexandrovski, and Nevski works etruck yesterday morning, and all the employes of the factories of the Schlusselburg Chaussée leter quit work in sympathy with the railway strikers. The employes of all the cotton mills and other factories on the banke of the Neva struck in the afternoon. The strike is now complete in the great factory region on both banks of the Neva above the city and in several other industrial quarters. Forty thousand men ere out, but they are conducting themselves in a most orderly maaner. The Store Clerks' Union to-night proclaimed a two weeks' sympathetic strike for political reasons.

The etreet cars in several districts of St. Petersburg have stopped.

The League of Leagues has seized the opportunity to come to the support of the railroad men, and has adopted a resolution in favor of a general strike of all professions.

The telegraph operators are joining in the movement, and the complete isolation of interior points is feared.

The price of food is rapidly rising here, the factories in other affected districts have been forced to shut down for lack of fuel, and Moscow faces not only a food but a water famine.

Large meetings, mainly of workmen, were held last night in the university and the higher schools, at which the sentiment was unanimous for continuing the strike on the railroads to the bitter end. The proceedings at several of the meetings were of a strongly revolution-

BET OF 3 TO 1 ON McCLELLAN.

Another of 1 to 4 on Hearst—Jerome Odds Given as 1 to 2.

Hearst took his place as a possible Mayor among the election bettors on the curb yesterday. Benjamin Gompert bet $1,000 to $4,000 with C. Rogers that Hearst would be elected. There were several offers of 2 to 9 after that. Betting on Hearst's gettiag 125,000 or 135,000 votes was even again. The odds on McClellan still ruled 4 to 1, though there was one bet of $60 to $180 against him yesterday.

E. Wasserman, who was almost blown up by a bomb not long ago, said in the morning that he had $100,000 to put up against Jerome at 2 to 1. When 3 o'clock came Mr. Wasserman said he had not made any bet on the Stock Exchange floor, his activities being confined to small curb wagers. This of course was before the retirement of Candidate Flammer.

De Witt Rosenheim said he had put up $16,000 against $5,000 against Jerome. Louis M. Teichman made severel bets at 4 to 1 on McClellan. J. J. Judge bet $200 to $650 on the field against McClellan. W. Dugan was reported to have bet $10,000 even that Hearst would get more than 100,000 votes. Stelle & De Kay was the firm that bet 3 to 1 on McClellan, Ivins did not figure in any of the larger wagers.

Late in the afternoon Mr. Judge put up $400 to $1,400 on the field against McClellan and also $400 to $1,600. Landsburg Brothers placed $7,000 to $2,000 in small lots on McClellan. Wasserman Brothers bet 3½ to 1 on the field against Hearst.

FORTY ESCAPED THE JURY.

Unalterably Opposed to Capital Punishment, They Said.

Of a panel made up of fifty-two talesmen in the Kings County Court, before Judge Crane yesterday afternoon, forty men declared themselves to be unalterably opposed to capitel punishment, and the jury was made complete by the seating of the other twelve.

The case up for trial was that of John Shepard, a negro, who was charged with murder in the first degree for killing Frank Schofield, another negro, on July 10 in a poolroom in Hudson Avenue.

Two of the talesmen called emphatically declared capital punishment to be a relic of barbarism. When the jury was completed it was found to have in it Prof. Wendell D. Bush, Instructor in Philosophy in the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, and J. L. Ulrich, a post graduate student of botany and zoölogy at Harvard. Both these jurors expressed a belief in the justice of capital punishment.

HIT H. H. ROGERS'S SPECIAL.

Runaway Freight Cars Knock Him Across His Berth.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Oct. 25.—Henry H. Rogers's special train, while standing in the Union Station yards here last night, was struck by a runaway section of a freight train, ten cattle cars of which broke loose from the engine and ran backard down a heavy grade into the Rogers train.

Mr. Rogers was asleep, and the impact threw him across his berth, striking his head upon the wooden partition. Panes of glass were broken in the Pullmans, which were otherwise uninjured.

The party left Humboldt, Kan., yesterday morning on the Senta Fé, passing through Holliday and coming to Leavenworth. Here the special was transferred to the Missouri Pacific and left on the rear of the regular north-bound train for Omaha.

Rogers and his party of stockholders did not visit the Sugar Creek refinery, in Missouri, nor did they at any time touch that State. The reason assigned for this is that Herbert S. Hadley, Attorney General of Missouri, is anxious to serve summons upon Rogers and others interested in the Standard Oil Company so as to secure their appearance in the case of the State of Missouri vs. the Waters-Pierce and the Republic Oil Companies.

HELD UP IN FIFTH AVENUE.

Boy Beaten and Robbed of Laces Worth $500—Crowd Just Watched.

Two well-dressed men pounced on a boy in Fifth Avenue at Twenty-first Street last night, and after beating him severely, stole a package containing $500 worth of laces from him and fled. A crowd saw them beat the boy, but did not interfere. The youngster was Louis Schwartz, 17 years old, a messenger boy employed by Herzig & Maher, importers of laces at 35 East Twentieth Street.

The lad was on his way to deliver an order, and was walking briskiy down Fifth Avenue when one of the two men asked if he could assist by carrying the boy's bundle, which was rather heavy. Young Schwartz shrank back and declined. At Twenty-first Street one of the men grabbed him by the shoulders, while the other snatched the bundle of laces. Schwertz put up a fight. The crowd did not know that the two young men were bent on robbery, and believed that the boy was at fault.

Two coachmen, in charge of expensive equipages, joined in a chaee that wes begun after the thieves had a good start, but did not catch the robbers.

WHY FOLK STAYED AWAY.

Missourian Recalls That Jerome Criticised His Reform Plans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—A great deal of interest has been excited here, particularly among Missourians, by Gov. Folk's refusal to speak for District Attorney Jerome in New York, after having spoken for the Reform ticket in Philadelphia. His attitude has seemed strange to political observers.

A Missourian who arrived here to-night, however, gave what he said was the correct explanation. When Jerome was out West under Chautauqua auspices he ecoffed at Folk's attempt to close the saloons on Sunday, saying that he could not do it because the people did not want the law enforced.

The part that Folk resented wae the statement by Jerome that such movements had their origin in "the moral yearnings of rural communities." The Governor came out in a reply that the "moral yearnings of rural communitiee" were the backbone of the Nation.

Subsequently Jerome said in an interview that the East did not consider Folk a big enough man to be Presidential timber.

QUIZ COMMITTEE FOR THE MUTUAL

Will It Oust McCurdy?—Trustees Declare It Won't.

TO GIVE OUR SIDE, ONE SAYS

Alleged Irregularities Discounted—McCurdy Presented Resolution and All Was Harmonious.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company decided yesterday to investigate itself.

In accordance with a prearranged plan of action the trustees of the company, at their regular quarterly meeting, adopted a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of three to investigate all of the company's affairs. The resolution was adopted unanimously. It was offered by President Richard A. McCurdy, who delivered a speech of a few words, all of a formal character, explaining its purport. The trustees knew in advance of its phraseology and voted "aye" without comment when the question was put.

The Committee of Three consists of W. H. Truesdale, President of the Lackawanna Railroad; Effingham B. Morris, President of the Girard Trust Company of Philadelphia, and John W. Auchincloss, a Director of the Illinois Central Railroad and other corporations.

The committee will organize and hold its first meeting within the next ten days. The exact date of the first meeting could not be learned last night. The meetings will probably be secret. The public will know what happens only when the committee's report comes out. President McCurdy will probably be the first witness. The scope of the investigation is to be large, and the examination will in all probability continue until the Armstrong Committee adjourns, or even longer.

McCurdy's Statement to the Public.

Formal notification of the proposed investigation was given by Mr. McCurdy after the meeting yesterday, when he gave to the newspapers this statement:

"The President called attention to the inquiry by joint committee of the Legislature of the State of New York into the affairs of the company and to the widespread public interest and comment with respect thereto.

"He urged that the board should take cognizance of the testimony elicited with a view to such action as might be found advisable in the interests of the company and its policy holders.

"The President then offered for the consideration of the board the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee of three be, and they hereby are, appointed as a committee to examine into the organization and management of the affairs of the company and to report from time to time to this board their recommendations in reference thereto, with power to add to their number and to fill vacancies.

"The resolution was then moved by a member of the board, with the additional suggestion that Messrs. Truesdale, Morris, and Auchincloss constitute the committee and, being duly secoaded, was unanimously adopted.

"The committee will proceed at once to discharge its functions and to report report speedily to the board.

"RICHARD A. McCURDY, President."

Not to Oust McCurdy.

The action of the Board of Trustees of the company in deciding upon an internal investigation after the fashion of the Frick Investigating Committee of the Equitable Company gave immediate rise to the report that in the light of developments before the Legislative Investigating Committee, President McCurdy would retire from the Presidency of the Mutual. In fact, it was said that the appointment of the investigators was actually in accordance with a prearranged plan on the part of the Directorate, to which Mr. McCurdy had given his acquiescence, to effect a change in the Presidency of the company. This was denied, however, by several of the trustees of the company last night. One of them, Charles R. Henderson, declared explicitly that there was no intention to put out Mr. McCurdy, and that the principal work of the committee would in all probability elicit all the facts in the case of the Mutual management, set Mr. McCurdy right before the public, and show the country that what had been told the country thus far was misleading and inaccurate.

Trustees of the company who were questioned last night as to details of the meeting at which the committee resolutions were adopted laid great strese on the fact that the meeting wae "entirely harmonious." All of them said they wished to anticipate any reports which might gain currency that there had been dissension or conflict among the officers or Trustees of the company, and that the resolutions yesterday were presented by Mr. McCurdy himself, who sought vindication, and that in this move there was accorded to him "the hearty and undivided support of his fellow-Trustees."

Those at the Meeting.

Present at the meeting were President Richard A. McCurdy, Vice President Robert A. Granniss, General Manager Robert H. McCurdy, John W. Auchincloss, Julien T. Davies, Walter R. Gilliette, Charles R. Henderson, Jamee N. Jarvie, Charles E. Miller, Effingham B. Morris, James Speyer, and Herman C. Von Post.

Mr. McCurdy's presentation of his resolution was this:

"Gentlemen I offer the following resolution."

The resolution was then read. Mr. McCurdy said but a word or two in explanation. Affirmative action on the resolution followed quickly. Then the Trustees proceeded to other business demanding the usual attention at a quarterly meeting. There was no general discussion of the resolution or the prospective work of the committee.

Mr. Auchincloss, the only member of the Committee of Three who was in New York last night, was asked about the prospective work of the committee. To the question, "When will the committee begin work?" he replied.

"I cannot say; it will be soon, however."

"What will be the general scope of the investigation?"

"It will probably include everything

COAST TO CHICAGO, 55 HOURS.

Harriman Special, with Miss Roosevelt Aboard, Nearing New York.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—The Harriman special, with Miss Alice Roosevelt on board, is on its way to New York without coming through Chicago. At least, when it reacbed the outskirts of the city on the Northwestern Road it was switched to the Belt Line tracks out on the prairie and carried around west till connection was made with the Lake Shore tracks on the south.

The special arrived here at 8:10 o'clock this evening, having made the distance from Omaha, 492 milee, in 10 hours and 40 minutes. The Overland Limited takes a trifle more than thirteen hours.

Messrs. Felton, Stubbe, Longworth, Schmedlaff, and Kruttschmitt left the train here, and the only delay was the uncoupling of one car. But the circuitous rcute necessary to reach the Lake Shore tracks took fifty miautes. The train stopped only a momeat at Englewood at 9:11 o'clock, and the next stop will be La Porte, Ind.

No one joined the party here. Some officials who expected to go East with Mr. Harriman missed doing so owing to a lack of knowledge of the means by which the special was to be transferred here. Neither Mr. Harriman nor Miss Roosevelt was visible at any time during the transfer.

Congressman Longworth took the train for Cincinnati.

The time from San Francisco to Chicago was 55 hours. Sixty-eight hours is the best ordinary time for that trip.

MURDER OVER POLITICS.

Man Found Dead After a Discussion with Three Strangers.

William H. Rehfeld of 116th Street and Park Avenue and his brother-in-law, John Wibberley of 174 East 111th Street, were talking politics in upper Third Avenue about 10 o'clock last night. They parted and Wibberley saw Rehfeld join three strange men and enter into a discussion with them. Twenty minutes later Policeman McCauley of the East 104th Street Station eaw a crowd standing over a man stretched out on the pavement in front of 2,007 Third Avenue.

McCauley thought the man was intoxicated, and called the patrol wagon. When the supposedly drunken man was carried into the station house Dr. Dinnick of the Harlem Hospital said he was dead. The man had a deep cut over his left eye, but the doctor said that that could not have caused his death. Afterward Wibberley, who is janitor of the evening school in 110th Street, identified the body as that of his brother-in-law, Rehfeld.

ROCKEFELLER MAY RUN A CAR.

Likely to Act as His Own Chauffeur Before Long.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, Oct. 25.—John D. Rockefeller has taken such a great interest in automobiling that it is reported here that he will learn to run a machine himself.

Since his return from Cleveland Mr. Rockefeller can be seen out in his big steamer every day, sitting beside his French chauffeur. He takes great interest in the running of the car.

Until a short time ago Mr. Rockefeller was averse to automobiles, and had large signs bearing the words, "No Motor Care Allowed," put up at all entrances to his big estate at Pocantico Hills. Now he owns two cars. Mr. Rockefeller's brother, William Rockefeller, is an expert chauffeur and owns nine cars.

Gov. and Mrs. Montague of Virginia, who have been the guests of the Rockefellers, left to-day for home. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and his wife and Mr. Rockefeller's secretary accompanied them to New York.

HAMBURG-AMERICAN CO. BUYS.

Gets Aldrich Court Building at Auction on Bid of $1,200,000.

At the auction sale of properties owned by the Aldrich estate, conducted yesterday in the Real Estate Salesroom by Bryan L. Kennelly, the Hamburg-American Packet Company bought the Aldrich Court, a nine-story office building at 41 to 45 Broadway, for $1,200,000. The property was struck down for that amount to R. E. Simon of L. J. Phillips & Co., who announced later that he had acted for the steamship company.

At the company's office it was said that the purchase had been made to provide adeouate offices for the line, which now occupies leased quartere at 37 Broadway. The building will be extensively altered by its new owners. It covers a plot fronting 80 feet on Broadway and extends through to Trinity Place, with a depth of 191 feet.

Mr. Kennelly announced last night that the total sum realized for the Aldrich estate property wae $4,911,500.

BURGLARS TAKE SAFE AWAY.

Drop It from Second-Story While Servants Are Getting Dinner.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, Oct. 25.—A safe weighing at least 250 pounds wae rolled across a room on the second story and dropped out of a window at the home of Edward Hale Graves, South Orange, at dinner hour this evening. Jewelry worth $5,000 or $10,000 and valuable papere were in the safe. Mr. Graves is a broker at 30 Broad Street, New York.

His residence stands only a short distance from the street, and there are other houees adjoining and across the road. The robbery was not discovered until Mr. and Mrs. Graves returned home soon after 7 o'clock. After 6 o'clock all the servants were down on the first floor.

PETER L. RONALDS GAVE THOUSANDS TO A MEDIUM

Son Sues to Have Spirit Deeds to Miss Blake Set Aside.

SEANCES AT FATHER'S HOME

A Miss Blake Lived at Castle Ronalds After the Noted Whip Separated from His Wife.

Spirits that appeared in the semblance of a white cloud, wafting messages from shadowland and urging the late Peter Lorillard Ronalds, the noted whip, to transfer his materalized real estate to a real live medium in the person of Elizabeth N. Blake figure in a suit brought yesterday in the Supreme Court by Mr. Ronalds's son, Reginald Ronalds, who seeks to have the deeds set aside on the ground that his father's signature to them was obtained by fraud. Peter Lorillard Ronalds died on Saturday last at his home, 113 East Thirty-fifth Street.

His Connecticut home, Castle Ronalds, has always been known as a house of mystery, and some of the strange goings on there may be explained by Mr. Ronalds's belief in Spiritualism. Ever since Mrs. Ronalds left her husband in 1869 and went to live in London, society has been speculating over the reasons that led to the separatioa. Mrs. Ronalds, who is 69 years old, will probably be called to testify in the action begun in the Supreme Court yesterday. Her testimony will probably be taken abroad.

The rcal estate involved in the present suit, which it le alleged Mr. Ronalds deeded to Mise Blake after being told by spirits to make the transfers, includes several valuable pieces of property. If the son succeeds in setting aside the transfers his mother will come in for a dower right.

The plaintiff in the suit, Reginald Ronalds, served with Roosevelt's Rough Riders and was one of the ushers at the wedding of Consuelo Vanderbilt to the Duke of Marlborough. In his complaint the son alleges that in his latter years his father was induced to deed away several hundred thousand dollars' worth of real estate to Elizabeth N. Blake.

She is charged with leading him to believe that the deeds should be made in accordance with the commands of the spirits of certain relatives of Mr. Ronalds who have been dead for many years. It is to set aside these alleged spirit deeds that the son brings the suit.

The other children, Peter Lorillard Ronalds, Jr., and Fannie Ritchie, have an interest in the estate. This is the property involved in the suit: 224 William Street, 203 Pearl Street, 103 Maiden Lane, 940 and 942 Eighth Avenue, and property in Wooster and Bleecker Streets.

When Mr. Ronalds died it was known that he had left a will, but it has not yet been filed at the Surrogates' office. After making a number of bequests the will provides that the residue of the estate is to go to the testator's three children.

The property mentioned in the suit passed out of Mr. Ronalds's possession, the son alleges, in November, 1900; December, 1901, and January, 1904. The plaintiff alleges that the transfers of the property were made without any consideration, and adds that at the time of the signing of the papers his father was weak in mind, and for some time before the dates named had been incompetent to manage his business affairs.

Mr. Ronalds alleges that Miss Blake took advantage of his father's weak condition, and by coercion and fraud induced him to execute the deeds. He alleges that she represented to his father that the deeds were not absolute conveyances of the premises, and induced him to believe that "the instrumente should be executed and delivered to her in obedience to the commands of the spirits of his departed relatives."

Liens have been filed against the property to prevent its transfer until the court determines the ownership.

About the time of the first transfer of property Peter Lorillard Ronalds surprised his friends by begianing an action against his wife for divorce on the ground of desertion. He had then been separated from her for thirty-one years. Just as suddenly the suit was withdrawn.

Mrs. Ronalds was Miss Mary Frances Carter of Boston. Mr. Ronalds was a very rich man, a cousin of Pierre Lorillard, and a noted horseman. Eight years after the marriage, while on a tour abroad, Mr. and Mrs. Ronalds separated. Since that time ehe bas lived in London aad was the pioneer among Americaa women that have entered English society. The late Queen Victoria praised her in recognition of her work in connection with the hospital ship Maine, which she helped to equip for Great Britain.

Meantime, accordiag to the story that came out yesterday, Mr. Ronalde was becoming an ardent believer in spiritualism. In the Fall of 1900 he filed a suit for divorce. Then the suit was withdrawn, and it was believed that Mrs. Ronalds had signed away her dower right in her husband'e property.

It now appears that the property was that that Mr. Ronalds deeded to Miss Blake, who at that time lived at Castle Ronalds and was known to the servante as a ward of Mr. Ronalds. Miss Blake appeared at Castle Ronalds shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Ronalds separated. Then came stories of epiritualistic séances in the castle.

The castle is a maesive stone structure, on a high hill, overlooking the foothille of the Berkehires, twenty miles from Bridgeport.

The carriage drive up the hill leads into a tunnel, and whenever Mr. Ronalds stopped there he had a regiment of dummy soldiers in armor lined up in the tunnel. The ground floor was given over to the retainere of the estate. There were mysterious trap doors leading to rooms that were never opened to visitors.

The only occupant of the castle besides the servants and Mr. Ronalds was Miss Blake. Sometimes he took her to Europe with him.

When the lawyers in the case were asked if the Miee Blake who lived at Castle Ronalds was the defendant in the suit, they declined to say.

NEW BOAT BREAKS DOWN.

The Richmond's Passengers Delayed More Than an Hour.

One hundred and fifty passengers on the new Municipal ferryboat Richmond fretted and fumed for an hour and twenty minutes last night, while Capt. Baxter wae trying to land his boat in the slip at Whitehall Street.

The Richmond left Staten Island at 7:15 o'clock, and just before she made her slip the steering gear went wrong. Capt. Baxter thought that, on account of the strong ebb tide it would be safer to make a detour. He took his boat nearly to Liberty Island, where he made a circuit and came back. Three attempts were made before the boat was finally landed in the slip, and then only after a hawser had been taken ashore and the boat warped in. By the time the passengers made a landing it was 8:35 o'clock.

It was said that the rudder chains that run beneath the pilot house had been placed a little too close to the ceiling and became stuck at the "s." This prevented the steam steering gear from working in either direction.

The blaze was in a storeroom for coal, packages, and clothes and was quickly put out by firemea.

FLAMMER HAS QUIT, TO VOTE FOR JEROME

Advises All Good Republicans to Do the Same.

NAME STAYS ON THE BALLOT

But Republican Leaders Will Instruct Voters How to Split Their Tickets.

Charles A. Flammer, Republican nominee for District Attorney, withdrew from the ticket last night. Though his name will remain on the ballot, he will vote for Jerome himself and will advise his friends to vote for Jerome.

Mr. Flammer's decision was a shock to the Republican organization, which for some time has been contending with the candidate's unwillingness to run. Apparently it came also as a shock to James W. Osborne, Tammany nominee for the same office, for Mr. Osborne was missing last night till nearly midnight. He did not appear at any of the meetings at which he was announced to speak and THE TIMES reporters for a long while could get no nearer to him than communication through a friend on the telephone.

Chairman William Halpin of the Republican City Committee called reporters to him at the Fifth Avenue Hotel just before 10 o'clock last night and told the news of his candidate's retirement. Mr. Halpin was evidently bent on putting the best possible face on the matter. Mr. Flammer's action had been approved, Mr. Halpin said, and now all good Republicans would be asked to vote for Jerome for District Attorney, notwithstanding Mr. Flammer's name would appear in the Republican column on the official ballot on election day.

Mr. Halpin went on to explain that the law prevented a candidate taking his name actually off the ticket at such a stage in the campaign after accepting a nomination, and that consequently Republicans would have to split their ticket by making a cross in the circle at the top of the Republican column, and then making another cross opposite the name of Jerome. How to do this correctly would be explained later, he said, and the Republican Campaign Committee would issue sample ballots to show how a man might vote for Ivins and at the same time vote for Jerome.

The withdrawal of Flammer, in his opinion, Mr. Halpin declared bravely, meant the election of Ivins. Then, seeing the consternation on some faces around him, he corrected this statement, saying that he "hoped" this would be the result, but that he might be mistaken in making predictions at this time.

Then Mr. Halpin gave out a formal statement from the retiring candidate. Here it is:

Whea I accepted the Republican nomination for District Attorney I did so in good faith and in the full consciousness, if elected, of being able to serve the people of this community honorably and well.

As a member of the Republican Party I desire to put myself in accord with the best traditions of that party in leading sound public sentiment by not continuing my candidacy for District Attorney against William Travers Jerome, and in response to what I recognize today as the sense of the majority of the best citizenship in this community I retire as a candidate for District Attorney. Though the thought is apart from the principle which occasions my retirement, I am hopeful and confident that my action must assist the unification of those citizens opposed to the continuance of the administration of this city by McClellan, Murphy, and Tammany to the support of Mr. Ivins for Mayor, in which, with all good citizens, I am vitally interested.

I beg to acknowledge my gratitude to those many friends whose expressions of good will and loyalty have come to me in this campaign, and I urge them, as well as all Republicans and all other good citizens, to support and vote for William Travers Jerome for District Attorney, as I now shall do.

"Mr. Flammer came to me to-night and told me that he had made up his mind to get out," explained Mr. Halpin. "It wae only a little while ago that he decided it."

"Did you approve his action?" Mr. Halpin was asked.

He replied that he thought it would strengthen the Republican ticket to have Ivine and Jerome in the same harness. He was aeked gravely if he had induced Mr. Flammer to retire in favor of Jerome, but refueed to reply. One of his friends came to the rescue.

"Sure, Billy Halpin did it," said the friend.

Mr. Halpin was asked next if, now that Mr. Flammer had retired from the fight, Ivins and Jerome would make speeches from the same platform.

"I don't know," responded Mr. Helpin wearily.

"You see," he continued, "this statement from Flammer is hot off the griddle, and that's the way you are getting it. It's a different story from that told at 5 o'clock this afternoon. It's now about 10 o'clock, and although that talk at 5 was that Mr. Flammer would not retire, you see five hours, from 5 o'clock to 10, have made quite a change in the situation."

Mr. Flammer was not present when the etatement was given out. He went early to his home in Harlem, where he left word that he hsd nothing to add to or take away from the open letter he had given out.

District Attorney Jerome returned at 11 o'clock last night to his headquarters at the Gilsey House, where from the reporters he first heard of Mr. Flammer's withdrawal.

"This is too important an announcement for me to talk about now after a day's work, when I'm very tired," said Mr. Jerome. "It is very important, and it is not right to go at such a subject when I'm as tired as I am now. It deserves better treatment."

"It is a unique situation, isn't it?" put in one of Jerome's assistants.

"Yes, it is," asserted Mr. Jerome. Then he thought a little, and continued cautiously, rubbing his hands the while: "No, I won't say that. But it is too big a thing to attack at this time of the night."

"Will you issue a statement to-morrow?"

"Ah, now, as to that I cannot tell."

Mr. Jerome did not become excited, but he was visibly pleased. He kept rubbing his hands as he solemnly declared over and over again how important was Mr. Flammer's action.

Faces at the Republican Club, where State Chairman Odell makes his headquarters, looked gloomy. Mr. Odell was invisible. He had been there earlier in the day, but it was said last night that he had left town, presumably for Newburg.

Julius Mayer said:

"So the announcement has been made, has it? I expected it to be. You see in regard to judicial nominations and the nomination of a District Attorney, who is a quasi-judicial officer, party men in notable instances have disregarded so-called regularity. Republicans will vote for Mr. Ivins and a substantial majority of the Republicans of New York County will vote for Mr. Jerome. And they are sufficiently familiar with the ballot to know how to vote it."

Georgs B. Agnew, Republican Assemblyman from the Twenty-seventh Assembly District, openly rejoiced. Said he:

"I am very glad to hear that Mr. Flammer has quit in favor of Mr. Jerome. I was one of those who signed Mr. Jerome's petition before the Republican Convention was held. The result will be that Mr. Jerome will be elected."

Abraham Gruber, the Republican leader of the Twenty-first District, who led the fight against the indorsement of Jerome by the Republican organization and placed Mr. Flammer in nomination at the County Convention, wouldn't believe the news when he heard it. Mr. Gruber had just finished speaking at Schmidt's Hall, in East New York, last night when the report that Mr. Flammer had come out with a statement urging his friends to vote for Jerome was brought to his attention. Mr. Gruber became much excited.

"It's a lie," said he. "I know it's a lie. Flammer told Ed Lauterbach this afternoon that he had no intention of deserting the ticket and I know he won't. Why, if he should be induced to take such action as is reported it would cost Mr. Ivins 25,000 Republican votes."

Mr. Gruber was so much wrought up over the Flammer report that he did not wait to hear any part of the address of Mr. Ivins, but hustled to Manhattan at once, only to have the news confirmed.

Early yesterday afternoon, although it was strenuously denied that Flammer would quit, there was a panicky feeling in the Republican organization because of defections due to Mr. Flammer's nomination against Jerome. Every Republican newspaper in the city had turned to the support of Mr. Jerome's candidacy, and reports from Republican district leaders to headquarters yesterday were to the effect that they were experiencing the utmost difficulty in holding the Republican vote of their districts for Ivins and the city ticket because of the intensity of the feeling in favor of Jerome.

In the course of the afternoon there came a report that Mr. Flammer would come out and urge his friends to support Mr. Jerome. When Mr. Flammer was called up on the telephone and asked about it, he said:

"I have no intention of getting out of the race. I could not get my name off the ballot if I so desired, the time limit for resignations having expired. My name will go before the people, and, what is more, I expect to be elected."

Yet the rumor that he would come out for Jerome before the campaign was much older was persistently circulated. Edward Lautsrbach characterized it as a lie, but other leaders expressed the belief that such a statement would be forthcoming. They freely admitted that the result of Mr. Flammer's candidacy would be the alienation of thousands of votes from the Republican city ticket.

The big demonstration made for Jerome at the meeting of the Thirty-first District Republican Club in the Harlem Casino on Tuesday night was not an isolated instance of uprising within the Republican organization in favor of Jerome. The same feeling has existed just as strongly in other districts, and the leaders felt they could not keep it under control.

Early in the evening Mr. Halpin drove up to the Hotel Breslin in a cab, and sought an immediate conference with Mr. Ivins. Mr. Halpin evidently was worried about something. When asked if a meeting of the district leaders had been called to take action upon the candidacy of Mr. Flammer, he said that no such call had gone out.

"What is likely to be done by the Republican organization about the candidacy of Mr. Flammer?" Mr. Halpin was asked.

"That is a matter I cannot discuss," he said.

Mr. Halpin was a strong advocate of the indorsement of Mr. Jerome by the Republican organization originally. He told the leaders then that if they allowed their prejudice against Mr. Jerome to control their action they would surely rue it. His prediction has been fulfilled.

IVINS SEES VICTORY.

Says He Can Be Beaten Only by Republicans.

William M. Ivins spoke at seven meetings in Brooklyn and two in Manhattan last night, and everywhere he was greeted by crowds that filled the different halls and gave him an enthusiastic reception. Before he left the Hotel Breslin on last night's speaking tour Mr. Ivins issued a statement, in which he said that Mayor McClellan, having answered in the affirmative his inquiry as to whether or not, if elected, he would serve out his term as Mayor, should not console himself with the idea that he would be permitted to leave the witness stand with that admission.

"I would like Mayor McClellan to take notice," says Mr. Ivins in his statement, "that the question as to his retaining office for the full term is only one of the important questions which I have addressed to him.

"He has still to tell the public why it is that he claims credit for public improvements which were initiated by his predecessor and not by him. He has still to tell the public why he keeps in office a Commissioner of Water, Gas and Electric Supply who has been discredited and repudiated as Oakley has.

"He has yet to say whether the appointment of Parsons, a well-known park expert, in the Park Department is temporary and for political purposes only, and whether he intends to replace him with another Pallas as soon as the election is over.

"He has yet to tell us what he meant in his letter of acceptance, when he said that employment under his administration did not guarantee employment under the next, if he were elected; and why, if he has commissioners whom he thinks unfit, he does not remove them now, instead of waiting until the beginning of the new term which he expects to have."

When the Ivins party reached Greenpoint at 7:30 last night they were escorted to New Assembly Hall by a brass band and a military company. The route was ablaze with red light. The hall was crowded.

"Republicans," said Mr. Ivins, "we have the greatest chance we have ever had in New York to elect our ticket. One-half of the Democratic Party is fighting the other half, and both are calling each other hard names. If I am elected I shall be absolutely independent of any party leader, financier, or corporation. I won't appoint a watchmaker to make shoes or a shoemaker to make watches. No man will be appointed who has not special qualifications for the place for which he is named."

At Grand Central Hall Mr. Ivins said that if the standard of accomplishment was to be raised in New York City to what it ought to be a city administration would have no use for Murphy, no use for McCarren, no use for Ridgway, no use for any men except men who were honest and competent.

"The government of a city," Mr. Ivins continued, "ought to be distinct from National or State problems. Our problems are neighborhood problems. If I am elected I will run the city absolutely regardless of the needs of the Pacific Coast or of the Gulf of Mexico. I will do my work like any other working man. [Cheers.]

"I have refused financial assistance from the Republican County Committee and have not asked a dollar for my campaign from any man. If you make me Mayor I shall be absolutely free of any political or financial obligation to any man or any set of men. I have given not a single pledge. There is no Murphy in my camp. [Cheers.] My great aim will be to give an administration absolutely free from graft.

"You are following Teddy," shouted a man in the crowd.

"I couldn't follow any man, following whom would give me more gratification," responded Mr. Ivins.

At Grand Palace Rink Mr. Ivins said that the great issue of the campaign was whether the people wanted self-government. "You now have a government which operates to enrich a few men at the expense of the whole people. Elect me and I will see that what belongs to the people shall be reserved for the people."

Mr. Ivins said at this meeting that if he were defeated his defeat would be due to Republican defections. If Republicans remained loyal to him, he said, nothing could prevent his election.

At the Long Island Business College in the Fifth Assembly District of Brooklyn Mr. Ivins had a fine audience.

THE CRIMINAL LAW AND MURPHY'S "IT"

Are They Connected? Is Jerome's Question to Osborne.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

He's Cheered on Washington Heights by Tammanyites, Republicans, and Hearst Men.

District Attorney Jerome sprang a new question last night when he went up to Washington Heights to address a mass meeting of his old neighbors at Washington Hall. He got his cue from a report that Mr. Osborne had asked why the District Attorney did not himself find out where Charley Murphy got "it," as he had the best chance.

"The only chance I have had is through the criminal law," said Mr. Jerome, pointedly, and then he demanded, with emphasis on each word:

"Does Mr. Osborne suggest that Mr. Murphy got 'it' in such a way that the criminal law offers the best way of finding out how he got 'it'?"

A moment later he got a storm of applause by another question:

"Will Mr. Osborne, if elected, use the instrumentality of the criminal law to find out where Murphy got 'it'?

"This moral statement that a man is a fool who has a chance to get it and does not get it," Mr. Jerome added, "and the confession implied in Mr. Osborne's statement that the boss has got 'it'—this leads naturally and normally to a question that was put years ago and answered in this city. Once before a man who was asked where he got 'it' stood up in brazen effrontery and asked: 'What are you going to do about it?' And you showed clearly and simply what you were going to do about it by putting that man absolutely down and out." [Wild cheering and applause lasting half a minute.]

Although the response of that meeting to Mr. Jerome's appeal was as enthusiastic as any he has received in this campaign, much of the best fun preceded his arrival. It seemed from various signs that every man present was an ardent partisan of some party, and that the audience was about equally split in sympatby among Tammany, the Republicans and the Hearst supporters. One of the best known and most energetic Tammany workers in the district—to take bis own word for it—Capt. John P. Leo, presided. Another locally no less known Tammanyite, Lawyer Joseph D. Baucus, was one of the speakers. He got on beautifully as long as he stuck to Jerome. But the trouble began when he took a new tack by remarking:

"My old classmate, McClellan, who will be the next Mayor of New York—"

"Not on your life," yelled a man in the gallery.

"Why not?" called back a man on the main floor.

"We don't want anybody but Jerome," shouted a third.

And for a minute or more there was a row, nobody being able to make himself heard. At last Mr. Baucus caught the chance offered by a brief lull in the storm and tried to pour oil on the waves by saying:

"We are all on the level in this one way; we are all for Jerome. And let us each have his own choice for the rest—"

"Oh, you're a traitor," the first interrupter shouted, and the speaker grew red in the face. Once more there was a storm of voices. Words went flying back and forth. Catcalls and hisses and cheers drowned most of them, but through the roar was heard:

"We don't want anything from Murphy!"

Thereupon another man got up on a chair and howled: "What's the matter with Hearst?"

When Jerome got into the hall, where more than 1,000 were packed like herrings, the people did not cheer as they have done at most meetings, but they let out regular Western yells, and at last they all took up "The Star-Spangled Banner" and sang it standing, while all waved little American flags. Mr. Jerome followed largely the lines of his speech the night before, but varied the form of it. Each time he referred to Osborne the never-absent man with the fog-horn voice bellowed out a "Poor Jimmy!" that largely contributed to the hilarity of the occasion.

Here are some of the phrases in Mr. Jerome's address which took best with the audience:

"If the cases that are cited by my urbane and courteous opponent on the Tammany ticket are the best that can be brought against my office, then, surely, it needs no defense at my hands."

"We cannot take up a magazine or a newspaper without reading of graft, graft, graft. The people of this country are seething with a feeling of unrest and tumult. What is the cause? We feel that we are deprived of our own. We feel that personal liberty is almost dead in the land.

"Has anybody the temerity to say that in the last ten years he has seen in these United States of America a free convention?"

"I tell you, the feeling of political unrest is because there has come between the people and the public servant the boss, the corrupt, selfish, irresponsible man, who assumes to dictate and control and whose growth in political power always synchronizes with his growth in financial prosperity.

"It is a bitter thing for me to believe that the free American people can not or dare not or are not allowed to express their will.

"There is just as much loss of liberty in going to Benjamin B. Odell as in going to C. Francis Murphy [laughter]—or to J. Sergeant Cram."

"Judge Ingraham was slated to be turned down because he did not take the orders of the boss in regard to a certain appointment a short time ago. Judge Gildersleeve was equally slated to be turned down, because there had been passed a Judicial Pension bill, and he had served long enough to avail himself of the $11,500 taken from the taxpayers, and it was too bad to let a good thing like that go unavailed of.

"When the people of the City of New York see that the issue is between themselves and the selfish, irresponsible boss, then I have thought that they—against all statistics, against all figures, against all organization talk—will rise in their might and say unequivocally: 'No boss rule for ours!'

"They have allowed me, in the term of the West, to run as a 'Maverick'—without the brand of any political party."

"The Republican Convention did what the Tammany Convention had done before—and now it regrets having done it."

"The men nominated like my opponents must either be puppets or traitors. As for me, I prefer the puppet to the traitor. I believe in loyalty. Don't incur obligations if you are not going to discharge them. But be very careful what obligations you incur."

"I am not trying to destroy the parties, but to free them."

"I have not dwelt on Murphy because he is worse than any other boss. I have taken him up because he is, perhaps, as fair a type and illustration of the boss as you could pick out all over this country."

"Unless you decide the issue right which is now before you, unless you now show that you rule, what a loss will there be to all of us; what a discouragement to any effort for decency, not only here, but all over the country; what a discouragement to any effort at independence! How will we ever get away from Murphy of Good Ground and Odell of Newburg and their likes, if, when the opportunity is given you, you won't strike the blow?"

Commander Young's Trial Closed.

MARE ISLAND, Cal., Oct. 25.—The trial by court-martial of Commander Lucien Young of the United States ship Bennington, on a charge of negligence in connection with a boiler explosion at San Diego, closed to-day with the argument of Capt. E. E. West for the prosecution. Capt. West declared Young knew the boilers were in a poor condition, and there was a lax state of discipline on the vessel.

ROW AT A HEARST TALK CALLS OUT RESERVES

Candidate Interrupted by Question of a Union Bricklayer.

HE PLEDGES HALF-PRICE GAS

More Pay, Too, for Firemen, Police, and Street Cleaners—Or Else He'll Resign.

William R. Hearst went down into the Anarchist belt of the east side last night and made his biggest hit of the campaign. Emma Goldman and Herr Most have thrilled large audiences in Beethoven Hall, on East Fifth Street, when the "Marseillaise" has been the favorite air. Mr. Hearst made a speech in that hall last night, and when he was through the band struck up "America."

It was the first of two noteworthy meetings addressed by Mr. Hearst last night. The second was in the New Star Casino, just back of the theatre at Lexington Avenue and East 107th Street. Both halls were packed to the doors.

At the second meeting Mr. Hearst's address provoked a row and the police reserves were called out. The candidate was in the midst of a peroration on the rights of labor, in the course of which he said:

"He is a poor business man, indeed, who has to steal his profits out of the wages of his employes."

"What about the scabs you employed on that job of yours on 125th Street?" shouted a man in the hall. Mr. Hearst is not answering questions in his campaign tours.

There were some 4,000 persons in the hall. A thousand were on their feet in an instant shouting, hissing, groaning, and shaking clenched fists in the direction of the man who had asked the question.

"Put him out!" "Soak him!" were some of the cries.

There was the wildest confusion. Mr. Hearst stood on the platform and did not even stretch forth his hand. Finally one of the men on the platform shouted:

"Sit down, you hoodlum! Sit down!"

"I'm only asking a question and I want you to answer it," shouted the man.

"Murphy sent him down! Put him out!" shouted a man in the first row of seats.

"Hearst! Hearst!" roared the rest of the audience.

Four policeman advanced on the disturber and removed him to the street just in time to save him from injury.

"Now that Mr. Murphy's hoodlum has been removed," said Chairman De Ford, who is one of the candidate's closest advisers, "now that he has been thrown out, Mr. Hearst will go on."

"I am here to talk to honorable men and not to answer the questions of blackguards," said Mr. Hearst when quiet had been restored. Then he resumed his speech where he had left off.

After the reference made in the Marion Hall meeting of Tuesday night, accusing Mr. Hearst and his papers of causing the assssination of President McKinley, it has been declared by the Hearst managers that the Tammany district leaders have adopted this method to break up the Hearst meetings. It was said at the Hoffman House headquarters last night that if some of these disturbers get hurt they would have only themselves to blame.

Mr. Hearst had not gone much further in his speech before another man arose intent upon asking questions. He was well dressed. He stood quietly and held up his hands as he said:

"Mr. Chairman, I'm friendly to Mr. Hearst, but I, too, would like to ask him a question."

A man on the platform got up and shouted:

"Sit down, you bum!"

A policeman advanced up the aisle and placed his hand on the man's shoulder, seating him. The meeting had been in an uproar for two minutes, men standing in their seats, shouting and clenching their fists at the man who apparently was acting in good faith.

It was learned after the meeting that the man who had asked the question about the job in 125th Street was Charles Curran, a member of Bricklayers' Union No. 37. He said that last Summer, while out of work, he had passed a house on that street belonging to Arthur Brisbane, who writes editorials for Mr. Hearst.

Curran said plumbers and bricklayers were at work in the house, and that upon applying for a job and presenting his union card he had been told that only union men were being employed. Curran said he had written to inform Mr. Hearst and Mr. Brisbane about it, but had got no satisfaction.

Mr. Hearst, in his speeches at both meetings, made a strong bid for the police-firemen-street cleaner vote. He said the men in all these departments were shamefully underpaid and that as soon as he was elected Mayor they would all get more pay.

"It is a poor city administration," said Mr. Hearst, "that bas to make a showing by overworking its Police Department and its Fire Department, and denying to the hard-working street cleaners a trifling increase of $60 per annum. They have not had a raise in fourteen years, and every one knows that the cost of living has doubled in that period.

"Why, the amount of money that is going to be spent banqueting the British fleet would have satisfied the trifling demands of the city employes.

He promised gas at half the present rate, and said he would resign if he did not keep that and all his pledges.

"You've got my vote, and I am a Republican," shouted a man in the audience.

At Beethoven Hall J. Scarborough of Texas, who was introduced as "The Live Wire," said:

"A grafter is a man who wears a dress suit and dines at Delmonico's. The same man, if he dines in his shirt sleeves at an east side coffee house, is a common thief.

"Down in Texas where I come from there is a tree where they have hanged twenty-seven men, every one of them better men than Murphy and Odell. McClellan has no more show than snowball in the place where Murphy ought to be. Fellow Anarchists, are you going to vote for McClellan?"

"No," roared the crowd.

"Whom are you going to vote for?"

"Hearst, Hearst," cried the audience.

sry character, the orators calling on their auditors to rise and slay all "chinovniks" and police, and to meet troops with armed force. These speeches were received with enthusiastic cheers. The police were powerless to interfere, the precincts of the university being forbidden ground to them under an imperial ukase.

An encounter occurred last evening between strikers and engine drivers who were preparing to take out trains. Revolver shots were exchanged, and a number of persons were killed or wounded.

All the railroad stations of St. Petersburg are occupied by troops. The Railroad Battalions have been called out and an attempt will be made to man a train to Moscow and another to the frontier today.

The leaders of the strikers on the Moscow and Warsaw lines have planned a big meeting for to-morrow.

Moscow resembles a city in a state of siege. The price of meat has trebled, and there is great distress among the poor. Many people from neighboring provinces who have gone to Moscow are camping in the streets, and 2,000 persons are living in cars.

At a meeting of the Engineers' Union at Moscow yesterday, it was decided that it was imperative that all engineers, whatsoever their employment, cease work at once.

Telegraphic communication between St. Petersburg and Kharkoff is broken.

Hospital trains having on board 500 sick and wounded soldiers from Manchuria are held up near Moscow. The condition of the men is said to be pitiable.

A dangerous Agrarian movement has again broken out in Samara Province.

A general strike has begun at Poltava.

ANARCHY AT RIGA.

Many Persons Killed or Wounded—Spirit Shops Looted.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 25.—Anarchy prevails at Riga, Russia, according to a dispatch received from there by the Politiken.

Conflicts are frequent, many persons have been killed or wounded, and the Government spirit shops have been looted and destroyed.

MANY SLAIN AT EKATERINOSLAV

Wires Cut—Strikers Said to Have Destroyed the Railway.

EKATERINOSLAV, Oct. 25.—The town is in darkness and the military are parading the streets. The courts, banks, and other public offices were closed to-day.

The telephone and telegraph wires are cut.

It is reported that the strikers have destroyed the permanent railroad bed, have taken possession of a train which was approaching Ekaterinoslav, and have destroyed the station buildings all along the line.

Two bloody conflicts occurred to-day between the troops and demonstrators. The first occurred opposite the Municipal Buildings and the second near the Pushkin Monument. Numbers were killed or wounded in both instances by the volleys fired by the soldiers.

Fifteen persons were killed and twenty-six injured yesterday in a conflict between troops and strikers at the Briansk works, where the strikers had erected wire entanglements.

WARSAW IS ISOLATED.

Famine Is Feared—Military Forces Occupying the Streets.

WARSAW, Oct. 25.—This city is now completely isolated. The strike has spread to all the railroads. A meat, milk, and coal famine is feared.

The employes of the Warsaw-Vienna Railroad met to-day and decided to strike, and later it was announced that traffic had been stopped on the line.

Strong patrols of infantry and cavalry occupy the streets, and troops are guarding the railroad and the Government buildings.

GOVERNMENT MAY FALL—WITTE

Tells Strikers They Will Perish with It—Hilkoff Drives an Engine.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 25.—The strength displayed by the Social Democrats has amazed the authorities, who have been taken quite as much by surprise at the evidence of their power as they were at the time of the "Gopon Rebellion."

Prince Hilkoff, the Minister of Railroads, whose appeals to the strikers at Moscow were so unavailing that he could not get an engineer to bring him to St. Petersburg, and who, with a fireman stoking, drove his own engine, arriving here black and dust-grimed, is not blamable for the failure of the Government to keep its promises made in the Spring to increase the wages of the railroad men. That responsibility rests on the Minister of Finance.

Prince Hilkoff expected to meet the railroad delegates here, but the men apparently burned their bridges at the meetings held last night, which continued until dawn this morning. A dozen of these meetings, of the most enthusiastic character, were held. The largest, which was held in the university, was attended by about 10,000 persons, including students, who are making common cause with the workmen and whose leaders are making speeches in favor of a resumption of the students' strike.

The students joined the railroad men in passing a resolution in favor of the immediate convocation of a Constituent Assembly elected by direct universal suffrage, demanding that the laws governing labor be sanctioned by the representatives of the people and that political freedom be immediately granted, and declaring that thus only could an armed revolution be avoided.

These resolutions were adopted after the reputation which called on Count Witte had reported. The Count received the deputation as a private individual. He spoke to the men with his usual bluntness and told them plainly that some of their demands would be granted, while the granting of others was impossible. Count Witte informed his visitors that a law permitting greater freedom of meeting than was allowed by the laws of Italy and Austria-Hungary, and providing for freedom of the press had already been elaborated. Martial law on the railroads, he said, was an anachronism which should be abolished.

Count Witte warned the deputation that a continuation of the strike could only result in bloodshed, either by compelling the interference of the military or by the famine-stricken people of the cities turning upon the strikers.

"Remember," he said, "the Government may fail, but with it you will perish also, by playing into the hands of the bourgeoisie you are fighting."

In conclusion Count Witte advised the men to return to work, but his advice was howled down and the resolution to strike was adopted.

620,000 RAILWAY EMPLOYES.

The railways of the Russisn Empire have a total length of over 36,000 miles, of which some 24,000 miles belong to and are worked by the Government. There are twenty-eight lines connected with each other and eleven isolated lines.

The Russian railways employ some 620,000 men, whose average wages a year are about $160.

The Government lines are operated at an annual loss, which had, however, decreased from $20,000,000 in 1899 to $8,000,000 in 1901.

The Russian railwsys carry yearly a constantly increasing number of passengers. At the same time electric lines are coming into wide use.

The tendency in Russia seems to be toward complete absorption of all railway lines by the Government.

JEROME AND THE SLOCUM.

Did All He Could, He Says—Burnett and Lindsay Agree.

District Attorney Jerome dictated a reply yesterday to James W. Osborne's references to his conduct of the Slocum prosecution. In it he said that as soon as the news of the disaster was taken to his office, an assistant at once went to the scene and remained there practically day and night till every shred of evidence was accumulated and preserved. A careful examination was then made of the law to determine, he said, where a prosecution could be had with the best likelihood of success, whether in the United States court or in the State court.

"It was decided," Mr. Jerome says, "after a conference between myself and the United States District Attorney, that there was greater likelihood of a conviction in the Federal court than in the State court.

"Mr. Osborne's statement is incorrect, both as to the law and as to the facts, and is merely a demagogic attempt to stir up a belief that I have prosecuted poor and humble offenders and let rich and powerful ones go by."

Mr. Jerome's statement was shown to United States District Attorney Gen. Burnett, who said:

"That is absolutely correct. Everything possible was done by Mr. Jerome to aid in the prosecution."

John D. Lindsay, President of the Children's Society, who represented that society at the investigation of the disaster, said yesterday:

"I heartily agree with the legal principle laid down by the District Attorney."

ARRESTS CAUSE FIGHT IN CAR.

Three Men, Said to be Pickpockets, Clubbed Into Submission.

Three men who, the police say, are well-known pickpockets whose pictures are in the Rogues' Gallery at Police Headquarters, made a desperate fight against arrest in a west-bound Forty-second Street car last night. Detective Sergeant Oppenhym watched the men at work from the Grand Central Station to Broadway and then, calling a policeman, told the three they were under arrest.

Immediately there was a fight. Women, not knowing what the trouble was, screamed and tried to escape, but Oppenhym had made sure that both the front and rear doors were locked. Finally, the detective and the policeman pounded the three into submission with clubs. They were taken to the West Thirtieth Street Station and booked. Later they were taken to Police Headquarters and locked up as suspicious persons. They said they were Thomas Holden of 101 West Eighty-first Street; Daniel Vann of 141 West Twenty-ninth Street, and Daniel Keleher of 200 West Thirty-ninth Street.

The PIANOLA PIANO

The Instrument Which Has Established a New Standard in the Piano World

THE ENTHUSIASM created by the Pianola Piano is without precedent in the piano industry. If you investigate the history of the few great pianos of the world, you will find that it has taken forty or fifty years—or even longer—to attain their present position.

The success of the Pianola Piano, on the other hand, was instantaneous. Its reception by the public has demonstrated in a forcible way the deficiency in all previous pianos. It is not enough that a piano should possess high musical qualities—it must also present the means whereby anyone may play it.

Considering the large number of people who are unable to play (even imperfectly) there was a real need for such an instrument as this. The considerations that the Pianola Piano logically brings home to every person who investigates it are:

"Why should I buy a piano which but a single member of my family can play, when in the Pianola Piano I can have an instrument that we can all enjoy?"

"Why continue to keep in my home a piano that is seldom or never touched, when I can exchange it for this new kind of piano which will make a performer of me and will bring into my daily life the greatest music ever written?"

Such are the questions that have been the deciding factor in the great success of the Pianola Piano. We take your present piano in exchange at its fair market valuation and the balance of the purchase price you may pay in easy monthly instalments.

that ought to be looked into. It will be like any other investigation."

"Will the meetings be open to the public?"

"I don't know, but I don't see why they should."

"If the committee obtains testimony such as that which has been offered before the legislative investigating committee is it likely that Mr. McCurdy will be urged to retire from the Presidency?"

"I can't answer any such question. In fact, I can't discuss any of the prospective operations of the committee. All I can say is that the meeting to-day was entirely of a harmonious character. Everything went along smoothly and quietly. President McCurdy offered the resolution, which was adopted, and his action ought to speak for itself."

Mr. Auchincloss declined to discuss the subject further.

Will State Our Side Now.

Charles R. Henderson said:

"The newspapers and every other public agency generally have made a great mistake in laying such great stress upon alleged irregularities of the Mutual's officers. There are two sides to every case, and now we purpose to state ours. The Mutual is a great concern, and its trusteeship was organized from the ranks of men renowned for their sterling worth and character, and eminent standing in the community and throughout the country. To attack any of them on the ground that irregularities have been committed is an outrage.

"I suppose the impression will now go forth that the purpose of this investigation is to oust Mr. McCurdy from office, that the whole plan is a cut and dried one, and that we have all agreed to sacrifice Mr. McCurdy upon the altar of what little public opinion and the great newspaper criticism that has been directed against him. We don't intend to do anything of the sort. The committee will act upon its best judgment, and any idea that we intend to 'let Mr. McCurdy down easily,' as I have heard the situation expressed in conversation, is a mistake; in fact, it is malicious.

"We know, and the Mutual policy holders know, that Mr. McCurdy has devoted twenty of his best years to the interests of this company, that he has worked hard and incessantly, and that the high attainments of the company at this time are largely due to his magnificent labor. That fact cannot be lost sight of. He has been a tower to the company, and it is in nowise to be concluded by the action of the trustees to-day that he is to be sacrificed or slaughtered just to appease those who are so clamorous and unreasonable in their criticisms of the management of the Mutual, which has been honest and conscientious."

Herman C. Von Post, another trustee of the company, was questioned as to the plans of the committee, but declined to discuss them.

"Mr. McCurdy," he said, "is the man to see to get information about the company and the meeting to-day. See him; I have nothing to say."

From Stem to Stern,

Another Director, when interrogated as to the probable scope of the committee's work, said:

"I think it quite likely that the committee will rake the situation from stem to stern and that the meetings will continue until the Legislative Committee now conducting an investigation adjourns. The Mutual committee will begin its work at once and will keep its eye on the Legislative Committee for pointers. As the two investigations proceed the Mutual committee will be glad to get tips from the Legislative Committee from time to time on points which in its own work might otherwise be overlooked."

Another trustee, who declined to allow his name to be used, said:

"The meeting to-day was agreeable in all respects. Its action was spontaneous, unanimous, and entirely harmonious. The Trustees expressed complete confidence in the present management of the company.

I am sure the work of our committee will serve to place the present insurance inquiry upon its proper lines. The Mutual committee has received entire discretion as to how and when to proceed."

"Absolutely No Connection."

On behalf of Mr. Morris this statement was given out last night by a Trustee of the Mutual:

"Mr. Morris was selected for the reason that he has absolutely no connection with the company's affairs, having been more of an honorary Director owing to his residence in Philadelphia, and has therefore not been familiar with the details of the company's business. He has, however, not yet decided whether he can spare the time to serve.

"A friend of Mr. Morris stated to-day that he hoped he would act, as he felt sure he would not hesitate to recommend to the board such changes in the Mutual Life organization and methods as he might find advisable, and that this would be done without fear or favor to any one.

We highly recommend the $3.00 model for ordinary wear, wherein style; comfort and service are the requisites.

Queen Quality

IN the custom-grade shoe at $3.50 we recognized a contour of beautiful, graceful lines that will appeal most particularly to those accustomed to paying $5.00 for a ready-for-service boot or a higher price for a bench-made cut and fitted to order shoe.

Queen Quality shoes are bench made. They are cut and fitted to every shape known to the human foot, but have that knack of correcting whatever defect there may be without loss of style or comfort.

America's foremost shoe for women as applied to Queen Quality is no idle boast. It was adopted because Queen Quality is more extensively worn than any other footwear. In defense of this statement stands the house of Thomas G. Plant & Co., the largest manufactory of shoes in America. We're proud to be selling agents.

OSBORNE, MISSING, REAPPEARS AT LAST

But His Vigorous Oratory Was Missed at Many Meetings.

BEING HOARSE, HE SKIPPED 'EM

They Weren't Important, Anyway, Says His Campaign Manager—The Candidate Explains.

James W. Osborne, the Tammany candidate for District Attorney of New York County, was mysteriously missing till nearly midnight last night. He was missing not only from his home and his usual haunts, but from the political meetings at which he had been scheduled to speak.

Mr. Osborne had been announced to speak at 200 East Broadway, at the Seneca Club in East Twenty-seventh Street, and at 109 East Fifty-ninth Street, at 227 East Eighty-fourth Street, and at the Our Selves Club, at the foot of East Eighty-fourth Street. In the earlier hours of the night, politicians, reporters, and others who wanted to hear him were hurrying about from one section of the city to another trying to get a glimpse of him, but in vain. He was not at his home in the Marie Antoinette, at Healy's restaurant, where he frequently goes, nor at his headquarters in the Imperial according to answers given there.

From 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock reassuring answers were made to inquirers at the meeting places that Mr. Osborne "would surely show up." Meanwhile orators of local repute mounted the rostrum and talked the hours away.

The only public explanation of Mr. Osborne's absence was made to the crowd in the pavilion at the foot of East Eighty-fourth Street by James J. Fitzgerald, Mr. Osborne's campaign manager. At 10:30 o'clock, when the audience there began to show its impatience, Mr. Fitzgerald rose to speak. A voice from the rear inquired: "Where's Osborne?"

"I came here more particularly," began Mr. Fitzgerald, "to express the regrets of the next District Attorney that he is unable to be present. He is engaged in a most important consultation, and the results of it will be heard before long. He will appear every night after this. You know Mr. Osborne has always made good."

There was a general stampede from the pavilion. Mr. Fitzgerald remained to explain further to reporters.

"Mr. Osborne had a most important consultation to-day," he said, "and decided not to appear at any of the meetings to-night. If you know Jim,' you know how he is. Well, he said to-day: 'Now, this thing's a good deal bigger than anything else, bigger than these meetings to-night; so we'll just cut 'em out. Anyway, you know, these meetings to-night are of no importance.'

"What was this consultation about?" Mr. Fitzgerald was asked.

"I must refuse to say," he replied.

"Then who was present?"

"Really, I must decline to say anything about it."

"Did it concern an important feature of the campaign?"

"You've hit it," acquiesced Mr. Fitzgerald.

"Where was it held?" was asked.

"I won't tell."

"How long did it last?"

"Oh, it was a big affair, but I can't tell even that," said the ex-Assemblyman smilingly. Then he fled.

THE TIMES reporter hurried to the Osborne headquarters in the Hotel Imperial to find out about the conference. A clerk said that Mr. Osborne was up stairs. The reporter sent up his card. Back came word that Mr. Osborne positively could not see any one, but he would be pleased to hold converse over the telephone.

"Is this Mr. Osborne?" asked the reporter over the wire.

"No," replied a husky voice, "this is Mr. Osborne's headquarters, but he's not in 'em. I'm in 'em, but I'm not connected with 'em; I just happen to be in 'em. What's wanted, anyhow?"

The reporter said that the public would like to know why Mr. Osborne did not appear at his meetings.

"Now, I'll just find out about that," said the man. "I don't belong to these headquarters, but I'm in 'em and I'll find out. Hol' on, who'm I talking to, anyway?"

The man in the headquarters was informed. Then two husky voices whispered for a minute, and the reply came back:

"Hello! Now, I'm informed that Mr. Osborne is suffering from a bad cold, and that therefore he did not go out to-night."

"But you just said that he is out," said the reporter.

"Oh, out, yes; of course, he went out; but he did not go out campaigning. He went out, and we expect him back; but I don't think he'll stay here all night. He hardly ever does."

After more vain inquiries for the candidate the reporter called again at Mr. Osbornes headquarters in the Hotel Imperial just before midnight. One of Mr. Osborne's secretaries gave the explanation that Mr. Osborne's physician had advised him to stay indoors for the night, as his throat was bothering him.

"Would you like to see him?" asked the secretary.

"Yes," was the reply.

The secretary ran up stairs, and in about five minutes returned with Mr. Osborne. He was hoarse, but jolly.

"I was hoarse this evening," said he, "was threatened with tonsilitis, of which I have recurrent attacks, and my physician advised me to stay indoors because the night was damp, and he thought that if I went out to-night I might incapacitate myself for future, and perhaps more important campaign work.

"Aside from this little trouble in my throat I never felt better in my life," added Mr. Osborne. He said he had taken part in no conference.

Those who went to 250 Second Street, where it had been announced that Mr. Osborne would speak, found a Republican meeting in progress, with William M. Ivins and Charles A. Flammer the speakers.

At the Ourselves Club Mr. Fitzgerald in vain pleaded with his auditors to "stay and listen to arguments. I will try to entertain you," he called out.

"Oh, fudge with that," said some one in the rear, "give us 'Jimmy' Osborne."

"Why," continued Mr. Fitzgerald, "I will show you why it was that Mr. Jerome gave Mr. Osborne—"

"Where is Osborne?" again shouted the trouble-maker, but he was hustled out of the hall.

Outside he mounted a barrel and addressed the crowd as it emerged from the hall.

"Gents," he said, "I think that game down there," waving his hand hallward, "is a bunko game. I went to see the future District Attorney and he wasn't on hand. I think he's in bad shape."

With this the orator fell off the barrel and the crowd which had collected hustled him off.

JEROME'S SUPPORTERS.

Woman, Too Poor to Give, Will Work—Many Contributions—Straws.

This letter, signed with a woman's name, was received at the Jerome headquarters yesterday:

"Dear Mr. Jerome: Being a woman, I cannot vote for you, and my father, who would surely have done so, died recently.

"You say you would be glad of any help. I'm afraid the appeal is for men only. Nevertheless, if there is any modest work I can do for you I should be 'de-lighted.'

"Maybe I could address circulars or somethir; of that sort, which is now being done by some one who could he better employed or for which you might have to pay. Our means are so narrow at present that I am unable to help your campaign with money, ardently as I wish I could. If there be any sort of work I can do in your office in the afternoons or at home in the evenings to save you expense, will you call upon me? Don't waste time or stamp in replying unless there be some service I can do for you.

"In the meantime keep up heart. You'll be President yet. You are another Roosevelt."

According to information furnished at Jerome headquarters by one of the club members a straw ballot was taken in the Progress Club at dinner on Sunday evening. It resulted in thirty-seven votes for Jerome and four for Osborne.

"There are 450 members," wrote the member who gave this information to Mr. Jerome, "and you will receive fully two-thirds of their votes; also all votes that we can get for you. I have no doubt of your election, and a sweeping one at that—one that will surprise the whole country when the votes are counted."

"I was playing billiards last night in a room where there were twenty-two players," the manager of a large advertising concern wrote to Mr. Jerome yesterday. "A straw vote showed that twenty intended to vote for you. The others were divided."

The total amount of money received at the Jerome headquarters from all sources yesterday exceeded $4,500. As on previous days, a large percentage came in small bills and even change. There was a check for $1,000, however, and two for $500 each. Among long-distance contributions was one from Seattle.

With a five-dollar bill a teacher wrote: "One hundred times this amount would not express my respect for Mr. Jerome's inspiring example of courage, honesty, and efficiency."

A Wall Street banker, himself a power in the street, forwarded a list of thirty-eight men well known in financial circles who had given their promise to him to vote for Mr. Jerome.

A member of the Congress Club in Brooklyn informed Mr. Jerome that he had told everybody he knew, and many he did not know, that it was the duty of every man sleeping in Brooklyn and working in Manhattan to convert at least one resident of the latter borough to Mr. Jerome's side.

"I shall work for you with much of the same enthusiasm with which I carried a gun forty years ago," wrote a banker with an office in Wall Street. He sent a large check, too.

In an effort to combat the warnings from certain quarters that voters risk throwing away their ballots entirely by voting a split ticket, the managers of Mr. Jerome's campaign sent out an educational circular yesterday, the pith of which was:

"Mr. Jerome will have a column to himself. His name will be under the black square. The Tammany man who wants to vote for every man on his own ticket except Mr. Osborne, and who desires to vote for Mr. Jerome, will make a cross in the circle under the star and another cross opposite the name of William Travers Jerome. Those who want to support other tickets while voting for Mr. Jerome will follow the same plan. It is very simple, and this the partisans of the bosses know."

THIEF DRESSED AS A SAILOR.

Snatches a Woman's Purse In a West Side Street and Vanishes.

A Miss McDonnell sought the aid of the police of the West 100th Street Station about 6 o'clock last evening. She said she had just been walking through West Eighty-sixth Street, near Columbus Avenue, when a man in the dress of a sailor came along and, with a quick movement, snatched her purse from her hand. The man then ran to Columbus Avenue, boarded a trolley car, and escaped.

Bar Politics at Columbia.

The embryo politicians among the students at Columbia University have had a damper thrown on their aspirations by the university authorities. The Jerome Club, which numbers among its members many of the Faculty, had arranged to hold a meeting to-day in one of the university buildings; but the university has shut down on the affair.

It is understood that the action was taken under an old rule that dates back to the early days of the college. It is said that the fiery speeches made in the days of Alexander Hamilton led to the making of the rule.

M'CLELLAN'S PLEDGES CHEERED IN QUEENS

He Promises a Continuance of Present Liberal Policy.

RIIS ON THE SAME PLATFORM

The Mayor Makes a 20-Mile Trip in an Open Motor Car in the Rain.

Renewing his declaration that he would serve out his full Mayoralty term if re-elected, and promising that his administration would further the public control of public utilities, Mayor McClellan last night made an automobile tour of Queens Borough. He addressed a large and demonstrative meeting in Richmond Hill, and followed it with a meeting in the armory at Flushing.

Jacob A. Riis, who has been termed by President Roosevelt "New York's most useful private citizen," spoke from the same platform with the Mayor at the meeting in Richmond Hill, where Mr. Riis lives. He again declared himself for McClellan's re-election. Herman A. Metz, candidate for Controller, and Patrick F. McGowan, the candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, as well as Borough President Joseph Cassidy, followed the Mayor and addressed the meetings after he had spoken.

The Mayor and his escort of reporters, secretary, and guide rode nearly twenty miles through a driving rain in an open motor car belonging to President Cassidy. When Mr. McClellan reached Long Island City on the way back he was drenched, but still good-natured.

The Mayor crossed the Long Island Ferry at 7:30 o'clock and met Mr. Metz, Mr. McGowan, and the other members of the party on the other side of the river. A flying run was made by special train to Richmond Hill, where carriages took the party to Weedon's Columbia Hall, which was packed with enthusiasts. There were fireworks in abundance, and the Mayor's reception was most cordial.

"Two years ago I spoke in this hall, and you people of Queens took me on my honor there and helped to elect me Mayor," said he. "Now I come back to you to ask if my administration has not made good. My re-election will mean much to Queens Borough, for it will mean that I will carry out the policy of progress which this administration has begun. Queens is a growing borough. In my administration it has paid an average of 2½ per cent. of the taxes of the city, and in return has received 7 per cent. of the money raised for the budget, or three times what it has paid.

"If re-elected, during the entire four years I hope to be Mayor this policy will be continued. You need new rapid transit routes and you need new bridges. You of Queens also need additional water supply, and you are entitled by right to get it from Suffolk County. The infamous Burr act prevents you from doing this, and I ask of you to support me by demanding of your local candidates for the Assembly that they pledge themselves to stand for the repeal of that act. If you re-elect me I shall go to Albany next Winter as your Mayor and demand the repeal of this act.

From the Richmond Hill meeting the Mayor started by motor car for Flushing, while the rest of the speakers remained. With the Mayor, Assistant Secretary Hassett, Mr. Clark of the Queens County organization, six reporters, and the chauffeur, the big machine sped over the slippery roads, and the party arrived at Flushing armory without mishap.

"Because of my study of conditions in Queens Borough," said the Mayor, "I had come to the belief that you needed more water. However, from my experience in riding over from Richmond Hill, I am inclined to think you need storage reservoirs instead."

The Mayor spoke of the opening earlier in the day of the Staten Island Ferry as a municipally owned public utility.

"It was one of the gladdest moments of my life," he declared, "when the service was inaugurated, for it is the greatest exhibit in municipal ownership in the world. I believe absolutely in public control of public utilities, and so long as I am Mayor that principle will be adhered to strictly. When public service corporations do their duty there will be no interference by the city, and there should be none. But when they fail, as in the case of the Staten Island ferry, the city must and shall step in and operate for the benefit of the people. The people demand this as their rights, and I shall stand by that principle with all the power at my command."

From this meeting the Mayor drove to Long Island City.

POLICE MEETINGS TO-DAY.

Meanwhile Murphy Hears the Firemen Are Not Out for Hearst.

Notices were sent to all the policemen in the city yesterday that meetings of patrolmen will be held in Maennerchor Hall, in East Fifty-sixth Street, near Third Avenue, at 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M. to-day. The notices said the meetings would be important.

While these notices were being sent out, Police Commissioner McAdoo said he didn't believe that the patrolmen had indorsed William R. Hearst for Mayor. But, he added, if they had, it was against the rules.

There were several denials at Tammany Hall yesterday of the published reports that various bodies of the members of the Fire Department had indorsed Hearst. Charles F. Murphy was the first to deny the story, and he produced a letter signed by Charles Heed, President of the New York Fire Department Benevolent Association, saying:

"I wish emphatically to deny the statements that the Fire Department was represented at a conference which indorsed Mr. Hearst's candidacy for Mayor, and any person claiming to represent the Fire Department at any such conference is an impostor. The members of the Fire Department have no cause for complaint against the present administration, which has been fair and impartial."

The letter ends with praise for Fire Commissioner Hayes, and the declaration: "I make this statement as a matter of justice and also for the information of candidates and campaign managers that they may not be misled into making promises to redress grievances in the Fire Department."

HEARD IN THE CAMPAIGN.

Philatelists for Ivins—The Keeping of "Jimmy" Oliver's Coat—A New Poet.

When "Paradise Jimmy" Oliver was nominated for the Assembly in the Sixth Assembly District he bought a complete new outfit, including a new silk tile and a fine overcoat. Last night when he appeared on the platform at one of the district meetings a man on the platform said to him with the utmost politeness:

"I'll keep your overcoat for you, Mr. Oliver."

At the close of the meeting, when Mr. Oliver sought his coat the man who had agreed to keep it was not to be found.

"Well," said "Jimmie," with characteristic philosophy, "he certainly was a man of his word."

***

Mr. Ivins's fad for the collection of rare medals and coins is to do him some good in this election. Thomas L. Elder, a leading member of the Numismatic and Archaeological Society of New York, yesterday announced that Mr. Ivins would have the united support of the numismatists and philatelists. He estimated this at about 500 votes.

***

Campaign poetry has been scarce so far. One man who has endeavored to fill this gap for the enjoyment of those gifted with a sense of humor is John P. Quinn, who signs himself "Lecturer of the International Anti-Gambling Association and Author of 'Was Eve Guilty?' and 'Virtue Protected.'" Here is the last stanza of a stirring campaign song he has just written, to be sung to a popular hymn tune:

With heart and soul I'm in earnest,
Heed these words from John P. Quinn:
On Election Day we all must rally,
To help close up these dens of sin.
Save our young men from the gambler,
Those whose gilded haunts enslave;
If we put Jerome in office,
What an army he will save.

ROOSEVELT FOR REFORM OF THE CRIMINAL LAW

Enemies of the Public Have Much the Best of It.

HARD TO CONVICT RICH, MEN

The President Speaks Twice at Little Rock and Then Starts for New Orleans.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 25.—President Roosevelt spent seven crowded hours in and around Little Rock to-day, and was the centre of enthusiastic demonstrations of welcome by thousands of persons in the streets. While in Little Rock he delivered two speeches, in one of which he denounced lynching, eliciting hearty applause. In his second speech he pleaded for reform of the criminal law. He left for Memphis at 4 o'clock.

Gov. Jefferson Davis was the first to greet the President when he left the train this morning at Big Rock. A reception committee that included United States Senators James H. Berry and James P. Clarke, Mayor W. E. Lenon, and President George W. Rogers of the Little Rock Board of Trade, accompanied the Governor. Carriages were taken to Fort Logan H. Roots, on the summit of Big Rock, overlooking the city, where the party arrived at 9:30 o'clock.

A salute of twenty-one guns was fired at the fort, and the President, after inspecting the buildings, the grounds, and the garrison, spent half an hour in the officers' quarters as the guest of Lieut. Col. A. C. Sharpe and other officers.

On leaving he shook hands with the guard of honor, composed of twelve Union Army veterans, headed by Col. A. S. Fowler, and twelve former Confederates, headed by ex-Gov. Daniel W. Jones. This guard rode in pairs, each former Confederate by the side of a Federal. "Gentlemen, it does me good to see the Blue and the Gray riding together," said the President. He called each veteran "Comrade."

As the Presidential party reached the Arkansas River bridge, the blowing of steam whistles was the signal for cheering in Little Rock, whose principal thoroughfare, Main Street, was picturesquely decorated with flags and bunting. From all parts of Arkansas people had come to greet the President, and the street was overflowing.

As the party entered the City Park under an arch bearing an inscription, "Little Rock greets you," twelve white doves were liberated from the apex of the arch, directly over the President's carriage.

The exercises at the City Park, where 40,000 people had gathered, opened at 11:30 o'clock. Gov. Davis delivered an address of welcome, in which he touched lightly on the race question. His tribute to Southern women was applauded by the President. When reference was made by Gov. Davis to the famous "rebel yell" persons in the crowd raised one that made the President smile.

Address of the President.

The President's opening words, "Fellow Americans," brought forth cheers which were repeated often as he proceeded. When he declared that lynch law should be driven out of the United States there was a great outburst. In beginning Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I cannot sufficiently express my gratitude and appreciation for the magnificent greeting you have given me to-day, and in greeting all of you I wish to say especially words of greeting to those who wore the gray and those who wore the blue in the civil war, and I especially wish to emphasize this in behalf of my comrades of the National Guard, forming the guard of honor here to-day, with whom I myself went to war in 1898.

"There could be no better augury than that the escort of an American President should be those who were once enemies walking shoulder to shoulder. What a joy it is to think of the service of the men who wore the blue and the men who wore the gray, a glorious record for the North and the South.

"Allusion has been made to the war of '98 in which I had the good fortune to command a regiment. Of that regiment the fathers of more of them wore gray than wore the blue, but the only rivalry was to see who could do the most for their common country. I have spoken all over the country, but I would not make a remark here that I would not make anywhere else.

"I am fortunate in being President of a country where to praise one State you do not have to run down any other. I am for all of them. I have been impressed not by the superficial differences of the people, but by the positive likenesses. The average American is a pretty good fellow. All that is necessary for the average American of all sections to get along well is that they should know each other.

"What is true of sections is true of occupations and positions. Thank Heaven, we are free now from all the danger of territorial antagonisms. Now we must see that there shall never come any antagonisms of the classes or antagonisms between capital and labor.

"Treat each man according to his worth as a man. Don't hold for or against him that he is either rich or poor. But if he is rich and crooked hold it against him; if not rich, but crooked, then hold it against him. But if he is a square man, stand by him. Distrust all who would have any one class placed before any other. Other republics have fallen because of the unscrupulous rich or the unscrupulous poor who gained ascendency, who substituted loyalty to class for loyalty to the people as a whole.

"Abolish the insolence and arrogance of the rich who look down upon the poor; if they lost their wealth they would be ready to plunder the rich. The unscrupulous man who becomes rich would oppress the poor. The man who is true to you is ultimately righteous and the man who will steal for you will steal from you. The man who will seek to persuade you that he will benefit you by wronging any one else will wrong you when it will benefit him.

"What we must do as a Nation is to stand for the immutable principles of decency and virtue, regarding vice with abhorrence. If we make any artificial divisions we have done irreparable injury to the people."

Should Drive Out Lynch Law.

Referring to the race problem, to which Gov. Davis had alluded, the President said:

"The worst enemy of the negro race is the negro criminal, and above all the criminal of the hideous type so often hideously avenged. Every reputable colored man owes the duty to himself and to his race to hunt down that criminal.

"Now as to the white man's side: To avenge one hideous crime by another is to reduce the avenger to the bestial level. Another thing which makes this lynch law so abhorrent is that three-fourths of the crime for which it is invoked are for others than that against the women of the country.

"Governor, you and I and all others in authority owe it to our people to drive out the reproach and the menace of lynch law in the United States. We can afford to be divided on questions of mere partisanship, for, comparatively, the differences of tariff and the currency are of no consequence. After all, the real question is that of decency in the life of the home and honesty in public life.

"It makes little difference in the long run whether a Democrat or a Republican is President, but it makes every difference to have all our public officials honest and clean. The candidate is the candidate of his party, but the President, if he is worth his salt, is the President of the whole people. You can't get good public life unless you have good private life. The country will be all right if the average man is decent and clean in his home life, but if it goes below that average you can't make the country right.

"I have a great respect for a good man, and the only one I have greater respect for is a good woman, and if there is any here who does not agree with me I don't think much of him. We young men have a great heritage in this free country of ours, and let us see that we transmit it unimpaired to our children. Let their valor be the heroism of war, and the forty years of peace be an incentive to greater efforts."

He closed with a tribute to the veterans of the civil war, and said:

"The only people I feel as glad to see as the veterans are the fathers and mothers with babies in their arms. Arkansas has cause to feel proud of its natural resources, and its greatest crop is the crop of babies."

The exercises in the City Park lasted an hour. Then the Presidential party passed through the streets, densely packed with cheering men, women, and children, to the Albert Pike Consistory, where the luncheon was given at 2 o'clock. One hundred representative men of the State sat at the tables. At the President's right was Lieut. Gov. John P. Lee, and others near him were United States Senators Berry and Clarke and Gen. Powell Clayton, ex-United States Ambassador to Mexico. Gov. Davis had refused to sit at the same table with Gen. Clayton.

President of No Party.

Judge U. M. Rose, ex-President of the American Bar Association, said that President Roosevelt had proved himself the President of no political party, but the President of every man, woman, and child under the protection of the American flag.

Mr. Roosevelt joined in the applause which greeted the remark. He was wildly cheered as he rose to respond.

Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I want to say just one word, suggested by the fact that Judge Rose was President of the American Bar Association and stands to-day one of that group of eminent American citizens eminent for their services to the whole country, whom we know as the leaders of the American bar. I want to speak as a layman again about certain services that the learned profession of which Judge Rose is so eminent a member can render to an even greater degree than they now render to the American people. I know that there is a good deal of distrust, rightly, for the layman who speaks of law or of theology.

"But I am going to say just a few words on a matter that concerns good citizenship, in which the layman has a right to expect leadership both from lawyer and from theologian. We have a rightto expect from the great profession of the law a peculiar quantity and quality of service to the public.

"There are certain abuses in connection with our whole system of law to-day which the layman cannot remedy, but which I earnestly hope that the men of the law will themselves remedy. Now, here I have got to speak merely to my fellow-laymen and shall have to invite correction.

"Our law comes down from the time when the State, the Government, was all-powerful as compared to the individual; when the Government acted as a plaintiff and it was necessary that every possible safeguard should be thrown around the defendant that he should be given every chance, and the fear of justice was a synonym for fear of injustice to the private citizen against whom the State proceeded.

"It came from a time, if my memory of history is right, when about 5 per cent. (I am speaking now of the common law) of any given number of children born in England were punished by hanging—when people were hung for the most trivial offenses and when all the machinery of the law was in the hands of the Government and directed against the individual; so that the one thing that had to be done was to protect the individual.

"Circumstances in the past three or four centuries have wholly changed; but the pressure of the law has not changed nearly as rapidly. At present there is not the slightest question as to the individual rights being preserved. Of course, there is the possibility of error in every human affair; but, speaking generally, the man accused of criminal wrong, especially the man accused of criminal wrong against the public, has every possible chance secured him, but the public has not got every chance secured to it.

"No greater service is being rendered the public to-day than by those members of the great profession whose good fortune it has been to stand prominently identified with the prosecution of crimes against the State. When I say crimes against the State I not only refer to crimes like those of bribery and corruption committed by any public official, but I mean such a crime as murder or any similar hideous misdeed, where the offense is not merely against the individual, but against the entire community.

"It is right to remember the interests of the individual; but it is right also to remember the interests of that great mass of individuals embodied in the public, in the Government. It is unfortunate that we have permitted practices that were necessary three hundred years ago for the protection of innocent people to be elaborated, to be perverted, so that they become a means for allowing criminals to escape the punishment of their criminality.

"We urgently need in this country methods for expediting punishment, methods for doing away with delay, methods which will secure to the public an even chance with the criminal. I don't ask any more.

"If we can get an average of just 50 per cent. of the criminals we will be pretty nearly all right, and we will give the public an even chance with the criminal whose offense is against the public. At present the right of appeal is in certain cases so abused as to make it a matter of the utmost difficulty ultimately to punish a man sufficiently rich or sufficiently influential to command really good legal talent.

"Now I am speaking of what I know, for I am speaking in the light of experience during the past three years in trying to get at certain public offenders who have been indicted, and some of whom it has been almost impossible to get into the jurisdiction of the courts at Washington in order to try them. There are others whose cases are still on trial.

"I feel that the man who offends against the State occupies a position rather worse than that of any other criminal from the fact that he is a man who attacks everybody instead of just one person, so that it is not the special business of any one to get at him. In consequence, if he can keep the forces of justice at bay long enough, if he can secure one or two mistrials, gradually the popular interest evaporates and the criminal gets off.

"Now, as the Judge has so well said, the minute that a man becomes President he ceases being the President of a party and is the President of every man, woman, and child within the confines of the Nation. But I permit myself one particular of personal discrimination. I am just a trifle more intent on punishing the Republican offender than the Democratic offender, because he is my own scoundrel. I feel a certain sense of peculiar responsibility for him and I am going to unload that responsibility if I can.

"Of course, as we all know, offenses must come, but I have endeavored to carry out the Scriptural injunction to make it a matter of woe unto him by whom they come. I am happy to say that we have a reasonable proportion of the offenders in question with stripes, but not up to the 50 per cent. average that I would like, and I want to go a little further than we have yet gone.

"Then, too, if the law is reasonably speedy and reasonably sure, it takes away one great excuse for lawlessness. If some horrible crime is committed, and the people feel that under the best circumstances there will be an indefinite delay in the punishment of the criminal, and that the punishment will be uncertain even when the time for administering it comes, then a premium is put upon that kind of lawbreaking which more than any other is a menace to the law.

"We ought to stand against all forms of putting that premium on; the long delays of justice, the abuses of the pardoning power, the sluggishness with which either court or attorney moves; all of these things count in bringing about the condition of affairs against which all of us must protest.

"Now, a layman can do but little more than to give utterance to the feeling that so many laymen have. I earnestly hope that the bench and bar of the United States will in all proper ways seek to see to it that the loose customs, for some of these things of which I complain are merely customs and not laws inherited from the past when conditions were totally different, shall not be perverted so as to wrong the whole public by giving the criminal an advantage to which he is not entitled, and that some substantial improvement shall be made in the direction of securing greater expedition and greater certainty in the administration of justice, especially in the administration of criminal justice."

As the President sat down a curtain behind him ascended, and he turned to see a tableau of twenty-five boys attired in sailor suits.

He applauded and then arose and said he believed his auditors knew how he felt about the navy of the United States. The navy was the United States' "big stick," which would never be used against the weak unless the weak put themselves in a position, like a bad child, wherein chastisement was necessary. The "big stick" would be kept in such condition that the necessity for its use against the strong would never arise.

TRIBUTE OF JACKSON'S WIDOW.

Sure the President Is All Right—Praise for Mrs. Roosevelt.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Mary A. M. Jackson, widow of Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson, said to-day:

"In President Roosevelt's itinerary through the South he has probably made no more pleasing impression anywhere than upon the town of Charlotte, N. C. Certainly he captivated those who were fortunate enough to meet him, by his own exceedingly cordial and gracious manner.

"When I was presented to his Excellency, I was both surprised and overwhelmed at the warmth and exuberance of his greeting. He expressed so much admiration for my husband, and so much joy at meeting his wife, and held my hand so tenderly and yet reverently, that my heart was deeply touched—and when he spoke of his pleasure in appointing my grandson to a cadetship at West Point, and complimented him as "a splendid young fellow," he struck the tenderest chords of a very grateful heart.

"I am sure the President is all right—a large-hearted, good and great man. His noble tributes to Generals Lee and Jackson proved that he is of the true metal.

"The President's wife made as favorable an impression upon the ladies as any first lady of the land could, being cultured and gracious, womanly and responsive to all the eager attention showered upon her."

SPEEDING TO NEW ORLEANS.

Slight Increase in Fever Cases as President Travels to City.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 25.—President Roosevelt and his party arrived here to-night at 8:30 o'clock from Little Rock. The President's itinerary did not include a stop here longer than was necessary to switch his car to the Illinois Central tracks, the original programme being that he would proceed at once to New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25.—The yellow fever report up to 6 P. M. shows 9 new cases, 2 deaths, and 4 new foci.

EXPLORERS OPEN THEIR CLUB.

Gen. Greely and Others Plan Lectures on Discoveries.

The Explorers' Club, the members of which have made original explorations or contributed to the literature of travel along original lines, held its first meeting and smoker, as an incorporated organization, last night in its clubrooms, 23 West Sixty-seventh Street. Gen. A. W. Greely, the club President, came on from Washington. Prof. Frank M. Chapman gave a stereopticon lecture on "The Home Life of the Flamingo," and Prof. Herschel C. Parker one on "Climbing the Canadian Alps."

Caspar Whitney, Dr. F. A. Cook, the Antarctic explorer; Carl Lumholtz, and Prof. William H. Brewer were among the members present. It is the purpose of the club to have illustrated lectures every month.

FOOD.

WORK A PLEASURE.

It Is One of the Real Joys Given Us.

"Postum Food Coffee has done more for me in two years," writes a Wisconsin young lady student, "than all the medicines and treatments I had employed to overcome the effects of the coffee poisoning that was killing me by degrees.

"I had all the familiar symptoms and suffered the well-known tortures. My stomach was wrecked and I could not eat, my head ached almost continually, I became the nervous victim of insomnia, and the capacity for study deserted me. Of course this came on gradually, and without suspicion, for a long time, as to the cause.

"Two years ago a friend enthusiastically urged me to quit using the old kind of coffee and to drink Postum Food Coffee. I have never regretted acting upon the advice. As soon as the coffee poison was eliminated, the strengthening and nourishing properties of Postum began to build me up.

"Each day I gained a little, the color crept back to my cheeks, my limbs rounded out with new flesh, my complexion grew fair and clear again, my digestion improved, and now I can eat anything at any time, the nervous insomnia has left me and I sleep soundly at night and wake up refreshed. I have no more headaches, and mental work has become a pleasure to me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

ACTUARY'S GUESSES FIX THE DIVIDENDS

Mutual's Officer Admits Artificial Factors Are Used.

SOME "RESULTS" GUESSES

But Mr. McClintock Calls Them Simple Mathematics—No Alternative, He Says, at Inquiry.

From Chief Actuary Emery McClintock of the Mutual Life Insurance Company Counsel Charles E. Hughes of the Insurance Investigating Committee elicited at yesterday's session the fact that in the Mutual dividends on policies are estimated not according to the actual results of the company's operations, but by certain artificial factors applied at the discretion of the Actuary to such of the company's statistics as may be taken into consideration at any given time. This practice, Mr. McClintock declared, was general in all companies.

In the Mutual's case this artificial reckoning of dividends applies not only to the annual dividend policies, but to the deferred dividend policies, for the reason that the distribution of a deferred policy is dependent on the annual distributions on the other class during the term that the deferred policy has been in effect. The reason that Mr. McClintock gave for the practice lay first in what he considered the physical impossibility of reckoning the dividend on the basis of actual operation, inasmuch as his estimate for any given year is made up in November of the year preceding, and before these results are known. In the second place Mr. McClintock attributed it to a desire to keep the policy holders happy by preventing such fluctuation in their dividends as would result from a distribution based on actual earnings of the company.

This was not the only thing that was interesting in Mr. McClintock's testimony. It appeared that in a series of books issued for the instruction of agents and for their use in persuading policy holders to insure, illustrations of the return on policies, based on "practical results," were as a matter of fact not drawn from such results at all, but made up apparently by the person who prepared the books.

Mr. McClintock also testified that fifteen years ago an effort was made by President McCurdy to get the three large companies to join in a plan whereby the aggregate business written by any insurance company in this State should be limited to $1,000,000,000. A bill to this effect was introduced into the Legislature with the consent of Messrs. McCurdy, McCall, and Henry B. Hyde, but, Mr. McClintock said, Mr. Hyde withdrew his support and the measure was abandoned. Again in 1901 Messrs. McCurdy, James W. Alexander, and McCall agreed on a bill fixing $1,500,000,000 as the limit of the insurance which should be written by any company. But in this instance George W. Perkins of the New York Life and of J. P. Morgan & Co. objected. Mr. Perkins, in fact, objected so effectively to any limitation to the amount of business written that the support of the three companies was withdrawn from the bill, and, as has been usual in such cases, it failed to pass. Actuary McClintock declared, however, that the Mutual Life would be in favor of a bill fixing some such limitation to the amount of business to be written by life insurance companies.

Mr. McClintock's Testimony.

Examined in the afternoon by Mr. Hughes, Mr. McClintock's attention was drawn to the item of total net gain realized by the Mutual Life Insurance Company in 1904, which appeared to be $6,624,674, apart from the gain resulting from the increase in market value of securities. The gain was derived from $2,938,000 as gains from mortality over the amount set aside for the payment of losses, and $2,488,000 in gains from lapsed policies, in addition to a surplus of interest over that required for reserves. The other item normally contributing to net gain is the difference between the loading of the premiums and the expenses, but in the case of the Mutual Life for 1904 it appeared that the expenses were $1,305,730 in excess of the loading, so that this operated to cut down the contributions of the other three items. The gain resulting from appreciation of securities amounted to $9,165,958, making a grand total of some $15,794,000.

Mr. McClintock said that it was not the practice of the company to distribute the gains in market value of securities, aside from what might be realized through sales. He remarked that there had been a shrinkage in the Mutual's securities of upward of $8,000,000 in the market slump of 1903, the increase of $9,000,000 in 1904 representing the recovery from this condition. He told Mr. Hughes that out of the $6,624,000 gain, aside from that in securities, between $800,000 and $900,000 had been set aside for distribution as dividends.

"Do you set aside the amount for distribution upon your deferred dividend policies on the basis of your distribution on annual policies?" Mr. Hughes inquired.

Certain Factors.

Mr. McClintock did not answer directly, but said that the distribution on the annual dividend policies was reached by figuring out certain factors in relation to the policies in force on the year before. He did not specify what these factors were, and so Mr. Hughes inquired whether they included an exact reckoning of interest earned and the apportionment of such interest to the number of policies in force. Mr. McClintock said that such a reckoning was not made every year, but that the rate of interest in any given year was taken with some modification and applied to the policies in force as determining the dividend rate in the next year. This, he said had been done for a succession of years. Mr. Hughes asked what the exact process was. Mr. McClintock replied:

"When the amount of the dividend paid up to date appears too large in proportion to the reserve, then I make the reduction in dividends."

"So, when you made the calculation for last year, they were not based on actual results?" said Mr. Hughes.

"I made the calculation in November," Mr. McClintock rejoined, "when I didn't know the results."

Asked what modifications he made from the rate of the year before, he said that the interest of 4 1-10 per cent. on the productive assets of the company was the same as in 1903, and that there was a slight reduction in loading as compared with previous years.

"But," he added, "it is all a matter of judgment."

"How, then," demanded Mr. Hughes, "can you in any year determine the exact amount which ought to be apportioned to the policies on the basis of the earnings of the company?"

"That is physically, morally, and mathematically impossible; physically, because we make the calculation before we have the results; mathematically, because we would have great fluctuations in dividends if we attempted to go by the actual operations, and morally, because the policy holders would create a disturbance if the thing were attempted."

Take the Policy Years.

Mr. McClintock, in explanation, said that if the apportionment were made for the calendar year a man who took out a policy on Dec. 31 might get a very different dividend rate from one whose policy dated from Jan. 2, following. Thus, he said, it became necessary to consider not the calendar years, but the policy years, which interlock in almost infinite variety, and he added:

"This is the just, necessary, and proper method, as well as the popular method, for in so doing we avoid the fluctuations which would otherwise be introduced in our dividend payment."

"Wouldn't it be possible," said Mr. Hughes, "to make your calculation for your policy year after you have known the results of your calendar year?"

"They tried that once," said the witness, "before I went to the Mutual. I think it was in 1870 or 1871, when a fearful and wonderful method was devised to bring everything up to the end of the calendar year. There was such an everlasting row all over the country as the result of extraordinary diversions in results on policies issued in the same year that a law was passed prohibiting the practice in some States, and all companies have since followed the policy year."

"What do you do," asked Mr. Hughes, "to conceal the fluctuations in your earnings and keep the policy holders satisfied?"

"There are no very marked fluctuations," the witness replied, "aside from those of the market value of securities. If the mortality runs high in one year it is likely to run low the next year, and if the excess in expenses over the loading is large in any given year it is likely to be neutralized the following year."

"But I understand you to say that there were large fluctuations," Mr. Hughes broke in.

The witness explained that what he meant was that fluctuations which might make a material difference in any given year were generally counterbalanced by the next year's swing in the other direction.

"So you adjust dividends not on results, but on your judgment of what is required to maintain them without fluctuation," observed Mr. Hughes.

"No Alternative."

"I see no alternative from the present method," the witness replied. "I make early in November, however, an estimate of the results for the calendar year which is generally pretty close to the actual operations."

Mr. Hughes went over with the witness again his declaration that the calculations of dividends on deferred dividend policies were made on the basis of the annual dividends paid on annual dividend policies in the term of years in question. Coming up to the point that if the annual dividends were not apportioned on the basis of exact calculation, but on the judgment of the Actuary, Mr. Hughes argued that the deferred dividends must necessarily be computed with this same element of guesswork in them.

Next the examiner took up the question of interest, bringing out that the actual interest earned by the Mutual on its gross assets last year was 4.33 per cent., against which was set off what is technically known as the investment expenses, thus bringing the net interest down to 4.1 per cent. Mr. Hughes inquired how the reduction was made for investment expenses and the witness said that it was not figured on the basis of actual investment expensee, but according to what is known in insurance parlance as the "Connecticut rule," a ratio determined for this purpose by the State Insurance Commissioner of Connecticut several years ago.

"It might be possible," Mr. McClintock said, "by changing our system of bookkeeping to get figures a little different. That would require the separation of accounts such as stationery and furniture used by the investment department. It could be done, but as the Connecticut rule is prescribed for the company under terrible penalties, the exact nature of which I don't know, it is much easier to use it."

The exact amount deducted under the Connecticut rule for investment expenees in 1904, Mr. McClintock said, was $1,421,069.

Mr. Hughes asked him to figure out what the exact percentage of the net gain remaining after this deduction would be to the aggregate productive assets of the company, and after a few minutes he announced that it would be 3.90 per cent.

"What warrant had you, therefore," Mr. Hughes demanded, "for a distribution of 4.1 per cent. to policy holders when actually, according to the Connecticut rule, your earnings were 1 per cent. less than the reserve requirement?"

"Well," said Mr. McClintock, "one-tenth of 1 per cent. on our total assets would be about $440,000, and of this a relatively small proportion, probably not more than $50,000, was paid out as dividends. The rest went into reserve."

Hughes Wants the Principle.

"I don't care about the results," said Mr. Hughes, "it is the principle of the thing that I am talking about. Why did you vary from the rule which you told me you had accepted in making this allowance for investment expenses?"

"Because," said Mr. McClintock, "from time to time the company had been making profits on its investments which ought to be taken into consideration."

"Why did you select 4.1 per cent. instead of, say, 4.2 per cent?"

"Because it was 4.3 per cent. the year before, and I thought 4.1 per cent. would be about right."

"As a matter of fact, wasn't it because you wanted to cut down the interest rate of 4.3 per cent. and still not raise a howl from the policy holders by wiping out your dividends altogether?"

"Yes," Mr. McClintock admitted, "but with a reservation that the company makes occasional profits."

"And why not occasional losses?" demanded Mr. Hughes.

"Because," the witness replied, "the company seldom has losses except in writing down the value of buildings and such things as this."

"But does this whole process not involve a large element of prophecy?" Mr. Hughes persisted.

"There is an element of prophecy," was the reply, "but it is on the basis of previous experience which enables us to prophesy pretty closely."

Mr. Hughes took up the case of the paid-up policyholder who has contributed to expenses through the loading of his premiums while he has been paying them, but after the maturity of his policy receives dividends based on the gain in interest over reserve, without regard to the gains resulting from the saving on mortality, the lapse of policies, and the excess, if any, of current loading over expenses. Mr. Hughes inquired why the policyholder did not profit from the three gains last mentioned when he has contributed his full share toward expenses during his premium payment. The witness went into a long explanation. The result of it was the assertion that the policyholder, while he is paying premiums, gets back in the way of dividends whatever portion of the loading is not required to meet expenses, and so has no further claim on this score.

Asked why the dividend was cut at the end of 1903, Mr. McClintock explained that, with a reduction of $8,000,000 in the security values of that year, the cut in dividends was considered necessary, in view of the fact that the deferred dividend policies would be reckoned on the basis of the annual dividends paid in the years in which they ran.

Declining Values and Influence.

Mr. Hughes wanted to know if the decline in security values was the controlling factor in moving Mr. McClintock to reduce the dividend. The Mutual's Actuary replied that this was one of the factors. Mr. Hughes wanted to know what part of the cut in dividend rate it was responsible for, but Mr. McClintock declined to be pinned down on this point, saying that he would have made some cut anyway, and that the decline probably influenced him to make a larger cut than he would have otherwise. Then Mr. Hughes wanted to know why the dividends were not increased when security values gained more than $9,000,000 in 1904. Mr. McClintock replied that other factors, such as the decrease in surplus earnings, came into account. Then Mr. Hughes undertook to analyze this decrease in an effort to find out how largely increased expenses had contributed to it.

Mr. McClintock declared that expenses had been a pretty steady factor, but Mr. Hughes read figures for a number of years showing almost constant increases of expenses over the loading of the premiums up to 1903, when there was a slight decrease. Then he asked:

"How is it that with an increase in business there is not an increase in surplus earnings?"

The witness made the customary reply that the expenses of getting new business were responsible, but declared as other life insurance officials have declared, that eventually the thing would work out all right. The situation was the same, he added, in all companies.

Mr. Hughes picked up a memorandum of dividend payments on a $5,000 ten-payment life policy issued in 1874 by one of the small life insurance companies, the name of which he withheld for obvious reasons. This showed dividends paid after the maturity of the policy running from $40 to $125 a year down to the present time. Mr. McClintock studied the statement for several minutes, and then said that the company in question no doubt made a much greater profit on mortality than did the Mutual, and, as it was smaller, conducted its business at a material saving as compared with the big companies.

"Illustrations" in Books.

Four little books issued to budding agents of the Mutual by Prof. W. P. Stewart, an actuary in charge of the Mutual's school of instruction, were next presented to Mr. McClintock. They were issued for 1899, 1903, 1904, and 1905. They professed to contain "illustrations" showing the value in earnings of policies in varying amounts taken out at the several periods of life and computed "on actual results." The books had the familiar appearance of those with which a life insurance agent confronts his prospective policy holder in telling him how much somebody else has got out of the kind of policy that the agent desires to sell.

In the Mutual book for 1899 it appeared that a thousand-dollar twenty-year deferred dividend policy taken out at the age of 35 would have added to its face $383.96 "on the basis of actual results" at maturity. In the book for 1903 the amount was stated as $356.31, or $27.65 less, this being due, as the witness explained, to the fact that these "actual results" show decreases from year to year as the earlier policies of the company written at higher premium rates matured and were succeeded by others of more recent date. The book for 1904, however, showed earnings on the thousand-dollar policy of $328.66, which happened to be exactly $27.65 less than the earnings, as stated in the book, for 1903. The little book for 1905 showed earnings happening to be exactly $27.65 less than those given in the book for 1904. Mr. Hughes asked how it happened that this difference, based always on "actual results," was uniformly $27.65 for each year, and he called the attention of the witness to the fact that the earnings on policies taken at other ages varied as between the books for 1899 and 1903 and from year to year following, by exactly the same amount.

Mr. McClintock remarked that it was obvious that the assistant who had computed the figures had followed "a simple mathematical process." The audience laughed.

Earlier in the day, under examination by Associate Counsel James McKeen, Mr. McClintock told how President McCurdy had suggested to Henry B. Hyde and John A. McCall in 1901 that the big companies limit their total insurance to $1,000,000,000,000. Mr. Hyde had hesitated, he said, and had explained that it was his ambition to make the Equitable the largest company and then the best as regards the character of its business. But at last he agreed upon the limitation, as did President McCall, only to change his mind when a bill was introduced in the Legislature.

President McCurdy in his report for 1892 requested the board to pass a resolution limiting the new business by the company to $100,000,000 a year. This was passed, but in the following year the Mutual had a fiftieth anniversary and wanted a general jubilation, so the agents were turned loose in a special effort to get new business, and the limitation has never been enforced since.

Mr. McClintock made one correction yesterday to the testimony of President McCurdy, who said that one of the ways in which he had earned his salary was by reducing the salaries of the clerical force. "No individual clerk," Mr. McClintock said, "has had his salary reduced. Mr. McCurdy probably referred to our civil service system, which provides for promotion of men in regular order; but there has been no actual reduction. Agents cost more, and we come into competition with the butcher and the baker for the increased cost of living. This increases the cost of getting agents, for they want more money from the company."

Adjournment was taken to Nov. 8, the day after election, to allow several of the members of the committee to attend to their political fences.

BODY THAT OF MRS. MULLER.

Missing Since April 7, Husband Says —Bronx River Mystery.

Special to The New York Times.

YONKERS, Oct. 25.—The headless body of the woman found in the Bronx River yesterday was identified to-day by Gottlieb Muller of Morris Park Avenue and Unionport Road, New York, as that of his wife Eva, who disappeared on April 7. On that day she sold to Andrew Schwermann, a policeman of the Wakefield Station, a farm in William's Bridge.

Muller, his wife, and Schwermann went to Manhattan to have the deed transferred, and the men went into a saloon, where they had a couple of drinks, while Mrs. Muller went to a restaurant for luncheon. She had disappeared when the men went to look for her. Muller says she had a satchel containing deeds, a bank book, and considerable money. She left this at the home of his daughter in Mount Vernon that night, and that was the last heard of her. The Coroner says there is nothing to indicate murder.

MORE PHILADELPHIA FRAUD.

Police Find 15,861 Illegal Registrations in Twenty-two Wards.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 25.—Announcement was made by the Police Department to-night that a recanvass of twenty-two of the forty-two wards of the city ehows that 15,861 names are illegally on the latest voting lists of these wards. The Director of Public Safety said that his department will make every effort to prevent the voting of the alleged fraudulent names.

The canvass made by the police during the Summer months in all wards resulted in striking from the lists more than 36,000 names. If the 15,861 alleged fraudulent names on the present lists are not voted, the number of names on the lists throughout the city will have been reduced from 375,000 to 324,000 as a result of the present reform campaign.

TO BUILD A SERVANTS' CLUB.

German Housewives' Society Awards Medals for Long Service.

The German Housewives' Society held a semi-annual meeting yesterday afternoon in Tuxedo Hall, Madison Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street. The object of the meeting was primarily to award prizes offered by the society to such servants as have stayed with any member of the organization two years.

Twenty-seven servants were found on the roll of honor. Of that number Mrs. S. M. Baldwin, the Secretary, said three already had won prizes three times, and three had two previous prizes. The prize is a gold pin or a $10 gold piece.

Mrs. Von Oertzen-Barher, the President, expressed the hope that the society soon would be able to build a home for the servants affiliated with the organization. There green servants will be trained and English will be taught. This home will be a refuge for servants in time of enforced idleness and a club for those who have work.

Explaining Why

Brill Custom tailored garments at $10 are superior to others at that price.

Ours are the only $10 clothes that hold their shape, fit and style until worn out.

A glance at the diagram will show how our clothes differ from the ordinary:

Instead of burlap, we use shrunk linen canvas interlining.

Instead of buckram, French haircloth for entire front and shoulders.

Instead of cotton, serge lining.

Instead of machine made, our collars, lapels and shoulders are hand padded and felled.

Finally, instead of pressing the garment into shape, expert workmen build it into form piece by piece, following the method of the individual custom tailor. But we beat him at his own game, because instead of one coat, our tailors make five hundred. They have attained the perfection that comes from practice.

Custom tailored garments, suits, topcoats, Fall coats and Raincoats, in sizes to fit men of every build, in Brill stores, $10.

ALLIANCE WILL FIGHT ACCIDENT SWINDLERS

Railway and Other Corporations Unite for Protection.

HONEST SUITS WILL BENEFIT

But Witnesses, Physicians, Lawyers, and Others Who Conspire to Defraud Will Be Rigorously Prosecuted.

An organization to protect street and steam railway companies and other large concerns from fraudulent damage suits was formed yesterday at the Hoted Gotham. It's name is "The Alliance Against Accident Frauds."

There were present at the meeting representatives of corporations from Boston to Chicago, and letters were received from many others saying that they would join the alliance. The objects of the alliance are:

To protect and defend its members against fraudulent claims and prosecute all persons engaged in presenting or promoting such claims; to collect and disseminate information to its members concerning fake claimants, shyster lawyers, unprincipled physicians, ambulance chasers, false witnesses, and others engaged in such practices and methods; to insist upon fair dealing with honest claimants and generally to impress upon the public the principles for which the alliance stands.

The companies represented at yesterday's meeting are the United States Casualty Company, General Accident Corporation, Philadelphia Casualty Company, Great Eastern Casualty Company, New York City Street Railway Company, United Railways and Electric Company of Baltimore, Chicago and Northwestern Railway, New York Central and Hudson River Railway, Boston Elevated Railway, Washington (D. C.) Railways and Electric Company, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Hudson River Day Line, Travelers' Insurance Company of Hartford, Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, Interborough Railway Company, Casulty Company of America, Little & Co., printers, and the Fuller Construction Company.

In the discussion of the plan and scope of the new alliance it was said that its mere existence would frighten off many persons who otherwise might bring fraudulent suits. It will be part of the plan to inform stockholders and policy holders in every corporation in the alliance of every case which is to be fought and the reason for contesting it. By this wide publicity it is thought that fraud will be made additionally difficult and dangerous.

It was said at the meeting that the alliance will do quite as much work to see that honest demands are promptly settled as it will to detect swindlers. With frsudulent demands out of the way, it was said, the railways and accident companies could give more time to genuine cases and settle them more promptly.

An effort is also to be made to have passed in evcry State laws similar to those passed by the Maryland Legislature against so-called ambulance chasers and dishonest physicians. At the meeting of the American Bar Association at Narragansett last Summer the question of barratry was taken up, and that organization said it would co-operate with any association that would labor to put down the practice. A committee was appointed to confer further with the American Bar Association and with the American Medical Association on the subject. The following officers were chosen:

President—Robert B. Armstrong, President of the Casualty Company of America; First Vice President—James R. Pratt of the United Railways and Electric Company of Baltimore; Second Vice President—R. C. Richards of the Chicago and Northwestern; Secretary-Treasurer—Chauncey S. S. Miller.

The first annual meeting will be held Jan. 19.

SAY HE PLANNED PERJURY.

Three Accuse an Investigator of the N. Y. City Railway.

Charged with inducing men to commit perjury, W. J. Blair, an investigator for the New York City Railway Company, was arraigned in the Tombs Court yesterday before Magistrate Wahle. Blair was arrested on a warrant based on affidavits sworn to by John Hodgins of 329 East Ninety-second Street, Matthew Cowgey of 142 East Ninety-seventh Strcet, and Joseph Volk.

The proceeding follows a suit against the railway company for injuries. On the night of Jan. 7 last Mrs. John A. Quigley of 1,090 Park Avenue was thrown by the sudden starting of a Lexington Avenue car. Her spine was injurcd. She sued the company for $4,000 and got a verdict for $400 before Justice Platt in White Plains a few weeks ago.

The husband of Mrs. Quigley, who is said to be a race track caterer, learned that there was something odd in the case and placed his information in the hands of a detective agency. The detectives obtained the affidavits on which the warrant was issued.

The case was adjourned to Oct. 30 and Blair was paroled in the custody of counsel for the company.

ROCKEFELLER'S CLASS APPLAUDS MR. JEROME

Young Mr. Rockefeller There, and Leads the Demonstration.

DR. JOHNSON FOR YOUNG MEN

Says the District Attorney Is One of Them—Honest and Not Ruled by Bosses.

A reference to District Attorney Jerome was applauded last night by the Rockefeller Bible class. There was no formal action taken, and no names were mentioned, but when the Rev. Rufus P. Johnson, pastor of the church, praised the District Attorney and demanded the support of the young men of the class for him there was a burst of applause. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who was present for the first time in months, led the demonstration.

"This is distinctively a young man's age," said Dr. Johnson. "The young man is on the firing line. The young man is the man behind the gun. The problems of the age must be solved by the young man.

"We all of us ought to be politicians. We all of us ought to believe in a party. The party is our only practicable means toward government. Let us work through the party so long as the party works to higher ends. When it fails in this duty it is time for us to think for ourselves.

"There is a young man in this city who is independent, honest—the kind of young man to follow. We are all bound to admire him whether we agree with him or not. He has made mistakes. If you find a man who has not make mistakes you have found a man who has never made anything else.

"He is honored and respected all over this land, because the people believe he is sincere. He doesn't bow to the bosses of either one party or the other. I am not going to call his name. It is not necessary. I believe every man in this class ought to work for the election of this man to office."

The young men applauded and Mr. Rockefeller clapped his hands until they were red.

"That was a great campaign speech," said a member of the class to Dr. Johnson after the meeting. "You are a real Jerome man."

"I certainly am," Dr. Johnson responded.

Mr. Rockefeller was one of the first to reach the church. He looked to be in the best of health and was at least thirty pounds heavier than when he told his Bible class good-bye before his European trip.

The principal speaker of the evening was Gov. Montague of Virginia. He talked about citizenship and its responsibilities.

After the meeting was over a member asked Mr. Rockefeller if he would take up his work again.

"I was afraid to come here to-night," he said, "because I knew that very question would be asked me. I am not ready to say just what my plans are."

He declined to express himself as to Dr. Johnson's advocacy of Mr. Jerome.

"I came around to-night to look on," he said, "not to talk."

Hall Caine was to have addressed the class last night, but it was announced that he would speak on Sunday afternoon.

JEROME SEES A RAID.

Police Smash Into The Allen's Place Once More.

Capt. Hodgins of the Mercer Street Station has had his eye on 80 Sixth Avenue for some time with the suspicion in his mind that The Allen's old place was neither dead nor sleeping.

Yesterday afternoon, with Inspector Hogan and six men, he drove in a patrol wagon to the place. On the sidewalk making a cigarette was District Attorney Jerome.

"Fine day," said the Captain.

"Think so?" said Mr. Jerome. "Storm signals up at Governors for northeast gales. Afternoon, Inspector."

The Captain burst in the doors of No. 80 with a sledgehammer and an axe. He and his men ascended a flight of stairs and found another door which they forced open. Inside it was dark. The lights had been put out and there were sounds as if some one were tearing paper.

John Gorman of 136 Waverley Place, said to be doorkeeper of the poolroom, and John Coyne of 472 Eighth Avenue, alleged master of race-sheet ceremonies, were arrested.

The 200 men in the room were allowed to go. Two telephones were confiscated, also a few racing sheets.

"But," said one of the detectives, "what was that man Jerome doing there? The way he lit that cigarette—say, he makes a man nervous."

City Brevities.

William Collins, convicted of having tried to cart away $3,000 worth of cloaks from the storerooms of Isaac Mezler on Oct. 14, and proved to have served twelve years in prison for six different offenses, was sent to Sing Sing yesterday for four years and eleven months by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions.

Indictments were returned by the Grand Jury yesterday against Gustav Dineler and Agnes Renaud. The charge is killing the woman's two-year-old daughter on Sept. 4 and throwing the body into a hallway near their house in West Forty-fifth Street.

A sentence of thirty days in the Tombs and a fine of $350 was imposed in Special Sessions yesterday on Garret P. Couchois of 44 West Twentieth Street and Rutherford, N. J. Couchois was convicted of pirating popular songs. He will appeal.

Lady Baltimore

By OWEN WISTER
Author of The Virginian

IT WAS at King's Port—not its map name, of course—that Mr. Wister found Lady Baltimore and laid the scene of his love-story of the Carolinas. Imagine the most charming of Southern cities; old and shabby, hushed and gray—but peopled with a high-bred society more exclusive and self-sufficient than that of any court in Europe; a town where the atmosphere and the small talk of the forties are still preserved. In this rarified atmosphere rear a native lover, and at last confront him with a fiancee who spends her summers with the Newport "smart set" playing bridge, drinking high-balls and smoking cigarettes.

¶ A bull in a china-shop would be a more welcome guest than was this young woman when she descended on King's Port. Was it any wonder that the old town was set by the ears, that the young man wondered if he hadn't made a mistake, and as many social tangles presented themselves as a dozen chapters would scarce unravel?

My Dear Kittens: You will be interested, I think, if not altogether pleased, at an experience I had, apropos of your last letter.

You told me in that letter about the "time of your lives" that you girls had at Music Hall the other afternoon at a recital given by ——; how his playing simply "carried you off your feet"; how it "enthralled" you and made you all feel that this pianist was "simply divine." All the girls had "creeps down their spines"; they were "hot and cold all over," etc. In short, you had one of those hysterical flings that seem to appeal to girls and women at these recitals.

HARPER'S BOOK NEWS.

With Flashlight and Rifle

This book, now creating a sensation in Germany, is the most remarkable study of wild animals that has ever been made. It is illustrated with over one hundred startling photographs, many of them aken at night by flashlight, showing wild beasts in their native haunts in the African wilds. True aspects of the jungle life are now revealed for the first time to the human eye. Mr. C. G. Schilling's adventures while taking the pictures are of graphic interest and read like fairy tales.

Mrs. Raffles

John Kendrick Bangs' latest book recounts the burglaries in which, after Raffles' death, his widow is concerned. It is a clever satire on fashionable society and recent events. Mrs. Raffles succeeds in raising a tremendous loan on the strength of a few Steel bonds, persuades a prominent millionaire to bestow a library on Rafflehurst-by-the-Sea, and achieves other master strokes that are sure to be appreciated.

THE PRESIDENT AT TUSKEGEE.

The President's journey through the Southern States has been referred to as a "progress"—a term strictly applicable to the passage of royalty across its dominions—but there are characteristics of it that no monarch could be sure of and that any monarch might envy. Mr. ROOSEVELT has commanded in his reception a double cordiality, the elements of which it is not easy to divide, though their combination is one of the most striking and significant evidences of the conditions of our National life. He is traversing a section of the Republic which within his own lifetime was torn by civil conflict on a gigantic scale and of marvelous stubbornness. He greets and is greeted by hosts of citizens who bore arms in that conflict on the defeated side and women whose fathers and brothers fell in the course of it. And besides these and their families he meets and addresses multitudes of the unfortunate race whose enslavemsnt was the underlying cause of the war and against whom there survives in varying degrees, sometimes in great bitterness, an unavoidable and ineradicable prejudice reinforced by feelings due to the defects and vices of a considerable portion of the race. And he encounters at every point the most friendly, the heartiest, the most enthusiastic reception.

We cannot say how much of this extraordinary manifestation is for the President and how much for the man, but whether it be given to one or to the other it is creditable to him who receives and to them who give it. There could be no admiration for the man if the President were not the object of deep and sincere loyalty; and loyalty to the President alone would not take the form it does were not the man himself so winning. For it cannot be denied by the severest critics of Mr. ROOSEVELT that on this, as on like occasions, he bears himself at once with all the dignity his high office requires and with manliness, sincerity, and goodwill that touch the common heart. He showed these qualities in a marked manner at Tuskegee. The situation was not without its difficulties. He was officially the guest of the institute the name of whose distinguished President has been the rallying point for the bitterest criticism he has received. He addressed an audience of negroes and of whites on negro education, on the relations of the races, and on the thorny subject of lynching, and he did not dodge them, did not beat about them; he discussed them frankly, moderately, but with the utmost plainness, and what he said every intelligent person of either race was compelled to accept as wise, fair, humane, practical, and helpful.

So true is this that we are confident that the appeal he made for the best men of each race to get together and to seek in conference the solution of common difficulties, the avoidance of threatening evils, the promotion of common interests, will bear fruit. In a sense, it is a counsel of perfection. It is not at all easy to carry out, and especially it is not easy in the beginning, but it is the dictate of common sense, and, tendered by one of such authority, official and personal, it is bound to be listened to. It is not a novel counsel. Dr. WASHINGTON has long preached and sought to practice it, and he has been nobly seconded by men of influence and high character in various parts of the South. The President's advocacy of the sound principle will, however, reach thousands who had previously been inattentive, and will, we are sure, do great good.

AN OVERLOADED DIGESTION.

It has been evident from the beginning of the active campaign in this county that The Tribune was finding a good deal of difficulty in swallowing FLAMMER and putting aside the claims of Mr. JEROME. The explanation it made of the sense of duty which prompted it to undertake the painful and repulsive process was not readily intelligible to those who have learned to trust its instincts as to good government in this community. For ourselves, we were early persuaded that though the swallowing might, after a fashion, be accomplished, digestion would be impossible. So it turns out to be. Yesterday morning The Tribune gave up further effort at assimilation and made the following interesting announcement:

A week ago we said that if in the brief course of this extraordinary campaign we should become convinced that such a contribution as The Tribune might be able to make to Mr. JEROME'S success would not hinder instead of promoting the infinitely more important work of electing Mr. IVINS Mayor and putting an end to the Tammany government of "graft" we should not hesitate to advise our readers to support Mr. JEROME. That was a perfectly sincere statement of our position. It was fairly entitled to be regarded as a promise.

The danger to the Republican Mayoralty campaign under the unexpected leadership of Mr. IVINS, which in the light of Mr. JEROME'S unjust and intemperate utterances was then obvious and alarming, has passed away. It is no longer to be feared that Republican voters and other inveterate foes of Murphyism will be deceived as to the sincerity, the capacity, and the independence of Mr. IVINS. He has conclusively demonstrated his courage and his fitness. That is a subject on which Mr. JEROME himself seems to have changed his opinion, but even if he has not it is beyond his power to mislead any part of the community. Moreover, as his campaign has developed it has become more and more in a large way an anti-Tammany campaign.

Under these circumstances, because the serious objections to advocating the candidacy of Mr. JEROME have ceased to exist; because he and Mr. IVINS, each in his own way, represent the determination of the honest and loyal people of New York to put "graft" out of business in this city for at least four years, and because if the District Attorney does not succeed himself, Mr. OSBORNE will succeed him—we urge our readers to support Mr. JEROME as earnestly as they are supporting Mr. IVINS.

This is not entirely graceful, but it is conclusive.

MAYOR M'CLELLAN'S STRENGTH.

Tammany is beaten in a Mayoralty election only when the town has been swept by a wave of public indignation against its misrule and its corruptions. The People's Municipal League movement of 1890 failed to elect FRANK SCOTT, the reform candidate running against Mayor GRANT. In 1894 New York had had enough of Tammany, and Fusion elected Mayor STRONG, but in 1897 Tammany was back again with Mayor VAN WYCK. The vices that flourished during his four-years' term, and in particular the "system" of police blackmail, sufficed to rouse the public anger to a pitch that elected SETH LOW Mayor even against a candidate so able, upright, and distinguished as Mr. EDWARD M. SHEPARD. Two years later Tammany's misdeeds had grown dim in the public memory, and the voters of the city, ranging themselves more nearly according to their political affiliations, elected Mr. MCCLELLAN.

Not only is there no general feeling of public resentment against Tammany this year, but there is, on the contrary, an unusual degree of popular confidence in Mayor MCCLELLAN, a feeling that extends far beyond his own party. Anybody can see that this is a condition that inevitably prefigures a Democratic vote much above the normal strength of the Tammany organization. Distrust of Tammany has been allayed by Mayor MCCLELLAN, and his honest, straightforward management of the public business has very much strengthened his party by attracting reinforcements from other parties.

These considerations are commended to thoughtless persons who are troubled by the "Hearst scare." Even if a candidate as able and as much respected, say, as Mr. GRACE, or Mr. HEWITT, or Mr. Low were running against Mr. MCCLELLAN this year he would have a decidedly uphill fight. But HEARST—oh, no! The community has not got down to that ignoble depth of degradation. That a candidate of his character, antecedents, occupation, and principles, or the want of them, should cut any serious figure at all in a campaign or should receive more than a mere mindless "crank" vote supplies an argument to those who are skeptical about the advantages of popular suffrage. That the chief city in the Western world should cast even as many as 20,000 votes for such a person would be a deep disgrace, were it not for the fact that in so large an electorate there must inevitably be an uncomfortable percentage of voters who either through sheer ignorance, delusion, or viciousness would at any time be attracted to such a candidacy as that of HEARST. But it is well to remember that for the most part the town is sane.

ACTUAL LIFE INSURANCE REFORM.

The testimony of a life insurance actuary on the witness stand possesses about the same degree of popular interest as a lecture on the binomial theorem. Accordingly, when Actuary MCCLINTOCK of the Mutual Life Insurance Company confronts Mr. HUGHES the audience yawns and dozes, pricking up its ears again only when some witness is called to testify to "graft" or other abuse of trust. Yet the testimony and the technical information given by experts like Mr. MCCLINTOCK, void of meaning and interest as they are to the crowd, are of the highest value to the committee of the Legislature. Vital and enduring reform of the life insurance business must be worked out upon a basis of precisely that kind of information. Shall the great companies be allowed to continue their eager hunt for new business; shall the law put a limit to the life insurance written and the amount of assets accumulated by any given company; shall the policy holder be put in the way to receive his dividends yearly, or will the law sanction a continuance of the deferred dividend practice; of the various policies written by life insurance companies which are sound and worthy of sanction, and which should be discontinued—these are questions which the Armstrong Committee, under the resolution, will be expected by the Legislature to answer. The committee's report must present a competent exposition of these technicalities of life insurance in order that the Legislature may with sufficient information enact remedial laws.

The exposure of the waste of policy holders' money and of the illegitimate profits made by its improper use is no less vital to genuine thoroughgoing life insurance reform. These evil and predatory practices must be stopped. The exposure has made it absolutely certain that they will be stopped. Whatever else the Legislature may do it will be compelled by public opinion to provide a system of safeguards and penalties adequate to protect the interests and the funds of holders of life insurance policies. Meanwhile much remains to be done in the technical part of the committee's inquiry. The inquiry into abuses of trust cannot, of course, be suspended so long as there remain undisclosed any large misdoings.

RAILWAY LAW ENOUGH.

A new note was struck yesterday when shippers were indicted in Louisville for obtaining railway rebates in violation of the Inter-State Commerce law. The nine counts contain allegations that the defendants thereby were guilty of causing discrimination between shippers and districts. The proceedings result from recent investigations of grain rates by the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

The obvious comment is better late than never. It is a timely reminder that there exists a law which has been neglected for many years, and that the commission fulfills a useful function in procuring the enforcement of the law. If we are not mistaken, there never has been a conviction of rebating, and it will be remarked that the defendants now are not the railways, although obviously the railways must be guilty if the alleged rebaters are. The crime cannot be committed alone by those accepting rebates. This novel procedure—which should not be novel—serves as a further reminder that the excellence of existing law has not been fairly tested. Not in one instance has the commission employed the right of summary procedure, which the Supreme Court has declared it possesses under the Elkins law. The commission has the right, without formal preliminaries, to initiate proceedings in the Circuit Court for an injunction against exactly such discriminations as are now subject of indictment.

What more could be asked? What remedy against rebates would control of rates afford? Government-made rates may be rebated as well as any other. And if the commission has been too busily engaged to enforce existing laws what would be its dilemma when confronted with the necessity of dealing with the merits of the existing 2,196,536 tariffs, which are altered at the rate of 165,174 annually? Now the commission employes thirty clerks, say one-third of its force, in merely clerical work affecting these tariffs. If the commission is now preoccupied, what would be the result of adding to its duties? An increase of activity within existing fields of usefulness would be very acceptable to those who are neither for nor against the railways but seek the good of the entire community by punishment of those who wrong it by either giving or taking rebates, or otherwise violating the rules of the game, which in this case are the Federal statutes.

COMSTOCK VS. SHAW AGAIN.

We are inclined to think that Mr. COMSTOCK is within his rights in objecting to the production on a New York stage of what is probably the most daring of all the dramatic temerities of Mr. GEORGE BERNARD SHAW. Not that Mr. COMSTOCK is entitled to any credit for his position in the matter. He appears blithely to dismiss the comedy in question as "one of BERNARD SHAW'S filthy products," without the advantage of having read it. But one who has this advantage may assert, with considerable confidence, that the subject matter of the play is not fit for public and promiscuous presentation in New York any more than the official prude decided that it was in London. It follows that when Mr. ARNOLD DALY, gleefully welcoming the uninstructed opposition of Mr. ANTHONY COMSTOCK as an advertisement, invites Mr. COMSTOCK to come and see "a strong sermon and a great moral lesson," he merely expresses a belief that "Mrs. Warren's Profession," with Mr. COMSTOCK'S able assistance, will draw, if it is allowed to be played here, and that the "strong sermon" and the "great moral lesson" are mainly, so far as Mr. ARNOLD DALY is concerned, in Mr. ARNOLD DALY'S eye.

We are far from denying that they are also in the play. If the reading of the book, or the hearing and seeing of the play, could be confined to the Society for the Promotion of Civics, or the Medico-Legal Society, or the Episcopal Diocesan Convention, we have no doubt that those processes would be interesting. We are even inclined to admit that they might be edifying, though what any one of those societies could do about the matter would remain highly problematical. But it is a convention of civilized society, and the convention is founded on fact, that there are social subjects which cannot be discussed in public, for the very reason that the public discussion of them tends to pique the prurient curiosity which the question is of restraining. It is not quite the same question that arose the other day, when Mr. COMSTOCK most properly "pulled" the posters for the "beauty show," which were unquestionably indecent, while the show itself, which may possibly, by some of its promoters, have been conceived as a purely aesthetical occasion, was practically found to attract mainly "lewd fellows of the baser sort." And the same attraction, we think, would be the chief attraction offered by the production here of "Mrs. Warren's Profession." So that, in our judgment, Mr. COMSTOCK has for once interdicted more wisely than he knew.

To say this is not necessarily to quarrel with the impatience of those artists who write in English with the artificial restrictions that prevent them from choosing the most interesting subjects, nor with their envy of the artists who write in French, and who are permitted by their public a much wider range. There are writers in English who do not feel this difficulty. Mr. HENRY JAMES evades it by writing about whatever he chooses to write about, only he writes in such an unknown tongue that comparatively few people ever find it out. It would probably promote Mr. JAMES'S "sales" if Mr. COMSTOCK should "pull" one or two of the more physiological and less popular of his romances. And we have not observed that Mr. SHAW himself finds himself much more restrained in his choice of treatment of subjects than a canary bird in a ten-acre lot with the bars down. At the same time, these impatient artists, or, if they insist upon it, moralists, ought to remember that the saying which assures us that there are some things which are done but not talked about is, after all, of French origin.

MURAL PAINTERS.

Punishing ninety-nine apprentices to the noble art of painting because circumstantial evidence convicts one of smearing pigment on a wall is so drastic a penalty that we must look deeper for the reason. Messrs. MAYNARD, ALEXANDER, EDGAR WARD, and WILL H. LOW, the masters of pictorial art in the school of the Academy, could not have acted in anger. This is impossible if they recall the capers they cut when they were students, capers not so stupid and boorish, of course, as the vandalism wreaked on innocent walls, but equally infantile perchance, equally silly and irritating to their elders. It must have been the latent spirit of revolt which they have sought to nip in the bud by suspending the entire male contingent of the painting class.

The wipe that student gave the lavatory wall with a brush full of raw red paint may be regarded as a symbol of Socialism, or indeed of Anarchism. The mere layman and outsider would attribute it to the perverse moment which comes now and then to the best of boys and drives him to commit fool acts on a sudden impulse, for which he can give no reason. Not so the painter who uses colors with a meaning and associates ideas and moods more or less sharply defined with the different sections of a rainbow and their mixtures. If a man employs colors to express recondite feelings such as only a kindred art like music can render, he becomes oblivious to the streaks of idiocy that shoot from time to time through the brain of a boy and attaches a sinister meaning to what is just ordinary everyday cuesedness, analogous to the pleasant shock of the nerves when a window is smashed or the other boy gets a rib caved in at football.

We think these masters are in error to lay so much stress on a smear of paint on a wall. Of course a painter like Mr. MAYNARD must feel that the whole American Society of Murals has been attacked in its tenderest susceptibilities. It is not the painting of the wall but the bad painting that infuriates him. Now, if that boy had put one or two other colors above and below and inscribed his impression "Rhapsody in Cramoisie and Silver" he might have been forgiven, because he has illustrious precedent for Whistlerizing that wall. But the young dolt did nothing of the kind.

The escape of the feminine half of the school from the ukase of suspension only shows how true Mr. BORGLUM'S instinct was when out of forty-two angels he made only one a man. Let us blush for our brutal sex.

ARTHUR PUE GORMAN'S campaign choir of white angels burst upon the Democratic mass meeting in Baltimore on Tuesday evening with the following chorus, of which the Maryland negro, threatened with disfranchisement, was the subject and his champion, Senator RAYNER, the object:

I've got a white man working for me;
I'm going to keep him husy, you see.
Don't care about the cost, I'll stand all the loss.
It's worth twice the money to be a boss,
To see the steam popping out of his brow,
I've got him right where I want him now.
Don't you dare to talk back about the white above the black—
I've got a white man working for me.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Elmira Gets Virtuous.

Elmira has now raised its municipal soul to the cold, pure height attained several months ago by Stamford, and to the man with a vote to sell it severely remarks: "There's nothin' doin'." In other words, its political bosses have come together, discussed the situation created by themselves, and made public announcement to about this effect: "For thirty years we have been deliberately, almost openly, and with perfect impunity, violating the most important laws on the statute book. We are not at all sorry for what we have done, but the game is no longer interesting. As the vote on election day will result about the same when nobody uses money as when both sides spend all they can get, we have determined to leave the free American citizen, for a change, alone with his conscience and his lead pencil, and no longer to confuse his mind by forcing him to make a difficult choice between taking one small bribe or another, or both." Neither Mr. J. SLOAT FASSETT, Chairman of the Republican City Committee, nor Mr. WILLIAM H. LOVELL, ditto of the Democratic ditto ditto, seems to have any realization of the fact that there is an element of the picturesque and the humorous in their publication of a solemn agreement no longer to indulge in the commission of felony. There really is, however, an element of both in it, and the spectacle would be even more joyful if, as they have united on Mr. BROCKWAY for a non-partisan candidate, they should fling to the winds a banner bearing the brave legend: "Anybody who buys a vote shall be paddled." But away with levity! Elmira, if not yet quite all right, is evidently getting on, and even if an appreciable fraction of her citizens do view the coming Winter with an unwonted apprehension as a consequence of this compact, it is still one that must be commended, simply as a first gleam from the dawn of political decency.

Otisville and Its Pride.

How much better it would have been if the people of Otisville, instead of exulting, as reported, over the superior courage which enabled them to brave the dangers of having a sanatorium for consumptives in their neighborhood, had contented themselves with a quiet announcement that they were too sensible and well informed to share the delusion that such establishments are perilous to the health of those living near them. That, now, would have been worth gloating over. For it is a fact beyond intelligent question or discussion that, under the modern treatment of tuberculosis, the closest approach to perfect safety from the disease is to be found in, and the next closest near, the places where its victims are gathered and so often cured. The danger is in the towns that have so stupidly and brutally fought the selection of sites for these sanatoria within their own limits, for there the old notions as to the nature of consumption and the way and degree in which it is infectious still linger—and still slay. So far as we know, however, the Otisvillians are luckier, rather than wiser, than their neighbors. Their opposition happened to be ineffective, and if they want to be proud of that, let 'em. Some day the people who succeeded in the determination to act like particularly ignorant barbarians will learn something about their own true interests as well as about the rudiments of common humanity, and then they will be happy instead of merely thinking they are happy.

QUESTIONS FOR CASSIDY.

Frank Answers to Them Would Indeed Be Interesting.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this morning's TIMES I read of an attack upon Mr. Hearst by Joseph Cassidy of Queens.

If Caseldy wants to tell the people of Queens anything, let him answer these questions:

How can a man with the salary of $5,000 a year own a racing stable and pay his brother twice $5,000 to run it for him?

How can a man on $5,000 a year have an automobile, a handsome yacht, and trotting horses, the combined price of which would equal more than he ever earned as Borough President?

Tell the people who owns the poolroom at Hunters Point.

Tell the people the per cent. charged on the various contracts and how to bid successfully.

Tell the people of Queens how many dead men, how many men living in other boroughs, and how many men under assumed names are drawing double salaries from the city?

He, Cassidy, says he made Queens what it is to-day. In his speech of acceptance of the nomination, he said that the year previous to his election his opponents, then in power, had received an appropriation of $35,000 with which they had developed seven miles of highways in Queens. When he was in power he received over a million a year and developed thirty miles of highways. The conclusions drawn from these facts are that before Caseldy was elected the people paid an average of $5,000 a mile for improving the highways, but since he was elected it costs the people over $33,000 a mile, a difference of $28,000 a mile. But Cassidy didn't tell us what caused this $28,000 increase per mile.

Long Island City, Oct. 24, 1905.

There Are Others.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In his testimony yesterday before the legislative committee Dr. McClintock of the Mutual Life made a statement which seemed to imply that he and Mr. M. M. Dawson are the only actuaries in this country who bear the title of Fellow of the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain. Now, this is not so, for we have Mr. Robert Henderson, assistant actuary of the Equitable; Mr. Henry Moir, actuary of the Provident Savings; Mr. A. L. Dickinson of Price, Waterhouse & Co., and Mr. W. A. Hutcheson, associate actuary in Dr. McClintock's own office, all of whom have the honor to be Fellows by examination. ACTUARY.

For Government Insurance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Federal Government protects our country, our homes, and every individual. It is the warden of our ports, it distributes our mail, it holds supervision over our National banks, it issues bonds for improvements and to meet expenses, and the subjects in turn for these adventures are taxed to defray such expenses.

Why should not the Federal Government issue insurance and get back the benefit of the $2,500,000,000 of assets which originally came from the Government instead of giving it into the hands of unscrupulous individuals? Certainly their surety would be much greater. I would like to know why it is not practical.

Here Are the Figures.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I make an estimate regarding the coming election, taking it for granted that the total vote will be about 608,000 as figured out in editorial headed, "The City Vote"?

Mr. Hearst will no doubt be the next Mayor with a majority that will sweep the two political parties off their feet, polling a vote of about 325,000, as almost all the labor vote is in line for Hearst, which will in time be in line for Socialism.

Mr. McClellan and Ivins will have it out for second place, giving them about 234,000 to divide among themselves. This will leave 50,000 to the Socialists, who are making steady gains every year. A WORKINGMAN.

Where Is the British Flag?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The decorations of hunting at the docks for the new municipal ferryboats are very pretty, and include the flags of France, Germany, Italy, Russia, Holland, and even Turkey, as well as a lot of minor nationalities, but I notice the British flag is conspicuous by its absence. Why? ANGLO-AMERICAN.

To Secretary Shaw?

From The Washington Star.

"When I was a boy," said the rather vain person, "everybody said I was going to be President of the United States."

"Yes," answered the seasoned politician. "Your case simply illustrates my argument that it isn't safe to start a boom too far ahead of election."

ELECT JEROME.

Defeat for Him Would Mean Defeat for the People.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have received a request to serve as a Jerome watcher. I am very sorry that my work will prevent me from doing so, and that all I can do instead is to give Mr. Jerome my vote and a small contribution toward expenses.

THE TIMES, with its able editorials and correspondence, is doing a great deal for such a just cause, but permit me to respectfully suggest that more can be done. The matter should not be left to the people; it should be put up to them, good and hard, and no one can do it better than THE TIMES. Make the people realize that the Jerome issue is the one great and vital issue to be decided by them at the election; that it is down with boesism now or never; that defeat for Jerome will mean defeat for the people as against added strength for the bosses; that every decent man anxious for decent government must show himself as such by taking the trouble to split his ticket and showing a little independence from the rotten rule of his party. Make them understand that it is a great principle that Jerome is fighting for, and that it is a National as well as a local issue. Make them know the man, so that they won't be misled by irrelevant and side attacks.

If every man votes for Jerome who would like to see him elected, he will be elected by a sweeping majority.

JEROMITE.
New York, Oct. 24, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For years the people have complained they could do nothing against the political machine and its boss. The chief ground of this complaint has been that the boss, backed by the machine, controlled the nomination of all candidates for office. The people have cried, and with some truth, that they were powerless against this evil.

That ground of complaint does not now exist. It has been swept away by a man so fearless, so independent, that he scorns to wear the chain of any boss to get a nomination—a man who has such confidence in the people and in his own past record that he stands for re-election unbacked by any party, trusting to the people, and to them alone. This man has done for the people what they admitted they could not do for themselves—he has given them a people's candidate.

Who have nominated Jerome? The people. Who want him elected? The people. To whom does he appeal? The people. Then is he not distinctly the people's candidate?

A man has been found so independent, so big, with such a clean record, that, in spite of all bosses and combinations of bosses, he is able to bring to the people what they have long cried out for, an independent candidate of their own choosing. What they have long wanted and could not get is now offered to them, as it were, on a silver salver. Will they have the manhood to take it? Have they the independence to vote as they wish?

If four-fifths of those who wish Jerome to be elected will vote for him, he will be elected by a large majority.

Then what would Jerome's defeat (should it occur) mean? It would mean that though the people want a thing, and have the right and power to get it, they have not the independence, the sense, or the honesty to vote for it. In other words, Jerome's defeat would mean that we, the people of this great community, are not fit to govern ourselves, that the right to vote is a curse rather than a blessing, a thing that is used by bosses to defeat our interests and wishes, not a thing used by us to gain them.

LORLYS ELTON ROGERS.
New York, Oct. 25, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Four years ago I voted for Mr. Jerome. His conduct of office as District Attorney since then leaves no other candidate possible to me in the coming election. I wish to do what I can in my humble way to aid his election besides voting for him. If my means permitted I would be pleased to contribute to the campaign fund. ONE VOTE.

SYRIAN BISHOP SAYS

That Base Slanders Have Been Circulated About Him.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to deny through the medium of your paper the base slanders that have been circulated about me from time to time in the last few weeks, going so far recently as to state that I had offered $5,000 for a man's death.

My people understand the motives which actuate the persons making such statements, but it is only right to me that the press should announce to the great American public that all such charges are absolutely false and without foundation, and that I have tried to live a life in accord with the high position which I fill as head of the Syrian Greek-Orthodox Church in America.

Thon.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reference to the Standard Dictionary will show that "thon" is given as Scottish, meaning "yon, that." I remember in my boyhood days, nigh fifty years ago, hearing "thon" regularly used by men who had passed their threescore and ten. This was in Edinburgh, Scotland, where, I fancy, the word must have been used for centuries.

If we Edinburgh boys ever thought of the matter at all we merely considered that it was the Scottish way of saying "yon."

Robert Louis Stevenson makes use of "thon" in this way, and such expressions as "Thon was a grand sermon," "D'ye see thon laverock in the sky?" were common in my young days, not only in Auld Reekie, but in other parts of Scotland. "Thonder" was also in everyday use.

Turning again to the dictionary, it is found that Charles Crozat Converse proposed in 1858 the use of "thon" to save the trouble of saying "he or she" in such sentences as "I shall see the boy and girl, and he or she must tell me what was done." If "thon" was ever used in this way, except by Converse, it would be interesting to know when and where. SANDY.

Mr. Cortelyou.

From The Springfield Republican.

It will be observed that Postmaster General Cortelyou's expected retirement from the Chairmanship of the Republican National Committee does not come. This is explained on the ground that Mr. Cortelyou does not deem it fair or courteous to retire until the questions raised by the legislative committee that is investigating the New York insurance companies have been in some way disposed of. He is said to be averse to leaving Cornelius N. Bliss of New York, Treasurer of the committee, to face the expected music alone.

It should not be overlooked at this time that so far as the McCurdys are concerned they have been consistently leading the mutual life.

An Awkward Habit.

"I am in the habit of telling the truth in my speeches," said Gen. Grosvenor; and then the Philadelphia Republicans promptly thanked him for declining the invitation to take the stump for them.

AN INSURANCE HERETIC.

One Policy Holder Who Does Not Think He Has Been Robbed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see you are printing quite a lot about the insurance scandal, and I remark that some people are disturbed about it. I am a policy holder in more than one company, but I am not in sympathy with the manner in which the topic is generally treated in the United States. I say in the United States because the foreign comments are more moderate than American even in quarters where this would scarcely be expected. Our German and English cousins, for instance, are not overkind critics, yet such authoritative journals as the Frankfurter Zeitung and The London Standard print criticisms so restrained that no New York journal would deem them fit to print as their own opinions, such is the terrorism of a presumed outraged public opinion. Perhaps you will permit me to say that I do not find opinion outside of American newspapers like that within them. For instance, a savings bank official spoke to me in words something like this: "Hughes's lynching committee has found the accused guilty and is now looking for evidence. Evidence regarding good results, good intentions, good character, is all allunde. What is wanted is something spicy. Some of us who have read the testimony thus far are making up our minds that the victim of the outrage has been hysterical, and that the harm done financially speaking is more by the investigation than by the defendants."

Perhaps you will permit me to state why this seems to me a rational view. Not one authoritative witness has yet assailed the solvency of the companies. When insolvency is sworn to I, too, will join the lynchers. But I remember that my savings bank was wrecked by virtuous and well-meaning lynchers some years ago, and that in liquidation it paid 100 per cent. A concern which pays out 100 per cent. in liquidation ought never to have been attacked. The result is an indictment of the assailants, not of the administration. Just so now, not even the investigation warrants anybody to hint at insolvency. So long as that is so the investigation loses much of its practicality. When I insured myself I bought so much insurance for so much money, and I am getting it—where's my grievance? Also some assurances were made by canvassers which I did not take too seriously. Suppose I am disappointed in these respects, what then? I find myself better off in one company under investigation than in another not under investigation. The latter so far as I know made no campaign contributions, and maintains a moderate salary list. But if the company were able to obtain such results as have been testified to by paying such salaries as are being denounced it would seem to me a good bargain. I am puzzled when I read about my company being looted by thieves who accumulated some hundreds of millions of assets and scores of millions of surplus, and left every dollar in the safe. If I could turn over my private affairs to such a result I would not grudge a liberal administration, official or personal. It is very wrong to bribe legislators, but if my President had to do it or see my interests suffer, I am going to blame the legislative cattle, not my President. If 70,000,000 of Americans, "mostly fools," go crazy about free silver, I am not going to blame, in the coolness of the present, the judgment which paid out a little something at a time when more of us were excited even more than we are now. It was very wrong, and I am glad he did it. So, too, about the surplus which some critics say ought to have been divided and not accumulated as a temptation to extravagance. I am thinking more about existence than extravagance, and were it not for that same surplus I doubt if my company would have been able to survive such a strain as has been thrown upon it, and which may be repeated at any time for another cause. Certainly it would have been necessary to realize investments upon a large scale in bad markets and suffer loss larger than any yet shown.

I may be wrong, but it seems to me that these pilloried men are merely part and parcel of their time. There are bad men among them, and wrong acts have been done, but all in all nothing below an average has been shown. Rather success and probity above an average is testified to. The methods by which excellent financial results were obtained are open to criticism and reform, but they are not essentials. The assets and profits which justify the judgment by which they were accumulated I find—by looking carefully—buried in small type. Something piquant and personal I find played up for all it is worth, and more in my opinion. Never was there such an opportunity to wreak personal and political and financial revenges. A hundred tomahawks are sharpened and fleshed and editors who have no such motives lend themselves to the game. Suppose railways, or banks, or any private business, were subjected to the same strain, how many would fare better? Suppose that no critic spoke except those free from blame of the same sort? I know that to allege or even to prove that all are bad is not to prove that any are good. But when I bought insurance I was not buying anything else, not even virtue. If these men are up to the average I do not think I have any grievance because they are not better. Their results justify to me anything which is merely doubtful in their conduct. I would not condone theft for me any more than theft from me. I do not find either. I merely find the talents intrusted to them returned with increase according to prevalent standards, taking good and bad together. That is warranted according to Biblical standards. It was the servant who merely preserved his talent who was blameworthy in the parable. What seems to me to be demanded is a reform of the community, not a crusade against insurance companies, to which, on the other hand, no especial tenderness is due. I would broaden, not narrow, the crusade. And I would lecture the policy holders as well as the insurance company officers. Why did they promise to pay too much for insurance? Why did they abdicate their rights and powers? Why are they now equealing at the results of their own deficient performance of their functions as electors and constituents of officials dependent upon their votes for their power? This is a good time to emphasize that citizenship is not a joke in a city or a corporation, and that those who do not vote or who vote foolishly have only themselves to blame for the results. There is little to choose between Directors who do not direct and voters who do not vote.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

When John emerged from the football game
He was covered with dirt and gore and fame.
His ears were gone—he had no chin—
His mouth was up where his nose had been.
But his mother said when they shipped him back:
"How lucky I look my best in black."

Jack came home without any chin—
His eyes gouged out and his nose bunged in.
"Tut! Tut, my boy," his mother said,
"I won't say a word if the other chaps dead."

COMSTOCK WON'T SEE BERNARD SHAW'S PLAY

Although Actor Daly Invites Him (at Box Office Prices.)

UP TO THE POLICE, HE SAYS

He Understands That "Mrs. Warren's Profession" Is Worse Than "Orange Blossoms."

Anthony Comstock, Secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, will not accept Arnold Daly's invitation to attend a rehearsal of the George Bernard Shaw play, "Mrs. Warren's Profession," which is to be put on at the Garrick next week.

"Why should I?" asked Mr. Comstock yesterday afternoon. "It is not my purpose to advertise Mr. Daly or the works of Mr. Shaw. In writing him regarding the play, I desired to impress upon him the fact that there are laws dealing with those who present plays which are in contravention of the morals of the community and offensive to public decency. If, in defiance of the warning, he persists in producing the play and the play proves to be what I am informed it is, then he will have no excuse to offer, and his punishment will be much more severe."

"Have you read the play?" Mr. Comstock was asked.

"I have not. I have received a number of letters bearing upon the proposed production, however, from people who have read the book, and they tell me that it is quite impossible. Mr. Shaw convicts himself out of his own mouth. His description of the character of the play, if I had no other guide, would convince me that it was unfit for presentation."

"Would you mind saying if men of letters wrote you regarding the play?"

"Whether they were men of letters or not is not essential. They are men of morality and decency, which is to the point."

"If you do not attend a rehearsal of the play, will you be among the first-nighters?"

Up to the Police.

"The society did its full duty when I wrote the letter of warning to Mr. Daly. If the play is put on it is up to the police, and I have not the slightest doubt that Mr. McAdoo will take the proper steps. I am perfectly aware that the trend of the stage is toward the indecent. I know that if a manager would advertise that on a certain day there would be a beautiful girl on exhibition in his theatre in the nude, the theatre would be packed. It is perfectly proper to exhibit the nude in a clinic, but it is not permissible in public. The exhibition in the clinic serves a useful end. Mr. Daly cannot justify himself by saying that the play is a strong sermon. The question of motive does not enter into the proposition. When a man puts on an indecent, corrupting play, the law says that he is supposed to have intended to corrupt the public morals. Some years ago a show entitled 'Orange Blossoms' was given. The man who put it on was convicted, sentenced, and his sentence was confirmed on appeal."

"Would you put 'Mrs. Warren's Profession' in the same class with 'Orange Blossoms'?"

"From what I have been told of 'Mrs. Warren's Profession' it is by far the more reprehensible."

In the "Orange Blossoms" case referred to by Mr. Comstock the decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, in affirming the decision of the lower court, read:

It is well settled that whatever outrages public decency and is injurious to public morals is indictable. * * * The question in all these cases must be: "What is the impression produced upon the mind by perusing or observing the writing or picture referred to in the indictment?" It remains but to consider briefly two positions taken on behalf of the defendant. The first is that public decency was not offended because the actress who played the part of the bride exposed but little of her person; second, that the suggestiveness of the exhibition was connected with lawful marriage, not illicit relations.

As to the first proposition, we need only say that the test to which reference is made embraces every picture which tends to deprave and corrupt the morals of those whose minds are open to such influences, and that in applying this test regard is always had to the idea conveyed.

Such a performance as that under consideration is really more dangerous to public morals than any mere vulgar exhibition of nudity. The latter may arouse impure thoughts, but it is more apt to excite disgust. The greater danger lies in an appeal to the imagination, and when the suggestion is immoral the more that is left to imagination the more subtle and seductive the influence.

The appellant's second proposition is somewhat startling. Its logic would suggest an advance into even grosser domain than that of suggestiveness. According to this view, no public display of any form of marital intimacy could be held to be indecent. The proposition is preposterous. The picture is none the less licentious because it is painted upon a clean canvas. The aim here is not to honor, but to degrade marriage, and the defendant's guilt is enhanced, not diminished, by his utilization of its sacred confidence to serve his criminal purpose.

This is the reply which Mr. Comstock sent Mr. Daly, when the invitation to attend a rehearsal reached him:

"Society for the Suppression of Vice,

"New York, Oct. 24. 1905.

"Mr. Arnold Daly.

"Garrick Theatre,

"Sir: Yours of Oct. 21 is received. I wrote you, giving you the opinion and decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in and for this District, in order that you might be fully advised of rule governing indecent shows and exhibitions. The laws of this State are under the police power of this State, enacted in the interest of public morals. Their decision is in full accord with the common law decisions of England and the United States, to wit:

"'Every show and exhibition which outrages decency, shocks humanity, or is, contra bonos Mores, is punishable at common law.'—Knowles vs. State, 3 days R. 103. 'What tends to corrupt society was held to be a breach of the peace and punishable by indictment.'—2 Archibald Cr. Pr. and Pl.218, and Queen vs. Hicblin, No. 3, Eng. L. R. (q.- B.) 'All acts and conduct calculated to corrupt public morals or to outrage the sense of public deceny are indictable.'—Williams vs. State, 4 mo. 480. Says the Supreme Court of the United States: 'The suppression of nuisances injurious to public health and morality is among the most important duties of government.'—Phalen vs. State of Virginia, 8 Howard, P. 168, S. C.

"I wrote you upon the receipt of a letter through the mails containing the following: 'I see by this morning's paper that Mr. Arnold Daly intends to put on Bernard Shaw's "Mrs. Warren's Profession." When one says that she discusses her "profession," and gives reason for its being, defending herself, when she tries to make her daughter see the reason of this, enough ought to be said to make you wipe this out as a moral cancer.

"'But furthermore, the disgusting thing is continued; the woman (Mrs. Warren) does not know who her daughter's father was—he may have been the clergyman in the play—he may have been the ruffian who is the partner in her horrible business,' &c.

"The writer then adds: 'A year ago women were ashamed to admit they had read it, and now it is to be put on a place of public entertainment. It was hounded off even the stage of the Independent Theatre in London.'

"This, and Mr. Shaw's own description of the character of this play, and the public denunciation of the public press of this particular matter, led me to address you as I did.

"In adjudicating these matters before the court, neither the motive, interest, nor opinion of the person who is responsible for the display of any matter prohibited by law, counts. That has been settled by the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals, over and over again, in this State.

"If the tendency of your play is to corrupt the minds of the young and inexperienced, or to suggest lewd and libidinous thoughts, then it is forbidden by law, and comes within the decision which I sent you the other night. I leave the matter in your hands, calling especial attention to the law, and decisions of the courts of this State. Respectfully yours,

"ANTHONY COMSTOCK,

"Secretary."

Daly to Comstock.

Mr. Daly was busy rehearsing when the letter came. Immediately after the rehearsal he prepared and forwarded this answer:

Mr. Anthony Comstock, Secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice:

My Dear Mr. Comstock: I have written you once explaining the play of "Mrs. Warren's Profession," its purport, purpose, and its moral. I am too busy a man to go further into the question with you at present. Your quoting laws to me is useless, as I intend to break none. You are free to come on Monday night at box office prices to get the true message of the play if you are capable of receiving it.

Truly yours, ARNOLD DALY.

"Send the letter at once," said Mr. Daly to his stenographer. Then he remarked that he had meant to have a great deal to say in reply to Mr. Comstock, but really hadn't time.

"I have been rehearsing all day," said Mr. Daly, "and another rehearsal is due now. I know that I could show Mr. Comstock the error of his ways if there was opportunity for me to answer him adequately.

"Why has he not taken exception to such plays as 'Camille' and 'Raffles'? In the old days they burned women as witches because they were old or beautiful—the only two things they ought to be. The world has learned sense since, but it doesn't seem that Mr. Comstock has. I will say, however, that several modern plays I could name, which have a highwayman for a hero or a courtsan for a heroine, do not seem to have excited him to any undue extent.

"The difference between 'Camille' and 'Mrs. Warren's Profession' is this: If a girl sees 'Camille' she says of the courtesan: 'How grand, how noble. I want to be like Camille.' If she sees 'Mrs. Warren's Profession' she finds Mrs. Warren, and the type which Mrs. Warren represents, repellant.

"Such plays as 'Raffles' and 'Camille' do positive harm. Of my own knowledge I can testify to one misguided young man who tried to emulate Raffles and drew twenty-five years in the penitentiary. Who can say how many girls have been harmed by seeing 'Camille'?

"As I said in my letter, I haven't got time to talk to Mr. Comstock. I am heart and soul in the work of adequately producing 'Mrs. Warren's Profession,' and I do not feel that I need any Comstockian advertising. He is altogether impossible."

"MARSE" SYDNEY SCORES.

He Runs an Educational Campaign with Novel Features.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—"Marse Sydney" Mudd has again demonstrated his ability to rise superior to obstacles that would daunt a lesser man.

Over in Maryland, where a campaign fully as hot as those in New York, Philadelphia, and Ohio is raging, the Democrats have designed a trick ballot. This ballot is designed to disfranchise the unlettered black voters.

The Democrats originally abolished all party emblems and printed on the ballot only the party names. "Marse Sydney" and his Republican associates met this by teaching the illiterate to recognize the letters "Rep." The Democrats countered by bringing into existence a third party with the name "Repudiation Party" so as to confuse the black voter when he groped around on his ballot for the familiar letters.

The Republicans, instigated by "Marse" Sydney, taught the faithful to recognize names such as "Sydney" and "Mudd." In the last campaign the Democrats met this by nominating a man named Sydney for one office and a man named Mudd for another. For lesser offices they named men who had names similar to those of the Republican candidates.

This year "Marse" Sydney has the Democrats beaten to a standstill in this duel of wits. He waited till the last minute and then made up his county ticket of names that absolutely could not be duplicated and then opened night schools to teach the negroes to recognize them. For months prior to the convention he had men searching the district for men with unusual names.

"It's the first time in history," said a Maryland man to-night, recuperating in Washington from the labors of the campaign, "that a man's qualification for office has been his name. But 'Marse' Sydney has certainly got 'em skinned. His ticket is made up of men with names like Zephaniah U. Updegroff, Paraphernalia X. Porphyry, and Pisistratus Y. Eczema. I won't swear to these names, but they're pretty close to the real thing."

"JACK" DISOWNS GIRL'S LOVE.

McAleenan, Pawnbroker's Son, Only Acquainted with Suicide, Miss Caley.

The "Jack" referred to in the notes and letters of Mary Jeanette Caley, the Aberdeen Hotel suicide of Tuesday afternoon, appears to be John McAleenan, son of Henry McAleenan, who owns several pawnshops in Broadway and Sixth Avenue. McAleenan lives with his parents at 18 East Ninety-fourth Street, is a member of the New York Athletic Club, and is familiarly called "Jack." He issued the following statement yesterday afternoon:

"I met Miss Caley last November. We were introduced by mutual friends. Our relations were simply those of acquaintances. Since last June we have met on but three occasions. I know of no reason—not being intimate enough with the young woman—why she took the step she did."

Coroner Scholer at present does not feel justified in attempting to force McAleenan to answer any questions about the case.

It was said yesterday at the Aberdeen Hotel that four hours before Miss Caley shot herself a telephone message came from "Jack," saying: "Am sorry I can't come." The message was given her when she came in a little later.

WASHINGTON STATUE SQUINTS

Boston Tourist at Capital Discovers Freak—Trouble Is Cured.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The celebrated statue of George Washington on the Capitol esplanade has become cross-eyed. The case of strabismus has caused consternation for several days among the usual Autumn tourists. It was one of these who first directed the attention of the Capitol police to the phenomenon. She was from Boston.

"Can you inform me," she asked Detective Weber, "what authority the sculptor of this statue had for his theory that Washington squinted?"

Weber looked at the statue in astonishment. Washington looked back at him with majestic but cross-eyed benignity.

Investigation showed that a small piece of stone above the eye had been broken off in a storm and lodged between the eye and the upper part of the nose.

CLASSICS ON EAST SIDE.

Nicholas Murray Butler Commends Plan for Shakesperean Performances.

The Educational Alliance is in receipt of a letter from Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, commending the plan for a series of Shakespearean performances on the east side. President Butler writes as follows:

"I am most happy to learn from your letter of the 18th that the Social Settlements of New York City, under the leadership of the Educational Alliance, have united in a project to present a series of Shakespearean performances on the east side, and to this end have secured the services of Mr. Ben Greet and his company of English players.

"I cannot imagine any form of dramatic representation more truly educational than these performances by Mr. Greet's company of the great Shakespearean dramas. I wish for the undertaking all possible success, and should be glad to co-operate to that end by such means as lie in my power."

EQUITABLE RECEIPTS JUMP $2,000,000

Current Expenses In the Last Nine Months Cut $414,000.

MOST OF THE GAIN RECENT

The Expenses for the Third Quarter $809,913 Lower—Receipts in Premiums Heavier.

Figures from President Morton's reports for the third quarter of the current year and for the last nine months were made public at yesterday's meeting of the Equitable Life Assurance Society's Directors. The report shows that in the last nine months the receipts were $55,772,000, an increase of about $2,000,000 over those for the corresponding period last year. Current expenses meanwhile were held down so as to show a gain of about $414,000 to the society.

The current expenses for the third quarter were $2,711,052, a decrease of $809,913 from the figures for 1903. The receipts in premiums in the last nine months pass the figures for 1903 by $66,000.

At the meeting Sir William C. Van Horne resigned as a Director, and later was renominated to succeed himself, together with J. D. Kernan and William C. Redfield, to fill existing vacancies. These nominations will be acted upon at the November meeting.

The Controller submitted the following information respecting the society's real estate loans, covering a period of ten years and eight months prior to Oct. 1, 1905:

Cash loans made Jan. 1, 1895, to Oct. 1, 1905, $117,820,500.

Of this amount five cases were foreclosed at a book cost of $422,047.70, and were sold for $434,014.10, showing a profit of $11,966.40.

Purchase money mortgages on property sold by the society, made from Jan. 1, 1895, to Oct. 1, 1905, amounted to $5,176,725.

Of this amount one case was foreclosed at a book cost of $2,577.44, and sold for $1,250, showing a loss of $1,327.44.

Six cases foreclosed—all disposed of—sold at a profit of $10,638.96 over book cost.

Interest due all paid to date, except one loan.

Taxes and assessments, 1904, all paid except 10 cases out of 1,183. The bond and mortgage principal on Jan. 1, 1895, was $26,161,882.33, and on Oct. 1, 1905, was $85,990,060.00, showing a gain of $59,838,177.67 for the ten years.

COUNT NOT A WIFE-SEEKER.

Denies Report That He Comes to Marry Mrs. Goelet.

Comte Armand de Gontaut Biron, who, it had been said, was coming here to marry Mrs. Ogden Goelet, arrived on the White Star liner Oceanic yesterday. He promptly denied the report in these words:

"I am not engaged to Mrs. Goelet, and the stories published are untrue."

Pressed further, he added:

"No, I don't even expect to become engaged."

Henry Arthur Jones, the playwright, was another passenger on the ship. He said that he had merely come over for the trip. He added that one of his plays would be produced in New York next year. W. P. Clyde, one of the owners of the Clyde Steamship Company, also arrived on the Oceanic.

HE WHO'S HURT AND RUNS

Away May Fool the Doctor Some Other Day.

Policeman John Smith found a middle-aged man screaming at Madison Avenue and Thirtieth Street last evening. Two policemen supported him to the Tenderloin Station, where he said he was Charles Kingston, a bricklayer.

Kingston groaned at every step. At one time he said he had been mortally injured, he thought; at another he declared that rheumatism would kill him yet.

Dr. Burroughs rushed up from the New York Hospital, saw that nothing whatever was the matter with Kingston, and gravely said:

"Well, Mr. Kingston, there's nothing to do but take off this right leg."

"Take it off?" screamed the bricklayer. "I guess not."

He ran out of the station before any one could lay hands upon him.

TOLD OF SHERIDAN'S RIDE.

The Letter Brought $24.50—"New Yorkers of Last Century."

Interesting autograph letters were sold at auction by the Merwin-Clayton Company, in East Twentieth Street, yesterday. Among them was a five-page quarto letter describing Gen. Sheridan's famous ride and defeat of Gen. Early at Winchester. The writer of the letter, Gen. Oliver Edwards, was under Sheridan at Winchester. "His presence alone," he says, "was worth many thousands of men." The letter sold for $24.50.

Other items sold as follows:

A four-page folio, dated 1567, containing a list of petitions and proposals which were submitted each day to Charles IX. of France for his consideration, opposite to each item notes in his handwriting disposing of them and at the end his signature in full, $8.50.

Letter of Horace Greeley to members of the Union League Club, 13 pages, octavo, privately printed, his famous defense of his action in going bail for Jefferson Davis, with letters of Greeley, John Jay, John Bell, Jefferson Davis, W. P. Fessenden, and Gen. Robert E. Lee inserted, $15.

STAG FROM A DUKE HERE.

A Rare Tashkend, the Gift of Bedford, Arrives in New York.

The steamship Minneapolis of the Atlantic Transport Line, which arrived on Monday from London, brought over in her cattle pens a valuable ducal gift for the New York Zoological Park. This gift is a fine young Tashkend stag, presented to the park by the Duke of Bedford.

The Duke, who is President of the London Zoological Society, is also an honorary member of the New York society. He has more than once personally and by letter expressed to Director W. T. Hornaday his interest in the American collection. The Bedford parks at Woburn, forty miles northwest of London, contain the finest collection of hoofed animals in the world, and the Duke has proved a valuable friend to many public gardens in England and on the Continent.

"This Tashkend," said Director Hornaday yesterday, "is a rare and valuable species found to the southeast of the Caspian Sea. With our European red deer, our Maral deer from the Caucasus, our Altai wapiti from Northern Mongolia, and our American wapiti, this Tashkend completes our collection of wapiti."

ENGAGES ILKA PALMAY.

Mr. Conried Will Give Her Comedy Part in "Fruhlingsluft."

Ilka Palmay, a German soubrette of much reputation abroad, has signed a contract with Heinrich Conried to play the comedienne rôle in "Frühlingsluft" when Lina Abarbanell retires from the cast to sing in "Hansel und Gretel" at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Miss Palmay has recently been playing at the Karl Theatre, Vienna. For some reason she left that theatre, and came to this country about two weeks ago.

IRVING'S SON A MANAGER.

Produces a Play in London—Most Cordially Received.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Henry B. Irving, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, joined the ranks of the actor-managers to-night at the Waldorf Theatre. He produced a drama of military life adapted from Franz Beyerlein's well-known German play, "Der Zapfenstreich," and entitled "Lights Out."

Mr. Irving obtained a most cordial reception, which, although it was to some extent a manifestation of public sympathy owing to his recent bereavement, was genuinely won by the fine quality of his acting. The star was well supported by a good all-around company, which included Eva Moore, Charles Fulton, and Henry V. Esmond.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The leading theatrical managers of this city are arranging to give a testimonial performance for the widow of William A. McConnell, manager and theatrical writer, who died a fortnight ago. Daniel Frohman will act as Chairman, while the benefit will take place at the Lew Fields Theatre, tendered by Mr. Fields and Oscar Hammerstein for the occasion.

A full rehearsal of the new scenic equipment built this Summer for the coming season of grand opera was held yesterday afternoon at the Metropolitan Opera House. Among the new sets shown were two interiors to be used in "The Queen of Sheba." These are an Egyptian palace and a temple. In both scenes 400 persons will be on the stage at the same time.

Alice Neilsen's first New York appearance is definitely announced for a special matinee performance to be given at the new Casino on Friday, Nov. 10, when she will be seen as Norina in Donizetti's "Don Pasquale."

It was a day of presentations yesterday at Proctor's 125th Street Theatre. The patrons of the house gave to the principals of the stock company—Jessie Bonstelle, Beatrice Morgan, and William J. Kelley—a silver loving cup, a ring, and a diamond stud and scarf pin respectively. After the performance a reception was held on the stage.

BY-LAWS SET ASIDE TO AID ARMY ORPHAN

Lieut. Clayton's Son Put on the School Ship St. Mary's.

FATHER SLAIN BY FILIPINOS

Board of Education Dismisses a Teacher Who Disobeyed Rules "Just to Devil" Her Principal.

Hidden away in the mass of technical matter that occupied the attention of the Board of Education yesterday afternoon was a story of the brave struggles of four children made orphans by the recent troubles in the Philippines. The story was brought to light by the application of the eldest son for a berth on the schoolship St. Mary's. As he is under age the board had to suspend its by-laws to grant the application.

Gen. Wingate, who was a friend of Lieut. Clayton, the boy's father, presented the case.

"Gentlemen," he said, "several years ago during the native uprisings in the Philippines, Lieut. Walter Clayton was shot. His death left his family practically dependent, the Government pension being inadequate for their needs. The two girls were taken under the wing of the Ladies' Relief Association, and I was appointed guardian of the boys. They are too young to be self-supporting, as yet, but they have struggled along bravely. Walter, who is 15 years old, wishes to join the St. Mary's. He is a year under age, but his case is a worthy one. I trust you will see fit to set aside the by-laws and grant him his appointment."

The board granted the request unanimously. Although Walter has been officially assigned to the St. Mary's, it is doubtful if he will graduate from that ship. Immediately after his appointment a committee of five was appointed to take up the matter of procuring a new vessel. The old schoolship has been in active service for nearly sixty-five years. Although still stanch and seaworthy the ship does not meet the requirements of a modern nautical school. There has been some talk of acquiring the cruiser Hartford to take the place of the St. Mary's. The Hartford has steam, electrical, and other modern appliances. It is now in the Atlantic Training Squadron.

Other matters acted upon by the board yesterday were the dismissal of Miss Mayce E. Earle, a teacher in Public School No 62, in Queens, after trial on charges of insubordination and neglect of duty; the framing of an amendment to a by-law forbidding janitors to hire helpers under 18 years old, and the adoption of resolutions advocating the expenditure of $200,000 for sites for athletic fields.

Miss Earle, the teacher who was dismissed, has been tried three times for "insubordination and neglect of duty." Asked why she continually disobeyed the orders of her Principal, Cyrus Smith, she replied that she just did it "to devil Mr. Smith."

SHE'D HEARD OF DOOLEY.

Old Woman Would Not Risk Going to Theatre at Night.

An old woman went up to the box office of the New Amsterdam Theatre yesterday afternoon, where Lulu Glaser in "Miss Dolly Dollars" is playing, and asked for a seat for a matinée.

"But we don't have a matinée on Wednesday," answered Gilbert Gordon, the Treasurer. "You had better come around Saturday."

"But I can't come then," was the answer.

"Then how about the evening performances. Perhaps you can arrange for that," suggested Mr. Gordon.

"Oh, I wouldn't dare come then," quickly answered the old woman with agitation. "The policeman says that ladies who are out after 11 alone will get arrested, and I don't want to get arrested."

Capt. Dooley's curfew arrests had ceased since Sunday night, when Commissioner McAdoo visited the station and made a speech to the men, but she evidently did not know this.

AVERTING COTTON STRIKE.

Fall River Manufacturers and Employes Pave Way for Compromise.

FALL RIVER, Oct. 25.—At the very moment when a strike of more than 25,000 textile operatives employed in seventy-five mills in this city seemed a certainty the situation was suddenly cleared by the action of the Manufacturers' Association.

A committee representing the manufacturers held a conference late this afternoon with a committee from the Textile Council. The manufacturers urged that the unions take no action on the matter of a strike before next Monday night. This request was made, it is explained, in order that the manufacturers and the operatives might hold further conferences.

Accordingly, at to-night's meetings of the unions four of five organizations—the Weavers', the Spinners', the Carders', and the Loom Fixers' Unions—voted unanimously to postpone strike action.

It is now believed in union circles that there will be no strike.

STOCK TRANSFER TAX ARGUED

The Court Asks Why Attorney General Was Not Represented.

The case brought by Albert J. Walsh to test the constitutionality of the stock transfer tax law was argued yesterday in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. John G. Milburn and ex-Judge John F. Dillon represented Walsh, and Assistant District Attorney Sandford appeared for the people.

At the conclusion of the argument Presiding Justice O'Brien asked:

"In view of the very great importance of this case, can you inform me why the office of the Attorney General was not represented?"

Mr. Milburn replied that he had written to the Attorney General informing him that the case had been put down for Oct. 25.

"I still have the letter which the Attorney General sent to me," said Mr. Milburn. "He merely thanked me for informing him, and said that he had decided not to be represented."

Decision was reserved.

H. J. BROWN, who was the operator for the De Forest wireless telegraph system on board the steamship Haimum, which was equipped for The London Times and THE NEW YORK TIMES in the Japanese-Russian war, was found dead in bed at Barrow, England, on Monday. A short time ago Mr. Brown was sent to England to superintend the erection of the De Forest station for the English syndicate. His widow lives in this city, and his body will be brought here.

Capt. JOHN E. WHITE, who died yesterday in Worcester, Mass., was born in Boston in 1843. He was a member of the Loyal Legion. Early in 1861 Mr. White entered the service as Lieutenant of the Wightman Rifles of Boston, which afterward became a part of the Ninety-ninth New York Volunteers. After the Federal defeat at Great Bethel he was the last officer, with a few men, to leave the field, bringing the wounded into the Federal lines, and was promoted to a Captaincy. At New Berne, N. C., in 1863, when the gunboat Underwriter had been captured by the rebels, Capt. White volunteered to go to Fort Stevenson alone at night. He reached the fort, a mile away, and the shot was fired which sank the gunboat and all on board. In 1866 he came to New York, became a metal broker, and a few years later was made a partner in the Boston metal house of Richards & Co. Since his retirement from that firm he had made his home in New York.

NEWSDEALERS TELL OF TAMMANY GRAFT

Driven from Stands When Politicians Wanted Them.

THE TALE OF A FLASHLIGHT

"Hands Up," Said a Hearst Photographer, and Picture Shows Men Seemingly Cheering Madly.

Grievances against Tammany methods of graft brought 200 newsdealers together last night at Union Square Hall, and for two hours they discussed them. It was a sort of "experience" meeting, those who had been injured most being given the preference.

After President Stratton of the Newsdealers and Stationers' National organization had made a speech, in which he declared Hearst, if elected, would be a second Roosevelt and would right the wrongs now endured by the newsdealers under the McClellan administration, two photographers pushed their way through the crowd. All except newsdealers and reporters had been told to leave before.

The photographers rigged up their paraphernalia. The tray for the flashlight powder held a handful of the stuff. One of the operators had caused the newsdealers to spread out like a fan, though it wasn't possible to spread much.

"Now put up your hands—there, that's right; now keep 'em up. Hey, you, put up your dukes as though you took an interest in the meetin'.

All shot their right or left hands high above their head.

Then the assistant pulled the trigger. "Blame it!" said the photographer. Everybody laughed. Once more the tray was primed. "Click." "——!" muttered the photographer this time. For the third time the powder was spread thick. A man who viewed the proceedings with disgust said:

"Don't hold up your hands—don't let these guys lead you around like a lot of sheep!" But his voice was drowned.

On the third try there was a flash and the picture was taken. The camera was hustled away, the precious plate to appear later labeled "Newsdealers cheering Hearst at their meeting."

Mrs. Filly, who up to a short time ago operated a newsstand at 149th Street and Third Avenue, was invited to give her experience. Her son was sent forward to speak for her. He told in detail how he and his mother had run the stand for a long time; how it had paid $1.75 a working day from 6 A. M. to 12 P. M.

He had been forced to give up the stand couldn't pay the bonus asked by the Tammany powers in the district. He had been forced into the street with a makeshift stand. The police drove him away.

Mr. Proppe told his experiences. He had paid $950 for the good will of a stand in the Thirty-fourth District on 125th Street. A short time ago he was notified that when his license expired it would not be renewed. Having built up a good business he determined to resist if he could. Going to Leader Cowan, he said, Cowan declared "Tom Lloyd wanted the stand," and Lloyd's wish was law; that he (Cowan) could not help it. Lloyd must have the stand.

Proppe said he had to quit, and when he tried to do business with papers under his arm he was assaulted and finally told by the police he must keep off the street. He tried to maintain his position, but was finally driven away.

Others told of their troubles in a similar vein.

A. Hillman-Russin, Secretary of the National Association, spoke of the newsdealer driven from Franklin Street and West Broadway. He declared that a committee went to see Mayor McClellan about it, and the Mayor had said, snapping his fingers:

"Fix up in the district, fix up in the district." As the newsstand man had no money, he said there was no "fixing up in the district."

All speakers urged that an amendment be passed to the law taking from an Alderman the power to issue certificates to the Bureau of Licenses, which certificates, when signed, resulted in the issuing of a license.

Y. M. C. A. SCHOOL GARAGE.

Dave H. Morris Will Deliver Opening Lecture Next Week.

Dave Hennen Morris, President of the Automobile Club of America, will deliver the opening lecture next Wednesday night to the members of the automobile school of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association. Mr. Morris will speak about the growing popularity of the automobile and the necessity for careful and experienced chauffeurs. The Young Men's Christian Association school, as the result of the two sessions held last year, has graduated eighty experienced drivers of cars, and one of these men is now employed by Miss Helen Gould.

"We are constantly receiving requests for good men who understand not only the driving of cars, but how to take care of them and what to do in an emergency," said Harrison S. Colburn, the educational director of the West Side Branch. "In our two sessions last year nearly 300 men were enrolled, but a large majority were owners of machines who did not care to take the chauffeur's examination. This year we have a somewhat larger proportion of men who intend to secure positions. Many of them are employed in garages as mechanics or assistant chauffeurs. A rigid examination in road work and all the mechanical details of an automobile is held at the close of each session and a high percentage is required to obtain a chauffeur's certificate."

So successful was the school last year that late in the Spring a garage was rented on Broadway and Sixty-third Street. This has been more fully equipped this season. Ten cars of different makes are stored there, and the students are instructed in the peculiarities of each machine. The Automobile Club of America, which took an active interest in the establishment of the school last year, still acts in an advisory capacity. Besides Mr. Morris, Winthrop E. Scarritt and Albert R. Shattuck, both ex-Presidents of the club, will lecture to the members later in the season. Jefferson Seligman, one of the Governors of the club, has given two automobiles to the school, both gasoline cars of different makes. Other cars are furnished from time to time by private owners and manufacturers.

Clarence Bowne Brokaw remains as Principal of the school this season. Four sessions will be held, double the number of last year. Each session lasts about three months. The cost is $40, including road instruction, garage work, and lectures. The lectures are held every Wednesday night in the large hall of the West Side Branch, in Fifty-seventh Street, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues. The garage time is arranged to meet the convenience of pupils in morning and evening sessions. The number of cars in the garage permits the dividing of the men into a number of groups which move in rotation from one to another, instruction being confined to one car at each lesson. Half a dozen instructors assist Mr. Brokaw in the technical work.

The practical results of the Young Men's Christian Association school in this city have led the educational departments of many other associations throughout the country to establish automobile departments. Mr. Colburn recently explained the methods adopted here to the managers of the Washington and Syracuse associations, and plans have been made to start schools in both of those places. In Boston, Hartford, Providence, Springfield, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Buffalo, Cleveland, and New Haven schools conducted by the respective Young Men's Christian Associations are now in session, and in nearly every case the applications for membership have been larger than could be cared for.

The experienced chauffeur never finds any difficulty in obtaining a satisfactory position. He will command from $20 to $25 a week at the start, and it is nothing unusual for a chauffeur to receive $200 a month. The demand for good motor car drivers is greater than the supply. The day of the ignorant driver has passed. Owners of machines realize that it is cheaper to hire a capable man at a good salary than one who has but a smattering of automobile technicalities and whose lack of knowledge will probably cost the owner more to keep his car in repair than he saves in the chauffeur's salary.

TRUCK OWNERS CALL IN AID.

National Executive Committee Here to Fight for the Closed Shop.

The situation caused by the strike of the truck drivers for the closed shop in the stables of Thomas Orr was regarded as so serious that the National Team Owners' Association of America was called on to take the matter up yesterday. The National Executive Committee arrived in this city yesterday, accompanied by National President Henry C. Knight, and had a conference over the strike at the association's headquarters, 203 Broadway. It was decided to assist in every way possible all association employers who might be called upon to fight the closed shop.

The New York Team Owners' Association at a special meeting which lasted from Tuesday night into yesterday morning prepared a statement to the public defending the truck owners' stand against a closed shop. The walking delegate, it is stated, had proved an intolerable nuisance. He invaded the stables and caused trouble if a delinquent member of the union was not made to pay his dues or discharged.

The association, the statement declared, was willing to confer with any individual or organization as to rules fair to both sides, but would not discriminate between union and non-union men.

No new strikes were ordered yesterday, but there were many clashes between the new men and the strikers or their sympathizers. Charles Hunter, a walking delegate, was arrested and held by Magistrate Mayo on the charges of felonious assault and carrying concealed weapons. Frank Shay, driver of a truck leased to Orr, was the complainant.

ENTICED HERE, HEYMAN SAYS.

Asks That Service in Divorce Action Be Set Aside.

Counsel for Gerson R. Heyman applied to Justice Stover in the Supreme Court yesterday to set aside the service of a summons and complaint in a divorce suit brought by Heyman's wife, Ethel Klopfer Heyman. Decision was reserved.

Heyman, whose father is a Philadelphia tobacco merchant, alleges that he was enticed from Philadelphia into the jurisdiction of the court on Oct. 4 on a pretext that his wife would meet him and adjust their differences. He also declares that the service on him was improper. After waiting in a downtown office for some time, he declares, J. Hilborn, who had been a guest at the Heymans' wedding reception at Delmonico's on Dec. 30 last, pushed the summons to him. It fell to the floor, he declares, and he refused to pick it up.

Mrs. Heyman is the daughter of Benno Klopfer of the Stock Exchange. She is living with him at 162 West Seventy-second Street.

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only. For sale by all reliable druggists.

SENSATIONAL FINISHES IN MORRIS PARK CHASES

Lipton, Capt. Hayes, and Kumshaw Heads Apart.

JUSTICE TURNS SOMERSAULT

Horse Falls at Stone Wall, but Neither He Nor Jockey Is Seriously Injured.

The second day of the steeplechase meeting at Morris Park, held by the United Hunts Racing Association, provided an afternoon's sport that was full of incident, ranging all the way from many spectacular falls at the various stiff jumps to a sensational heads-apart finish for three horses in the two-mile flat race, with which the card was concluded. The attendance was not up to that which marked the opening of the meeting last Saturday, but this caused no discouragement to the promoters of the meeting, since yesterday was, in point of attractions, the off day of the three, while the unfavorable weather doubtless kept many persons from the track.

The clubhouse was, as on Saturday, comfortably peopled with representatives of the hunting and horsey sets, who displayed the well-informed interest in the racing that was to have been expected of them. Several coaches were aligned in the parking inclosure, and the automobile exhibit was again of considerable extent. The meeting, which its promoters admit to be experimental, ends on Saturday, when a most attractive programme will be offered. With good weather, there should be such an attendance as will induce the men behind the meeting to repeat it another year.

Yesterday's fields were neither so large nor so full of quality as those of Saturday but there were several spirited contests for all that, and some tumbles that looked like very nasty ones, but which luckily turned out not to be serious. The worst fall of the day came to the professional rider, E. Kelly, whose mount in the Upland Steeplechase, Justice, came a terrific cropper at the wicked stone wall plump in front of the grand stand. The horse turned a complete somersault, and Kelly lay where he fell, but he soon revived, and, though he had to be carried off in an ambulance, the surgeons could find no injuries worse than bad bruises.

Without a doubt the most spectacular affair of the day was the finish between Lipton, Capt. Hayes, and Kumshaw in the last race of the afternoon. This was a journey of about two miles on the flat, for hunters, and the three horses named were the only starters. All three jockeys were gentlemen riders, which fact enabled the backers of their mounts to put up the more philosophically with their shortcomings. Lipton was the odds-on favorite, and he went out to make the pace at the start, Kumshaw and Capt. Hayes being content to wait for him to come back. This he did after a mile, and at the top of the stretch Capt. Hayes collared him and the two fought it out hammer and tongs. Meantime Kumshaw had been restrained with what his backers thought an unskillful hand, and when Mr. Higgins tried to let him down he couldn't keep him straight. The gelding swerved in behind the other two time after time. His rider got him out finally in time almost to catch the other two and the three finished heads apart, like Blue Wing, Dry Monopole, and Hidalgo in the famous lithograph of the finish in the first Brooklyn Handicap.

Four gentleman riders in the first race, a galloway scurry of five furlongs, were fined $10 each by the starter for their leisurely manner of going to the post. The victims of discipline were Messrs. Pinkerton, Carle, Cooley, and Lannon. The race itself was a spirited affair, with Step Away coming at the end with a strong burst of speed to beat Tramotor and Orton Dobble, who had made the pace. Tramotor was found on measurement to exceed the galloway height limit of 15 hands and was disqualified. It seems rather rough on his backers that he should have been allowed to start.

The chief stake of the day was nominally the Middlesex Cup, but scratches reduced the field to four. Rosebank refused at the first jump, putting one of the two amateur riders out of the running, and Willie Price and Owaissa went on and had the race to themselves. It was a pretty duel for two miles, when the Newcastle gelding came away to win by 6 lengths.

For the Upland Steeplechase a poor lot of hunters answered the bugle. Cariboo behaved like one possessed of the devil, and gave a fine exhibition of buck jumping. Hewett, his jockey, performed feats of rough riding that one rarely sees at the Wild West Show, but the race was finally started without him. Cariboo is said to be a splendid jumper, but if his temper cannot be controlled, he should never be sent to the post again. The race was an easy thing for Balford, which was backed down from 4 to 2½. Bahsquoda and Justice fell, while Crusader ran out, but finally finished third. Four favorites were successful, so that the talent had a little the better of the speculation.

Among the visitors to the clubhouse was Lieut. Martin, of the Fifteenth Cavalry, U. S. A., Fort Ethan Allen. Lieut. Martin brings his jumper Dominion and will ride him in the Military Steeplechase on Saturday, when riders from Squadron A, Squadron C, the First Philadelphia Troop, and other crack military organizations will compete.

NO COMPROMISE ON JOYCE.

A. A. U. Officials Do Not Wish Injunction Vacated.

There have recently been repeated rumors to the effect that the Irish American Athletic Club, which supported John Joyce in his application for an injunction to restrain the authorities of the Amateur Athletic Union for disqualifying him from competing in the annual championships at Travers Island last month, would apply for the vacation of the order of the court and permit the authorities to deal with the case according to their best judgment. Inquiry yesterday indicated a disposition on the part of the organization to take such a step, but no inclination on the part of the union to accept the proposition. Counsel for the A. A. U. officials wants the case brought to trial, when he is confident the restraining order will be dismissed and the union be free to deal with both club and individual according to the provisions of its by-laws.

In entering for the championship Joyce subscribed to the clause which stated that he agreed to abide by the action of the A. A. U. upon his entry, and in joining the union his club agreed to be bound by its laws and accept its rulings. It is not at all impossible that club and individual may be punished for their failure to adhere to their agreements, suspension of both being by no means an impossibility.

NATIONAL MOTOR BOAT CLUB.

Seventy Members Join New Organization—Planning for Busy Season.

Over seventy members of the proposed National Motor Boat Club of America were enrolled last night at the preliminary meeting at the Hotel Manhattan. Representatives from many metropolitan yacht clubs, the Automobile Club of America, the American Power Boat Association, and other clubs were present, and there was a unanimity in favor of a single National motor body organization which would both control and guide the interests of the sport in this country.

Charles P. Tower of the Larchmont Yacht Club was chosen temporary Chairman, and Hugh S. Gambel, Secretary of the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers, acted as Secretary. It was decided unanimously to form the club, and the following committee was appointed to draw up by-laws and nominate a list of officers: Charles Francis, H. H. Behse, John D. Roach, George J. Vestner, and Dr. Seymour Oppenheimer.

The committee will report at the next meeting, which will be held within two weeks, when the officials will be elected and an active campaign will be mapped out for racing and cruising next season. It is possible that perhaps one or two cruises of several hundred miles will be planned. The club will also open negotiations with the leading motor boat organizations abroad, with the view of being recognized as the National motor boat club in America, through which entries will be made for all international motor boat contests. Plans have already been made for the building of a number of fast cruising and racing boats, which will be ready early in the year, and it is probable that a series of short as well as long distance races will be held at intervals during the season.

JAECKEL HOLDS STEVENS CUP.

Successfully Defends Wrestling Trophy Against Challenger Jurgensen.

Egbert A. Jurgensen, challenger for the Stevens Cup, held by Richard Jaeckel of the New York Athletic Club, for 135-pound wrestlers, failed to wrest the title from the holder last night at the clubhouse on Fifty-ninth Street in the best two of three falls bout to a finish. Jaeckel won the first two falls and the cup. The first was stubbornly contested and required 61 minutes and 3-5 of a second for decision. The second lasted just 6 minutes.

The two men were of exactly the same weight, though Jurgensen looked much the heavier. His stocky build and sturdy muscles seemed to augur much greater strength than the lithe, slender frame of Jaeckel. And he appeared in the contest to possess the greater power, though Jaeckel's skill was markedly superior and his agile figure appeared to possess the greater endurance.

Jurgensen was on the mat the greater portion of the time, rarely having the ascendant position, and four times before the fall was finally scored he seemed in jeopardy. On the other hand he came once within a hair of scoring on Jaeckel, and twice had holds that promised to land him at least a fall.

A half Nelson did the trick finally in the first bout, and a neck and elbow in the second. Though the men had 21 minutes' intermission between the bouts, the rest appeared to do Jurgensen little good, while the title holder was apparently as fresh as when he started.

In the intermission Hugh Leonard wrestled with Fred Narganes, the 145-pound Metropolitan champion, a six-minute exhibition go without a fall, and with three minutes' intermission threw C. Worms, the 225-pound wrestler, in 4 minutes and 15 seconds. Col. J. R. Branch refereed the bouts.

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

The perversion of the selling race for betting purposes had a singular demonstration at the Jamaica race course yesterday, when after the first event had been decided seven claims, of which five were "friendly" claims, were put in for two horses. The winner was Platoon, of legitimate selling class, with the horse Grapple, for which J. A. Drake is said to have paid $6,000, second, and Dreamer, a horse that could not be bought at private sale for anything but a big price, third. Grapple was entered to sell for $800 and Dreamer for $1,600, both having been put in for small prices at light weights, that their owners might bet on them. Five claims for Grapple were made, and the claimants drew lots, Archie Zimmer drawing the horse, and as he acted in Mr. Drake's interest, promptly returning him. Of two claims for Dreamer Mr. Drake's was the successful one, and Dreamer went back to his old barn, Mr. Drake having made the claim in the interest of H. B. Duryea, Dreamer's owner.

The victory of Watergrass in the race for the Packer Stakes at Jamaica yesterday made the tally of races won by horses trained by A. J. Joyner just sixty-two, thus equaling Trainer Joyner's record for races won last season. The trainer whooped delightedly when Watergrass got home first, but promptly declared that having tied his old mark he meant to go on and establish a new figure in the three weeks left of racing in New York. The total sum in money won by Trainer Joyner's stable for two owners, Sydney Paget and August Belmont, is only a little short of $190,000.

The newcomers among the jockeys kept up the winning streak that has been theirs through the Fall at the Jamaica track yesterday, the apprentice Wiley and the new star rider Knapp riding two winners each and leaving two races for the other boys, while Sewell, another apprentice, rode another winner. O'Neil was the only one of the older riders to have a winning mount, and it was his first winner in about two weeks.

The Stewards of the Jamaica meeting, who have been called on frequently in the nine days of the meeting to reprimand jockeys, called up Shaw after his ride on Dreamer, when that horse was beaten in the first race, and questioned him closely as to how he came to wait with Dreamer in a race such as the horse ran in, a six-furlong sprint. Shaw's riding was freely criticised by the spectators, but the Stewards made no announcement of action taken in the matter.

"Jimmy" O'Brien, the English steeplechase rider who through the season just closing was employed by J. E. Widener, departed yesterday for a visit to England, where he will spend the Winter. Before leaving, O'Brien completed a contract under which he is to return to New York next Spring under engagement to J. High Brown, who will race a stable of English steeplechase horses in the name of the Brownleigh Park Stable.

Jockey "Jack" Martin has signed a renewal of his contract to Capt. S. S. Brown, who retained him through 1905, and under the agreement will ride the Brown horses next season. The terms of the engagement are similar to those of the contract which practically expired when the Brown horses were shipped to Kentucky to go into Winter quarters, and Martin will receive a retaining fee of about $10,000 a year.

HANDICAP WENT TO BAD NEWS

Heavily Backed Favorites Beaten in Three Races at the Jamaica Track—Lord Badge Lands Long Odds.

Results that restored the Jamaica track's Fall average of three winning favorites a day made the most satisfactory part of the racing at the Metropolitan Jockey Club's course yesterday. It was not all plain sailing for the backers, however, for in three races that were regarded as "sure things" the favorites were beaten, and the ill-fortune of Grapple and D'Arkle in these events served to destroy the confidence of the betting crowd in the third "sure thing," Sydney Paget's fast filly Watergrass, which was the single short-price favorite to get to the winning post first.

Watergrass, with Wiley up, was always a warm choice for the Packer, the stake feature, and started at odds on, with Caprice second choice. When the barrier rose the form followers, who had bet on Grapple and D'Arkle and had backed Watergrass to recover losses, groaned in chorus, for Watergrass was the last horse to leave the post, and broke so badly that she was all but left, while Oriflamme, first away, went on in front attended by Miss Point. Watergrass went on after the field so quickly, however, that in the first half furlong she had made up her lost ground and was on the heels of the leaders, racing in third place to the first quarter pole, and on the turn out of the backstretch going on to the front. From the moment that she took command Wiley kept her going, and Watergrass won rather cleverly by a length from Caprice, which was second through the last quarter of a mile, and beat Bribery, the next best backed horse, a length for the place.

In spite of his earlier failures Sir Tristan was backed again in the race for maiden two-year-olds, and in a field of fifteen often beaten maidens started a mild favorite at 5 to 2, with O'Neil riding him. Sir Tristan this time ran up to the expectations of his stable, for breaking third to Billy Banastar, the favorite shot out to the front in the first strides, and with Blue Mamie hanging at his shoulders went on in the lead. Blue Mamie raced with Sir Tristan to the first quarter pole, where the favorite shook her off, and galloping on alone for the remainder of the distance, won easily, while Blue Mamie quit in the last furlong and dropped far back in the crowd, Hallowmas then getting second place.

Bad News, with the top weight up in the mile and a sixteenth handicap, was the third winning favorite of the day, he making all the running and winning easily in the closing event, with Zeala second.

The longest chance winner of the day turned up in the veteran campaigner Lord Badge, at 8 to 1, in the selling mile and a sixteenth, fifth on the card. Rose of Dawn was the favorite, but the task of holding the lead, against the challenges of King Rose and Baron Esher, which went out after the filly at the lifting of the barrier, and tried every jump of the first seven furlongs to take the lead from her, proved too much for Rose of Dawn, as it did for the challengers, for all three stopped after King Rose showed in front for a few strides on the last turn, Lord Badge then going on to the front from sixth place and winning easily by three lengths from Athlone, second. Summary:

ATHLETES WANT PROTECTION.

Local Club Members Organize to Correct Abuses at Athletic Meets.

A meeting of local athletes was held last night at the St. Bartholomew's Club, which may have a far-reaching effect on future athletic meetings in this city, the purpose being to correct certain abuses which have crept into amateur athletics. The meeting was held by athletes as individuals and not representing clubs or organizations, and had for its object the betterment of athletes, assisting the Amateur Athletic Union, where committees fail in their duties, compel athletic organizations and others holding meetings to live up to their promises, and request the Registration Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union to notify athletes a reasonable time in advance of the expiration of registration cards.

It was one of the most representative gatherings ever held in this city. Among the prominent athletes present were: H. L. Hillman, James S. Mitchel, Lawson Robertson, Harvey Cohn, J. P. Sullivan, P. J. Walsh, H. Valentine, J. H. Teevan, P. J. Callahan, Myer Prinstein, J. Gerity, S. Northridge, P. Walters, O. Ruberle, Macey Block, J. M. Devere, and F. Trube. The organizations represented were: The New York Athletic Club, Irish-American Athletic Club, New West Side Athletic Club, Mohawk Athletic Club, Pastime Athletic Club, Acorn Athletic Club, St. Bartholomew's Athletic Club, and National Athletic Club.

A temporary organization was formed with H. L. Hillman, New York Athletic Club, President, and Lawson Robertson, Irish-American Athletic Club, Secretary. In explaining the object of the meeting the temporary President said the condition of the athletes of the Metropolitan District of the Amateur Athletic Union made it necessary for the organization of a protective body to safeguard their interests. He wished it understood that the contemplated action would in no way be antagonistic to the Amateur Athletic Union, but would aid that body in correcting abuses at athletic meetings. He pointed to the fact that at a recent athletic meet the first medals were advertised at solid gold, whereas the medals were only gold filled, and stamped so by the makers. This was only one of a number of instances, and it would be the object of the organization to protect athletes from this imposition in the future. Another important question to be discussed was the necessity of the Registration Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union to advise all athletes of the expiration of their registration cards in sufficient time to enable them to renew them before the athletes were liable to disqualification on the grounds of expiration of registration. He also suggested that the handicapping have careful consideration so as to insure fair and equitable handicaps for all athletes.

The President's remarks were indorsed by those present, and an open discussion followed. Committees were appointed to select a name for the organization and draw up a set of by-laws and report at the next meeting, which will be held Wednesday, Nov. 15, when a permanent organization will be effected and action taken on the matters brought before the meeting last night.

PILGRIMS LEAVE FOR HOME.

English Association Football Players Sail After Successful Tour.

Sir Charles Kirkpatrick and his band of English Association football players sailed for their homes yesterday by the White Star liner Teutonic, after two months' missionary work in introducing "socker" to the American public as it should be played. During the trip, which began in Canada Sept. 2, the team played matches at Montreal, Quebec, Toronto, Hamilton, Berlin, Rosedale, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Boston, Fall River, and New York. In all they played 23 games, winning 21 and losing 2. The loss of the first game in Canada was due to inefficiency of the referee, which gives America the only real victory over the Britishers, Chicago winning a close game by the score of 4 to 3.

The mission of the visitors was to introduce association football to the American public, more particularly the colleges, with the hope of supplanting the present style of football as played by the big teams.

So well satisfied are the promoters of the project and the players, though the trip was not a financial success, that plans are again under way for a return visit next year. All the players are due to join their clubs in England by the 1st of November, on which date the championship contests begin. Capt. F. H. Milnes has agreed to captain another team, which will visit the United States next year, when a more extensive tour will be undertaken.

There is much regret over the failure of President Roosevelt to witness a game. Capt. Milnes and Vivian Woodward had made the necessary arrangements to wait until the President's return to Washington to explain to him fully the principles of the game, but Capt. Milnes received a cablegram on Tuesday announcing the serious illness of his father, and necessitating his returning with the team yesterday. He expects to take his team to Washington next year, and play a match before the President and his Cabinet.

A number of enthusiasts were on hand to bid Sir Charles and Lady Kirkpatrick and their fellow-voyagers good-bye. Charles H. Murray, the real promoter of the tour and business associate of Sir Alfred Harmsworth, will remain in this country a couple of months longer to complete some business deals. Before bidding his many friends good-bye, Sir Charles Kirkpatrick said:

"Our trip has been a most delightful one, and every member of the team has enjoyed himself. Our mission was to introduce association football in America, and we all feel we have, at least in a measure, accomplished our object. We are all very much surprised at the progress of the game in this country, and it would not take long to get a number of really first-class teams together. The standard of play has been far superior to that we were led to expect. The improvement is specially noticeable in the forward line play. Half backs on this side of the water have not yet mastered the game, but by the time the next eleven comes over the teams will have improved to such an extent that it will be no easy matter to defeat them. We have learned a lot about college football during the trip, and I predict a big future for association football. It is bound to come, the same as it did in England, and when it does we will be ready for international contests."

VANDERBILT'S PAIR WON.

Defeated Moore and Jordan Entries at Chicago Horse Show.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 25.—The Vanderbilt, Moore, and Jordan stables met in competition twice this afternoon and the Moore horses and those of Vanderbilt got a blue ribbon apiece. In the class for pairs shown before a T cart Mr Vanderbilt came out ahead with Amazement and Astonishment. Mr. Moore was represented by Sidney C. and Harold H., while Mr. Jordan had Electric Light and Flash Light. In the matter of height Mr. Vanderbilt had a shade the best in matching. The Jordan horses got second and the Moore horses third.

Mr. Vanderbilt appeared in the saddle in the polo pony contest. He is a heavyweight, however, and did not finish first or second. His pony, Miss Flip, is a pretty mare, but he was out-ridden by the Chicagoans, Love and Keith. In the Vernon Booth prize he seemed to have a better show, but even his imported mare Peggy was not placed by the judges. Mr. McLaughlin, on Golden Sceptre, Mr. Keith on Pimlico, and Mr. Love on Comanche finished in the order named.

DRAPER RULED OUT BY PENN'S FACULTY

Crack Tackle Declared Ineligible to Play on Quaker Eleven.

HARD BLOW TO RED AND BLUE

Coaches Drive Teams to Perfect New Plays Before Saturday—Columbia Men More Hopeful.

Another knockout blow was struck at the University of Pennsylvania football team's prospects by the disqualification yesterday of Draper, the crack tackle, who has played so prominent a part in the games thus far contested on Franklin Field this season. Following the refusal of the Faculty to admit Reynolds as a post-graduate and the successive injuries to Weede, Sinkler, and Ziegler, three of the veterans of last year's team, putting them out of the game for the season, the action is well-nigh fatal to the Pennsylvania team's chances. There was no one to take Ziegler's place when he was stricken down, and Draper was taken from tackle and placed there, while Zilligan went to tackle. Now another change must be made. On the eve of a hard game like that with the Carlisle Indians on Saturday, it is not possible that the Quakers can avert a defeat.

Draper is one of the two players questioned by Harvard recently in the Crimson publication. The other man whose status was questioned played last year. The contention was raised that Lamson had played two years at Colorado College and two years at Lafayette before entering Pennsylvania, and was therefore ineligible under the four years' participation rule. The whole matter in his case was threshed out last year, when the question was previously raised. It was then found on investigation that the Colorado College was a preparatory school, a college in name only, and ranked neither scholastically nor athletically as a collegiate institution. The Faculty then decided that Lamson was a schoolboy when he entered Lafayette, and was eligible for last and this year at Pennsylvania.

The contention regarding Draper was that while he had entered Pennsylvania from the Springfield Training School, where he had played three years, he had four years ago played one year at Swarthmore College, and was therefore ineligible to play at Pennsylvania until he had completed the calendar year's work. When these facts were brought to the attention of the Penn Faculty, they took the same view and promptly ruled him out.

The Columbia football squad has been weakened by the loss of another of the heavy line men. Echeverria, the two-hundred-pound guard, is out of the game for some time, owing to an attack of tonsilitis. He played the regular guard position last year, but was on the substitute list this season. His loss will be felt severely, as he was one of the best of the second-string men. It is another piece of the hard luck that has persistently followed the Columbia eleven all through the season.

The feeling is strong that the Blue and White will be able to at least hold Princeton to a low score, and many are to be found at the Morningside university who predict a victory for the Columbia eleven. The opinion that Columbia will win is held by many of the players. The statement of one of the coaches yesterday shows how the matter is considered at the football house. He said: "There is only one man that I ever saw who could not be stopped. That is 'Jim' Hogan of Yale, and alone he was good for gains, but I think that Cooney can be stopped, and it is up to us to prove that on Saturday." Cooney is undoubtedly the man whom the Blue and White fears most, and to stop his rushes the team has been specially trained in defensive play. The secondary defense, which was weak in the Amherst game, has been bolstered up quite considerably.

Looking back to the last time that Columbia and Princeton played, in 1902, the great confidence of the men does not augur well for success. In that year Columbia was about as confident as at the present time, and the Tigers took the Morningside collegians into camp by a score of 22 to 0. Then, however, Columbia played a good game and held Princeton to but one touch-down in the first half, which was directly due to a poor punt by Smith, who is now coaching the Blue and White.

It begins to appear certain that Collins will get into the game at quarter. He has been punting unusually well of late, most of his kicks averaging about forty-five yards.

It now develops that graduates have been assisting Columbia to a great extent during the secret practice at American League Park. Side line privileges have been extended to former football stars, and they have carefully watched the men who played in their old positions, and after the contest have consulted with the regular coaches, pointing out faults. This system, it is understood, has resulted in more than a few improvements.

Despite the rumor of many changes in the back field, it is likely that Columbia will line up against the Tigers with about the same men as she did against Amherst.

The rain yesterday seemed to be the least of the worries at Princeton, and the team members assumed their places with eagerness, playing the entire practice game with alacrity. Before the work had been completed every man on the squad was tried in the line-up with the exception of the regular 'Varsity back field and Capt. Cooney, who took a complete rest.

During the earlier part of the practice the scrub received the ball on the ten-yard line and was told to push it over even if it was the last bit of work they did. The coaches assembled around the 'Varsity to look for weak points in the defense, while the second-raters pounded away. After seven downs the scrub carried the ball across the line, but when they tried it again it took ten.

The Yale eleven was drilled at length again yesterday on defense play, the coaches being not overconfident of the result on Saturday of the heavy line plunges of West Point. The weak spot in the Yale line in the Penn State game was Erwin at left guard, and it was through him that Penn State's gains were made. This week, Hockenberger and Andrews have both been put in Erwin's place, but with no great improvement in the defense and the position. Flanders was drawn out of his position also in the last game, and this week the coaches have been experimenting with Phil Smith, who, though ill all last Summer, weighs 225 pounds and is in fair condition. Yesterday attempts to bolster up the line were continued, Cates playing left end in the secret drill, Forbes left tackle, Hockenberger left guard, Smith centre, Tripp right guard, and Turner right tackle. There was a long and hard secret drill, with the work about evenly divided between offense and defense. No score was announced.

Because a hard game is not expected on Saturday with Haverford, Coach Warner yesterday gave the Cornell 'Varsity the hardest practice scrimmage of the season. The line-up was as follows:

The regulars who were absent from this line-up were Cook at left tackle, Halliday at fullback, and either Martin or Gibson at right halfback. Cook is still suffering with a bad knee. A minor operation was performed upon it yesterday. Halliday was kept out of the scrimmage for fear of possible injury. Dragshinoff, who was in at right halfback, is a coming man on the squad, although he held his place during the day because Martin is slightly injured and Gibson was not out. The 'Varsity faced first the sophomore and then the freshman eleven. They scored three touchdowns in all and kept from being scored on.

West Point had a hard practice yesterday, it being the first real practice of the week. All of the regular team were able to get into the line-up, and they made things lively only for a few minutes. However, the first team was unable to defeat the second, the score of the game being 5 to 5. Weeks scored for the first team and Ellis for the second. Much to the surprise of everybody, Garry was able to get into the line-up. Tuesday he was in the hospital, but yesterday he was out and able to play.

Another day of rain helped the Carlisle Indian football team wonderfully in mastering a slippery pigskin. Coaches Woodruff, Kinney, Hudson, and Pierce, with all attention centred upon the coming Indian-Pennsylvania game on Saturday, worked the men unusually hard yesterday. Hudson had every man who knew anything about kicking at punting and place kicking for at least half an hour. Charles and Sheldon did effective work along this line. The coaches were surprised at the activity of the redskins in the mud and felt gratified that the ball was passed with a reasonable degree of certainty. Dubois showed fine form through the whole afternoon. Fremont, the plucky end, may substitute in Saturday's game.

Change in Lakewood Golf Dates.

A change of dates was announced yesterday by William A. Hamilton, Secretary of the Country Club of Lakewood, for the annual Fall golf tournament. Owing to the fact that the dates, as originally announced, conflict with those selected by the Atlantic City Country Club, the Lakewood club has postponed its event one week, and the playing days will be Nov. 23, 24, and 25 instead of Nov. 16, 17, and 18.

The Atlantic City tournament always draws a good local entry, and as both of the contests are popular with metropolitan and Philadelphia golfers it is naturally to the interest of each club to have no rival attraction within its immediate neighborhood. The usual medal-play qualifying round will open the Lakewood tournament, and several cups will be offered for as many sets of sixteen.

"Young Erne"-"Young Corbett" Fight.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—"Young Erne" of this city had a trifle the better of "Young Corbett" to-night in their six-round fight at the Washington Sporting Club. His advantage was so slight that some of the spectators were inclined to call it a draw. It was a fast fight throughout. Corbett was the aggressor, but was not quite fast enough, as the local man usually landed first. In the opening round Corbett sent Erne to the floor, and after that the Philadelphian fought very cautiously. Erne landed the greater number of blows. He frequently jabbed Corbett, and then went into a clinch before the latter could retaliate. A large crowd saw the bout.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Irregular—Call Money Rates, 3@4¼ Per Cent.

Marked Advances Early, Breaking Near Close—Exchange Rises Sharply.

An irregular advance in prices marked four hours of yesterday's trading on the Stock Exchange, while the fifth hour developed a break which canceled the earlier gains in many directions and left the general list a trifle below the closing level on Tuesday night. In the upward movement of the morning there were such contrasts as gains of 6 points in Delaware and Hudson, 2 points in Reading, and 4 points in Jersey Central, and losses of 2 points in Metropolitan and 1 point or more in Brooklyn Rapid Transit and the Rock Island issues. Advances of a full point were made by many active shares, including Union Pacific, New York Central, Louisville and Nashville, and Pennsylvania, but in the later reaction these gains were lost. The persistent weakness of the Rock Island shares and the slump in the traction issues forced themselves upon the attention of the professional interests after the upward movement had been long under way, and it was largely due to the course of these two groups of stocks that the market finally yielded. No explanations beyond the general recognition of the poor showing of the road in its recent report attended the further fall in Rock Island shares, while the breaks in the traction issues were ascribed to the possibilities of municipal ownership in certain political contingencies. Little weight was given to this belated explanation. The sharp decline in the preferred stock of the American Hide and Leather Company was due to a belief that the management of the company has determined to conserve its resources, and to that end will to-day take no action on the dividend hitherto paid on the stock.

Money ruled a shade easier yesterday, the bulk of the day's loans being made on a 4 per cent. basis, but in London there was a rise in rates in money needed to carry stocks over the fortnightly settlement now under way, which resembled a "squeeze." The rates on American stocks were exceptionally stiff, touching 6½ per cent., and a rather unwieldy speculation for the rise in these securities was disclosed. Rates in Berlin advanced ¼ per cent. Demand sterling again rose sharply, touching 4.87 at one time, the advance following closely the easier money rates here and the firmness abroad. Announcement was made of an increase of 1 per cent., to 4 per cent. per annum, in the Norfolk and Western common stock dividend. This action had been generally expected owing to the favorable progress of the road. It was learned after the close of the market that the Trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance Company had appointed a committee of three of their number to investigate matters brought to light in the pending investigation. The character of the committee and the certainty that entire independence will mark their deliberations and conclusions will make this announcement of exceptional and widespread importance.

IRON TRADE CONDITIONS.

Discussing iron trade conditions, The Iron Age says in its issue of to-day:

Bookings of finished iron and steel continue on an enormous scale, and thus far this month are nearly up to the record-breaking rate of September. The pressure in many quarters is enormous, and the plants are provided with work for long periods. There is a most intense activity in all directions.

In the Eastern steel trade there has been another outburst of buying of basic pig iron for delivery during the Winter, and fully 75,000 tons have been taken at advancing prices, with negotiations pending for at least half as much more.

A scarcity of pig iron for steel making is developing in the Chicago district, and it is likely that iron may be shipped from lower lake ports to that district by water before navigation closes.

The United States Steel Corporation has secured options at $16 and $16.50 on practically all the Bessemer pig available in the Mahoning and Shenango Valleys to the end of the year, the only exception being one lot of 10,000 tons held by a merchant. These purchases of iron are necessary. In spite of the fact that the Steel Corporation is operating all its blast furnaces except three, of which two are out for repairs.

In the steel trade a number of fair orders have been booked, and some additional large tonnage is looming up. Thus one system which has already bought 140,000 tons is again in the market for 20,000 tons more.

Inability to make prompt deliveries of structural material continues to be the only serious phase of the situation in that branch. A large tonnage for future requirements is being booked. With the large orders for cars in hand and in sight, the plate mills have an exceedingly busy time before them.

The amount of business done in bars has been large, and sellers are holding back. Among the orders for merchant pipe just placed is one for a thirty-three mile line in Louisiana.

The cast iron pipe shops are very busy, with some large work coming up. Included in the latter is a good order for New York City. The shops cannot yet think of working for stock, which they usually begin to do at this time of the year.

There has been a very heavy movement in tin plate, and there are included in recent sales nearly 7,500 tons of tin plate for export.

Canadian buyers are very urgent for steel and finished material, the volume of business there being extraordinary, but our mills are not in a position to take much of it.

The reports from foreign markets are excellent, the bookings of shipbuilding material in England in particular having been very large.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25.—The Iron Trade Review says:

Interest again centres in raw materials, and conservative business men are sounding a note of warning that there is real peril in the present tendency to advance prices. The strong influence working against a runaway market, however, has been shown recently in the decision not to advance the price of plates and other finished products. This week two of the largest ore concerns in Cleveland, which are identified with the manufacture of iron, have stated in a very positive way that they are opposed to advancing the price of ore for 1906 more than 25 cents a ton.

They point to the disastrous results which followed the heavy advance of ore prices in 1900, after a period of prosperity in 1899, and say that sellers will not be wise if they do anything which will bring about a repetition of the experiences of five years ago. As there is no longer an association for the control of ore prices, it seems practically certain that the conservative Cleveland interests will establish the market for next year.

The coke market is feverish, and buyers are objecting strongly to what they declare unreasonable prices. There is a marked renewal of activity in coking operations. Some important iron and steel interests, which have their own coal supplies, are preparing to add largely to their coke-making capacity. One company will build about 400 ovens, and the Toledo Furnace Company, which has decided to erect a second stack at its plant, will also build a by-product coke plant.

The pig-iron market is rather quiet as far as actual transactions are concerned, but it is fully as firm and prices are tending upward.

The Review declares its belief that under new management the Republic Iron and Steel Company will enjoy greater prosperity and be a larger factor than ever before. It says that while Mr. Gates has often been active in speculative affairs, those who know him best say no man understands a genuine business proposition more thoroughly than he or is more sane or conservative in the management of great properties.

Mr. Gates has a controlling interest, the Review asserts, and associated with him are a number of men, some of whom are on the new Executive Committee and some not publicly known as actively interested in the company, who have the very highest reputations in the business world, their names being synonymous with integrity and sound conservatism.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Rates for money and discounts were firm in the market to-day. The Stock Exchange requirements were fairly heavy.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was quiet and mostly uninteresting. Contangos were stiff owing to the dear money. Consols were a shade off. Home rails were in fair demand, helped by the latest traffic returns.

Americans were irregular and quiet. The movements were slight on either side of parity and mostly fractionally lower on profit taking. The local operations were merely an evening up of accounts. Prices dropped later on New York selling and closed dull with a few exceptions, notably Reading.

Grand Trunk was lower on the traffic returns. Mexican rails benefited by the traffic increase.

Russian and Japanese securities were easier on realizations.

Japanese Imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 102.

Bar silver steady at 28⅞d per ounce.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 27.95; Lisbon, 5.50.

The amount of bullion taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day was £77,000.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A trader depending upon his feeling of the market for speculative guidance would have been hopelessly at sea in yesterday's session. Price movements not only were erratic but contradictory, some stocks breaking sharply as others advanced, some showing weakness when the general market was strong and strength when the general list was weak, or vice versa, the whole market vacillating in a perfectly bewildering manner. It was withal a very active day, transactions considerably exceeding a million shares. At the close speculative sentiment, as may be supposed, was very much confused.

The feature of absorbing interest in the first hour was Reading common, which advanced on very heavy trading to the high record price of 127¾. The highest previous quotation for the stock was 125¾, touched in August, when Wall Street was afraid that Reading had been cornered and sold other stocks as it advanced. This demonstration in Reading was supported by an exhibition of aggressive strength in all coaler stocks. Delaware and Hudson reached a new high-record price, selling at 237½. In the Philadelphia market Lehigh Valley made another sensational advance, crossing 82. The strength imparted to the general market by the coaler stocks was offset about midday by fresh weakness in the Rock Island issues. The market was about to disregard that matter and was showing strength again when Metropolitan Street Railway began to break sharply. This incident only checked the market and doubtless would have been put aside as a thing of isolated consequence had not the Rock Island issues become acutely weak again shortly after 2 o'clock. The cumulative effect of these perturbing matters was all felt in the last hour, when under a heavy general selling movement prices broke sharply throughout the active list. Before the closing a rally occurred and stocks closed showing generally small recoveries from their lowest prices. On the decline in the last hour Union Pacific, which had been distinctly heavy until then, showed much better resistance than might have been expected. There was surprisingly little pressure upon it.

* * *

Advance information of the Reading movement was widely circulated before the opening of the market. Nearly every large wire house in the Street sent it out. Nobody seems to know how any of these "tips" originate. Nobody ever assumes direct responsibility for them. They are simply "repeated" for what they are worth, and they travel with incredible rapidity. The private wire systems give them a large out-of-town circulation. The Reading "tip" yesterday morning was the most profitable that has been given out for some time. People do not act promptly on information of this sort. They wait to see if it is going to be made good. The stock starts up and looks very strong, and then those who have waited rush in to buy. Anybody who had acted on the Reading "tip" promptly at the opening yesterday would have made two points in an hour, but the advance was very rapid, and the chances are that there was more general buying at or above 127 than below that price. It was the activity in Reading that lifted the total of yesterday's transactions above the million-share mark. The trading in that one stock exceeded 230,000 shares. The price reacted 1½ per cent. from the high point, the net gain for the day being only 1½ per cent. The movement was shrewdly timed. The possibilities of coaler stocks had been freshly and very favorably advertised by an extraordinary advance in Lehigh Valley in the Philadelphia market. The market position of Reading no doubt is strengthened by the presence of an obstinate short interest in the stock.

* * *

American Locomotive common, the book value of which was fixed at 70 by its bullish friends some time ago, sold yesterday at 71, the highest price so far reached on this movement.

* * *

During Mr. Harriman's absence there has not been a pronounced movement either way in Union Pacific stock. It has been, in fact, a less prominent feature of the market than in any corresponding period in the last eighteen months. Since the culmination of the August rise, which was followed by a break in the general market on which Union Pacific went below 130, the stock has fluctuated between 130 and 135. It has been as low as 130¾ and as high as 135¼. For several weeks its range was from 132 to 134. Last week it sold down to 130⅞, but was heavily bought on the level of 131, and since then it has sold at 135¼. Its range yesterday was from 133⅝ to 135. There is perhaps no other stock in the market that has been sold short more persistently than Union Pacific in the last few weeks, the reason for this being that the banking interests who control the ultimate movements of the stock were supposed to be out of sympathy with bullish operations. Southern Pacific, on the other hand, has been very strong. It has been strong with Union Pacific lagging.

* * *

Some very shrewd observers of the tape declared yesterday that the movements of Union Pacific were indicative of accumulation. After the advance to 135 in the forenoon on large transactions, the stock fell back on a small volume of trading to 134. After that it swung back and forth within a range of ¾ per cent., advancing to 134½, or 134⅝ on heavy trading, falling back to 134, or 133⅞ on sales of only a few hundred shares, and advancing again on much heavier transactions. After a sale of 100 or 200 shares at an eighth, as many thousand would be taken at a quarter, and so on, the large transactions generally occurring at an eighth over the preceding quotation. On the break in the last hour the stock declined only from 134 to 133⅝, and recovered immediately, closing at 134¼, where it showed a net gain of ⅜ per cent.

* * *

Union Pacific is selling at about where Mr. Harriman left it when he started for his trip to the East.

* * *

Wall Street is trying to anticipate the speculative mood in which Mr. Harriman will approach the stock market situation, and its capacity for dealing with so intangible a matter has enabled it already to arrive at conclusions. It does not matter at all that the conclusions disagree. On the day that Mr. Harriman started inland it was rumored in stock market circles that he was coming home a great bull. Some persons have pretended to have authority for assertions to that effect. Others have an idea that Mr. Harriman will not be so very bullish on his return. This conclusion is reached by inference. It is inferred, for example, that Mr. Harriman will be made conservative by hearing that the Hill interests have assumed an aggressive attitude in Western railroad territory; that the St. Paul is preparing to build to the Pacific Coast, and that other things inimical to the railroad peace of the West are happening or may be about to happen.

* * *

A news item telling of an accident to H. H. Rogers's special train at Leavenworth, Kan., which gave that eminent capitalist a shaking up, but did him no serious harm, was printed in Wall Street in the forenoon. In the afternoon, when the market was breaking, this incident became the basis for a sensational rumor that Mr. Rogers had been in a bad railroad wreck and was seriously injured. Similarly, when Metropolitan Street Railway was breaking, rumors were circulated referring to a real estate transaction the details of which were printed day before yesterday.

* * *

Perhaps the invitation to sell Rock Island shares short is a little too general. Some shrewd traders are somewhat suspicious of the weakness which has suddenly developed in those stocks. For one thing, the apparent indifference of the members of the Moore crowd to what is going on in the market is very singular. They are all away. Judge Moore is at his country place in Massachusetts. J. H. Moore is in the West. Messrs. Reid and Leeds are together at Hot Springs, Va. If anything serious were the matter with Rock Island it is only reasonable to suppose that these gentlemen would be on hand to deal with the situation. The only explanation of the selling is that it started with the liquidation of a stale bull account and is being continued by bearish operators. Rumors that the preferred dividend is likely to be reduced or passed altogether are disregarded by persons who pretend to be informed on Rock Island affairs. The annual report, of course, made a very poor showing, but the question of earning power or real value has never counted for much in the case of Rock Island common. Its principal value lies in its speculative franchise. It seemed yesterday as if everybody who felt at all bearish on the market was selling a little Rock Island. Commission houses sold both common and preferred short with considerable freedom. The floating supply of the preferred stock, which represents control, is very small. The preferred stock might easily become oversold.

* * *

Metropolitan Street Railway was very freely offered in the loan crowd after the close of the market.

* * *

The fortnightly settlement at London this week has shown that a very large bull account in American securities is being carried on the other side.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 25.—The local money market is easier, although rates are not materially lower. The usual table follows: Call loans, 5@5½ per cent.; time loans on collateral, 5 per cent.; time loans on mercantile paper, 5 per cent.; Clearing House loans, 5 per cent.; New York funds at par; clearings, $29,091,626; balances, $1,430,861; Sub-Treasury credit, $20,037.

While the trading in the Boston copper shares has not been very active, the tone is firm and prices are generally better. The activity is spreading to local issues, which are also strong. In the coppers Boston Consolidated, Copper Range, Centennial, and North Butte were the feature.

The closing was firm with no pressure to sell. Complete list of transactions follows:

Financial Notes.

One hundred and sixteen shares of Bank of Commerce stock sold on the Stock Exchange yesterday in various lots at 200@199⅞.

The New York and London Trust Company, with a capital of $1,000,000, has been organized by Clark Williams, well known in this State as an organizer of trust companies. This latest one will have its headquarters here, and will do a general trust company business.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company authorized yesterday the issuance of car trust certificates to the amount of about $13,000,000, to be used in payment for equipment. The Directors also authorized the extension and improvement of the Hollidaysburg, Penn., freight yards at a cost of about $800,000.

A party of Northern financiers is inspecting the properties of the Whitney Company, near Salisbury, N. C. The completion of a big power plant to make use of the natural water power of the Yadkin River is expected in January, 1907. The company owns 13,000 acres of land along the Yadkin, and within sixty miles of the power house are cotton mills using engines of 60,000 horse power, so that the company already has a market for all the electricity it can develop.

NEW TRUST COMPANY NOW BEING ORGANIZED

The Columbia Will Have $2,000,000 Capital and Surplus.

ITS SCOPE TO BE EXTENSIVE

Peter B. Bradley of Boston Likely to be President—Clark Williams Arranging the Preliminaries.

A new trust company, to be called the Columbia Trust Company, with a capital and surplus of $2,000,000, is being organized under the direction of Clark Williams, formerly Vice President of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company. The company is to be operated under the charter held by the New York and London Trust Company, which was granted by a special act of the New York Legislature in 1871. Its powers are much broader than those of companies organized under the General Trust Company act.

The Directorate of the new institution will include many men prominent in New York financial institutions. A. B. Hepburn, President of the Chase National Bank, is to be Chairman of the Board of Directors. Temporarily at least Peter B. Bradley of Boston, Vice President of the American Agricultural Chemical Company, will be President of the company. It is believed, however, that the plans of the promoters include the selection of a man of National reputation as the permanent President of the new institution.

It is known that the company contemplates the conduct of business on much broader lines than that commonly done by trust companies. It will be fitted for this by the terms of its charter.

Others Who May Be Directors.

Mr. Williams refused yesterday to make any statement in regard to the plans of the company, or to divulge the names of those who are to act as Directors. These, however, include, it is believed, in addition to Mr. Hepburn, Mr. Williams and Mr. Bradley, A. H. Wiggin, J. M. Gifford of the American Agricultural Chemical Company, and President Charles O. Gates of the Royal Baking Powder Company.

In addition to doing a regular banking business such as that now conducted by the trust companies, the new institution is expected to develop the field of guaranteeing corporate mortgages. It may also invest in bank stocks, thus having a collateral interest in other financial institutions.

The institution may also do an international business. In this respect it will occupy a field quite apart from that of the regular trust company. Its charter gives it the right to establish branches in any place without restriction.

The New York and London Trust Company's charter was originally granted to the Mutual Benefit Life Policy Loan and Trust Company. The name was changed in 1884 to the Commercial Trust Company and again in 1900 to the New York and London Trust Company. Mr. Williams is Vice President of this corporation, which, however, is not actually engaged in business.

By an amendment of the company's charter passed by the Legislature in 1904 the number of Directors, originally fixed at twenty-one, was increased to thirty-five. It was provided in the same amendment that not more than twelve of the thirty-five Directors should be non-residents of the State of New York.

Comes Under Banking Laws.

At the time of this amendment the duty was imposed upon the company of accepting the supervision of the State Banking Department and of reporting to the Superintendent of Banks at such times as required by the banking laws of the State.

The charter granted to the company empowers it to establish a general agency for procuring and settling life, accident, and health insurance, and to guarantee to insurance companies the payment of premiums. To this was added the power of guaranteeing "bonds, securities, obligations, and contracts issued by any proper authority, or person, or individual."

It is also provided that in addition to its main office in the City of New York the New York and London Trust Company shall have the right to establish and maintain agencies and branch offices at such other places as the Board of Directors of the company may consider convenient.

The right of the corporation to hold real estate is limited to a period of five years after title to any piece of real estate is taken by the company. Any real estate held for the corporation's own uses is excepted from this, and real estate taken over as a result of the non-payment of loans secured by it or which may come into the possession of the company in similar manner is also not included.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—Co[illegible]tions in the local market were similar t[illegible] hose of yesterday, with the exception of greater activity and a slump in prices within the last fifteen minutes of the session.

The Anthracite stocks were the features, Reading and Lehigh Valley recording new high records, under New York buying, and Lehigh Navigation making a further substantial advance. There was also good buying of United States Steel common, local houses being advised that the quarterly statement to be issued next Tuesday would be highly favorable. Fourth National Bank also established a new high record by advancing 9¾ points to 309¾.

Philadelphia Company was strong, and Welsbach was up ½, but renewed pressure drove United Gas Improvement down 1¼. Bonds were in better demand. Total sales, 81,206 shares.

INTERNATIONAL PAPER'S AIM.

It Is to Keep Up Standard, Says Chisholm—The Outlook Fair.

The annual report of the International Paper Company gives the gross earnings for the year ended June 30 as $20,908,666. The net earnings, $3,268,468, show an increase of $114,485 over the previous year. The year's surplus was $793,716, or 4.55 per cent. on the common stock.

The total surplus on June 30 was $6,770,147; after the deduction from this of $750,000, discount on sale of bonds, the profit and loss surplus amounted to $6,020,147. President Chisholm says:

"During the past fiscal year prices were well maintained, and the company has been successful in obtaining fairly satisfactory contracts for all its product for the next eighteen months. It is the aim of the company to keep the quality of its product at such a standard that it will at all times command the preference and a commensurate price. The condition of the plants has been steadily maintained and improved, and the plants of the company in general are now at a higher standard of efficiency than ever before."

J. S. WILLIAMS RENEWS FIGHT AGAINST RYAN

Protests Against His Re-election to Seaboard Directorate.

ATTACKS THE ANNUAL REPORT

Says It Justifies His Statement That Ryan-Blair Interest Planned to Seize the Property.

The annual meeting of the voting Trustees of the Seaboard Air Line Railway was held at the company's office in this city yesterday. There were present John Skelton Williams, S. D. Warfield, Thomas F. Ryan, J. B. Dennis, H. Clay Pierce, B. F. Yoakum, and J. A. Blair. The object of the meeting was to select a board of Directors to be voted for at the annual meeting of stockholders to be held in Petersburg, Va., Nov. 9.

The old Board of Directors was renominated without change, but John Skelton Williams entered a protest against the election of Thomas F. Ryan, J. A. Blair, J. B. Dennis, T. J. Coolidge, Jr., and J. M. Barr.

The annual report of the company for the year ended June 30, 1905, was made public. Mr. Williams asserts that the condition of things shown in this report fully justified the position taken by himself and other stockholders in opposing the radical plan for the reorganization of the system which was proposed by the Ryan-Blair syndicate last Spring and which was defeated. Under that plan it was proposed to place ahead of the present Seaboard Air Line preferred and common shares $7,500,000 of new 5 per cent. first preference stock.

The annual report for the year, just published, shows that the total expenditures for improvements and betterments, over and above operating expenses and taxes, amounted to less than $500,000.

This is less than the average amount expended by the company for improvements and betterments for the past four years, and, Mr. Williams says, sustains his contention that the object of the Ryan-Blair interests in making the large issue of first preferred stock was to strengthen their hold upon the property and to secure to themselves the $7,500,000 of new common stock, which was equivalent to $10,000,000 of the present common stock of the railway, it having been provided in the reorganization plan proposed by the Ryan-Blair party that new common stock was to be given for the old on the basis of only 75 per cent. of new stock in exchange for the old.

The ratio of operating expenses and taxes to gross earnings on the Seaboard system for the past year was 70.3 per cent. This ratio, Mr. Williams says, is largely due to bad operative management, the ratio of expenses on the Atlantic Coast Line being only about 63 per cent. Mr. Williams said that if the Seaboard Air Line had been operated at the same ratio as the Atlantic Coast Line the Seaboard's net earnings would have been nearly $1,000,000 more than they were.

MAY PASS ITS DIVIDEND.

American Hide and Leather Preferred Declines on Rumor.

American Hide and Leather preferred declined 2¼ points in yesterday's market on small trading. The generally accepted explanation of the decline was that the Directors who meet to-day to act on the quarterly dividend will decide to pass it. The positive statement was made in fact that the matter has already been gone over by the Directors, and they have decided to suspend the dividend for the time being.

The preferred stock of the American Hide and Leather Company is entitled to 7 per cent. cumulative dividends, but that rate has never been paid. For some time quarterly dividends of 1 per cent. have been declared. The dividends are now in arrears to the amount of about 37 per cent. The authorized amount of the issue is $17,500,000, of which $12,548,300 is outstanding.

MORE TELEPHONE STOCK.

New York and New Jersey Co. Will Largely Increase Its Issue.

The stockholders of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company authorized yesterday the increase of the capital stock from $15,000,000 to $50,000,000. The Directors will meet to-morrow to decide on the amount to issue immediately. It is understood that the stockholders will be allowed to subscribe to stock up to 25 per cent. of their present holdings.

The capital stock now issued is $13,770,100, and if the additional issue amounts to 25 per cent. of that, the total capitalization will be $17,212,625. The company operates in Brooklyn and in several counties of New Jersey.

NEW PERE MARQUETTE BOARD.

Its Majority Is Now Composed of Erie Representatives.

The Directorate of the Père Marquette Railroad, which is controlled by the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, recently acquired by the Erie Railroad, was reorganized yesterday by the election of a majority of Erie representatives. F. D. Underwood, President of the Erie Railroad and of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad, was elected President of the Père Marquette. The Père Marquette board as reorganized is composed of the following men: George F. Baker, Norman B. Ream, E. H. Harriman, H. McK. Twombly, Samuel Spencer, Charles Steele, J. G. McCullough, F. D. Underwood, Russell Harding, George W. Young, W. C. McMillin, W. R. Cross, George A. Richardson, C. S. Goldsborough, and W. A. Smith.

Russell Harding's recent appointment as Vice President of the Erie Railroad was confirmed by the Directors, and he was made Vice President also of the New York, Susquehanna and Western. A. J. Stone, formerly Superintendent of the Delaware and Hudson, was made Assistant General Manager of the Erie Railroad.

Positive denial was given at the Erie Railroad's office yesterday to the report that the Erie had given an option to the Delaware and Hudson on the controlling interest in the Wilkesbarre and Eastern, one of the Erie subsidiary companies.

In regard to the reported sale of the Wilkesbarre and Eastern it was explained that that road is controlled by the New York, Susquehanna and Western, the stock of which is owned by the Erie Railroad. The Susquehanna and Western stock is pledged under the mortgage given as security for the issue of Erie Railroad Pennsylvania Coal collateral trust bonds

N. & W. DIVIDEND RAISED.

2 Per Cent. Semi-Annual on Common—$2,000,000 Car Trust Certificate Issue.

The Directors of the Norfolk and Western Railway, at their meeting in Philadelphia yesterday, declared a semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent. on the common stock, raising the annual rate from 3 per cent. to 4 per cent. The increase had been expected for a long time.

Semi-annual dividends at the rate of 1½ per cent. have been paid since December, 1902. Dividends on the stock were begun in 1901 by the payment of semi-annual dividends of 1 per cent.

The Directors also authorized the issue of $2,000,000 car trust certificates.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT—A further broadening of speculative trade and sharp advances in the level of prices was a feature of the day, not only in wheat, but in all other grains. Even with a little reaction in the last half hour under realizing the market closed ⅝c net higher. Russian news was a conspicuous influence again, producing sharp advances in all foreign markets as well as here. Budapest was up 18 points and Liverpool ⅝@¾d over the previous night. Paris markets advanced 5@10 points and Berlin 2 marks. Private cables from Russia indicated that the strike situation was becoming very serious and stated that offerings had practically ceased from that quarter. Export business was on a large scale and would have been even greater, according to cash people, but for the car situation, which made it uncertain whether contracts for any particular shipment could be carried out. Sales of 30 loads were reported, nevertheless, as the day's operations. Seaboard clearances increased materially, including 112,000 barrels of flour and 125,000 bushels of wheat, mostly from Baltimore, while the North Pacific Coast reported that Japan was a good buyer of flour again. Minneapolis noted heavy shipments of flour and a good cash demand from the mills, which offset liberal receipts to such an extent that stocks have only increased 225,000 bushels the last four days. Private cables from Rosario, in Argentina, complained of too much rain. World's stocks, according to Bradstreet's, increased 7,602,000 bushels, compared with an increase last year of 3,539,000 bushels. This brought out some selling in the afternoon, which took the edge off the market. Commission houses were moderate sellers of wheat at the advance, but it was well absorbed. Interior receipts continued liberal, aggregating 1,205,000 bushels, compared with 1,044,000 bushels a year ago. In the local market December was quoted at 94c and in Chicago 88⅛c, representing the highest prices on the present bull movement. Cash wheat was firm at New York, closing as follows: No. 2 red, 93¼c elevator and 94½c free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 97¼c, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, 95⅝c free on board, afloat.

CORN—The activity in wheat extended to corn, which also had a strong advance, closing here ¼@⅜c net higher, although a little off from the best point, owing to late realizing. A leading feature of strength was the export business, which aggregated 82 loads, besides 1,000,000 bushels reported by Chicago as having been worked the previous day. Local trade continued on a liberal basis and at Chicago there was a large commission house business at the advance. Free engagements of ocean freight room suggested a continuation of active export business. Chicago advices estimated that 20,000,000 bushels of corn had been sold ahead and not yet bought from farmers. Seaboard clearances were 264,000 bushels and interior receipts about the same as last year. December corn in Liverpool jumped 1½d, against ⅝c advance in other positions. The weather continued unfavorable for moving corn, and Chicago expected to get only 95 cars on Thursday as a result of this drawback to a large extent. No. 2 corn closed at 62c elevator and 62c free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 64c, and No. 2 yellow, 65c free on board, afloat.

COTTON.—There was tremendous activity and excitement in the cotton market yesterday, accompanied by unusual fluctuations, making a day altogether such as the market has not witnessed since the big break of last December with respect to volume of business and breadth of fluctuation. An idea of the nervousness and the violence of fluctuations can be secured by following the course of the active January option. Opening at 10.45c, that position sold at 10.52c in the very early session, broke to 10.31c on rumors that the census report would be bearish, and inside of ten minutes after the report was issued sold at 10.70c on one of the most active covering movements on record. At the advance leading bears sold aggressively, and forced January back to 10.50c in a surprisingly short length of time, but the market rallied again as quickly as before, and in the late trading January sold at 10.75c, or 44 points up from the lowest of the session, 23 points above Tuesday's finals, and at a new high level for the bull movement started by the frost of last week. The general list opened 5 to 7 points lower on the easy cables, rallied on covering, declined again on the continued weakness abroad and tips that the census figures would be over 6,000,000 bales, paid little attention to the reports of wet weather in the Central and Western belts, and just before the census report was 20 to 21 points net lower. The close was 3 or 4 points off from the top, but steady at a net advance of 18@20 points, many large operators carrying long lines over night in the expectation that Liverpool, which was sold off on bearish predictions as to the report, would make a sensationally bullish showing this morning. Sales for the day were estimated at 1,500,000 bales.

The census report showed that 4,490,728 bales had been ginned to Oct. 18, against 6,417,894 bales last year, 3,703,000 bales to that date in 1903, and 5,083,000 bales in 1902. The number of gins reporting was placed at 26,364, against 28,110 last year, and 27,723 in 1903. The trade did not stop to inquire whether any material number of gins refused to report this year, but immediately placed a bullish construction on the report. As a matter of fact local statisticians figure that the figures are without special value as a clue to the actual size of the crop. The percentage of the total crop ginned to Oct. 18 last year was 48.1 per cent.; in 1903, 37.6 per cent., and in 1902 it was 53.5 per cent. The National Ginners' Association, whose report was responsible for the advance of Tuesday morning, but whose figures were under those of the official report, estimated that 45 per cent. of the crop had been ginned to Oct. 18 this season. If so, the crop indicated by the report to-day would seem to be about 10,900,000-odd bales. If only 37 per cent. of the crop was ginned to Oct. 18, as was the case in 1903, it is figured that the indicated crop would be in the neighborhood of 13,000,000 bales, and if as large a portion has been ginned as in 1902 the total yield would fall around 9,250,000 bales. From a mathematical standpoint it appears, therefore, that further information will be necessary before a final conclusion as to the yield can be reached, but pending conclusive testimony popular sentiment generally takes the place of definite knowledge in such matters, and there was no mistaking the bullish interpretation placed upon the figures at first sight yesterday. Southern spot markets were generally firm and higher. Liverpool this morning is due to come 16 to 17 points higher.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 25.—Spot cotton—A fair business doing; sales, 10,000 bales; speculation and export, 1,000; American, 9,000; receipts, 83,000; American, 28,000; middling upland, 5.76d. Futures opened steady, 7 points lower on near months and 8 lower on distant positions; closed weak, at a net decline of 17@18 points. October and October-November, 5.56; November-December, 5.57; December-January, 5.61; January-February, 5.64; February-March, 5.65; March-April, 5.67; April-May, 5.68; May-June, 5.69; June-July, 5.70, and July-August, 5.71. Manchester—Yarns dull and irregular; cloths quiet.

COFFEE—The coffee market was weakened by further liquidation. The opening was 5@10 points lower in response to lower French cables and rather heavier receipts, and while there was a scattering demand, the market gradually eased off, ruling particularly weak in the late trading. The close was steady at the decline of 20@25 points. Sales, including switches, were about 123,000 bags. On this total about 65,000 bags were in the shape of switches from December to later months, to September at 75 points, March at 30 points, and July at 60 points. There seemed to be no change in the general situation, and while the decline was promoted by the weakness in the French market, which closed at a decline of ¼f, and also by the slightly larger receipts and weak primary markets, these factors would hardly have caused the decline here except for the speculative position of the local market with reference to the near-by long interest and the absence of fresh support, which seems to be holding off for less favorable news from the coming crop or for the settlement of the December option as notice day approaches.

The market for spot coffee was easy, with quotations on the basis of 8⅝c for Rio No. 7.

Rich, manufacturer of hat frames at 118 Spring Street, by the following creditors: Adams Manufacturing Company, $556; William Irving, doing business as the Irving Manufacturing Company, $357, and James Thompson & Co., $497. It was alleged that on Aug. 20 he removed all his stock and closed up his place of business.

HAIGHT & FREESE COMPANY.—Justice Stover of the Supreme Court has appointed Arthur D. Truax receiver for the Haight & Freese Company, stock brokers of 53 Broadway, on the application of Blumenstiel & Blumenstiel, attorneys for George G. Turner and Harvey Watson, Directors of the company, in the proceedings recently brought for the voluntary dissolution of the corporation. The bond of the receiver was fixed at $30,000. The assets, which are estimated at over $200,000, are in possession of the receivers appointed by the United States Circuit Court in May last.

BARNET H. BERNSTEIN.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Barnet H. Bernstein, importer of furs and skins at 47 East Ninth Street, show liabilities of $38,274 and nominal assets of $14,909, consisting of stock $2,124, fixtures $150, notes $2,219, accounts, $10,382, and cash in bank, $34. All the debts except $1,330 are due in Europe. There are twenty-eight creditors in Leipzig, Germany, five in London, and one in France. W. H. Fleet is the only New York City creditor, for $830, secured. Among the creditors are Herschel & Weye, London, $4,281; F. Weber, London, $2,681; A. Mendel & Co., London, $2,509; Appel Brothers, London, $2,226, and I. Kaufmann, Leipzig, $3,385.

WILLIAM JAY BARKER.—William Jay Barker, residing at 122 West Forty-ninth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $50,062 and no available assets. His life is insured for $20,000 in favor of his mother. He has only five creditors—Mary B. Fareira of Loch Arbor, N. J., his mother, $45,000 for money lent from 1882 to 1905; Mrs. Carrie Schoth, $1,800, money loaned; Dr. George B. Stewart, $500, professional services; Reform Club, $45 dues and house account, and Bertha G. Barker of Bensonhurst, $2,716 on a judgment obtained against him on March 31, 1905. She was formerly his wife, but obtained a divorce from him on May 1, 1902. Besides the judgment there is also an unliquidated claim, the amount of which is not known.

ERNEST MARTIN & CO.—Ernest and Henry A. Martin, who compose the firm of Ernest Martin & Co., stock brokers at 60 Broadway and 101 East Fourteenth Street, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $9,027, most of which is to customers, and assets $3,969, consisting of cash in bank, $120; office fixtures, $500; accounts, $3,220, and twenty shares of stock of the American Hide & Leather Company, pledged for a loan. Of the outstanding accounts, $500 is from the Consolidated Stock and Petroleum Exchange from the sale of Ernest Martin's membership, and the balance is from customers for losses on stock speculations. Among the creditors are W. H. Goodwyn, $2,408; T. R. Brennan, $999; Mrs. S. Levy $923, and Hortense A. Raymond, $450. Ernest Martin started the business two years ago. They owe $33 to employes for wages. Both partners reside in Brooklyn.

R. W. RATHBONE, JR.—Robert W. Rathbone, Jr., residing at Bedford, Westchester County, filed a petition in bankruptcy here yesterday with liabilities $13,978 and nominal assets $4,344. He was formerly a partner in the firm of Rathborne & Son, stock brokers of 7 Wall Street, this city, in which Charles L. Rathbone was the senior partner. The petitioner states that the firm has never been liquidated; that the firm has assets, and he believes it to be solvent. This is the first case of the kind under the present bankruptcy act where a partner in a solvent firm has filed a petition in bankruptcy. The petitioner was adjudicated a bankrupt yesterday, individually and as a partner in the firm. Of the liabilities mentioned on his schedules, $3,000 is on firm account and the balance is personal indebtedness. Among the creditors are C. N. Morgan, $3,000; Robert W. Rathborne of Pelham Manor, $7,694, and the Democratic Club of New York City, $84.

SABSEVITZ & MELTSNER.—Justice Stover of the Supreme Court has appointed Albeit Sanders receiver of the assets of the firm of Sabsevitz & Meltsner, manufacturers of women's and children's underwear, formerly at 207 and 209 Wooster Street, in a suit brought by Charles Meltsner against Charles Sabsevitz for a dissolution of the partnership, which was formed on Oct. 18, 1904. Mr. Sabsevitz was the capitalist of the firm, contributing over $5,000, and was to receive 80 per cent. of the profits. He was taken sick on July 5 with typhoid fever, and did not recover for eight weeks. Mr. Meltsner says that the business was a losing one and the liabilities are $15,000 over the assets; that his wife and brother-in-law advanced $10,000 to keep the business going, and bought up outstanding accounts for $4,500. Mr. Sabsevitz denies this, and asserted that there should be $9,000 worth of merchandise on hand, and that Mr. Meltsner never contributed a cent to the business.

Judge Holt, in the United States District Court, has granted discharges to the following bankrupts:

Hanover & Grau, who formerly kept the Tiger Cafe at 12 Centre Street, liabilities, $28,341.

HELD AS MORRELL BURGLAR.

Fagin Identified in Greenwich Court by the Woman's Nurse.

GREENWICH, Conn., Oct. 25.—Charged with shooting Mrs. C. W. Morrell and breaking and entering her residence on the morning of Sept. 12, Charles Fagin was held in the Borough Court this afternoon for trial in the Superior Court at Bridgeport. His bond was fixed at $7,500.

Ella Burns, the nurse at the Morrell residence, after telling the story of the burglar's attack on Mrs. Morrell and herself, pointed her finger at Fagin and exclaimed:

"I swear that that is the man who did it!"

$4,000 FOR A BROKEN ARM.

Little Girl Fell in a Torn-Up Street and Sued the City.

A jury in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn awarded to Winifred Pollock, 10 years old, of 336 Second Avenue, Brooklyn, $4,000 yesterday for injuries received last May when she fell in the street near her home. The street was being repaved at the time.

The girl's foot was caught between the Belgian blocks and in her fall her arm was broken. It was contended for the city that everything possible was done to keep the street in repair, but this was not enough.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Aldrich Estate Properties Bring Nearly $5,000,000 at Auction—Purchases by Operators on West and Greenwich Streets—Other Dealings.

The auction branch of the real estate market has witnessed in recent years no more thoroughly successful event than yesterday's sale of the Aldrich estate holdings. Not only did about $5,000,000 worth of property change hands—the exact amount realized was $4,911,500—but the tradition about the difficulty of disposing of parcels of high value at auction received a serious setback. Aldrich Court and the Columbia Building were sold for $1,200,000 and $1,050,000, respectively, and for half a dozen other properties, worth over $250,000 each, there was no lack of competition.

No other auction offerings had been listed yesterday, a provision which turned out to be a wise one, for the crowd attracted by the Aldrich sale spread out from Auctioneer Bryan L. Kennelly's stand to the walls of the salesroom in every direction. It was estimated that when the sale began over 1,000 persons were present, including in the gathering being nearly every operator and broker of prominence in the city.

After 872 Broadway had been sold for $139,000 and one or two other properties of comparatively moderate value struck down, the reading of the terms of sale for Aldrich Court, at 41 to 45 Broadway, caused the crowd to sit up and take notice. The first bid was $750,000. Advances of $50,000 and $100,000 carried the price to $1,000,000. R. E. Simon of L. J. Phillips & Co. offered $1,050,000 and, after three more bids had been taken, succeeded in getting the property for $1,200,000. Mr. Simon announced immediately afterward that he had bought the building for the Hamburg-American Packet Company. Gossip in real estate circles throughout the afternoon was all to the effect that the company had paid a very modest price for a very choice piece of real estate. The building, which is nine stories in height, stands on a plot of over 15,000 square feet, with a Broadway frontage of 80.3 feet.

The other lower Broadway structure, the Columbia Building at Morris Street, which shared with Aldrich Court the distinction of being the feature of the sale, was the subject of less competition. The bidding for it started at $800,000 and went to $1,050,000, at which figure it was sold to Evan Shelby, an attorney representing one of the Aldrich heirs.

Broadway properties in the mercantile district brought out some of the liveliest bidding of the afternoon—notably the building at 600 and 602, near Houston Street, occupied by Sullivan, Drew & Co. The price of this parcel was carried from $270,000 to $405,000, the successful bidder being C. W. Landon. The old three-story structure at the southwest corner of Broadway and West Third Street was bought by Charles Laue for $175,000.

Robert E. Dowling of the City Investing Company took a hand in the bidding for several properties, but was a buyer only in one instance, that of the building covering the block front along the east side of Church Street, between Warren and Chambers Streets. Other properties in the wholesale dry goods district, on Leonard and Worth Streets, found ready buyers, and good prices were also paid for buildings on Murray and Warren Streets, between Broadway and Church Street. The group of three apartment houses at the northeast corner of Amsterdam Avenue and Seventy-fifth Street, went to the Whitehall Realty Company on a bid of $267,000.

Several Brooklyn properties served to swell the proceeds of the sale by $73,300, while 491 lots at South Oyster Bay, L. I., sold in one parcel, bought an additional $6,200.

Complete details of the Aldrich sale, with buyers' names and prices, will be found below.

What Has Made Men Rich

Trace down the pages of the biographical history of the wealthy men of country and you will find at least 75 per cent. of them who began life as a poor boy, but industry, economy, and energy have made their names household ones in the business and professional world. You will say that luck makes men wealthy. It is not so; though there are cases—a small percentage—where a windfall dropped into the lap of some man by his predecessor or his relationship or in the game of chance. But where there is one thus fortunate there are ten others who started on life's highway with strong arm and a clear mind, without friends, without money, and without influence, to battle against the whole world and mold for themselves by energy and endurance a fortune honorably made.
My dear wage-earner, if you desire the proof and convincing evidence of the headline of this advertisement, how men became wealthy, go out and ask the first successful man you know what made him rich—how did he start on nothing and become wealthy. He will repeat what we have said: GRASPING THE OPPORTUNITY.
The poor man, or the young man to-day without means, has greater chances and finer opportunities of getting rich than the boy or man twenty years ago.

Dame Fortune Knocks To-day at Your Door and Shouts, "Invest Now In the Suburbs! Grasp the Opportunity!"

Land Has Increased In Price Since 1900 in Westchester 500 Per Cent. Land Has Increased In Kings Since 1900 300 Per Cent. Land Has Increased In Queens Since 1900 500 Per Cent. Let Us Picture Now for You the Next Five Years and the Locality Where You Can Get Rich if You Will Grasp This Opportunity.

The great activity for investment and for homes will in the next five years be just outside of Greater New York on Long Island—just where the wage-earner can reach inside of 30 minutes for a 5 or 10 cent fare; where the line of travel by steam or electricity will be frequent day and night.

The Star of Prosperity Is Now Rising in the East, Coming Over the Fertile Fields of Long Island, and To-day It Reveals a Tale of Prophecy and Makes Known the Future Outside of Greater New York.

TO-DAY.
60 Trains a Day. One Every 20 Minutes. 10 Minutes from Jamaica. 30 Minutes from New York. 5 and 10 Cent Fare.
Finest Roads. Cheapest Land. Best Railroad Service Outside of Greater New York.
Population 5,000.

1910.
120 Trains a Day. Everything Electricity. 6 Minutes to Jamaica. 20 Minutes to Herald Square. Only 5 Cent Fare.
Beautiful Parks. Beautiful Homes. Largest Municipality on Long Island. With a Population of 30,000. Great Industrial Centre.

Lots and plots of land at Mineola will increase in value 500 per cent. in 5 years. Why not? Star of New York destiny says so. Lots at the Bronx have increased from $500 to $5,000 in the past 2 years.

MINEOLA.

It lies just three miles outside of Greater New York—just twelve minutes' ride from Jamaica by steam cars, where three lines of the Long Island Railroad centre—all trains from the North Line, from Oyster Bay and Roslyn, all trains from the east on the Main Line, from Greenport west; all trains from the south, Hempstead and Garden City; and, in addition to all, the connection with New York by the Queens County electric car line. No such railroad facilities or transportation anywhere outside of Jamaica. WHERE CAN YOU GET SUCH SERVICE? WHERE CAN YOU GET SUCH AN ACCESSIBLE PLACE FOR A HOME?
WE HAVE BOUGHT $150,000 WORTH OF THE MOST CENTRALLY LOCATED LAND IN MINEOLA.
We have bought it close to schools, churches, stores, and within a few blocks of the depot, where every choice residence lot we have ought to be business property in ten years. And the announcement of this sale will pass through this city into the homes of hundreds of thousands of investors and homeseekers to-day. AND WE BELIEVE EVERY LOT WE HAVE WILL BE SOLD IN TEN DAYS. Such things have happened to us before. Therefore, we want you to be there at the

TWENTY-MINUTE FERRY TO STATEN ISLAND NOW

Mayor Said: "Go Ahead, Bunt," and the First Boat Was Off.

JOYFUL DAY IN RICHMOND

McClellan, Cromwell, and Others Speak—Schedule Knocked Out Last Night by the Nasty Weather.

"All right, Bunt, you may go ahead!"

If the people of the Borough of Richmond wish to preserve the historic words with which Mayor George B. McClellan, addressing Capt. M. N. Bunt of the ferryboat Manhattan, started municipal operation of their ferryboats, here they are. The start was made at 11:38 o'clock yesterday morning, when the ferryboat Manhattan slipped from the dock at the foot of Whitehall Street with more than 2,000 invitsd guests aboard. The Manhattan made ths trip to St. George in fifteen minutes. The regular schedule will be twenty minutes.

The boats ran with fair regularity in the afternoon, but last night there was much delay. The weather was nasty and a strong tide was running into the Kills and around Castle Williams. Also the boats were new and worked stiff. They were large and unwieldy and all the Captains on duty last night were new and not used to the swing of the currents.

Boats would try to reach the St. George slip, and, being caught in the tideway, would be swept far wide of the mark. Between 7 and 8 o'clock there were three hoats between Robbin's Reef and the St. George slip. One, delaved in arriving, was starting back to Manhattan, another was trying to make the dock, and the third was waiting for the second to get in and out in order that she might dock. Most of the hoats wers from twenty minutes to half an hour late in reaching Staten Island.

Assistant Ferry Supt. Lawrence Hanlon said that everything was running as well as could be expected in view of the newnsss of the hoats and the fact that all the Captains were green in handling them.

The start of the Manhattan was to have heen made at 11 o'clock, but an unforeseen crowd at the pier not only delayed the hoat, but necessitated the presence of fifty policemen under Inspector Hogan and Capt. McNally of the Church Street Station. It had been planned that the Manhattan should reach the pier at 10 o'clock. Through some error the new ferryboat did not arrive until 10:50 o'clock. At that time there were about 7,000 persons outside the gates. The crowd was being held back with difficulty by the reserves and the mounted police.

At 11 o'clock the Mayor drove up to the ferryhouse in a carriage. With him wers Dock Commissioner Featherson, Corporation Counsel Delany, and Alderman Reginald S. Doull, Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements.

The Mayor was followed by ths special committee of Aldermen. President Fornes lost his way in the crowd, and was rescued by Commissioner McAdoo. Others present were Deputy Controller Phillips, Borough Presidents Cromwell of Richmond and Ahearn of Manhattan, Assemblyman Caughton, and a delegation from the Staten Island Board of Trade.

Once aboard the ferryboat, Mayor McClellan and his party went to the pilot houee, where Capt. Bunt, late of the barnacled old Middletown, presided at the wheel, glorious in a new suit of municipal serge and municipal gold lace. At 11:38 the Mayor uttered the words that marked the beginning of the municipal ferry, and Bunt put up his hand and pulled ths whistle cord three times.

In a second the bay was filled with answering shrieks from liners and ferry and tug boats. From the foremast of the Manhattan the Mayor's flag—a new one—broke to ths wind.

At that moment the old Middletown—she was known as Bunt's "old woman"—the most venerable vessel of the ancient Staten Island fleet, was staggering into the dock tilted over to one side with her load of passengers.

The moment the Manhattan left the dock the Richmond left St. Georgs for the foot of Whitehall Street. Off Bedloe's Island the rest of the new fleet, the Bronx, the Queens, and the Brooklyn were lying with full steam up. As the Manhattan steamed past there was another deafening "salute," in which the river craft joined. The gayly decorated fleet fell in behind the Manhattan, which led the way to St. George.

At St. George, as the Manhattan ran into her temporary terminus, there was more whistling and more cheers. All Staten Island, it seemed, was taking a holiday. The Mayor on ths upper deck wavsd his hat to the crowds ashore. A stand dscorated with flags had been erected close to the pier, from which Mayor McClellan, Commissioner Featherson, Borough Presldent Cromwell, and Alderman Doull made speeches.

"Two years ago," said the Mayor, "I promissd that before the expiration of my term of office Staten Island should have the hest ferry service on earth. People of Richmond, I have kept my word!"

The crowd applauded for two minutes. The Mayor continued:

On a day like this, which marks a great achievement, it is fitting that the credit for its accomplishment should be placed where it belongs. Without any wish to belittle the work of the Board of Estimate, of the Sinking Fund Commission, of the President of the Borough of Manhattan, and the President of the Borough of Richmond; without any wish to detract from the services of our most efficient Dock Commissioner and his admirable corps of engineers, the chief credit and thanks are due to the people of Richmond themselves.

The people of Richmond knew what they needed; the people of Richmond knew what they wanted, and they got it. Whatever I may have been able to do has been merely because I have been fortunate enough to be the instrument by which the people of Richmond accomplished their purposes.

Let me make public expression of the debt which the people of New York owe to the people of this borough, and I of all other citizens of New York owe to you for your constant, your unswerving support, your patience in the face of difficulty, your courtesy and your friendship.

It is unnecessary for me to tell you how much this ferry means to Richmond, or that it marks the beginning of a new era for your borough. You know all this far better than I do. But the inauguration of this greatest experiment in municipal ownership and municipal operation, means the beginning of a new epoch for all five boroughs in New York.

This ferry is the longest step in the direction of binding the boroughs together since the completion of the Brooklyn Bridge. It established a standard of excellence in interborough communication that must forever be lived up to. It will serve to break down the barriers of Nature and to bind more closely together into one homogeneous whole the five component parts of our city, so that as the years go by the people of New York, forgetting borough boundaries, except for administrative purposes, will remember only that they are citizens of one great city that they love—one in thought, one in hope, and one in righteousness. And when that not far distant day has come, we New Yorkers will feel an honest pride that we are the children not only of the most populous and the most prosperous city, but what is of far greater importance, the best city on earth.

Mayor McClellan then formally placed the municipal ferry service in the hands of Maurice Featherson, Commissioner of Docks and Ferries, Borough President Cromwell referred to the old ferryboats that will go out of commission.

"We Staten Islanders," he said, "have often execrated these old boats, but now that we see them to-day alongside of the new ferryboats we should in decency shed a tear. They did their best when we needed them, and now it only remains for us to say: 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant.'"

The Mayor and the guests returned to Manhattan. At the foot of Whitehall Street three cheers were given for the Mayor. As his carriage drove off a hoarse voice in the crowd shouted:

"T'ree cheers for Hearst!"

There were cheers and hisses.

The new ferries will be run on this schedule: Every hour between 1:30 and 4:40 A. M., half-hourly between 4:30 and 6:30 A. M., every 15 minutes between 6:30 and 10:30 A. M. Until 4 o'clock the ferries will run every half hour; the rush hour time will be observed until 7:30 P. M., when the boats will return to the half-hour schedule until 1:30 A. M.

PENNYPACKER APPEALS FOR FEDERAL INQUIRY

Asks President to Direct Inquiry Into Enterprise Bank.

PROMPT RESPONSE MADE

Collateral Stripped from Notes Held by Bank and Repledged for Loans.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Oct. 25.—Gov. Pennypacker this evening made public the following copy of a letter which he sent to-day to President Roosevelt asking for a Federal investigation into the affairs of the Enterprise National Bank of Allegheny:

To the President:

Sir: The Enterprise National Bank, doing business in Allegheny, has recently failed, having at the time among its deposits $1,030,000 of the moneys of this Commonwealth. These moneys were deposited upon the faith of the stability of the institution, arising through its organization as a National bank, and because of these deposits the Commonwealth is much interested in the ascertainment of the condition of its financial affairs. Our Commissioner of Banking has no control over it and no power to make any such investigation. Since it was organized under Federal law and subject to your supervision, I write to ask that a full, complete, and careful investigation may be made so that everything connected with the condition of its affairs and the causes which have led to such condition may be fully disclosed. I am ready to render all the assistance in my power to secure a thorough ascertainment of the facts.

I am, Sir, with respect, very truly yours,
SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—United States District Attorney Dunkle to-day communicated with the Department of Justice, making the request that the Secretary of the Treasury send Bank Inspector Moxey of Philadelphia to Allegheny to go to work on the hooks of ths defunct Enterprise National Bank. Ths well-known reputation of Bank Inspector Moxey in running down criminal management of bank funds at once suggested the possibility that the District Attorney had discovered facts pointing to questionable conduct in the business of the bank. The request was also made that Judge Oldham of the office of ths Controller of the Currency be dispatched at once to Allegheny to take charge of the inquiry into the cass. Judge Oldham left hers to-night for Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 25.—All the old employes of the Enterprise Bank, except the messenger, were notified by Receiver Cunningham to-day that their services were no longer needed, and new clerks were at once put to work.

Within the last forty-eight hours many of the notes held by the bank have been liftsd, but considerable trouble is resulting, it is said, over the discovery that in several instances the collatsral that should have been attached to the notes was missing. Whether this collateral has been misplaced or used has not yet been determined. Officials of the bank admit that the collateral cannot he found, but hope that it will turn up in other hanks.

Georgs Ralston, head hookkeeper of the Enterprise National Bank, who left Pittsburg on his wedding trip on Oct. 9, before the suicide of Cashier Clark, returned home to-day from Havana, Cuba. He had just landed at Havana when a message was handed to him informing him of the suicide and he took the first steamer homs, thinking that his services would be required at the bank.

Walter Lyon, counsel for the Pennsylvania Development Company, which has paper amounting to $58,626 in ths Enterprise Bank, said to-day that he had arranged with the receivers to lift the notes upon call.

John Marron, an attorney here, is authority for the statement that legal proceedings, both criminal and civil, are to be brought in connection with the Enterprise Bank failure just as eoon as the papers can be prepared. Mr. Marron says he has been retainsd by a person whose name for the present he will withhold.

"I represent a client," eaid he this afternoon, "who negotiated a loan at the Enterprise National Bank, putting up as collateral 171 shares of Crucible Steel stock. Hs went over the other day to pay his loan, and found the collatersl note, but no securities. We find that the stock certificates had been strippsd from the loan, evidently by Clark, and used in negotiating a loan in a National bank in Pittsburg.

"When an effort was made to secure the stock from this bank we discovered that it had been transferred to the name of one of its Directors. My client wants his stock. How to get it is a problem, but we shall probably bring an action in conspiracy."

Attorney Marron asserted that notwithstanding the denials he has positive information of the existence of a complete confession written by Clark before he committed suicide.

BLACKMAIL, SAYS MAJ. GIBBS.

Causes Arrest of W. O. Chapman After Getting Threatening Letters.

W. O. Chapman, who is said to be well known in insurance circles, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields yesterday on a technical charge of using the mails for fraudulent purposes, but, in reality, for what is alleged to be an attempt to blackmail Major Theodore K. Gibbs, a well-known figure in Wall Street. Chapman was held in $2,500 bail for examination on Friday.

The charge is made that Chapman sought to obtain money hy sending letters in which he pretended to have knowledge ot certain alleged unlawful acts committed by Major Gibbs. He threatened, it was alleged, that these facte would be circulated through the newspapers unless money was paid by Major Gibbs.

The complaint contained copies of two letters alleged to have been written by the accused directed to "The Relatives and Friends of Major T. K. Gibbs." The letters assert that Major Gibbs has done the writer a great injustice, which he promised to rectify, but which, notwithstanding repeated demande and over forty letters passing hetween them, he has not done. The second letter says the writer will be compelled to hring the name of Mre. Gibhe, whom he greatly respects, into the matter indirectly.

Chapman treated his arrest lightly.

For many a man the first step in deserting his tailor is looking at one of our Fall overcoats.

He feels the fabrics—as fine as can be and of patterns as smart as the best tailors show.

He tries on the coat—likes the lines and the fit without wait.

He finds the price at least a third less than even an indifferently good tailor must charge.

Then he comes into camp.

Few boys can follow in their father's footsteps in deserting crack tailors, because few good tailors will bother with boys' clothes.

The fact is that comparatively few boys in this town have ever worn as good clothes as the best we make, because of the time honored fiction that any suit's good enough for a boy.

We don't believe it, and so make just as good, just as stylish clothes as we can for boys.

MAGISTRATE SCOLDS WHITNEY'S CHAUFFEUR

Insists at First That Harry Payne Must Appear.

HOLDS DRIVER FOR TRIAL

Fritz Last Arrested for Speeding When the Duchess of Marlborough Was a Passenger.

"Don't imagine that you can disobey the law with impunity and ride roughshod over the public of this city," said Magistrate Crane, when Joseph Fritz, a chauffeur for Harry Payne Whitney, was arraigned in the Harlem Police Court yesterday, charged with exceeding the speed limit.

Policeman O'Sullivan chased Fritz, who was driving Mr. Whitney's automobile, from Fifty-ninth to Eightieth Street in Fifth Avenue before catching him, despite the fact that he was riding at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour.

The story of the chase was told by O'Sullivan. Fritz, who wae formerly a professional bicycle rider, sneeered at the policeman's statement and remarked: "Well, you are a bum rider if you chased me that far."

"Oh, he is, eh?" put in the Magistrate. "Young man, you seem to think that you can do just as you please on the public highways. I wish to inform you that you are sadly mistaken in this impression, and the quicker you change your mind the better for yourself. When you get out of this trouble—and there ie trouble coming for you—I advise you to ask Mr. Whitney to discharge you hefore you have killed somebody. By the way, when were you last arrested for exceeding the speed limit?"

Fritz hesitated a minute and then eaid: "It was last Friday, your Honor, when I was taking the Duchess of Marlborough, Mr. and Mrs. Whitney, and Mr. McIntyre from Mineola to Hempstead. We were in a bit of a hurry and might have been going rather fast. A constahle held ue up, arrested Mr. Whitney, and he was forced to pay a twenty-dollar fine. But, your Honor"—

"That's enough, interrupted Magistrate Crane. "I will hold you in $300 hail for the Court of General Seeeions, and you will remain in the prison attached to this court until Harry Payne Whitney finds time to get up here and bail you out."

Aesemblyman Wagner, who appeared for Fritz, pleaded that a ealoon keeper, who, he said, was worth $30,000, he accepted as bondsman, but the Magistrate refused, and advised the prisoner to telephone for his employer, if he did not want to epend the night in jail.

Fritz was marched off hy a court officer, and placed in a cell. A search was begun for Mr. Whitney, but he could not be found. In the meantime the motor car stood outside in the rain.

A few minutes hefore leaving court yesterday afternoon Magistrate Crane relented and accepted hail, which was furnished by P. M. McNamara of 55 East Eighty-fifth Street.

COTTON FIGURES LATE; CHARGE OF COLLUSION

Census Bureau Bombarded with Telegrams Suggesting Fraud.

4,940,728 BALES ARE GINNED

Prices That Had Been Forced Down Go Up When the Estimate Is Given Out.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—A charge that the Census Bureau's estimate of ginned cotton was being held back for purposes of market manipulation was made to Director S. N. D. North to-day by wire hefore the figures showing 4,940,728 halee ginned up to Oct. 18 were given out. The estimate ehould have gone out at 12 o'clock, but did not go out until 2.

David Miller of New York was quoted as making the charge that this delay was due to a plot to sell large blocks of cotton. Heavy sales were made on the New Orleans and New York Exchanges, and the markets were forced down on what was regarded by some as inside information that the Government estimate would show a big crop. When the actual figures came out it was shown that those who had made the eales had not had a tip and prices went up.

In making the estimate of 4,940,728 halee ginned in the United States, round balee are counted as half bales. No estimate is made of the total crop.

Up to this date in 1904 the product of the gins had reached 6,417,894 hales. In 1903 the ginning output up to Oct. 25 was 3,706,248 hales.

The report covered 26,364 ginneries, and the etatemente upon which it was prepared were supplied hy telegraph by 702 special agents in the field. It was the struggle with these that caused the delay.

When noon paseed with no estimate out, Director North began to hear from hrokers in different cities. Some of the telegrame were of a sensational character. They are summarisd in the following from Secretary Hester of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange:

Much disappointment and dissatisfaction here at delay in issuing ginners' report to 2 P. M. Bache & Co. of New York wire Hayward, Vick & Clark of New Orleans as follows:

"David Miller has just made the statement to the effect that the ginners' report has been delayed from 12 o'clock to 2 o'clock, so as to allow more time to certain parties to sell cotton on, and says he will stand by the above.

"The rumor here is that the report will show counting round as half bales 6,100,100. All kinds of rumors are being spread, and parties are selling the market down, under suspicion of something wrong in your bureau. I send this because I think it proper you should know it. The David Miller referred to was the receiver of Bully & Co., and is a prominent member of the New York Cotton Exchange."

Director North replied to this:

Nobody in this office knows even approximately at the moment how many bales ginned the report will show. The men engaged in compiling it are locked up and the door guarded on the outside. More than half of the telegraphic reports from county agents were received this morning, and their compilation prior to 2 o'clock was a physical impossibility.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25.—When the report of the Census Bureau was read showing how much cotton had heen ginned up to Oct. 18, prices shot up 44 to 68 points higher than the loweet of the day, or as much as $3.15 per bale.

The report effectually controverted the false report sent out earlier in the day.

Leopold S. Bache of J. S. Bache & Co., 30 Broad Street, said at his residence, 112 West Seventy-fifth Street, last night, that he had heard Mr. Miller make the remark on the Cotton Exchange floor yesterday that the delay in the cotton report yesterday was in order to let certain sales be made.

"You know, of course," he said, "how rumors fly in the Exchanges. Personally, I do not think there was anything to it. At any rate, if it was so, no one profited by it; in fact, I might say that many were let in. I have the utmoet confidence in the Washington department."

GINNERS' FIGURES LOWER.

Association Estimates a Total Crop of 10,000,000 Bales.

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 25.—The National Ginners' Association in a report made puhlic to-day estimates the amount of cotton ginned to Oct. 18 at between 4,400,000 and 4,500,000 bales, and says the reports which show about 46 per cent. of the crop ginned indicate a crop under 10,000,000 bales.

WILL TRY TO PUT JEROME ON TICKET

Republicans Will Reconvene and Appeal to the Courts.

IVINS GLAD, THE LEADERS SAD

"Yellow," They Say of the Latest Odell-Halpin Move—Tammany Will Protest.

The Republicans will try to put the name of William Travers Jerome for District Attorney on their ticket. Their County Convention will be reconvened to-night at the Murray Hill Lyceum to accept the resignation of Charles A. Flammer, who was nominated for the place, and to substitute for it Mr. Jerome's.

The decision to reconvene the convention for these purposes was reached at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Republican County Committee at the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday afternoon. Abraham Gruber, the Republican leader of the Twenty-first Assembly District, was the only leader who protested. He protested with his voice and vote. The resolution passed by the commitee was:

Resolved, That the Chairman of the Republican County Convention be requested to reconvene the said convention for to-morrow evening (Friday, Oct. 27,) for the purpose of reconsidering the vote by which Judge Charles A. Flammer was nominated, and that this committee submit a recommendation to the convention for the nomination of William Travers Jerome as District Attorney of the county.

Edward Leuterbach advised the Executive Committee that the substitution of Jerome for Flammer could be legally made. Attorney General Mayer was said to have given a similar opinion, and it was reported around the hotel that Joseph H. Choate had also said he believed that the proposed substitution would be sustained by the courts.

What the Law Is.

The Republican County Convention will try to act under Section 66 of the election law. This is the section which provides for "filling vacancies in nominations and correction of certificates." The section is a long one, and is somewhat puzzling to the lay mind. It provides, in effect, that if a nomination be duty declined or a regularly nominated candidate dies before election day the certifying committee of the party which made the nomination may make a new nomination to fill the vacancy so created. It also provides, however, that a candidate who declines in a city like New York must do so twenty days before the election.

There is another provision in the law which prevents any Committee on Vacancies from substituting on one ticket the name of a candidate who appears on another ticket. It is declared, however, that this does not apply to the case of Mr. Jerome, he being an independent candidate. Moreover, it is asserted that the Republican County Convention, according to Senator Elsberg, its Chairman, having adjourned subject to the call of the chair, will have full power to accept the resignation of Judge Flammer and make the nomination of Mr. Jerome to succeed him as an original nomination.

Will Ask for a Mandamus.

When the Republican County Convention has acted to-morrow night, its officers will make application to the Board of Elections to make the substitution of Mr. Jerome's name for that of Judge Flammer, in obedience to the wishes of the convention. The board, being bipartisan, is expected to refuse the request. Application will then be made to some Justice of the Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus on the Board of Elections to compel that body to make the desired substitution. If that application be denied, that will end the matter. If it be granted, the Board of Elections will have to make the substitution.

Undoubtedly an appeal will be taken to the higher courts if the decision be favorable to the application, but before the appeal can be decided the election will be over. In that event, Republican lawyers say, there is no question that every straight Republican ballot will be counted for Mr. Jerome. It would be unprecedented, they say, for a court to overturn the clearly expressed will of the people at an election, even though the technical requirements of the law had not been complied with.

The action taken by the Republican Executive Committee yesterday afternoon was merely the ratification of a programme which had already been definitely decided on by State Chairman Odell, William Halpin, President of the Republican County Committee, and the managers of Mr. Ivins's campaign for the Mayoralty. For several days these men and a few others who may be characterized as elder statesmen, have been laboring hard to bring about a condition which would permit the Republicans to get Mr. Jerome on their ticket. The first step in that line of policy, of course, was to persuade Mr. Flammer to resign. That was accomplished Wednesday night, Mr. Flammer's statement of resignation being made public by Mr. Halpin.

A Peculiar Situation.

Although there was, and still is, grave question as to whether Mr. Flammer's name can be taken off the Republican ticket, the time for resignations having expired on Oct. 18, Mr. Flammer's declaration that he wished his friends to support Mr. Jerome practically destroyed his candidacy. Therefore, when the Republican district leaders, who two weeks ago rejected Mr. Jerome as a candidate by a vote of 27 to 8, met yesterday at the call of Mr. Halpin, they were confronted with a peculiar situation. Their candidate for 25,000 CARS ORDERED.

New York Central Gives the Biggest Contracts Ever Made.

The New York Central Railroad placed orders yesterday with several manufacturing companies for a total of 25,000 freight cers, calling for ths expenditure of about $25,000,000. This order exceede that placed last week by the Pennsylvania Railroad for 21,000 cars, which until yesterday was the largest order for equipment ever placed by a railroad in this country. The tremendous scale on which the railroads are now providing equipment indicates the pressure under which they are working to care for the traffic that is being offered to them.

The orders placed yesterday are for delivery all through ths year 1906. The head of one of the companies which are to manufacture the cars said yesterday, however, that it was doubtful if the whole number could be turned out on time, owing to the great demands being made upon the equipment companies.

Large as were the orders by the New York Central yesterdey, it is said that they do not represent the total of the Central's requirements. In all probability more cars will be provided for to-day.

The cars will be manufactured by a number of concerns as follows: The Pullman Company, 10,000 cars; Haskell & Baker of Michigan City, Ind., 7,500; the Pressed Steel Car Company, 3,000; the Western Steel Car and Foundry Company, a concern allied with the Pressed Steel Car Company, 2,000, and the American Car and Foundry Company, 2,500 cars. The order placed with the last-named company is in addition to other orders recently placed with it by the New York Central.

Contracts for this record-breaking amount of equipment were let yesterday by Vice President Brown of the New York Central. The equipment will be divided between the New York Central itself and the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern. None of it is intended, so far as is known to the manufacturers, for the Vanderbilt lines west of Chicago. Except the cars ordered from the Pressed Steel Car Company, the order calls principally for wooden cars of the gondola and box varieties.

The car manufacturing business of the country is more active at present than it has ever been in the past. Within sixty days the Pennsylvania Railroad, including its large order of last week, hes placed orders for 41,000 cers. These orders and that given by the Central yesterday bring the total of freight cars ordered so far this year up to 225,000. The largest number of freight cars ever ordered in a single ysar before was 195,000 cars in 1902.

In order to provide motivs power to move this additional equipment the railroads are ordering many locomotives. Yesterday the Erie Railroad, which has recently added largely to its equipment, made a contract with the American Locomotive Company for fifty locomotives. The order represents an expenditure of about $500,000. Twenty-five of these locomotives are to be of the consolidated type and the balance of the Pacific type.

DENOUNCED SENATOR DEPEW.

Ex-Senator Wellington Says He Is Worse Than Express Robber.

Special to The New York Times.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 26.—At the reception given to the Pittsburg manufacturers and Merchants' Association at the Young Men's Christian Association rooms to-day, ex-Senator George L. Wellington, in an address on finance, made an attack on Senator Chauncey M. Depew of New York, comparing him to Edward Cunliffe, the Adams Express clerk, who recently stole $100,000 from the express company in Pittsburg.

Mr. Wellington said there was a form of finance that was a danger to the American people. He said that a clerk in an express office in Pittsburg conceived the idea that he ought to get rich in a single night. He put his scheme into execution, and the next morning had $100,000 in a valise.

"What is the difference, I want to know," said the speaker, "between this man and the man in New York who wasted the substance of the New York Life Insurance Company? What is the difference between the man who took $100,000 from the express company and this man who took salary which he did not earn and then devoted $250,000 to a worthless company which bore his name.

"What is the difference between the express clerk and Chauncey M. Depew, who ought to be in the penitentiary of the State of New York? If there le any difference it is in favor of the clerk."

Wellington sat with Depew in the Senate. The attack created an uproar.

MME. NORDICA TO WED?

Won't Talk About a Rumor That She Is Engaged to Capt. De La Mar.

A report that Mme. Lillian Nordica, the grand opera singer, is engaged to be married to Capt. Joseph R. De La Mar was called to the prima donna's attention last night. She refused either to confirm or deny it, but added that she might make an announcement to-day. Capt. De La Mar was equally reticent.

Mme. Nordica has been twice married. She was Miss Lillian Norton when she became the wife of Frederick Gower, in Paris, in 1883. Two years later, after ehe had begun suit for a divorce, Gower disappeared in a sensational manner. Hc made a balloon ascension and wae never seen again in Paris. Later he was declared legally dead, although it wae reported that he was in India.

Mme. Nordica married Zoltan Doehme, a Hungarian tenor, in 1897. She obtained a decree of divorce frnm him in January of this year.

Cept. De La Mar was originally a sailor. He made a fortune in mining in Idaho. He married Miss Nellie Sands, and later got a divorce from her and gained the custody nf their daughter. His new home, at Thirty-seventh Street and Madison Avenue, has been building for three years. He has a fine collection of paintings and antique furniture.

Mr. Galbraith added that the station at the navy yard in Brooklyn had been in wireless communication with the West Virginia every night since last Friday. An attempt will be made to keep in conetant touch with the West Virginia every day she is at sea, on her way to Hampton Roads, from New Orleans, with the President.

MISS ROOSEVELT HERE FROM EASTERN TRIP

Special Train Comes from San Francisco in 73 Hours.

SHE IS TIRED, BUT HAPPY

Spends the Night at Her Uncle's Home and Will Leave for Washington To-day.

Miss Alice Roosevelt, tired but happy and in the best of health, arrived in New York last night from her Far Eastern tour. Miss Roosevelt was glad to get to town, and when she set foot upon the Twenty-third Street Ferry from the Erie station in Jersey City she smiled to her compenions who had been her conetant associates throughout her trip to the Orient and remarked:

"I am glad to be back in New York and near to Washington. To-morrow night I shall be in the White Houss, looking buck upon ths most pleasant, the most interesting, and the most instructive trip I have ever taken."

Miss Roosevelt left Washington with the Taft touring party early in September, and hes been almost constantly on the go, on steamships and on railroads, ever since. When she stepped from the ferry house at Twenty-third Street last night and gavs directions for the disposition of two truckloads of trunks she was the picture of health and happiness. Her step was brisk and her manner cheerful and characteristically quick and decisive. After giving orders about her luggage she laughingly bade adieu to members of her party, and with her maid entered a carriage and drove to the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson, 10 East Seventy-third Street.

"If they could only appreciats how active I have been and how weary I am they would understand it," she remarked to one of the railroad men. "I would like to see all, but I simply cannot."

The trip across the continent was made in seventy-three hours end a fraction. Miss Roosevelt and her perty left San Francisco on a trans-continental special flier at 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. She arrived at Jersey City at 7:55 last night. Her train started out to break the record from San Francisco to New York, but before it had gone far the schedule was lowered, and the remainder of the distance was covered at a rate much slower than that originally planned. Miss Roosevelt greatly enjoyed the trip across the country. Just before the train reached Arden last night shs said to Mr. Harriman, when he and his wife and children were bidding her farewell:

"We have had a quick and pleasant trip. I am sorry that we couldn't have broken the records. It would have been exciting. But perhaps it is as well. It has certainly been a comfortable ride."

Miss Roosevelt proved the falsity of that rumor, however, at Arden, where the Harrimans left the train to go to their country home. The people of Arden turned out en masse to greet Miss Roosevelt and her companions. A band was at the etation to receive her, and 200 school children etood alongside the railroad tracks waving flags and cheering as the train drew in. Japanese lanterns hung in profusion about the stetion lawn and promiqent among them wes a sign bearing the words:

"Japan Was Never Like This."

As the train approached the station the band struck up The Star-Spangled Banner," and the children and the crowd generally cheersd and clapped their hands. Mr. Harriman was the first to alight, followed by Mrs. Harriman and their children. Mr. Harriman was immediately surrounded by half a dozen newspaper men and asked for details about the trip, but he declined to give them.

Mr. Harriman, with Mrs. Harriman, entered an automobile and was whirled away to his home.

The crowd at Arden clamored to see Miss Roosevelt. Men, women, and children ran down the railroad tracks to her car, the "Weymouth," and called for her to appear. Just as the first of the crowd approached her car they caught sight of Miss Roosevelt dancing lightly in the car aisle to the strains of the band music outside. She was laughing heartily to several of her companions and seemed to be enjoying the situation immensely.

Suddenly she heard the cheering outside, however, and stopped dancing. Sho walked to the rear door of the car, and, looking out in the semi-darkness, waved her hand in answer to the cheers. Then she returnsd to her car, and the train, having been relieved of Mr. Harriman's hsggage, pulled out for New York. A loud cheer went up from the crowd as the special sped southward.

When the train arrived at Jersey City there were few people on hand to give Mise Roosevelt a welcome. The time of her arrival had been kept secret and only the railroad officials and newspapers had been told when she would reach the city.

Ten policemen under Capt. Murphy of the Jersey City police were at the station, and formed a line for Miss Roosevelt and her party as they flied through the depot and got aboard the ferryboat Paterson for New York.

Miss Roosevelt walked briskly to the ferry.

"It feels good to get out of a train and 'on land' again," she remarked. "I'm glad to get back."

Busily engaged in talking to Miss McMillan and Mise Boardman, she entered the ferry, which pulled out immediately for Twenty-third Street. The time in coming across the North River was occupied by Miss Roosevelt in conversation with Miss Boardman. Miss McMillan, and Mr. Gillette. When land was reached she bade good-bye to Mr. Gillette, who drove to the Forty-second Street station for a train to his home in Massachusetts.

Then Miss Rooeevelt got in a carriage which wae in waiting for her and drove to the home of her aunt and uncle. They were weiting for her, but declined to allow callers to disturb her. Miss Roosevelt will leave New York this morning, probably at 9 o'clock. She will be accompanied on the trip, which will probably be made in a special car, by Miss McMillan and Miss Boardman.

In addition to thosc who arrived with Miss Roosevelt last night, Senator and Mrs. Newlands and Congressman Longworth were with the party in the Orient. Senator and Mrs. Newlands left the party at San Francisco and Mr. Longworth went to his home in Cincinnati.

MISS ROOSEVELT'S GIFTS.

Twenty-three Cases Filled with Presents from the Far East.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26.—Despite the fact that when the Siberia arrived it was reported that Miss Roosevelt's presents filled only eight packing cases, it was found when they were taken out of the ship to-day and transferred to the train that they amounted to twenty-three cases and filled the biggest wagon of the express company. The largest box was twelve feet in length, and the smallest not lees then two feet square. All packages were marked "Presents to Miss Roosevelt."

Of the contents of many of the cases nothing is known by the local customs officers, as the gifts have been shipped through to Washington in bond. Several of the cases were marked "Glassware."

The Siberia broke all records in the total duties paid on articles brought by passengers. The total amount of duty was $4,000, of which Mr. Harriman paid half.

BETTING 10 TO 9 ON JEROME.

Odds Switch with Flammer's Withdrawal—3 to 1 on McClellan.

From 2 to 1 against Jerome the betting odds switched to 10 to 9 in the District Attorney's favor last night. Several $100 bets were made on that basis. Flammer's retirement from the Republican ticket was responsible, of course, for the collapse of the Osborne odds. The same developments changed the odds on McClellan to 3 to 1. A. A. Housman & Co. laid $10,000 against J. J. Judge's $30,000 yesterdey on the field against McClellan.

Housman & Co. had plenty of money that they were trying to put up against McClellan at these odds all day. They snatched up every 3 to 1 offer.

Before the Jerome landslide gained headway, E. Wasserman bet $10,000 to $8,000 against Jerome. The day started with the odds 10 to 7 on Osborne. Benjamin Gompert placed $200 against $100 on the field against Jerome. Wasserman and M. Joseph together placed $15,000 against him, giving odds.

Few bets were made on the chance of Hearst being elected Mayor, but there were still a great many on the numher of votes he would poll. It was even money that he would get 135,000.

Bunnell & Co. bet $200 to $800 on the field against McClellan, and immediately hedged by betting $350 to $100 the other way.

CLEVELAND FOR McCLELLAN.

He's Astonished at the Rank Hysteria Pervading This Campaign.

Ex-President Grover Cleveland has sent an open letter to Mayor McClellan, calling on the old-line Democrats to stand by the Mayor for re-election. Here is the letter:

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 25, 1905.

My dear Mayor McClellan: Not being a resident of New York City, I am not sure that I ought to concern myself with its municipal politics. I find it impossible, however, to outgrow my intsrest in all thet affects the welfare and fair fame of the city of my former residence, or to forget the kindness and consideration of my former neighbors.

If this were not my condition of mind, I herdly think my personal friendship for you, or my ettachment to the party you represent, or even my absolute confidence in your fidelity in public place, would move ms to make any expression touching the pending municipel canvass.

I confess to a feeling of astonishment when I see the evidences of renk hysteria pervading a canvass which should especielly be characterized by sober thoughtfulness. Questions of the most far-reaching import seem to be pressed upon the city's voters, not so much as subjects demanding their serious reflection and thorough information, as subjects furnishing opportunity for appeals to passion and misinformetion, cunningly intended to aid personal ambitions and unworthy purposes.

There are conditions just now prevailing which naturally suggest this as a favorable time for demagogic manipulation of the people; and nowhere are those conditions so inviting to those who sre willing to be demagogues as in the City of New York.

Every man who thinks, must know that the opportunity thus offered to play upon unusually aroused popnlar prejudices, resentments, and passions has not been overlooked, and that the constant stimulation of these things contributes the chief stock in trade of some of those who are now bidding for the people's support. Every thinking man must also appreciats the fact that there ere principles and theories underlying the pending municipal canvass which vitally concern the city's future life.

In these circumstances how plainly it is the duty of every voter who has the welfare of your great municipelity at heart to avert the danger threatened by rash action, or by the neglect of a good citizen's duty to strive against the tide of demagogic misrepresentation.

It is because I believe you are looking in this direction of dutiful citizenship and represent the steadiness and honest conservatism ths city needs, that I earnestly hope for your election.

COLLECTOR GOT $10,000.

Woman Who Acted "for Charitable Institutions" Arrested.

The Brooklyn police believe that a woman, who gave her name as Mildred Curran when she was arraigned before Magistrate Tighe in the Adams Street Court yesterday on a charge of petty larceny, hae collected more than $10,000 in the name of the Wayside Home and other charitable institutions.

The woman was arrested in the office of Isaac H. Terry, a Fulton Street real estats man, who has given her money several times in the last two years. His last contribution was made about five months ago. Then he learned that the woman had no authority to collect the money. He then went to Capt. Shaw of the Adame Street Police Station, who told him to save a marked bill for the woman.

On Wednesday she appsared agaln. Mr. Terry had his clerk call up the Captain while he engaged the woman in conversation. She made no demonstration when she was arrested. In the station she said that she had been an actress, and lived in the Putnam House, in Fourth Avenue, Manhattan. For the last three years, she declared, she had been employed as a collector for several charitable institutions.

Detectives were sent to the woman's room, and found several books containing memoranda of collections. They figured eome of the totals, and found that the woman must have made at least $10 a day for the last three years. In a trunk with some of the hooks they found some race track programmes.

When arraigned before Magistrate Tighe the woman pleaded not guilty. She was held for examination next Monday.

LEITER AND HOADLEY LOSE.

Jury Awards $80,241 to Plaintiffs in Blind Pool Suit.

When Justice Amend went on the bench in the Supreme Court yesterday the foreman of the jury that tried the action against Joseph H. Hoadley, Joseph Leiter, and Cyrus Field Judson handed up a sealed verdict. It awarded to the plaintiffs, Franklin, Scott & Co., $80,241, this including the amount sued for, with intsrest. The jury had spent several weeks in listening to the testimony, which was that Jndson, Hoadley, and Leiter were interested in a pool to hoost the stock of the International Power Company. The defendants denied this, Hoadley and Leiter asserting that Judson was not acting for them when he opened the account with the brokerage firm and that they were not in a pool with him at the time the crash came, in April, 1902.

"I will appeal and fight thie verdict to the last ditch," said Hoadley. "If this verdict sticks there can be no pool in Wall Street in the future. No man will be safe if he goes into a blind pool. Any irresponsible man who deals in the pool stock can say that he was a party to the pool, and his creditors can sue any responsible man who was in the pool or who handled its stock."

For the purpose of preparing their case on appeal Justice Amend granted to the defendants ninety days, with a sixty days' stay of execution.

NEW ORLEANS TRAGEDY AVERTED BY PRESIDENT

Stops Speech, Seeing Women and Children in Peril.

SENDS AWAY MIGHTY THRONG

Mr. Roosevelt at Banquet Says as Nation's Head He'll Give No Bluff He Can't Make Good.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—President Roosevelt, alarmed at the peril to women and children in the enormous crowd that surged about City Hall to greet him this morning, abandoned the idea of delivering an address there, after vainly appealing to the people to cease pressing forward.

The review by the President of the military and civic parade at this point also had to be given up, the troops and police being utterly powerless to move the dense, compact mass of humanity that jammed St. Charles Street all the way from Poydras Street to Ninth Street and spread over Lafayette Square almost from St. Charles Street to Camp Street. Probably 50,000 persons were gathered in and around the stand from which the President was to nave delivered the address.

Half a hundred policeman, mounted and on foot, labored for an hour to make a clear space, so that the President's carriage could reach the entrance, but it was impossible, though many heads were cracked in the eftort and dozens of obstreperous persons were arrested and locked up.

The moment the President was recognized a tremendous cheer went up, and the crowd, densely packed as it was, surged forward and threatened to crush in part of the grand stand.

The President, realizing the danger of a panic, urged Mayor Behrman to introduce him immediately, which was done, though the Mayor's voice was drowned in the hubbub.

The President climbed up on the railing before which he was to speak, supported hy the Mayor, though he kept his balance admirably. He waved his hand to the crowd, and the enthusiasm broke forth with redoubled vigor.

Vain Efforts to Make a Speech.

He urged the crowd to keep still, and called their attention to the fact that many women were caught in the jam, and might be injured. Each utterance of his, though unheard by the mass of humanity, evoked a cheer and waving of handkerchiefs and parasols and then the President tried to deliver a short speech. It was impossible, and he realized the futility of it.

"There seem to be two or three people in the streets," he began, when a voice interruptd with the question, "Did you have this crowd in Little Rock?"

"That's all right," answered the President. "Stay right there now," he added, addressing the crowd, which was beyond control.

The Mayor attempted to eeoure silence and the President began again:

"My Fellow Countrymen:—Give me a chance," whereat there was a tremendous roar of applause and a voice shouted: "We will give you one and we will give you another."

Again the President started: "My Fellow Countrymen, I appreciate more than I can say this greeting, and it is beyond the power of any human being to acknowledge it hy speaking, for you could not hear him. [Great applause.]

"And now you have shown such extraordinary qualities throughout this dreadful Summer that I want you to show your capacity for self-government [tremendous cheering] and that means don't jam. [Laughter and applause.]

"And I want the crowd—I want you all to open out. I am only going to wish you well, and then I am going to go on, because you can't possibly hear ms and you already see me, [great applause,] and that's all that's open to us."

The President admonished the crowd to suppress itself isst the women and children be injured in a penic, and said he wae going away, at which there were cries to him to stay.

The President insisted that there was danger that some one, especially the woman and children, might be hurt, end that he would not attempt to speak further. Then he said:

"I only want to say that I will maks a longer speech later, but I do want to say how grateful I am for your coming out, and how grateful I am to the sacred veterane of the great war, and my own comrades of the small war, and I want to thank the National Guard of Louisiana, cavalry, infantry, artillery, and the naval militia. I am proud of them, and it is a pleasure to see them to-day. Now, I am going away, and all of you he good and go home."

There was a tremendous roar from the crowd as the Preeident disappeared into the Mayor's Hall. When he reached there he said he wae worn out, and desired a short rest at his hotel.

In faot, the President in this city passed ths most strenuous nine hours of his tour in the South, and when at 6:30 o'clock this evening he boarded the lighthouee tender Magnolia and began his return journey to Washington he was exhausted and showed it.

The President during last night traversed the whole length of the State of Mississippi. He entersd it after darkness had fallen, and he left it before the day had dawned, so that there was no opportunity for a demonstration by his friends in Gov. Vardaman's State.

The programme arranged hy the New Orleans committee contemplated the popular reception when the President had completed his tour of the harbor. At Harahan the President's car was switched from the main track of the Illinois Central and carried over the Belt Line to Stuyvesant Docks, where the ocean-going Southern Pacific steamer Comus awaited him.

On board the steamer were Gov. Blanchard and his staff; Dr. White, who fought the good fight as the Government's representative against the fever, together with all his surgeons in full uniform; officers of the army and navy, Mayor Behrman, and leading Federal, State, and city officials, and 400 men and women representing the professional and

KAISER TALKS OF WAR.

Tells Germans to be Ready—Apparently Thinks a Conflict Likely.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—Recent events have apparently turned the thoughts of Emperor William more than usually toward the probability of Germeny soon becoming involved in war. Speeches by him at Dresden yesterday and in Berlin to-day contained pointed references to the probability of war and the necessity of heing ready for it. Addressing the officers of a Saxon Grenadier regiment at Dresdsn the Emperor said:

"We live in a time when every young German capable of hearing arms must be ready to give himself to the Fatherland."

At a banquet given in his honor in the Dresden Schloss last evening the Emperor, replying to the King's toast to his health, said:

"If the German Empire continues to proeper thsn we can calmly, with raisd visor and with the courage of free German men, confront any one who should venture to cross our path or to disturb us in the promotion of our reasonable interests."

After unveiling the statue of von Moltke to-day his Majeety addressed the highest army officers, who were assemhied around him at a dinner at the Schloss, saying:

"How matters stand with us in the world you have ssen. Therefore kcep your powder dry and your swords whettcd."

ALARM FOR $53,500 IN BONDS.

Ticker Told of Their Disappearance—Found an Hour Later.

In some way $53,500 worth of Union Pacific honds were recoversd yesterday by the Pinkerton Agency within an hour of the time in which their loss had been made public.

It was 10 o'clock when the Pinkertons sent out a notice over the ticker that forty $1,000 bonds were missing, and asking that any one offering them for sale be detained and arrested. That made those in Wall Street who heard of it believe that another big hond robhery had taken place.

An hour later, when a TIMES reporter called at the Pinkerton Agency office, it was said there that the bonds had been recovered.

"The bonds," said Assistant Supt. George S. Dougherty, "were sent on Oct. 11 from London by express. They disappeared in transit. Just after we had sent out the notice we received word that they had been discovered in the orfice of the express compeny. We have no reason to believe that there had been any effort at committing a crime in connection with their disappearance."

Mr. Dougherty refused to give names.

BLAST IMPERILS A TRAIN.

Tunnel Explosion Shatters Wall at Long Island City Station.

Just before a Whitestons train was to leave the station of the Long Island Railroad in Long Island City last night a hrick wall within two feet of the train was shattered by a blast in the tunnel beneath. There was a terrific noise, and the flying mortar and bricks made the trainmen think the whole bottom of the yard was going to fall out. Nobody was hurt, but the engineer who was to take out the Whitestone train had a narrow escape.

The brick wall runs for several blocks along Borden Avenue and forms the boundary of the Long Island Railroad yards. The tunnel contractore dug a trench beside it some time ago and weakened the foundations. When the blast went off last night part of the wall fell solidly against the front car of the train and leaned there, intact. Another stretch of it broke into pieces and covered two or three tracks with débris.

Passengers for Whitestone were just about to board the train.

CZAR TO GRANT A CONSTITUTION

Witte Induces the Abrogation of Autocracy.

GERMAN SYSTEM CHOSEN

All Classes Ready to Support a Revolution.

RULER TIRED OF BURDEN

Would Like to Flee to Darmstadt—Strike Spreads Everywhere and Capital Is Panic Stricken.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cable. Copyright, 1905.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 26.—I am informed on good authority that a Russian Constitution will he announced on Nov. 8, the anniversary of the Czar's accession.

The deputation of strikers which waited on Tuesday upon Count Witte demanded first and foremost the convocation of a Constituent Assembly, elected by universal suffrage. The strikers at Moscow said precisely the same thing to Prince Hilkoff. There can thus be no doubt about the real aim of the present labor movement.

It must be confessed that Count Witte in his reply failed to employ fictitious arguments for the refusal of the men's demands. He said that universal suffrage would lead to bribery and corruption and the usurpation of power by the capitalists. He declared that he saw instances of this in America.

Discussing the strike, Count Witte remarked that the Government saw two ways out of the difficulty. Either it could resort to arms, or the famished inhabitants of Moscow would themselves attack the strikers. "Remember," said Count Witte, "in these circumstances the Government may fail, but its fall will involve your ruin, because the power will pass into the hands of the bourgeoisie, against which you are arrayed."

Count Witte's appeal to class hatred failed to sway his hearers. In vain he promised them freedom of speech, meeting, and the press. The delegates came away determined to continue the struggle.

The Novoe Vremya, in a leading article rendering a tribute to the memory of Nelson, urges Russians to take to heart Nelson's last signal, but it must be confessed that the vast majority of Russians will take the Novoe Vremya's advice to do their duty as an incitation to side with the strikers.

The demand presented to Count Witte by the railway delegation is, after all, an echo of the great reform movement which has been gathering force throughout the country during the past year. The mass meeting held last night at the university affords convincing evidence that all classes of the community are ready to support a revolution.

The enormous building was packed to overflowing, and the whole social scale was represented, including even officers and soldiers. There were perhaps 50,000 present, yet the revolutionary speeches evoked not one dissentient voice.

What is the Government going to do in the presence of such opposition? Brutal repression has been tried and has failed. Will the Government succeed in restoring order so as to enable it to introduce reforms peacefully, and will those reforms satisfy the people?

Such are the ominous questions necessitated by the present developments of the situation.

ST. PETERSBURG, Friday, Oct. 27.—It is learned that at Count Witte's interview with Emperor Nicholas last week it was agreed that the time had come to limit the autocratic power and give the people a real share in the government of the empire.

His Majesty asked Count Witte to speak frankly. After listening to the statesman's account of the situation, he appeared to be utterly unnerved hy the deplorable state of affairs, and cried out that he was weary of the struggle and felt like leaving all and fleeing to Darmstadt.

Count Witte, however, told his Majesty that, in his opinion, not even a republic could now save Russia from anarchy. It was, he added, the Emperor's duty to the people and the country to face the situation by meeting their wishes, namely, to abrogate the autocratic power and grant a Constitution by creating a Ministry responsible alike to the Crown and to the representatives of the nation.

The Emperor finally acceded, requesting Count Witte to draft a project, which, in skeleton form, he approved last Sunday, when the Count agreed to accept the Premiership, on condition that he could name the Ministers and that they should report to his Majesty only through himself, as head of the Cabinet.

Count Witte already completely dominates the situation. On Wednesday night the Ministers, after a five-hour session, finished the final draft of a law creating a responsible Council of Ministers, and yesterday they completed the revision of the statute granting freedom of assembly, both of which will be taken to Emperor Nicholas to-day for signature.

Last night the Ministers held another session, meeting formally as the Solsky Commission, but in reality as Count Witte's Cabinet, to discuss the election regulations of the Douma.

It is reported that Count Witte, simultaneously with the promulgation of the Cabinet statement, will issue a proclamation defining his policy and asking the nation to give a fair trial to the new governmental system and resist the efforts of the Revolutionaries to throw the entire country into a state of anarchy.

Upon the peremptory demand of Prince Hilkoff, the Minister of Railroads, the budget covering the remuneration of railroad employes will be revised to meet the promises made last Spring. Unless this was done, the Prince announced, he would resign.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 27.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from St. Petersburg says Emperor Nicholas has decided to grant a Constitution similar to that of Germany.

RIOT AND PANIC IN CAPITAL.

100 Workmen Wounded — People Fleeing—Trepoff Takes Charge.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 27.—A telegram from St. Petersburg says that two squadrons of Cossacks yesterday attacked 7,000 workmen who were holding a meeting at the Nevsky Works.

About 100 workmen, it is reported, were wounded and seven Cossacks were injured by stones.

The railroad bridge across the Obvodny Canal at St. Petersburg has been destroyed.

ST. PETERSBURG, Friday, Oct. 27.—St. Petersburg was in a panic yesterday. The most alarming rumors were in circulation, and the shopkeepers on all except a few of the principal streets closed their stores and boarded up the doors and windows, while peaceful-minded inhabitants kept within doors.

The tactics of the revolutionists are apparently to create a reign of terror. Warnings have been sent to merchants on the Nevsky, Morskala, Ascension, and other fashionable thoroughfares to close, in order to avoid pillags and the torch. The doctors are receiving letters ordering them to discontinue visits to the sick, on penalty of death.

Word has been mysteriously passed among servants that a mob is preparing to sack the residences of the better class.

The source of the funds which are apparently at the command of the revolutionists is a mystery. In Moscow the Revolutionary Committee is paying each striker 15 cents daily and has invested large sums in arms and ammunition. The rifles and cartridges captured in Finland and Poland were part of those purchased by the committee.

It is conjectured that financial aid is being received from Socialists and revolutionists abroad, snd that some of it may come from America in response to an appeal published recently in New York newspapers on behalf of the Jewish Bund.

By Imperial order, the garrison of St. Petersburg has been placed under the command of Gen. Trepoff, who is held responsible for order in the capital. Troops are distributed in various parts of the city, but martial law, with its accompanying hardships, has not yet been proclaimed.

All the Ministers yesterday were in conference with Gen. Trepoff. The General caused to be printed in all the evening papers a notification that the troops would to-day be ordered to use ball cartridges without any preliminary firing of blank cartridges, in case there should be any outbreak.

The boats and the trains to Finland, the only means of egress from this city, were crowded yesterday with people fleeing abroad.

The people feared that the city would be plunged in darkness, but Gen. Trepoff acted energetically. The troops took possession of the water, gas, and electric light works and a strong guard was placed around the Treasury.

The 40,000 workmen from the mills and factories who joined the strikers on Wednesday were increased by 30,000 more yesterday morning. All the employes of the port, 4,000 in number, walked out, and 12,000 men from the steel works left work in a body.

During the afternoon striking workmen began marching into the outlying districts, inviting their comrades to join them. The police and troops did not interfere, but by 6 p.m. Trepoff's orders the spirit shops were closed.

The pharmacists struck work yesterday.

The police are becoming frightened, many of them offering their resignations.

By the greatest exertions the Government yesterday succeeded in moving trains manned by military operatives on a few railroads. Traffic was resumed irregularly on the Moscow and St. Petersburg Railroad and on the lines from Moscow to Brest and Kazan.

The first efforts were directed to the moving of cattle trains, so as to meet the threat of famine in the two capitals, and one trainload of cattle arrived at St. Petersburg and another at Moscow. Peasants are also driving cattle on the hoof into Moscow. A scanty supply of milk, butter, and eggs is arriving in St. Petersburg over the Finland Railroad, the employes of which refuse to strike. The meat markets here were raided by mobs yesterday, and all the oil and candles were sold out.

The Emperor and the Court at Peterhof are supplied by a warship from St. Petersburg. All the families who can afford it have hastened to lay in supplies, so as to stand a siege. All the bakers sold out their bread before noon yesterday.

The meat dealers have been ordered by the revolutionists not to deliver meat to the troops under pain of death, and consequently the soldiers are living on canned food.

All the St. Petersburg schools were closed yesterday, and the children were sent home with instructions not to return until their parents thought it safe for them to do so.

Russia is practically isolated from the rest of Europe, as the International train service on all the lines has virtually ceased. The tie-up in the interior yesterday was more complete than on Wednesday.

The strike contagion is spreading. All classes of workmen are organizing sympathetic strikes, and industrial life in the country is coming to a standstill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—A cablegram received at the State Department to-day from Spencer Eddy, Chargé at St. Petersburg, says:

"All railroad communication has been stopped; rioting is in progress; the meat shops have been raided by the mob; the supply of meat in the city will last until Sunday, and prices have been doubled.

"A Moscow telegram reports that all railroad trains have been stopped and the Post Office at Innesa closed."

The State Department also received news from St. Petersburg that 3,600 workmen are on strike in Warsaw.

UNIVERSITY A FORTRESS.

Organized Rebellion at Kharkoff—Insurgents Gave Way.

KHARKOFF, Oct. 26.—The restoration of the telegraph system permits the sending of a description of the drama which has been unrolled here since Oct. 24. On that day the news of the death of a student named Constantindi as the result of wounds inflicted by a patrol and of other acts of violence toward the students led to excited meetings at the university, at which, in anticipation of the arrival of troops, it was decided to barricade the university and to defend it by force.

Barricades formed of telegraph poles, paving stones, &c., were built around the centre of the city, and the university was converted into a fortress. The windows and doors were blocked with masses of stones and coal, and red flags with revolutionary inscriptions were hoisted on the roofs. The university garrison, which numbered 3,000, was well supplied with arms.

Simultaneously in the town mobs pillaged the shops of the armorers and one shop was completely sacked.

Dragoons appeared on the scene and fired fusillades into the crowds, killing ten persons and wounding many others. Roughs profited by the confusion to attack the shops and peaceable citizens.

Matters reached such a stage that a state of siege was declared in the university district. Lieut. Gen. Mau was placed in command and a committee of public safety was formed by leading citizens.

At Pablanice to-day dragoons fired on an assembly of 4,000 workmen, killing two and wounding fourteen.

A military patrol to-day refused to mount guard in the streets here. Many policemen are leaving the service.

This committee entered into negotiations with the Governor. In the meantime troops arrived and the committee, with the consent of the Governor, intrusted the protection of the town to militia composed of armed students and workmen.

The members of the militia were acclaimed by the populace, but at certain points they were fired on by troops and many of them were wounded.

The committee conferred with Gen. Mau with a view to arranging terms for the surrender of the university garrison. The General demanded that the besieged yield up their arms to the university administration and march out in silence, but he added that they would be permitted to proceed without molestation to their comrades, who were holding a great meeting in Skobeleff Square.

The terms were accepted and the garrison marched out in silence between lines of troops, while the crowds massed behind the troops cheered. The members of the garrison were escorted by a squadron of dragoons to Skobeleff Square, where they met their comrades amid great enthusiasm and dispersed without further disorder.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 26.—The contract for the foreign loan has not yet been signed.

The present crisis will doubtless influence the negotiations, but there no reason to discontinue them, as the vast resources of Russia afford an adequate guarantee to bondholders irrespective of any possible changes in the form of government.

WARSAW, Oct. 26.—Agitators are organizing revolutionary meetings in the factory districts, and a general strike is expected on Saturday.

The prices of food are rapidly increasing.

Telephonic communication with Lodz is interrupted. A telegram from there says Poznanski's great spinning mills and other establishments ceased work to-day, and a general strike has been declared for to-morrow.

AMERICAN WHEAT JUMPS.

Grain Markets Feel the Effect of Russian Disturbances.

The cereal markets, both here and in Chicago, showed great strength yesterday. The trading in wheat in particular was greatly excited. There was a maximum advance of 2½ cents a bushel here and of 1⅝c. in Chicago. These advances were due chiefly to the disorders in Russia, which are expected to lead to a reduction in the exports of wheat from that country.

Advices from Odessa reported much excitement in the grain markets in that city, which helped to confirm the view taken here of the results of the present Russian disturbances.

TROUBLE WITH CITY FERRY.

And There'll Be No Relief Until the New Ships Are Ready.

The first full day's operation of the municipal ferry to Richmond Borough was the cause of more growling than a year of the old boats. There was no adhering to schedule, and there cannot be until the second slips at each end are completed. During the early morning hours when four boats were in use they ran fairly regularly until the 8:30 trip of the Manhattan. She was off Robbins' Reef, when her stearing gear jammed, and she lay off to repair, holding the passengers in the bay. She finally reached Whitehall Street behind the boat, which should have followed her.

When she unloaded and started to back out, she had trouble, and was delayed again. Two boats were waiting to land before she cleared. Then she was taken to Staten Island and laid up for repairs.

From 10 o'clock until about 4 o'clock in the afternoon the boats ran fairly well under the half-hour headway, but they kept dropping back all the time, and in place of eight trips in two hours about seven trips were made. From 4 o'clock until 7:30 last evening the efforts to maintain schedule were fairly successful. The effort appeared to have exhausted both boats and men, however, for when the half-hour schedule went into force again things began to happen. A boat left at 8 o'clock for Manhattan and another left at 8:30. Both left Staten Island on time, but neither returned on time, and Staten Island began to have grave fears. When 9 o'clock came no boat had returned, and at 9:30 the situation was the same.

The Manhattan reached St. George about 10 o'clock and, without waiting for trucks, and staying only long eonugh to take on the foot passengers and coal, started back for Manhattan. As soon as she pulled out the Richmond ran into the dock. She losded up at once, and remained until 10:40, when the Manhattan, being sighted by means of glasses, near Castle William, apparently bound south, the Richmond started to Manhattan.

Assisstant Supt. Hanlon said last night that he saw no certainty of the situation being bettered permanently until the second slips are finished.

OSBORNE FORCED TO QUIT; NO SPEECHES LAST NIGHT

But a Violent and Disjointed One in the Afternoon.

HIS THROAT FORBIDS MORE

Murphy Said to Applaud the Candidate's Abstention—Jerome Says, "Poor Jim."

James W. Osborne, the Tammany candidate for District Attorney, again made no speeches last night. He did make a speech yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Commercial Travelers' League in Broadway, and the character of the speech and of Mr. Osborne's replies to some questions asked of him seemed to surprise the audience more than a little.

Last night Mr. Osborne was to have spoken in East Eighty-fourth Street, East Eleventh Street, and East Fifty-sixth Street. Just before meeting time, there came an announcement from James J. Fitzgerald, who is Mr. Osborne's campaign manager, that Mr. Osborne would not appear. It was officially made known that Mr. Osborne's throat was in so bad a condition after his activities in the afternoon that it would be impossible for him to speak. Mr. Fitzgerald himself said that Mr. Osborne was so hoarse that he could hardly speak above a whisper.

Mr. Fitzgerald himself attended the meetings and made this explanation and the proper apologies.

Mr. Osborne's throat has given him a great deal of trouble in this campaign. It has been sprayed thoroughly, but apparently this has not done Mr. Osborne much good. Mr. Murphy became greatly interested yesterday in Mr. Osborne's condition, and it was said last night that Mr. Osborne's abstention from further speechmaking had Mr. Murphy's warm approval.

Mr. Osborne arrived very late yesterday at the noonday meeting of the Commercial Travelers' League at 597 Broadway. He began by saying that he wanted it to be understood that the only conservative candidate for Mayor of this city was George B. McClellan. The others proposed a system of municipal ownership which would mean the bankruptcy of the city.

He went on to tackle Mr. Jerome, "the great man, the only honest man," Mr. Osborne sarcastically called him, and to repeat his criticisms of the District Attorney in the matter of the Slocum disaster.

"I charge Mr. Jerome," he said, "with the fact that there was never a rich and powerful corporation he has not bowed the knee to."

Then he reverted to the tunnel disaster. Then back to the Slocum matter.

"He has stopped calling me 'Poor Jim,'" Mr. Osborne continued, "and he says that I am the apostle of graft—I whom he once said was an honest man; I who struck the blow and cleaned up Devcrylsm. I made the position of policeman an honorable one by removing dishonest men. I tried Bissert and Diamond. I brought them to trial, and in 1901 when it took courage to do so. I want to say that when I am in office and any man takes graft I will strike at that man."

A reporter started out and Mr. Osborne shouted: "Don't go. I want you to take this down."

The audience began to laugh. "Oh, I want the Press to hear," said Osborne.

"Ask Jerome if he had ever convicted the rich and the powerful. There was a dynamite explosion, but who was punished? There was a fire in the Murray Hill—"

A voice: "No; the Park Avenue Hotel."

"Thanks for that," said Mr. Osborne. "It was but a slip of the tongue. It seems that it is a crime to make a slip of the tongue if the newspapers get it. They destroy the reputation you have been building for twelve years and you are a criminal."

He went on to speak of the Thompson murder and the barrel murder and asked what Jerome had done about them. A voice shouted: "Where is the evidence?" Quick as a flash, Mr. Osborne turned on the speaker.

"That's the duty of the District Attorney, you fool," he said. It is just such persons as you that Jerome puts in office.

A well-dressed man wanted to ask a question, but it was not until the end of the meeting that he was able to get a hearing. He wanted to know if it was not the duty of the police to get evidence in murder cases, and not the District Attorney. Mr. Osborne went back to the platform to answer it, and told of his own work in murder cases. He pointed out that he got as many detectives from the Police Department as he wanted and that he had them working under his direction.

"Jerome," he said, "is so absorbed with his own beautiful personality, and in making speeches in St. Louis, Chicago, and other cities that he has no time for his office."

What might be called a Hearst demonstration took place in the early part of the meeting. Charles L. Guy was comparing the candidates when he mentioned Hearst's name. There was a ripple of applause and shouts of "Hearst! Hearst!" from the rear of the hall. The police descended upon the offender, and he was hustled out in spite of his protest.

Last night's three audiences did not like Osborne's absence. At the Twenty-fourth Assembly District meeting, at 207 East Fifty-sixth Street, the crowd began to dwindle before Mr. Fitzgerald appeared in his automobile. After the announcement was made that Mr. Osborne would not be present almost all left the hall, and when the Chairman announced John J. Nugent, candidate for Alderman in the district, there were not more than twenty-five men present.

In his announcement at this meeting, Mr. Fitzgerald said that if Mr. Osborne had exposed himself to the public when he was in no condition to do so it was due to his exhuberant enthusiasm for Mr. McClellan.

Mr. Jerome last night referred to his opponent only in a few words, and then in a manner that indicated that he was deeply moved. He said he had intended to say something about his opponent, but had concluded that under existing circumstances it would not be kindly to do so.

"Poor Jim," he repeated several times. "And be sure that I do not speak thus in sarcasm—be sure that I speak not thus in anger, but in sorrow—not in the flippancy of political debate, but because I feel it strongly. Poor Jim—poor, because it is a pity that a brave man and a strong man has been brought to the point where he is by the hand of the boss."

MURPHY CONFIDENT.

Sure, He Says, of the Election of Tammany's Whole Ticket.

At Tammany Hall yesterday Charles F. Murphy said he was absolutely confident of the re-election of Mayor McClellan and the entire Democratic ticket. He declined to discuss the letter of Magistrate Flammer indorsing Jerome for District Attorney, saying that whatever interest Tammany had in the belated Republican effort to get Jerome on their ticket rested with the Law Committee, which was looking into the matter.

"The situation looks bright for Tammany," said Mr. Murphy, "and I am confident that Mayor McClellan will win, no matter what the opposition may do."

"Little Tim" Sullivan said of Flammer's withdrawal, "Why, I didn't know Flammer was running until this morning."

CUNLIFFE PLEADS GUILTY.

Growing Belief That the Adams Expresa Robber Is Insane.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 26.—Edward G. Cunliffe, the Adams Express robber, pleaded guilty to-day to two charges of larceny representing a theft of $101,000. His action caused general surprise. He had no counsel and the belief is growing that he

When returned to the jail after his arraignment and plea, Cunliffe appeared greatly relieved. He was even smiling when the deputy warden led him to his cell, where he will remain until he appears in court for sentence on Saturday.

business communities and the women's clubs.

While the speeches of welcome were being delivered the Comus headed up stream and ran round the Crescent, past Southport, where the President was enabled to obtain a view of the great levees of the Pont Chartrain district and ses vast fields of ripening sugar cane on the plantations lying on either side of the river. A few miles above the city the Comus turned, and then came slowly down the river, passing along the whole front of New Orleans.

On either bank people lined the levees as the steamer, a-flutter with flags, proceeded on her way amid the din of the whistles of river craft and of manufacturing industries.

As the vessel neared the Harrison steel sheds, aflame with patriotic color, the air was rent with the blasts of steam whistles and the thunder of a Presidential salute. The President looked out upon a sea of cheering people gathered on the river front. When the boat had been moored he was escorted to an open carriage, and the military and civil parade got under way.

Scenes Along the Route.

Never has New Orleans been more elaborately decorated. From every store and residence along the two miles of the route there glazed red, white, and blue in festoons about the portrait of the guest of the day, while thousands of men who had voted against him wore the President's picture in the lapels of their coats.

While it could not be arranged to set aside any portion of the programme, especially for the negro race, it had been provided that the colored population should gather in Canal Street, between Liberty and Claibourne. There the Iroquois, the exclusive negro social club of New Orleans, is situated. All the men of high standing of the race were gathered on a broad platform erected in front of the building, together with the negro school children. The four squares contained a solid mass of colored people. As the President appeared they gave way to their emotions, and the President's pleasure was mirrored in his smiling face.

One of the most stirring scenes of the day was that presented at Lee Monument. From its apex there ran broad streamers of red, white, and blue, while on the broad circular mound that supports the marble column on which stands the heroic figure of the military commander were gathered 7,000 of the public school children of the city, each provided with a tiny American flag.

Along the entire densely packed route were witnessed scenes of wild enthusiasm similar to those which spolled the programme at City Hall. Nothing like it has ever been seen in New Orleans. The President remarked that the reception was the greatest he had had since he started on this trip.

After a short rest in the hotel, the President held a series of receptions.

The President in receiving an engrossed address from the negro members of the Iroquois Club, said:

"I want to thank the colored citizens of New Orleans for this address and to say it is peculiarly pleasant to have it presented by one of the school children; and I congratulate not only the colored population of the whole City of New Orleans, but the people of the State for what you are doing and what the State is doing in the cause of education. With all good-will and good wishes and good luck to you, adieu.

A group of Confederate veterans presented him with a watch charm of crossed Union and Confederate flags as a souvenir of the trip. Gen. A. B. Booth, commander of the United Confederate Veterans, made the presentation. To the Confederates the President said:

"Gentlemen, if you will allow a man who has served in a very small war to call you so, comrades, I accept your presentation with pleasure. Although sometimes we have difficulties in this country that we have to battle against, and sometimes things that we are not well satisfied with, yet we are a pretty good people. I have felt this as almost never before during the last twenty-five years.

"Now think what it means to us as a Nation for the President of the Nation forty years after the greatest war of all times to be able to come South and speak as I have spoken in the capital of the Southern Confederacy, and to feel that I was addressing a people as loyal to the flag of our reunited country as could be found in this broad land of ours. I passed under the shadow of Admiral Semmes's monument, under whom one of my uncles fired the last gun from the Alabama. Another of my uncles built her, and the sister of that Admiral is the wife of our Governor in the Philippines.

"Gentlemen, this is an honor I appreciate. I thank you not only for the gift but the spirit and words which accompany it."

A group of Grand Army veterans was then received. To them he said:

"Comrades, I want to thank you from my heart for coming here and greeting me. I cannot say what it means to me to be greeted as I have been greeted by the men who wore the blue as by the men who wore the gray, on this trip through the Southern land. At Little Rock my escort was composed of Union and Confederate soldiers riding side by side in pairs. As I said at Richmond, next only to the men who wore the blue, I hold the men who wore the gray.

"We should indeed consider ourselves fortunate as a Nation that forty years after the civil war we find all our people can challenge as their own every memory of valor left by both sides. Now there is but one rivalry, the rivalry to see which can do the most for the flag of the reunited country."

Representatives of the various woman's associations had five minutes with the President, during which Mrs. Behan of the Woman's League that was active in the fever fight, pinned a badge of the league used during the campaign against yellow fever on the lapel of the President's coat.

The demonstration at the luncheon at the St. Charles Hotel following a reception by the Governor and his staff and the women's clubs, was scarcely less exuberant than his reception in the streets has been. When the President entered the superbly decorated dining hall the 625 banqueters rose and gave vent to frantic cheering. Every reference to him by Gov. Blanchard, Mayor Behrman, and President Sanders of the Progressive Union brought forth a perfect storm of cheers, and when the President rose he had great difficulty in speaking. Every thought he uttered was the signal for an extraordinary exhibition of enthusiasm, and as his speech dealt almost entirely with local subjects and had special reference to the fight against yellow fever, the banquet developed into an unceasing ovation.

Gov. Blanchard's Welcome.

Gov. Blanchard in his address said:

"We may not have voted for Theodore Roosevelt, but I say to him in your preaence, and I know with your approval, that nevertheless, being here, he is as much in the house of his friends as though each of us had been his ardent supporter. Nowhere, and among no people, I make bold to say, does he receive, or can he receive, a more hearty and sincere welcome.

"We really like you, Mr. President. We like you both as President and man. As Chief Executive head of the Republic you have done a lot of things that we approve of, and in doing them you have won our esteem, elicited our praise and commanded our admiration.

"You are even now standing for some other things and measures that we are with you on, as to which you have our good wishes, and relative to which we, the Democrats of Louisiana, and I believe generally of the South, wish to see you have the support of the Democratic vote in the two houses of Congress this Winter.

"With us of the South the day of mere political prejudice has passed away. There is not much of this feeling lingering, and what there is will soon disappear.

"We will continue division on political principles, and often on the measures, but when President Roosevelt, good Republican though he be, proposes measures that we feel and believe are for the good of the country, we are going to strike hands with him on them and help him enact them into law."

Gov. Blanchard then praised the President's action in bringing about peace between Japan and Russia, and for his prompt aid in Louisiana's struggle against yellow fever. He added:

"It is said, Sir, that you dream of uniting the two sections of the country in a common impulse, directed to a better understanding and a more generally accepted fraternity. We of Louisiana clasp hands with you on that, and we'll speed the coming day.

"Whatever differences between us the past may have evolved, whatever differences the future may bring forth, they have not lessened, nor can they lessen our admiration for your patriotism, courage, and sincerity. Differences of opinion and thought sometimes bring their compensation in a closer intimacy between sections and men. That, Mr. President, is what has occurred in the case of yourself and the South. We of Dixieland are convinced that your heart has always been right, and your head has not made many slips.

"We forgive and forget. Our eyes are toward the front."

President's Tribute to Louisiana.

President Roosevelt, in responding, said:

"Let me, at the outset, express through my profound gratitude my deep appreciation of the way in which the people of New Orleans and Louisiana have greeted me. Gentlemen, no President of the United States could be greeted as I have been greeted to-day and not go back to take up the duties of his office with a stronger and more earnest purpose to try to represent all the splendid people whom he serves.

"And, Governor, as you have so well said, when a man is President, when he holds any public office, questions of merely partisan character sink into absolute insignificance compared with the mighty questions upon which all good Americans are united.

"And now, gentlemen, as you have greeted me so well, you have given me the opportunity to indulge myself in a luxury. There have been moments in the past when I was afraid of saying how well I thought of the Senators and Representatives in the National Congress from Louisiana, for fear I might damage them. I did not know but that maybe the best service I could do them was to keep still.

"Now I am emboldened by your generous kindness and confidence to say that it has been indeed a pleasure to deal with Louisiana's representatives in the Senate and in the lower house in Congress, because whenever I had to do with a great question of National importance I could go to them convinced that if I could show them it was really for the good of the Nation they would stand for it. [A voice: "Mr. President, you're a brick."]

"Now that's all I ask. Sometimes I could not make them look at things my way; that was my misfortune. But all I had to do was to be able to show them that any measure was for the country's good and I knew they would stand for it. I don't want any Senator or any Congressman to vote for anything I favor just because I favor it, but I don't want him to vote against it just because I favor it. And there were certain very worthy men in both houses of Congress who insistently went against the realization of their most cherished objects in the past as soon as I took them up.

"Now from the representatives of Louisiana I was sure of support, whether it was a question of building up and keeping at a high point of efficiency the United States Navy, or whether it was a question of building the Panama Canal. And, mind you, gentlemen, the two questions go together.

"One thing that, as President of this country, I won't do is to make a bluff that I can't make good. I don't intend, on behalf of the Nation, to take any position until I have carefully thought out whether that position will be advantageous to the Nation, but if I take it I am going to keep it, and I am going to keep it no matter what outsider goes the other way.

No Respect for Brawling Nations.

"And I am sure that you, gentlemen, know it has been an utter mistake to think of me as a man desirous of seeing this Nation quarrelsome, this Nation eager to get into trouble. I have no respect either for the nation or for the individual that brawls, that invites trouble, and I want to see this Nation do as the individual man in the Nation who respects himself should do—scrupulously regardful of the rights of others and honestly endeavoring to avoid all cause of difficulty. But I want on behalf of this Nation, the peace that comes, not to the coward who cringes for it, but the peace of the just man armed who asks it as a right.

"And now, listening to the greeting of the Governor and the Mayor this afternoon, I felt at once very proud and very humble. I have been greeted with words far above my worth; far above what is merited by what I have done. [Cries of "No, no!"] I didn't say that for the purpose of asking your dissent from it. I don't say anything unless I mean it.

"I came down to see this body of men this afternoon with a heart full of gratitude to them for having displayed through the trials of the hard Summer that has passed those qualities of heroism which we like to think of as distinctly American. And, gentlemen, in coming among you this afternoon, I have the feeling of a man who, having been at headquarters, but not in action, goes to see a regiment that has been in action.

"I know that you understand, gentlemen, that the Governor and Mayor, at any time during the past Summer, had but to request my presence, and I would have come down here at once, at any time when I could have been of the slightest assistance to you in the magnificent struggle you were waging.

"And I wish to express the profound appreciation and gratitude of all Americans toward you, our fellow-Americans, who have borne the heat and burden of the contest during the long day that has been passing. And I want to say that in actual war there can be no greater and more effective heroism than was shown by those who stayed here at their posts and by those who, being away, came back to aid in the fight of their fellows in distress.

"We should indeed consider ourselves fortunate as a Nation that forty years after the civil war we find all our people can challenge as their own every memory of valor left by both sides. Now there is but one rivalry, the rivalry to see which can do the most for the flag of the reunited country."

FRAMEWORK STILL SOUND.

Steel and Iron in Old Plaza Hotel as Good as New.

The steel and iron that made up the framework of the Plaza Hotel, at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, which has been torn down to make room for a new eighteen-story hotel of the same name, has been found to be as good as new, although the old building was erected over twenty years ago.

"There is not a scale on those beams and pillars," said D. L. Norris, Superintendent in charge of the building of the new hotel, which will be actively begun next month by the George A. Fuller Construction Company. "If some one wanted to put up a building of the same style and dimensions exactly as the old Plaza Hotel he would not need to buy a single new piece of iron or steel. The old metal is in a state of perfect preservation. However, an entirely new set has been provided for the new building.

"This is not unusual with buildings of steel framework. A hundred years from now the old Plaza would have been as solid and as safe as it was when torn down. A year or so ago I superintended the tearing down and the rebuilding of a part of the Post Office at Dubuque, Iowa, which was put up in 1854. The steel framework was in perfect condition.

"But, as I say, that is not at all unusual. We find that to be the case with steel framework buildings wherever they are torn down. No modern building is constructed on any other plan now."

The wreckers, who are getting out the last of the iron and steel that rose from the original foundation, are not having an easy job. Dynamite is being used to loosen the old iron uprights. In January the new steel frame will begin to rise. The plans provide that the new Plaza shall be completed within a year from January.

RATE CONVENTION SPLIT ON ROOSEVELT PLEDGE

"Railroad Element" Denied Admittance at Chicago Meeting.

POLICE STAND AT DOORS

Faction Led by D. M. Parry Retires to Another Hall and Organizes—Regulars Cheer the President.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—The movement on the part of the shippers and mercantile interests to lend their aid in giving the Inter-State Commerce Commission the power to make and regulate railway rates resulted here to-day in two turbulent and opposing conventions, each asserting itself to be "regular."

The Inter-State Commerce Law Convention is the result of an agitation started by E. P. Bacon when the Esch-Townsend bill was first broached. Mr. Bacon sent a circular letter to various boards of trade and commercial bodies, asking them to meet in convention in Chicago. The idea gained circulation that Mr. Bacon's motive was largely political, and he was looked upon as a partisan of the President. This caused many anti-Roosevelt Republicans and others who had various reasons for opposing the President to flock to the standard of opposition, and this element rallied around D. M. Parry of Indianapolis.

As there seemed to be danger that his theory would be defeated in the convention, Mr. Bacon sent out a short time ago a circular letter defining what would constitute acceptable credentials for the delegates. This was nothing less than that each person seeking admission should be compelled to sign a pledge to support President Roosevelt's movement to extend the commission's powers. Mr. Bacon said that this was necessary because he had learned that the railways and other corporations had made arrangements to pack the convention with their own adherents.

On the other hand, Mr. Parry and his friends declare that Bacon found that he was going to be overwhelmed in his own convention, because only a limited number of the men he had invited were prepared to support his ideas. They say, too, that to increase his certainty of controlling the convention he had requested the Governors of States to send one delegate for each Congressional District, but that in spite of this precaution a majority of the extra men thus appointed are opposed to the enlargement of the Commission's powers.

The consequence of all this is two conventions with radically opposed principles met here to-day, each denouncing the other as being composed of interfering usurpers.

The convention subject to Mr. Bacon's call was scheduled to meet at Steinway Hall at 10 o'clock this morning.

The so-called "railroad" faction met at the Auditorium Annex this morning to prepare for an expected conflict with the "regulars" at the hall. Prior to the meeting at the Auditorium Annex coal dealers who are identified with the railroad element met at the Great Northern Hotel, and proceeded in a body to the Annex, where D. M. Parry, President of the National Manufacturers' Association, and other so-called railroad delegates were assembled.

As soon as the coal delegates arrived the question of the mode of procedure to be adopted was raised. Mr. Parry mounted upon a table, and acted as Chairman.

Dunne Offers Police Aid.

"We are advocates of free speech," said Parry, "and we demand our right to be heard. I understand that we are to be deprived of our right to be heard unless we sign a certain pledge. What is your pleasure?"

W. A. Meese of Michigan moved that the delegates go to the convention in a body, and if refused admittance retire to Studebaker Hall, where a second convention could be held. This motion met with some opposition and was laid on the table. A motion that the delegates go as individuals was made and carried. Badges were thereupon distributed, which read as follows: "Inter-State Law Convention; Supervision, Not Commercial Revolution."

Wearing the badges conspicuously, the delegates, headed by Mr. Parry, marched in a body to Steinway Hall. They found the doors guarded by uniformed police to prevent the admission of alleged representatives of the railroads. No delegates had been admitted to the hall except those who subscribed to what the officers of the convention called the "Creed and Articles of Faith," which indorsed President Roosevelt's message.

Mayor Dunne was an early arrival, and he congratulated the officers upon their decision to bar delegates charged with being in sympathy with the railroads.

"I will see that you have all the policemen needed to hold your convention without interference from the railroad lobbyists," said Mayor Dunne, as he was greeted by S. H. Cowan of Texas, one of the leaders in the convention.

Among later arrivals were Gov. Cummins of Iowa and ex-Gov. Larrabee of Iowa. Judge S. H. Cowan received the following telegram from Washington just before the convention was called to order:

Judge S. H. Cowan, Steinway Hall Convention: Hope the convention will resist to the utmost the admittance of any delegate who will not sign the proposed pledge. Let the railroad hired men exhibit their free passes and go home. If they outnumber you by violence go elsewhere and hold a Roosevelt convention.
W. E. CHANDLER.

As the railroad and coal men, led by Parry, neared the portals of Steinway Hall the doorkeeper offered the delegates the pledge already prepared. After looking at the pledge, Delegate Mason said: "I am a regularly accredited delegate and I ask to be admitted."

"You must sign this," replied the doorkeeper.

"I will not do so," returned Mason.

Then one by one the other Parry delegates went to the door and were refused. When the last man had been denied admittance by the doorkeeper, the Parry party went to Studebaker Hall. Nearly 900 delegates assembled in Studebaker Music Hall for a so-called "rump" convention. F. J. Bradley of Haverhill, Mass., was selected as temporary Chairman.

After the appointment of the Credentials Committee the Studebaker Hall meeting took a recess.

Wild Cheers for Roosevelt.

At Steinway Hall, meanwhile, Mayor Dunne, a Democrat, warmly welcomed the delegates who signed the Roosevelt pledge, and ex-Gov. F. T. Campbell of Ohio responded.

"It is unfortunate that the railroad interests attempted to interfere with this convention," he said. "It is a mistake to attempt to combat public opinion. We are here to indorse President Roosevelt's plan of Governmental regulation of railroad rates. I am heartily in favor of supporting him in his present campaign for railroad reform rate legislation. President Roosevelt's demands are reasonable, and it is a mistake to oppose them."

Every mention of President Roosevelt was greeted with tremendous applause. At the conclusion of Mr. Kern's speech the delegates rose in their seats and gave three hearty cheers for the President.

Ex-Gov. S. R. Van Sant of Minnesota said, in part:

"Our fight is an open one and our platform proclaimed to the world. We stand squarely upon that platform and will fight it out upon that line. We are not the enemies of the railroads. We do not stand ready with pickaxe and crowbar to tear up their tracks. Time will demonstrate that we are their best friends. In my opinion they are making a mistake to oppose so conservative a measure as the proposed amendment to the Inter-State commerce law.

"The rate question will not down. It is the paramount question before the American people. It affects every man, woman, and child in the United States."

As to numbers, the two factions were almost even, but the Baconians seemed to be slightly in the majority. All parts of the country were represented, although more Western delegates were noticed in the Steinway Hall meeting than in the other convention.

Two committees to-night are working on two sets of radically different resolutions. One will declare that the panacea for the shippers' ills will be the enlargement of powers vested in the Inter-State Commerce Commission, while the other will declare that to grant such additional power to that body is not only unconstitutional, but would have the very opposite effect upon commerce that the Baconians think it would.

The "regular" convention elected the following officers: Chairman—W. E. Hughes, Colorado; Vice Chairman—John W. Kern, Indiana; Secretary—P. E. Goodrich, Indiana; Assistant Secretary—G. A. Schroder, Wisconsin.

FORAKER ON RATES.

The Senator Says the Evil Is in Discrimination—A Remedy.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 26.—Although confined to his home under the orders of his physician and compelled to cancel several speaking engagements, United States Senator Foraker has been following closely the agitation over railroad freight rates, and gave out a statement to-day relating particularly to the speech mde by Secretary of War Taft at Akron last Saturday night.

"So far as I am aware," says Senator Foraker, "it is universally admitted that in the past many evil practices have obtained, that some of them still obtain; that none of them should be allowed to continue; that an efficient and expeditious remedy should be provided against all of them in so far as legislation can provide. The sole difference is as to whether conferring the rate making power on the Inter-State Commerce Commission is the only or even a necessary remedy. My contention is that it is not necessary, and that of all the remedies that have been suggested it is unqualifiedly the worst."

Senator Foraker contends that shippers do not suffer from excessive rates, or rebates, at this time, and that their real grievance against railroads is for discriminations.

"We undertook to deal with this trouble," says Senator Foraker, "when we passed the Elkins law. In that statute we provided that it should be the duty of the Inter-State Commerce Commission whenever any unjust discrimination was being practiced to institute proceedings in the United States Circuit Courts for an injunction. The Supreme Court of the United States has upheld the validity of this statute. It is familiar to all shippers. If they don't take advantage of its provisions it is their own fault. I think as it stands it covers the whole ground."

Senator Foraker says he will offer an amendment to the law providing that proceedings against railroads are not to be for the benefit of the complaining shipper alone, but for a whole community of shippers.

"These proceedings," says the Senator, "should begin by complaint filed with the Inter-State Commerce Commission, which should conduct only preliminary investigations to the extent of determining whether there is probable ground, and when that point is reached the whole matter should be turned over to the Department of Justice to be prosecuted before the Circuit Court of the United States having jurisdiction in the particular case.

"In this way the cases would be distributed throughout the whole country. Thus we would leave the making of rates in the hands of skilled men, but subject to immediate review upon complaint, by courts skilled in the weighing of testimony, the analysis of facts, and the application of the law."

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH.

Husband Tried to Enter Burning House to Save Wife and Children.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, Oct. 26.—With fire raging on all sides, and a locked door between them and safety, Mrs. Harvey G. Spivey, colored, and her three children were burned to death in their home at 160 Union Avenue, West Asbury Park, last night.

The husband had gone to a store near by to purchase tobacco. Hearing the alarm he saw that the fire was near his own home, and was among the first to reach there. The firemen were unable to enter the dwelling because of the intense heat. Frantic with grief Spivey attempted to rush into his blazing home, but friends prevented him. In less than thirty minutes the house was in ruins.

The firemen found the four bodies in the living room. The skulls of the baby and the eldest girl were crushed, evidently by falling timbers. Coroner Bennett has ordered an inquest, but there is no suspicion of foul play. It is believed that Mrs. Spivey became drowsy and accidentally overturned the kerosene lamp, which set fire to the building.

HEREDITY SAVED HIM.

Enabled "Gentleman Burglar" to Escape a State Prison Sentence.

James B. Thorn, alias John W. Thompson, the "gentleman burglar," who kept the residents of Montclair and the Oranges in fear by his robberies last Summer, was committed to the Rahway Reformatory by Judge Skinner, in Quarter Sessions, at Newark yesterday. Thorn was charged with robbing the home of Adam H. Groel of Orange and the residence of Solomon Wright in Montclair.

In sentencing Thorn, the court declared that a petition signed by citizens of Mercer, Penn., Thorn's home town, besides letters declaring that Thorn was morally irresponsible and a victim of heredity, saved the defendant from a term in State prison. One letter said that one of Thorn's nearest relatives had been a drunkard and another an epileptic.

A petition was signed by more than forty lawyers, including Judge A. W. Williams of Mercer; five bank officials, merchants, clergymen, and others.

POSSE CAPTURES MANIAC.

New Hampshire Fugitive Was Almost Dead from Hunger and Wounds.

ALSTEAD, N. H., Oct. 26.—George Ford, charged with shooting Fred Shortcleeve here Tuesday night, was captured in the woods at Cold Hill to-day. The posse had been following Ford for nearly thirty-six hours. He was thoroughly exhausted from hunger and wounds. He had a broken rib, a fractured wrist, and a dislocated hip, received in his leap from a second-story window of the hotel yesterday morning to escape arrest. One side of his head and his back were filled with birdshot, fired at him by pursuers.

Ford is insane. He imagines that he is the ruler of the earth. Five years ago, he says, he was an inmate of the asylum at Worcester. On Aug. 1, 1904, he was sent to the asylum at Gardner, Mass., from which institution he escaped.

EXPLORED RAIS ULI'S LAIR.

Mr. and Mrs. Larkin Tell of a Trip Into the Anghera Mountains.

On the North German Lloyd liner Prinzess Irene, in yesterday from the Mediterranean, arrived Mr. and Mrs. John Larkin of this city. Mrs. Larkin is said to be the only American woman who has ever visited the Anghera Mountains of Morocco, the home of the notorious Rais Uli.

"We went to both the American and the British Consuls," said Mrs. Larkin, "to get guides to conduct us over the passes to Tetuan, but both Consuls refused to aid us, and even went so far as to forbid our making the journey.

"Finally we managed to engage Maley Ali Ben Ald Essalam, who is much reverenced by the brigands on account of his religion, and who agreed to accompany us. On the way to Tetuan we met a great many outlaws, but we had an escort of twenty-five men, all well armed, and we were allowed to proceed unmolested. I think that the presence of Maley Ali Ben kept us from harm."

SIX DIE IN A FIRE TRAP.

Hotel for Patients at Hot Springs Burns at Night.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 26.—Six bodies have been taken from the ruins of a railroad hotel at Elm and Olive Streets here which was burned early this morning. Those identified are:

Harry Bradley, a waiter; Edward Snyder, a porter; Mrs. Mack, a musician, and A. L. Mann, a railroad conductor, believed to be from Denver.

The hotel was a two-story frame building, and was patronized by invalids and cripples who were under treatment. There was only one narrow exit.

Burglars Make an $8,000 Haul.

Burglars stole more than $8,000 worth of valuables from the establishment of William R. Elfers, silversmith, and Tassi Brothers, mirror manufacturers, in the building at 140 Sullivan Street, some time Wednesday night. From Elfers they stole a large quantity of unworked silver, and from Tassi Brothers $500 worth of diamond glass cutters. The building was equipped with burglar alarms.

Brooklyn's Oldest Woman Dead.

On March 14 she celebrated the one hundred and fourteenth anniversary of her birth with a reception in the Lincoln Mission, 1,699 Atlantic Avenue. The funeral will be held from the mission to-day. The old woman was born in the old town of New Utrecht, and the first part of her life was passed as a slave in the family of Daniel Cortelyou.

MAYOR MAKES 7 SPEECHES IN 40-MILE AUTO TOUR

Cheers and Red Fire Follow His Rapid Trip.

HIS CHAUFFEUR IS WARNED

Policeman Rides Close Behind Thinking That the Speed Ordinance May Be Violated.

Covering fully forty miles by automobile Mayor McClellan last night made a rapid tour of the town and made seven speeches before the most enthusiastic audiences he has addressed in this campaign. Three of his speeches were in Manhattan, after which he jumped to Brooklyn and made four speeches there. Four hours were spent in lively campaigning.

At Terrace Garden, where he addressed a big meeting of the German Democracy, and at the meeting in the old Montauk Theatre in Brooklyn crowds were gathered which taxed the capacities of those big halls. The first two meetings, held in the lower east side, were seething masses of humanity, and crowds followed the automobiles of the Mayor and his convoy for blocks, cheering and setting off colored fire and fireworks.

"There certainly were no signs of apathy in this campaign," was the smiling remark made by the Mayor as, tired from the night's work, he alighted just before midnight at his home in Washington Square.

The first meeting of the night was a Hungarian gathering in the Lenox Assembly Rooms, at 250 Second Street, where Morris Cukor presided. The Mayor arrived there shortly before 8 o'clock, and it was all his chauffeur could do to work through the crowd that was gathered outside. The hall is in the Sixteenth Assembly District, and City Chamberlain Patrick Keenan, the leader of the district, received almost as much applause on his entry as did the Mayor. Judge Newburger and Congressman Sulzer also were there and were cheered.

It took the combined efforts of Capt. Cooney and a dozen policemen to get the Mayor through the lane of humanity into the hall, where he was cheered for nearly five minutes.

No Fear of the Outcome.

"When I took office," said the Mayor, "I promised you that all would have a square deal, and I have kept my word. In this district, so ably managed by our City Chamberlain, there is no question what the outcome will be on election day. While here I also want to give credit to another member of this administration, John F. Ahearn. I want to ask your indorsement of Ahearn for the work he has done for the east side."

From this meeting the Mayor and his escort forced their way through the crowd and traveled as rapidly as the crowded streets permitted to Apollo Hall, at 124 Clinton Street, in City Clerk Scully's Twelfth Assembly District. There another cheering, shouting jam was encountered, with the accompaniment of fireworks. There again it took several policemen to get the party into the hall and the Mayor on the stage. The place was packed to its limit.

"Give it to 'em, George," yelled an enthusiast in the front seat. The Mayor smiled good-naturedly, but others squelched the enthusiast so that he did not repeat the performance.

"I ask you of the Twelfth District to support me for re-election," declared the Mayor, "because I say my administration has made good." The Mayor praised Leader Scully, calling him "Honest Joe."

Promises Municipal Markets.

"I want to talk to you a few minutes about markets," he said. "The people of this section need them. We have given you two small ones, and I believe that the solution of the question of trade upon the streets is the construction of municipal markets that will pay for themselves and bring a revenue to the city. That is what I want to inaugurate if the people are willing to give me another term as Mayor."

From this meeting the Mayor made a flying trip to Terrace Garden, where the big German meeting was in progress. The hall was packed to the doors. When the cheering subsided the Mayor said:

"Having this demonstration of German-Americans in my favor, convinces me that I am fighting in the right. This great mass meeting of German citizens makes me feel that if there ever was doubt as to the result on Nov. 7—and I do not concede there was—there is no uncertainty now.

"I come to you not as a partisan, but as a citizen of New York, as one man to his fellows, to ask you to cast your votes not as Democrats, not as Republicans, but because you are citizens of New York and because you love your city, love its honor, and because you are unwilling that that honor should be besmirched."

The Mayor also said that, if re-elected, he believed in four years more of office he could improve his administration 100 per cent. The other speakers at the meeting included Dr. F. P. Senner, Theodore Sutro, and Magistrate Charles G. F. Wahle.

Policeman Warns Chauffeur.

From this meeting the party started on a long jaunt to the Montauk Theatre in Brooklyn. The Mayor's machine was in the lead, and set a fast pace down Fifth Avenue, with the others a short distance behind. At Fortieth Street a bicycle policeman, noting the pace, started after the Mayor's big car. He got his machine right back of the car, and kept after it for fifteen blocks to see if the chauffeur would let out another link. Finally, at Twenty-fifth Street, the policeman came along side, and told the driver he might get into trouble if we went faster.

Promptly he was confronted with three police badges, one worn by Sergeant Kennel, who was seated with the chauffeur, another worn by the Mayor, and the third by Assistant Secretary Hassett.

"That's where I put my foot in it," said the policeman, about to retire.

"No, you didn't," said the Mayor. "You did just what the city wants you to do."

At the Montauk Theatre the Mayor faced the biggest and most enthusiastic audience of the night. The greeting lasted for several minutes. Controller Grout and Herman A. Metz already had spoken and Patrick F. McGowan was to follow. Finally Francis D. Thorne, the Chairman, presented the Mayor.

"I came here not professing infallibity," he said, "and I will not make a promise I know I cannot keep. But in my two years I have tried to keep this borough, of homes clean, and I have done so. I come to you as an ordinary, everyday American citizen, and all I ask in return is the same spirit of fair play I have tried to give to you. If re-elected I shall keep this borough clean to the end of my four-year term."

The Mayor said his administration had reduced the tax rate in every borough, while at the same time Brooklyn has received 33 per cent. of the appropriations for public improvements while paying only 18 per cent. of the taxes.

"If I am elected—" he said; "No, when I am elected, Brooklyn will get what it is entitled to—a square deal at all times."

While the Mayor was speaking a photographer let off a flashlight. As the circle of smoke went toward the ceiling some one called out:

"There goes Hearst!"

The Mayor joined in the general laugh. From this meeting the jump was to Congress Hall, at Atlantic and Vermont Avenues. Controller Grout was speaking there as the Mayor entered.

"What do you want me to talk about?" asked the Controller. "I am ready to answer questions."

"Gas!" called out one voice. "Hearst!" called another.

"They both go together," replied the Controller, while the Mayor laughted and the crowd cheered.

"Why did we not get eighty-cent gas?" called another man.

"Because you've got a Republican Legislature," replied the Controller. "Give us a Democratic Legislature and we'll give you eighty-cent gas, then seventy-cent gas, and then sixty-cent gas. As long as you have a Republican Legislature you will have to face present prices and pay up-State taxes, too."

The Mayor then appealed to his audience as loyal citizens of New York to uphold his hands and aid him in making the city the best governed city in the world.

From this meeting the Mayor went first to the home of the Lincoln Club and then to the new home of the Iroquois Club, which was opened last night. At both meetings he made brief addresses.

CARL SCHURZ FOR IVINS.

Sums Up the Mayoralty Candidates and Decides He's the Best.

Carl Schurz came out yesterday strongly in favor of the candidacy of William M. Ivins for Mayor. In discussing the Mayoralty campaign Mr. Schurz said:

"Mayor McClellan professes to run on his record. In some respects he has done better than was expected. He is a gentleman of good instincts, impulses, and purposes, but of had associations. Among other things he has made some shockingly bad appointments to important places of power and responsibility and refused to displace the appointees after their utter unfitness had been glaringly demonstrated by evidence.

If Tammany has of late changed at all it is not in its morals, but in its methods of plunder. Tammany men have, according to high authority, recently invented the scheme of 'honest graft,' which, at best, is public plunder so disguised that for it one cannot be sent to the penitentiary. But it is plunder all the same. A Mayor as good as Tammany will permit him to be, is, therefore, a Mayor who, however respectable himself, will leave Tammany plunder enough to live on and make its leaders rich.

"The Hearst movement appears to me to be a political adventure. It reminds me of a certain period in the history of the Roman Republic when reckless demagogy exercised so dire an influence.

"I was a little surprised when Mr. Ivins appeared as the Republican candidate. The party evidently took him only under the pressure of extreme distress. Otherwise he would have been among the last men any purity machine would have chosen or submitted to as its candidate. He will, if elected, not be as good a Mayor as some boss or party organization will permit him to be; but, acting upon the promptings of his very nature, he will be the most independent Mayor the city has ever hed.

"I am confident, if the citizens of New York wish non-partisan municipal government, Mr. Ivins, if elected, will furnish it to them in the most genuine form."

NEW POOLROOM SCHEME.

Pocket Telephones Used to Baffle Police—Two Dey Street Raids.

Acting Captain Costigan and Roundsman Maher led a force of raiders against two alleged poolrooms at 53 and 63 Dey Street, near Church Street, yesterday afternoon. They broke in with crowbars and axes. One of the places raided was visited by the police only a few days ago.

In spite of that fact the police found 187 men in what has been called "the blue and gold room." In the other place 170 men were gathered. One floor was fitted up for those who bet $2 or less and on another floor no wager of less than $5 was accepted.

In the first place raided no telephone was found, and Costigan said that a new scheme is being worked. A man has a wire put into some respectable place in the vicinity, he declares, and after tapping the wire runs it into his poolroom to a hidden spot. Then he fastens a pocket telephone to the tapped wire.

Iron doors and barred windows met the raiders at both places, and although they had men inside, getting in was a difficult job. The names of all in both rooms were taken. Eight prisoners were carted away in a patrol wagon.

EVIDENCE AGAINST FIREBUGS.

Bedford Authorities Will Try to Have Rich Suspects Indicted.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Oct. 26.—It was decided by the authorities at Bedford today to try to get indictments against a young man with well-to-do parents and the son of a prominent politician who are suspected of setting fire to ten barns and other buildings.

Pinkerton men disguised as farm hands have been collecting evidence against the two suspects, and this was turned over to District Attorney Young at White Plains to-day by Police Justice Clarke. It is said that the social standing of one of the young men kept the Bedford authorities from swearing out a warrant against him, but instead it was determined to have the Grand Jury investigate the case.

MARION McHARG INJURED.

Broker's Daughter Jumps from a Gig In a Runaway.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 26.—Miss Marion McHarg, daughter of Henry K. McHarg, a broker, whose offices are at 40 Wall Street, New York, was hurt in a runaway here this afternoon. Miss McHarg came from New York, and her coachman was at the station with a gig waiting for her. As Miss McHarg stepped into the vehicle the horse wheeled suddenly and dashed down a hill.

Miss McHarg seized the reins from the coachman, and tried to stop the horse, but couldn't. The coachman was thrown against a stone wall and Miss McHarg sprang from the vehicle. She was picked up unconsolous and taken to her home. Dr. Barnes said she was not seriously injurel, but was suffering from shock.

A postponement for several days of the trial of Harry Leonard, the bank messenger charged with stealing $360,000 worth of securities from the National City Bank, by means of a forged check, was agreed on by both sides yesterday when the case was called before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions.

M'CLELLAN TAX FIGURES DO NOT SUIT MR. IVINS

Rate Higher and Taxes Actually Greater, He Declares.

PRAISES MAYOR'S QUALITIES

But Says He Hides a Temple of Iniquity—Gov. Higgins Wishes Mr. Ivins Well.

There was great gratification at the headquarters of William M. Ivins yesterday over the receipt of this letter sent by Gov. Higgins from Albany on Wednesday:

"Hon. William M. Ivins, New York City:

"Dear Sir: Please accept my hearty congratulations upon the vigorous and effective campaign you are making, and my best wishes for your success. Yours sincerely, FRANK W. HIGGINS."

Mr. Ivins addressed more than 1,000 persons last night at Progress Hall, 28 Avenue A. Speaking of Mayor McClellan's administration, he said:

"What's the good of success; what's the good of education; what's the good of good manners if you have to take a lesson every day from one of the greatest grafters in the United States?

"I have no more doubt of McClellan's impeccable honesty than I have that by education and by every quality he is a gentleman. But he lends those qualities to hide the worst organization of plunderers America has ever known. Mr. McClellan is simply a splendid façade to the great temple of iniquity. It is through the elegant manners and gentlemanly bearing of McClellan that Tammany expects to slip into power again."

Mr. Ivins addressed several other meetings on the east side, and then went over to Brooklyn. The members of the Union League Club of that borough gave him a reception at their clubhouse. In his speech to the members of the club and their guests, Mr. Ivins said:

"Brooklyn's need of a water supply is far more urgent than that of Manhattan. Neither Manhattan nor Brooklyn wants any politics in its water."

Next he took up the matter of the bridges, contending that the present administration had failed signally with respect to the building of the bridges between the two boroughs. With respect to the contention of Mayor McClellan that the tax rate had been decreased under his administration, Mr. Ivins said:

"One of the things that surprises me in the present campaign is the contention made by Mr. McClellan and his supporters that he has decreased the tax rate. Now, the fact is the rate, considered alone, is a very unimportant matter. The really grave question is, Are we paying more or less actual money in the form of taxes? My asscrtion is, and it is supported by the figures of the Tax Department, that not only has Mr. McClellan increased the tax rate in each of the horoughs, but he has also tremendously increased the taxes actually exacted from the people by his government.

"During Mr. Low's first year the actual taxes were $88,230,000, and the rate 2.27 and a fraction. During 1903, the last year of the Low administration, through an honest appraisement of taxable values, the rate was reduced to 1.41, being the lowest rate ever reached since 1890. Now, this mere reduction of the rate would have amounted to nothing if it had not been accompanied by a reduction in the taxes themselves, and the fact is that in 1903, the second year of Mr. Low's term, the taxes were only $77,632,000.

"Now, in 1905, the second year of Mr. McClellan's administration, the money actually paid by the people rose to only $15,000 short of $89,000,000, and the rate for the present year in Manhattan is 1.49, as against 1.41 three years ago. I take only the figures for the second year of each term, because the Mayor is not responsible for the figures of the first year."

SPEAKS TO WOMEN OF IVINS.

Mr. Wells Addresses the West End Republican Club.

The West End Women's Republican Club, thus far the only women's political organization to take an active part in the campaign, held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Astor. Nearly 200 women had come, expecting to hear a speech from William M. Ivins and Charles A. Flammer. Both sent regrets. The non-appearance of the candidate for Mayor was especially disappointing to those present.

James L. Wells was sent for. He came and devoted most of his speech to detailing the desirable qualities of Candidate Ivins.

Among other things, Mr. Wells said:

"Our candidate for Mayor asserts some things even more positively than they are contained in the Republican platform. In the nature of his nomination he was privileged to assert his own views. He has said that he was not the creature of any boss, and was subservient to no boss. No one could go further in announcing the principles of good government than has Mr. Ivins."

Mrs. Helena Secor Tonjes presided.

Ready-for-Service

Suits and Coats for Men

DISTINCTIVE FALL AND WINTER MODELS

Fifteen to Forty Dollars.

The product manifests the principle involved—not the method. The to-orderman is right in principle. To insure perfect proportions a garment must be cut and tailored individually.

In the fashioning of our ready-for-service garments we subscribe ourselves to his principle.

But instead of leaving the vital part of the work to a free-lance—to a tailor who serves this master to-day and another to-morrow, we depend upon our own organization of tailormen, each of which is a specialist in some given phase of the craft, constantly applying himself to its perfection.

That promises a unity of purpose. Whether a garment of ours cost $15. or $40, it must express that element of character and distinctiveness that is the manifestation of the to-order principle.

There is still another powerful factor in our favor—the cost. Your to-order tailorman's method compels him to ask at least a third more than our modest prices.

THE ISSUE, JEROME SAYS, IS MURPHY OWNERSHIP

As to Flammer—He's Brave, Courteous and Generous.

SAW HIS DUTY AND DID IT

A Rap at the U. S. Senate—District Attorney Anti-Nothing Now Except Anti-Boss.

"The real issue of this campaign is not municipal ownership, but Murphy ownership," remarked District Attorney Jerome last night, and more than two thousand residents of the upper east side who had gathered in Bohemian National Hall to listen to his speech cheered lustily.

It was the first time in the campaign that an address in a foreign tongue has been made at a meeting attended by the candidate himself. The district is largely Bohemian, and President Thomas Capek of the Slavic Alliance told his countrymen in their native language how to mark their ballots for Jerome. In doing so he used the name of Hearst with such frequency that some of the non-Slavic listeners began to suspect him of putting in a few licks on the quiet for the head of the Municipal Ownership ticket. This was denied, however, by those who knew.

Faithful to his promise, Mr. Jerome took up the resignation of Mr. Flammer.

"Something has occurred in the last twenty-four hours that calls for my comment," he said. "It is the action of Mr. Flammer, formerly a Justice, and a respected Justice, in this city. He had always been closely affiliated with the National party he supported, and he consented to run as its candidate, doing this because he believed it to be a party service, and doing it because, as I understand, it seemed to him that in this campaign there were no other issues but those between one party and the other.

"But as soon as it appeared to him that there had come into this campaign a moral issue transcending the questions of National political lines—the issue whether a free people should have its way, or the boss his—then, like a brave, patriotic, generous man, he withdrew in my favor; not because he was not willing to give those named against him a fight for the office to which he had been nominated and which he had accepted; but because it seemed to him a patriotic duty to yield to the express will of the people. It was a brave act." [Prolonged applause.]

"He's all right," put in a man in the gallery, and the audience cheered some more.

"It was a generous and courteous act," Mr. Jerome resumed, "and he should receive his meed of applause at the hands of everybody who appreciates a generous act dictated by a high motive. When it was felt throughout this great city that something was at stake beyond a mere question of candidates; when it was felt that the real and vital issue was whether we should be free, or whether, like most of the great communities in this loved land of ours, we should be under the foot of a boss, then he yielded to your will.

"And he yielded not because he feared my candidacy, not because he feared that at your hands he might get less votes than I did, but from a high and patriotic motive, a motive that does him honor. Not that my candidacy, or that I, was of such importance. It makes little difference in the battle what becomes of the standard bearer, of the soldier who carries the flag. But that the colors of liberty and of government by the people be advanced, if only a single step, is the vital and important thing."

Attacks the United States Senate.

Subsequently Mr. Jerome paid his compliments to the present United States Senate. He led up to this by speaking of the old days, when even the comparatively insignificant members of that body were men who would have received the votes of their constituents had the Senators been elected by popular suffrage.

"But look at it now," Mr. Jerome cried. "Who would insult the American people by saying that a majority of the present United States Senators represent the free choice of that people? Who would insult the imperial State of New York by saying that those who now represent it in the Senate are the free choice of its people? Look from State to State, and you will see that the man of each in the Senate is a man who has bought the seat—and seats for that body are practically sold at the block like cast-off and maimed fire-horses are sold at public auction to the highest bidder. And that is what popular suffrage has come to."

Referring to the Tammany and Republican City Conventions, Mr. Jerome said:

"The party to which I belong in National politics sat in convention assembled, while the band played 'Tammany' and other popular airs. But down stairs sat the boss and his little kitchen Cabinet and decided whether you should be permitted to have your will or be compelled to obey his. Did it differ in the Republican Convention? 'Smooth Ed' went into the Executive Committee and they pulled and hauled, and at the proper psychological moment they, too, gave orders to the great, free convention of the party.

"In my four years in office I have gone to Albany a number of times during the session of the Legislature. It has interested me intensly to note the low tone, the debased talk, the lack of moral perception, the lack of willingness to live up to principles, or to have any principles. It is sickening and saddening."

Not Anti-Anything Except Anti-Boss.

The declaration that set the meeting wild with enthusiasm was this: "As I have played no favorites in my office, so I am playing no favorites in this campaign. I am not anti-Democratic, not anti-Republican, not anti-Hearst, not anti-anything except anti-Boss."

As usual, the sharply accentuated "it" in connection with Mr. Murphy's name played a conspicuous part in Mr. Jerome's discourse.

"Do you think," he asked at last, varying his customary question, "that the boss is in the game for his health? That he is not out for the 'mazuma'?"

Here are a few of Mr. Jerome's remarks:

"The black hand, the polluted hand, that can touch the judicial ermine, has certainly power to reach the Tax Assessor and the Tax Commissioner as well. And it seems to me that it has already reached out to take possession of the Board of Estimate—the most important body in the government of this city."

"The old brutal doctrine that has degraded the Democratic Party through all the hundred and odd years of its existence—the old brutal doctrine that 'to the victors belong the spoils.'"

"The hand which disdains nothing between a simple clerkship in the lowest court of trial up to a Supreme Court Justiceship can certainly reach your civil service. And has it not already done so? [Pointing to the policemen scattered through the hall.] You men in uniform, you know. You know how many a man, a candidate for promotion, being in the time and willing to graft, has had his papers over night."

His references to James W. Osborne were brief and apparently made under the influence of deep emotion.

THE RISING JEROME WAVE.

What a Republican Straw Vote Showed—Grand Juryman's Tribute—Letters.

According to information which drifted into Jerome headquarters yesterday and was verified by some interested citizens, a straw ballot was taken in the West Side Republican Club on one of the first days of this week, when fifty members were present. The count proved that forty-six had cast their ballots for Jerome, and the other four for—Osborne.

Jacob A. Riis sent a card to Mr. Jerome yesterday, with this brief message: "Good luck in you fight."

Gigantic posters containing enlarged fac similies of the official ballots, and designed to instruct the public how to vote for Jerome appeared on all the signboards in the city yesterday. At the bottom, printed in foot-high letters, the posters said:

A cross before Jerome's name and a cross in the circle under your party emblem is a vote for Jerome and for the rest of your party ticket. Don't spoil your ballot by drawing a line through any name.

A constantly increasing number of visitors has had this question to ask:

"If I put a cross in the circle above Jerome's name and do not otherwise mark the ballot, will that elect Jerome?"

"It will," has been the invariable answer. "But only Jerome. How about your party?"

And always as invariably these callers have rejoined: "Bother the party—all I care for now is to see Jerome elected."

It was even said yesterday by a person familiar with Tammany matters that this spirit was giving more trouble to several Tammany leaders than anything else, and that some of these leaders have sent out men to instruct the disaffected how to vote for Jerome and the rest of the Tammany ticket with the exception of Osborne.

"I have been a member of the Grand Jury," said a man who went to the Gilsey House yesterday to give Treasurer Corwine a check for $50, "and the manner in which Mr. Jerome conducted the business of his office before that body satisfied me that he is the proper man for District Attorney."

"All the men in my business with whom I come in contact intend to vote for Mr. Jerome," explained a Broadway merchant as he handed in his check for $10. An official of the German Savings Bank forwarded $38 on behalf of his associates in that institution. Here are some cullings from yesterday's letter bag:

From the editor of a trade paper: "I am a Republican. There are thousands that feel as I do toward Mr. Jerome and will vote for him."

The Rev. J. H. Hobbs, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Jamaica: "You are certainly the man for the crisis. If I had the votes or the money, you should be re-elected by a handsome plurality."

From a Pine Street lawyer: "All reputable and unprejudiced persons will surely regard the re-election of Jerome as a menace to evildoers, a shield and protection to the community as such, as well as a just reward for his efficiency, fearlessness, and, above all, his unquestioned integrity."

From a man in Newark, N. J.: "Jerome is the one bright spot in the present campaign."

JEROME WALKING DIRECTORY.

Why You Should Vote for Him Explained by Sandwich Signs.

Twenty-five men, carrying signboards on tall poles, started early yesterday morning from the headquarters of the Jerome East Side Volunteers. Walking in solemn procession ten feet apart, they made their way up and down the east side streets below Fourteenth Street, followed everywhere by a cheering train of children and causing the grown-ups to stop and read.

Each sign had an inscription in English and another in Yiddish. Some of them were:

Jerome for mine.
For decency's sake, vote for Jerome.
We need Jerome as much as he needs us.
Jerome is square; you be square on Election Day.
Of course the boss is against Jerome; do you blame him?
Most honest men are for Jerome; all grafters are against him.
Jerome in, red lights out; Jerome out, red lights in.
No Committee of Fifteen is needed when Jerome is in office.
Wanted—130,183 citizens loving bossless freedom; apply at the polling places on Nov. 7.
It's the people's fight; Jerome simply leads it.

RAND FLAYS OSBORNE IN A JEROME SPEECH

Asks Him for "Plain, Common Garden Decency."

DECLARES HE IS UNFIT

Accuses Him of Ingratitude—"Didn't That Rotten Stuff Leave a Bad Taste?" He Inquires.

Before an audience that packed the concert hall in Madison Square Garden William Rand, Jr., District Attorney Jerome's chief assistant, took up the cudgels last night for his chief and whacked those who had attacked him, principally James W. Osborne, Tammany's candidate for District Attorney.

Mr. Rand uses the same sledge-bammer style of oratory that Mr. Jerome does, and he was applauded vigorously, especially when he said:

"Now, I appeal to that Osborne that God made and not to the candidate that Murphy made—tell us, when you cleansed your bosom of that rotten stuff against your friend, didn't it leave a had taste in your mouth?"

The audience cheered for a full minute at this, and did it again when he commented on the fact that Osborne had criticised Jerome for not indicting the Directors of the New York Central Railroad, and said:

"The statute hasn't run against that crime. And now I ask you, Osborne, if you are elected, will you present the names of J. Pierpont Morgan and Chauncey M. Depew and all the rest of them to the Grand Jury for indictment?"

Mr. Rand's Speech.

Mr. Rand was introduced by ex-Justice William N. Cohen and began by saying:

"If I needed heart in the cause for which I speak to-night, your Chairman's flattering words and your kind greeting would put it into me. But here is a cause in which every man who loves his city, in which every man who respects a public office that makes for righteousness must have heart. And were I dumb I do believe the issue that is presented here to you would break through the seal that Providence had put upon me and make me speak. [Applause.]

"When our fathers founded upon this continent a Government dedicated to the proposition that all men are created free and equal they contemplated a state of society in which public servants should be directly responsible to the people alone. But it is a far cry since that day, and in the meantime in our large cities the old ship has drifted and beat away from her moorings, until now, unless you assert yourselves, unless you win your freedom, you live in a state, not of political liberty, but of political bondage. Now, that is something that every one of you knows to be a fact; that is something you have spoken about in your homes; something you have spoken about in your clubs, at your office, wherever intelligent men meet together; they know that in this town a conspiracy exists to rob the people of their suffrage.

"They know in their hearts that it makes no more difference whether you have a Republican District Attorney or a Democratic District Attorney than whether you have a Republican crook or a Democratic crook. The point is, you want an honest, able District Attorney, whatever party label he wears. [Cheers.] There is no need discussing that any further. Everybody knows it, everybody has known it for years; but there is only one candidate for public office who ever dared to come out and say it, and build all his hopes of future usefulness upon the truth of that proposition, and that is William Travers Jerome. [Applause.]

Jerome's Ambition.

"When I went to him last Spring with my resignation I asked him: 'Why is it that you want four years more of this same office? Haven't you had enough of standing and looking into the open sewer of human depravity? Don't you want to get out and breathe an atmosphere that is away from crime and perjury, and all that crime means?' His jaw set, and a light came into his eyes. He said, 'I will tell you, Rand, what I want to do. I know my office has been clean; I know my office has been effective, but I want to make it more clean, and I want to make it more effective; I want to make it so clean, so effective, so well organized for good in this community that District Attorneys will come from the Pacific Coast to look at my office, and see how a District Attorney's office ought to be run.' Isn't that an honorable ambition? Don't you want to gratify it?

"Murphy and Odell defied it. They say 'You can't.' They say they won't permit you to re-employ this honest, faithful servant. What are you going to do about it? Are you going to stand for that gag put upon your wishes? I can't believe it; I don't believe it; I won't believe it until you tell me so.

"Now this ruler of old New York, the man who seeks to impose upon you his will in the choice of a District Attorney, he, unfortunately, is dumb, or has been ever since he made his one speech. [Laughter.] But he has a man to waive his arms and swing his jaw and talk for him, and he puts up as a shield between himself—because he intends to be District Attorney himself, you know, in point of fact—he puts up between himself and you our good old friend, James Osborne. Now don't laugh; there is nothing to laugh at.

"Osborne has been and is a brave and effective and fearless prosecutor. I would gladly call him honest, but he appears to resent that so, [laughter,] and whatever I say here to-night I trust I may offend no one, for such is not my intention. He thinks to call him honest is tantamount to calling him a fool. He has given you the measure of his conception of a public officer's duty in his impudent declaration that all he can say is that if Jerome did not take the stuff when he had a chance he was a fool.

The Kind of Fool He Was.

"Oh, yes, yes, by that standard he is a fool. He has been a fool to leave his office, for leaving himself as poor as the day he entered it. He has been a fool to let get by him the chances that come up every day in that office to take dirty and dishonest money. He has been a fool to keep his latchstring out both day and night for the humblest suitor for justice. He has been a fool to prosecute the Secretary of the County Committee of a great party on the eve of that party's convention, though he well knew what that would mean to him, simply because his oath of office required him to do it. [Applause.] He has been a fool to run his office according to his oath without turning aside from his duty, without fear or favor to race, party, or creed. Oh, yes, he has been that kind of a fool, and you love him for his folly. [Applause.]

"Now, the only man, the first man to attack Jerome's record in office is James Osborne, and James Osborne ought to be the last man to do it, and I will tell you why. In the campaign four years ago Osborne went on the stump for his job. It was a pretty interesting campaign; you will remember pretty hard things were said, some of them by Mr. Jerome himself; but Osborne went out of his way to make a coarse and bitter personal attack on William Travers Jerome, who was elected by the people of New York to serve a four-year term as District Attorney.

Calls Flammer Brave.

"Now, according to all the ethics of the game as they play it in Fourteenth Street, Osborne should have lost his job, and he did not want to lose it. He did not like to face the possibility that I face now—the probability of going out into a cold, hard world and waiting for clients. He was, as they say on the football field, a hit line-shy. Jerome saved his job for him because he knew he was able, he knew he was effective, and he believed he was straight, and it made no difference whatever to him that Osborne had attacked him. He kept Osborne there a year and a half more, until finally Osborne got his courage up and went away.

"He tells you himself that he is the only man who has been in that office in fifteen years who knows how to try a case, and when he left we were sorry to have him go, because we were conscious of that, and we looked forward to the future with forebodings and with dread, but we worried along. The wheels of justice have not altogether stopped. Now, will you tell me, after that treatment of Osborne by Jerome—and he has not stopped there; there has never been a chance that he had to say a word for him, to send him a client; there has never been a chance he has missed to help Osborne in his career to the limit of his power—now, will you tell me who in the City of New York should be the last man to attack William Travers Jerome? It is not a question of manners; I would not try to teach manners to Gentleman Jim; that would be to gild the lily or add a perfume to the violet. It is not a question of taste; it is a question of plain common garden decency.

Did It Leave a Bad Taste?

"Tell us, Osborne—I appeal to the Osborne that God made, not to the candidate the Murphy made—tell us when you had cleansed your bosom of that rotten stuff, didn't it leave a bad taste in your mouth? [Laughter.]

"Now, Osborne says that Jerome is not personally corrupt. [Laughter.] For this relief much thanks. [Laughter.] His grievance against Jerome is that he is totally inefficient. Brave words! Good, hard indictment there. Totally inefficient! Now, will you bear with me just a few minutes? Let us see about that. Star cases do not count. The big cases—they are a great hindrance to the work of our office. They take up the time of the court; they take far more attention from the professional staff and from the clerical force than their importance entitles them to. They are simply clogs in the running calendar of daily business."

Mr. Rand then said that when Mr. Jerome entered office he inherited 861 pending indictments, that by the end of the first year he had not only kept tab with the new business but he had reduced the standing calendar of indictments by more than 400 cases, so that there were only 450 cases left at the end of his first year, and that he had got the calendar down to 380 cases.

"Not totally inefficient," said Mr. Rand. "Some one has been working there."

Mr. Rand was applauded when he said that the average time between a man's indictment and the time he leaves for Sing Sing or leaves for home was now six days. He added that District Attorney Gardiner had 167 forfeited recognizances or bail bonds, and from them collected $10,000. In this last year, Mr. Rand said, there have been only 140 forfeited bail bonds, but $65,000 had been collected.

Mr. Rand then took up the New York Central tunnel case. He said Mr. Jerome believed that the tunnel was a public nuisance and had asked the Grand Jury repeatedly to bring in a true bill against the Central, but the Grand Jury had refused. He could not, Mr. Rand said, ask that a bill for manslaughter be brought in because the lights on the day of the accident were plainly seen by the fireman in the cab. Mr. Rand continued:

"Now, what a cheap play it would have been, with all the newspaper clamor that there was, to pick out J. Pierpont Morgan or Chauncey M. Depew or some other big officer of that company and indict him! That is what an ex-District Attorney would do who was careless of his oath of office and was courting simply an ephemeral popularity. Jerome was careful there.

"If Osborne is sincere in what he says we will give him a chance to prove it. The statute has not run against that crime of manslaughter, if any such crime was committed. Not a witness is dead, not a witness has run away. Every bit of that evidence is down in the safe in the District Attorney's office, easily procurable. Now, tell us, Osborne, if you are elected District Attorney, will you present J. Pierpont Morgan and the other Directors of the New York Central to the Grand Jury for indictment? [Applause.]

"He complains of the Darlington case. He says a building fell down and we haven't punished anybody. That is true. The owner was indicted, but he thought he would not wait. [Laughter.] He ran away. I tell you, Osborne is a great detective; we all agree to that. After he has found out where Charley Murphy got it let him put his energies to work and bring back that defendant in the Darlington case."

Mr. Rand then took up the Slocum case, answering Mr. Osborne's arguments much as Mr. Jerome has done. As an instance of Mr. Jerome's work against powerful interests be mentioned "a blood-sucking policy man." Then he took up Canfield and said:

"Which of Jerome's predecessors ever dared touch Richard Canfield? He was a powerful criminal; he was a rich criminal. Jerome brought him down, made him plead guilty to being a common gambler, and put him out of business. Now, total inefficiency that is, is it? [Applause.]

"Osborne asks you to believe that he is the kind of a man who can conduct that office with sanity and judgment in your interests. Don't these very accusations made without proof, without knowledge of what he is talking about, simply for the purpose of catching a stray vote here and there, don't they show what all who know Osborne know to be the fact; that brave as he is, able as he is, that in no way is he mentally fit to be District Attorney of this county or any other?

Mr. Rand declared that Osborne, if elected, would simply have to hand his pay roll over to Murphy. He expressed his belief that the voters would prefer Jerome, "that able, honest, and efficient servant whom all good men honor and all bad men fear."

In introducing Mr. Rand, ex-Justice Cohen said of Mr. Jerome:

"Therefore, rally about him and stand by him close and to the very end. In the light of the fires of victory on election night we shall see the guilty tremble and honest men rejoice, and we shall also see a rotten machine crumble before the wrath of a patient and long-suffering people, and other odious machines elsewhere in the land shaken to their foundations."

Deputy Assistant District Attorney Francis B. Lord and Abram I. Elkus also spoke.

MR. HEARST PROMISES THE CITY 55-CENT GAS

Brooklyn Crowd Also Cheers His Thrusts at the B. R. T.

FINDS A POLITICAL TRUST

Audience Hisses McCarren When the Candidate Calls Him One of Its Agents.

William R. Hearst made a whirlwind tour through Brooklyn last night and at the Clermont Avenue Rink faced an audience that packed that biggest of all meeting places in the borough. He received a tremendous ovation. Mrs. Hearst went along with her husband and witnessed the demonstration that followed his appearance on the platform.

The audience, which numbered at least 5,000, waited patiently until long after 10 o'clock for Mr. Hearst to arrive. As many more attended the overflow meetings in the street.

It was apparent at a glance that the audience was made up largely of workingmen. Several labor organizations had paraded to the hall with bands of music.

The appearance of Mr. Hearst on the platform was the signal for a tremendous outburst of cheering. The first demonstration lasted ten minutes. Then a band in the gallery struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner." The audience jumped to its feet and sang. Mr. Hearst stood bowing and smiling.

"I thank you for this hearty welcome," said Mr. Hearst when quiet finally was restored.

"Don't mention it; you have done as much for us," cried a man in the audience.

Mr. Hearst sailed in to what he termed a new trust he had dug up since he began to run for Mayor. He dubbed it the "political trust." When he referred to Senator McCarren as one of its agents there was prolonged hissing and booing.

With the exception of the part that had to do with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, and what he would do to that corporation if he were elected, and a promise that he would give the people of New York 55 cent gas, his speech was largely a repetition of what he has said at other meetings. Both promises made a hit. The audience had almost as many hoos and hisses for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit as they had for McCarren.

"A Mayor that wasn't a political trust office boy," said Mr. Hearst, "would proceed through his Corporation Counsel to make the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company live up to the requirements of the law by prosecuting in the courts an action to forfeit the charters of its subsidiary companies unless they complied with the provisions of their charters.

"A very estimable newspaper has quoted me as saying in one of my speeches that I could bring about municipal ownership of gas and traction in thirty days. Of course, I never said that. But some action looking to this could be begun in thirty minutes after I had taken office, and I pledge you that it will be done. If I am elected Mayor I will appoint such a Corporation Counsel and improve your traction situation at once."

Mr. Hearst emphasized at his Clermont Avenue Rink meeting his assertion that there was no confiscation in his programme for municipal ownership.

"We are more strongly opposed to confiscation than any of the other parties," he said. "We are against not only the public confiscation of private property, but we are against the confiscation by private inoividuals of public property."

From the Clermont Avenue Rink Mr. Hearst went to Metropolitan Saenger Hall, Pitkin Avenue and Washington Street, Brownsville. He found it packed to the doors, and at least 1,000 persons outside. The crowd cheered him for nearly ten minutes.

Mr. Hearst said that if he were Mayor and the city could take the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, which it ought to do, he would spend the profits in providing new equipment and bettering the service.

When he left the hall Mr. Hearst was recognized by the crowd in the street and addressed them from his automobile.

Before he went to the meeting at the Clermont Avenue Rink Mr. Hearst addressed 2,500 persons in the Turn Verein Hall at Eighty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue. From there he went to Williamsburg, where he spoke in Liederkranz Hall and Apollo Hall in Manhattan Avenue.

The Hearst party started in automobiles from the Hoffman House a little after 8 o'clock. The first stop was made at the Hearst residence at Twenty-eighth Street and Lexington Avenue, where Mr. Hearst was to join the party.

While the long line of automobiles stood chug-chugging, ready to start, Mr. Hearst with his wife came out of the house and boarded a Lexington Avenue car on which they journeyed to the Turn Verein Hall. There was a big crowd in the street that cheered uproariously as they alighted in front of the hall.

From her automobile Mrs. Hearst witnessed a demonstration for her husband in Williamsburg. Mr. Hearst decided to walk from Liederkranz Hall to Capitol Hall, a distance of only half a dozen blocks. The candidate, with an escort of husky policemen, soon became the centre of a swirling throng of humanity that cheered wildly and pressed forward to get a glimpse of Mr. Hearst.

After Mr. Hearst had gone into the hall a gang of boys gathered around the automobile and begged campaign buttons. One little fellow was particularly persistent.

It happened that there was only one Hearst campaign button in the automobile and that was pinned to Mrs. Hearst's coat. She took it off, leaned out of the car, and put it in the little fellow's hand. He ran off shrieking "Three cheers for Hoist!"

UNIONS AGAINST HEARST MEN.

Denounce Joseph Bermel and W. A. De Groot, Candidates in Queens.

Union men in Queens are up in arms against two candidates on the Hearst ticket who are said to be opposed to organized labor. Resolutions had already been adopted and spread broadcast denouncing William A. De Groot, Hearst's candidate for Assembly from the Second Assembly District of Queens, and yesterday resolutions were adopted denouncing Joseph Bermel, who is on the Hearst ticket for Borough President.

Bermel is a Democrat who was nominated by a Republican convention, and his name was then placed on the Hearst ticket. Since his nomination he has asserted that he is still a Democrat and will vote for McClellan.

A JAPANESE FOR HEARST.

He Is a Distinguished Advocate of Municipal Ownership in Japan.

Dr. Julius Kumpei Matsumoto, a member of the Japanese Parliament, President of the School of Political Sciences, author, and most prominent advocate of municipal ownership in Japan, called at the Hoffman House headquarters of the Municipal Ownership League yesterday and offered his services as a Hearst spellbinder.

Dr. Matsumoto, who is in this country to study the operation of public utilities, will speak at several municipal ownership meetings, beginning to-morrow. Dr. Matsumoto in an interview said:

"The movement for municipal ownership was started in Japan about eight years ago, and I was one of its first advocates. I have always been a firm believer in the doctrine because of its benefits to the people as individuals and as a community. In Yokohama the gas works are owned and operated by the municipality, and are one of the most profitable and valuable assets of the city. In Tokio there is little doubt but that the street railways will be bought and operated by the municipality."

There are few, if any, Japanese voters here. Nor are there any Chinese who have votes. If there were, it is said that they would go to Mr. Hearst, who as an employer of labor is popular among the Chinese in the West.

POLICE NOT FOR HEARST.

In Fact They Dney That They Are Indorsing Anybody.

At their annual meeting, held yesterday at Maennerchor Hall, the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association passed this resolution:

The patrolmen of the City of New York, in meeting assembled, make denial of the statement widely published in the newspapers, that the policemen's meeting of this date, or any other previous date, was called for the purpose of discussing politics or endorsing candidates.

Several of the policemen indignantly denied the report that they had endorsed William R. Hearst, as had been reported:

MUTUAL INVESTIGATION NO WHITEWASH AFFAIR

Possibility of Changes Indicated by Mr. Truesdale.

MORRIS DECLINES TO SERVE

Business Interests of Philadelphia Financier Will Prevent — Trustees Surprised by Revelations.

Effingham B. Morris of Philadelphia, who was appointed on the committee of Mutual Life Insurance Company Trustees to investigate the company's affairs, decided yesterday that his business would not permit him to serve. Yesterday afternoon he sent a letter from Philadelphia announcing his declination to William H. Truesdale, President of the Lackawanna Railroad, who was named as the first member of the committee, and who will probably be its Chairman. Mr. Morris is President of the Girard Trust Company of Philadelphia, and has been distinctly an "out-of-town" Trustee of the Mutual.

His refusal to serve may delay the investigation, but it was learned yesterday that the inquiry is to be no white-washing affair. This information came to THE TIMES from several sources of authority yesterday, and it was substantiated by a statement authorized by Mr. Truesdale. This was:

"I have heard for some weeks talk among certain of the Trustees that the facts which were coming out before the legislative committee made it necessary that there should be an independent investigation of the company. That I was to be in any way connected with this investigation was not known to me, and the information that I had been chosen on the investigating committee came as a surprise.

"I do not want to appear on prejudge the work of the committee. Such an attitude would be obviously improper for one in my position. But I will say that any impression that this committee was intended to be a whitewashing committee or a committee pledged in advance to uphold any officer of the company or any particular set of transactions is an entirely erroneous one.

The Committee's Plan.

"The committee will seek to get at the exact truth in regard to the affairs of the Mutual Life Insurance Company fairly, impartially, and in a judicial manner, and will spare no effort to this end. Having ascertained the facts, it will then determine what changes, if any, are necessary in the organization and management of the company, and will endeavor to have such measures as it may decide upon put into effect, to the end that the Mutual shall be placed on the highest possible plane as a life insurance company.

"At the meeting yesterday nothing was said by any one to indicate a desire to have a whitewashing committee; in fact, such discussion as I am familiar with, either formal or informal in character, has been quite of a contrary nature."

From other sources, the authority of which is beyond question, it is learned that the investigation that has been ordered is the result of a movement that has been in progress among a good many of the older Trustees of the Mutual since President McCurdy testified. These Trustees were greatly surprised to find, for instance, that Dr. Thébaud, President McCurdy's son-in-law, had been making $147,000 a year in commissions out of the company, and that young Robert H. McCurdy had realized more than $100,000 a year from his commissions on foreign business of the Mutual after he left the foreign department. The discussion which started was of none too friendly a character in many quarters, and it may be said that the resolution of investigation was advocated by some of the Trustees rather than more stringent methods only because it was felt that in fairness to the company its own board should sift matters before action was taken.

Some time before Wednesday's meeting of the Trustees it had been decided that a resolution calling for an investigation must be put through. The question then arose as to how this should be done. It was at last determined to allow President McCurdy to offer the resolution that he might be spared the humiliation of having such a move put through at the initiative of others. The fact that there was no discussion at the slimly attended meeting of the board at which the resolution was passed means merely that the whole matter was cut and dried in advance, and that no discussion was necessary. Everybody understood perfectly well what the resolution meant when Mr. Truesdale, Mr. Morris of Philadelphia, and John W. Auchincloss were named as members of the investigating committee.

Who the Members Are.

All three of these men have been disassociated with the "inside circle" of Trustees who, President McCurdy testified, have controlled the Mutual's affairs. As President of the Lackawanna Railroad, one of the richest railroad corporations in the United States, Mr. Truesdale is in a position of peculiar independence as regards his service on any board or committee, for the very great prosperity of the system of which he is the head has made it unnecessary for his road to make alliances with any particular set of banking interests.

Mr. Auchincloss is a member of the cotton brokerage firm of Auchincloss Brothers, at 22 William Street, and has a reputation in the financial community for conservatism and high business standards.

The official account which was given out after the meeting of the Mutual's Trustees on Wednesday omitted an important feature of that gathering. This was a speech of Julien T. Davies, head of the law firm of Davies, Stone & Auerbach, in seconding President McCurdy's resolution. Mr. Davies in this speech, it is learned, declared in no doubtful way his belief that a thorough investigation was demanded, and that an investigation ought to be held which should spare no individual or group of individuals whose conduct as officers or Trustees of the society might become the subject of just condemnation. There was no further discussion, and the resolution of investigation was passed unanimously.

As a matter of fact, the Directorate of the Mutual Life has been divided into two classes for a considerable period. In the first class were the men in most intimate personal associations with the administration, the "inner circle," as President McCurdy called them on the stand. In the other class were those who had accepted the Trusteeship in the Mutual as they had accepted membership in the boards of many other corporations, with the belief that the functions of their office were of an advisory rather than a supervisory character, except as they themselves might be chosen members of committees charged with specific supervisory duties. Some of these men were surprised when printed slips bearing the text of resolutions which the Trustees were to be called on to pass were sent around by mail last Fall for their signature, the idea being that when enough members of the board had voted "aye" the passage of the resolution should be recorded. This incident has remained in the memory of several of the Mutual's Trustees recently when stories of special commissions and confidential legal payments have been told on the witness stand. It may be said also that the wholesale attempt to purchase the publication of "special" news matter in the newspapers was a surprise to the Trustees who are now demanding an investigation of the McCurdy régime.

It is taken for granted that there will be a strong element in the board that will stand behind President McCurdy even though the investigating committee should find facts warranting his retirement from the company.

WON'T GET ARMSTRONG BILLS.

Insurance Committees Cut Out of Legislative Programme.

If the Armstrong committee of insurance investigators prepares any bills—and it is expected that it will—to correct insurance evils, it will not hand them over to the Insurance Committees of the Senate and Assembly, but will introduce them directly to those two bodies. This arrangement is understood to have the approval of Gov. Higgins.

A precedent for this was established in the case of the Gas investigating Committee last Spring. In this instance the decision of the Armstrong committee is of particular importance, as it will have the effect of putting the proposed measures squarely up to the legislators. It is argued that the legislators will thus be relieved from sinister influences that have prevented many insurance measures from getting through the Legislature in the last ten or fifteen years.

Insurance Medical Directors Dine.

Medical Directors representing most of the large insurance companies dined together at the St. Regis last evening. The disclosures of insurance methods which have come out in the last eight months furnished most of the food for discussion. An invitation to the newspapers to report what the medical directors had to say was cancelled soon after they met.

FUND FOR A MAYOR'S DEBTS.

Jamestown's Executive Said a Creditor Coerced Him Politically.

Special to The New York Times.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Every effort of the Republican organization of the First Chautauqua District is being put forth to re-elect Assemblyman Arthur C. Wade, Judge Warren B. Hooker's attorney, to the Assembly. The fight against him is the bitterest that has been made in this county for many years. Among his opponents was J. Emil Johnson, Mayor of this city. This morning announcement was made that Mayor Johnson had consented to preside at a meeting to be held here next Monday evening in Mr. Wade's interest.

Friends of the Independent-Democratic candidate, William L. Ransom, at once waited on the Mayor to know why he had changed front. He told them that he had not changed his opinion, that he believed that Mr. Wade should be defeated, but that, Elof Rosencranz, a political boss and supporter of Mr. Wade, to whom he was under financial obligations, insisted that he should preside at this meeting, and it was for that reason and no other that he consented to do so. He was free to say that Mr. Ransom's friends could inform others of that fact if they cared to do so.

Friends of the Mayor prepared the following subscription paper:

We authorize the following amounts to be paid over to J. Emil Johnson at any time within thirty days, provided a sufficient sum be subscribed and paid by others to discharge the obligations of Mr. Johnson to Elof Rosencranz. We make this not as a charitable contribution, but as a contribution to good citizenship in an effort to relieve the Mayor of our city of his political slavery to Mr. Rosencranz.

The subscription was headed with $100 by Pickard & Dean, attorneys, and the money placed in the hands of Frederick P. Hall, to be paid with others into the hands of the Mayor.

POLICE IN JERSEY ELECTION.

One Man Suspended for Making a Woman Remove Candidate's Picture.

Policeman Edward P. Reilly of the Jersey City force has been suspended by Chief of Police Murphy, charged with compelling a woman to take a candidate's portrait out of the window in her little candy store on Warren Street. Mrs. Grannis and her husband had tried to be nonpartisan, and had hung the portraits of Mayor Fagan and A. M. Henry, his Democratic opponent, in the window.

Mrs. Grannis ran into Chief Murphy's office yesterday to ask why she could not have Mr. Henry's as well as Mayor Fagan's picture on exhibition. She said that Reilly had entered the store, and, pointing to Henry's picture, ordered her to "Take that down and tear it up."

He stood by, she says, while she took it down, and remained till she had obeyed his repeated order to tear it up. The Chief immediately sent for Reilly, and ordered him to report for trial by the Police Board.

It is said that there is scarcely a saloon keeper in the city who is allowed to exhibit Henry's portrait with those of the other Democratic candidates.

STREET CLEANERS RAISED.

And They're for McClellan—Decided So In Advance of the News, They Say.

The Board of Estimate in completing its work on the annual budget, has allowed the Street Cleaning Department a sufficient increase in its annual appropriation to permit better wages to be paid to its employes. The budget will be officialy announced on Monday or Tuesday next week. The provision in the budget is sufficient to allow an increase from $720 to $800 a year for drivers and full Sunday pay to sweepers when called on for work on that day.

Mayor McClellan wrote to Commissioner Woodbury last Spring urging that the increase was desirable. The Commissioner included in his estimates this year an appropriation sufficient to pay the men on the basis outlined. The Mayor has seen to it that these appropriations were not cut.

There was unrestrained glee among the men in the department when the news got out yesterday. A committee from Council No. 2,034 of the Knights of Labor, which is made up of Street Cleaning Department employes, called at Tammany Hall yesterday morning and denied that the men had come out for Hearst. It had been so reported. John Reilly, Master of the lodge, and Thomas French, its Secretary, said the men were for McClellan, and they had adopted resolutions to that effect.

TURNS STATE'S EVIDENCE.

Agnes Renoud's Action in Baby Murder Case Will Cause Delay.

A peculiar state of affairs, which may cause much delay, arose yesterday in the case of Gustav Dinser and Agnes Renoud, who are under indictment for killing the woman's two-year-old daughter. When the prisoners were brought before Judge McMahon to plead no counsel appeared for them.

The man said that Carl Fischer-Hansen was his lawyer. The woman said that Mr. Hansen had also acted as her counsel, but she did not want him. The pleas were then taken, and Judge McMahon issued orders to the Warden of the Tombs not to admit any lawyer to see the Renoud woman without her consent. Hearing of this, Mr. Hansen went before Judge McMahon and asked that the pleas be withdrawn because they had been entered without the usual motions being made.

The court denied the request, but gave Mr. Hansen until next Tuesday to argue any motion he might desire to make. The lawyer then asked that the order forbidding him to see the Renoud woman be rescinded, which the court refused to do. Mr. Hansen announced then that he would take the matter to the Appellate Division on an appeal from Judge McMahon's order. The trial of the prisoners, which was to have begun next Monday, will go over. Back of this trouble lies the fact that the woman has turned State's evidence, and will testify against Dinser.

MERIDEN BRITA CO.

District Attorney had quit them under the persuasion of Odell, Halpin, and others, and the only practical question before them was what they could do to remedy the situation.

Chairman Halpin proposed that the best thing to do was to substitute for Mr. Flammer's name on the ticket that of Mr. Jerome. He dwelt on the size of the Jerome boom, predicting that it would sweep everything before it, and suggesting the advisability of the organization getting in out of the wind and wet. Mr. Halpin was ably seconded by Senator Elsberg, who is managing Mr. Ivins's campaign. Senator Elsberg thought it would be of the greatest benefit to Mr. Ivins if the Republican organization would substitute Mr. Jerome for Mr. Flammer. He predicted that it would mean Mr. Ivins's election.

Then Edward Lauterbach spoke. He is the man who first suggested to the Republican Committee on Vacancies that the nomination for Mayor be offered to Mr. Ivins. In the Republican conference at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, at which Mr. Ivins made his appeal for the indorsement of Jerome, Mr Lauterbach made the principal speech against such action. Twenty-seven of the district leaders stood with him, and when Mr. Ivins came out of that conference he said that the reasons which Mr. Lauterbach and the district leaders who spoke against Jerome advanced for opposing his indorsement had been absolutely convincing to him.

Lauterbach Saw a Light.

But Mr. Lauterbach has seen a great light in the last few days. His political versatility was never better displayed than in the arguments he made yesterday for the reversal of the course which he had so forcibly and eloquently pleaded for.

With the exception of Abraham Gruber, the district leaders who opposed the candidacy of Mr. Jerome at the former conference and in the County Convention said nothing. When the vote was taken on the resolution calling the convention to reconvene at the Murray Hill Lyceum to-night to take action on the District Attorney nomination, Mr. Gruber was the only leader who voted "No." There were some who did not vote at all.

With the exception of Mr. Halpin and those few others who were originally for Mr. Jerome, the leaders wore a very disgusted look at the close of the conference. A group of them was asked for the explanation of the organization's remarkable change of front. "Expediency," said one, and the rest nodded approval. What they said about State Chairman Odell and Mr. Halpin is another story. The word "yellow" figured frequently in their remarks.

Those who urged the reconvening of the convention to get Jerome on the ticket in place of Flammer believed that the accomplishment of that would mean many additional votes for Ivins. They had ascertained, they said, that a large number of Republicans in New York County had made up their minds to vote for Jerome and ignore the Republican city ticket because Jerome had not been put on it. With Jerome on the ticket, it was argued, all those votes would be gained for Ivins. To these arguments the anti-Jerome leaders said nothing.

Gruber Takes to Verse.

Col. Gruber was unable to express himself in prose. His view of the situation was expressed thus:

This world is all a fleeting show,
And soop grim death will jerk us,
So let's be happy while we go,
And all enjoy the circus.

"But what will be the effect of the decision reached by the committee?" Mr. Gruber was asked.

"I think the present condition of affairs will suit the taste of every lover of succotash," he replied.

Ivins Speaks of Flammer.

In a speech at the Brooklyn Union League Club last night Mr. Ivins said:

"The fine public spirit and generosity of Judge Flammer have not only made possible, but compelled the union of all forces who are sincerely opposed to graft in all its forms, whether in public or private station. I welcome that union and the additional strength it will give to the fight against Tammany.

"The District Attorneyship of New York County is a great office, and Judge Flammer, with patriotism, has made it impossible that Tammany should control it."

Mr. Ivins was asked after his speech whether he thought R. Fulton Cutting would come out for the Republican ticket now that the Republicans are to indorse Mr. Jerome. He replied:

"I don't know that I should be expected to know what Mr. Cutting is going to do. Mr. Cutting and I have never met. I seem to have the poorest acquaintance of any man in town with the bosses."

Mr. Ivins commented on the action of Judge Flammer in resigning from the ticket before the result of the conference of leaders at the Fifth Avenue was made known. He said:

"Judge Flammer's action proves him to be dominated by a fine spirit of unselfishness. He was entirely free to do as he pleased and he pleased, after mature and sober thought, seeing no likelihood of his own election, to give every guarantee in his power to bring about the defeat of the Tammany nominee and the election of Mr. Jerome. Whatever bearing it may have on my own candidacy, whether my chances improve or not, it's the dictate of a sound heart and a sane head, and proves Judge Flammer, what every one of his friends has always known him to be; the very best type of a good citizen."

"Do you think that you and Mr. Jerome will speak from the same platform, now that it is the intention of the Republican organization to substitute him for Judge Flammer on the Republican ticket?" Mr. Ivins was asked.

"That depends upon Mr. Jerome. My platform is quite open to him. I am running for the larger and more important office on what I believe to be larger and more important issues. I would welcome him to my platform."

Those associated with Mr. Ivans in the campaign thought that Mr. Jerome certainly would speak with Mr. Ivans out of gratitude for what had been done for him by the Republican organization. They got little encouragement in that belief from the Republican friends of Mr. Jerome who went around to headquarters. The prevailing belief among Mr. Jerome's friends was that he would do as he has done and not speaking from any platform but his own.

"Why should Jerome speak for a Republican platform?" inquired one of his supporters. "If he did so he would alienate thousands of Democratic votes which are now certain to be cast for him. He is under no obligation to the Republican organization. The Republicans laid down to him, not because they have any more liking for him to-day than they had two weeks ago, but to save their own political faces. Besides it is a question just how much value the Republican indorsement will be to Jerome. All of the Republican workers who have been against Jerome all along for reasons of their own and who would have voted for Flammer, undoubtedly will now vote for Osborne and ask all of their followers to do likewise."

The prevailing opinion was that whatever benefit Mr. Jerome would receive from the Republican indorsement would be more from the moral effect of it than from any other source. It would have a tendency to create the impression that Mr. Jerome's fight is practically won, it was said, and that would bring him the votes of that class which liked to be with the winner.

Judge Charles H. Knox, the head of the Tammany Law Committee, said last night with respect to the action of the Republican County Committee:

"If any Republican County Convention shall be reconvened, the resignation of Judge Flammer accepted and an attempt made to substitute the name of William Travis Jerome for District Attorney, such action will be contested by the Tammany Hall Law Committee. We will protest before the Board of Elections, and if the Republicans take the matter into the courts we will make a fight in the courts. The proposed proceeding is clearly illegal. Section 64 of the election law says plainly that the declination of a party nomination filed with the Board of Elections in New York City must be made at least twenty days before the day of election. That made the last day for declinations of nominations for the coming election Oct. 18. I have no idea that the contention of the Republicans will be sustained by the courts."

OSBORNE ON THE WITHDRAWAL.

He Thinks It Proves That Jerome Must Be a Republican.

When asked yesterday evening for an expression of opinion on Mr. Flammer's withdrawal from the Republican ticket, Mr. Osborne said:

"The letter and the action demonstrate the fact that Mr. Flammer considers that he has no opportunity to be elected. It also proves that Mr. Jerome is more of a Republican than he is a Democrat, although at times he has hated a Republican like a rattlesnake."

District Attorney Jerome's reply to this and other charges of Mr. Osborne was:

"To follow the vagaries of my gentlemanlike opponent in his attacks upon the efficiency of my conduct of this office is impossible, and I shall leave it to other hands to be dealt with."

I'M GLAD, SAID HIGGINS.

The Governor Referred to Flammer's Quitting and Indorsing Jerome.

ALBANY, Oct. 26.—When Gov. Higgins was asked this morning what he thought of the resignation of Charles A. Flammer as Republican candidate for District Attorney of New York and his indorsement of Mr. Jerome, he replied, after some hesitation:

"Well, if I were to say anything, I should say I'm glad."

"Do you say that?" was asked.

"Yes," replied the Governor, "I do. I'm glad of it."

SHEARN WON'T WITHDRAW.

Some Influences in the Hearst Party Against a Jerome Indorsement.

District Attorney Jerome will not, as some persons seemed to expect yesterday, receive the official indorsement of the Municipal Ownership League. All doubt on that point was settled yesterday afternoon when Clarence J. Shearn, candidate for District Attorney on the Hearst ticket, emphatically declared that he had no intention whatever of following the example of ex-Magistrate Flammer and giving way to Jerome.

"No, emphatically no," said Mr. Shearn when questioned on the subject yesterday afternoon. "I will stay on the ticket, and as far as I am concerned, I most confidently expect the entire ticket to win. The policy of our movement has been to place men on guard who are friends of the principles we enunciate. Mr. Jerome does not come in that class."

Mr. Shearn being the personal counsel of Mr. Hearst and one of his closest advisers, what he says upon any feature of the Municipal Ownership League's policy may be looked upon as final. While it is known that Mr. Hearst personally, prior to the convention of the league, was in favor of burying any objection he had to Mr. Jerome in order to strengthen the ticket, the proposal of indorsing Mr. Jerome met with decided objection from some of his followers.

EIGHTEEN PAGES.

NOW JEROME CAN BE ELECTED.

It would he altogether futile, we suppose, to ask Mr. OSBORNE, following the fine example set by Mr. FLAMMER, to retire from the District Attorneyship contest and request his supporters and the Tammany organization to vote for Mr. JEROME. But it is a great opportunity that awaits Mr. OSBORNE—the opportunity to do a wise and noble act, to render a greater service to the community than he could possibly render in any other way, and to perform a deed of renunciation and self-sacrifice that would distinguish him for the rest of his life. We fear, however, that he is not quite equal to his opportunity even if the Tammany chiefs would permit him to withdraw from the ticket.

So far as Mr. OSBORNE'S political future is concerned, it would be much better for him to retire now than to be defeated. His defeat by Mr. JEROME has now become quite possible; the events of the next few days may make it certain. We have not hitherto regarded the election of Mr. JEROME as probable. It is hard for an independent candidate running without an organization to beat Tammany in New York County, its strongbold. But the magnanimous act of Mr. FLAMMER puts a new face upon the matter altogether. Unquestionably a large number of Republican votes which otherwise would have been cast for the candidate of the party convention will now in obedience to Mr. FLAMMER'S appeal be transferred to Mr. JEROME. His strength, already very great, augmented by this Republican reinforcement, may easily grow so rapidly in the remaining ten days of the campaign as to bring him out at the head of the poll.

When Mr. JEROME ran as the Fusion candidate in 1902 he received 167,316 votes to 150,184 for his Tammany opponent, Mr. UNGER. The registration in New York County being this year 363,356, there will be at least 345,000 votes cast. Were there only two candidates in the field, 175,000 votes would be required to elect. Mr. FLAMMER'S withdrawal leaves in theory only Mr. JEROME and Mr. SHEARN as anti-Tammany candidates. But unless a way shall be found to remove Mr. FLAMMER'S name from the ticket and to substitute that of JEROME a very large part of the straight Republican vote will be wasted upon a candidate who has declined in advance. It is unfortunately true, also, that several of the Republican district leaders sharing Mr. ODELL'S dislike or fear of Mr. JEROME, will work against him. But he will poll by far the greater part of the intelligent independent vote of the city, and his Republican vote will be very heavy. If Mr. SHEARN should poll even a third or one-half of the vote now claimed for him, the Osborne vote would drop to a figure which would elect Mr. JEROME. The Jerome wave is already running very high. If the public demand for his continuance in office shall broaden and deepen between now and the day of election, as it certainly promises to do, he will win his gallant fight and will have taught the stupid party bosses of this city a most impressive lesson.

The Republicans have the sense to see that they ought to have made Mr. JEROME their candidate. Mr. MURPHY has not yet risen to that stage of enlightenment. But there are thousands of loyal Tammany men who deplore MURPHY'S blunder in not nominating Mr. JEROME, as he was urged to do by very influential men in the organization. There is in all animated nature hardly any creature more stupid than your political boss when he gets into a stubborn mood and defies public opinion. Mr. MURPHY'S mind was shut to the plainest considerations of sound politics. To be sure, Mr. JEROME might on his part have exhibited a little more sweet reasonableness, but a party chief is expected to overlook the idiosyncracies of candidates. It is a part of his business.

At any rate, Mr. MURPHY must now see that he missed a fine opportunity to give the decent part of the community a better opinion of Tammany Hall. The support Mr. JEROME has attracted to himself as an independent candidate is remarkable, for its quality, for its zeal, and for its numbers. Men who have some pride in the good name of the city, and who have a preference for the honest and impartial administration of public justice, with one mind and voice advocate his re-election. But Mr. JEROME'S support comes from no one class in the community. Multitudes of persons of humble estate look upon him as a friend and protector. Those reasons which have so frequently prevailed in bringing about a union of the two political parties to join in nominating for re-election a Judge who has done good service apply with equal force to Mr. JEROME, who with conspicuous ability, impartially, energetically, and in the fear of no man, has done his duty as District Attorney. A vigorous volunteer canvass of the city during the remaining few days of the campaign would win a victory for him, and gain for the city the distinguishing credit of making a choice which it would be a sign of weakness and of folly not to make.

THE RUSSIAN COLLAPSE.

In one sense, and a most important sense, the Russian news now coming in is the most ominous and threatening of all the news about Russia that has appeared. The most ominous and threatening, that is, for the Government of Russia, not for the people of Russia, who comprise a tenth or so of the human race. That a few proud fools should be able to embark their country in a war the disastrous issues of which they were equally incapable of foreseeing and of averting—this, doubtless, was an equally cogent criticism of the individuals and of the form of government under which such individuals were made capable of so much mischief. But when the pereons engaged in the transportation of Russia, and the supply of its cities from its rural districts, unanimously strike work, their action threatens an immediate stoppage of the supplies of the cities. Already, for every inhabitant of St. Petersburg, the question is one of actual subsistence.

Decidedly that is the way to bring home to any people their "political responsibilities." It was only after bankruptcy stared France in the face that LOUIS XVI. convoked the "Assembly of Notables," and afterward revived the States General. Count WITTE, as he is now, has not been called in a day too soon. The only question is whether he may not have been called in several days too late. When distress becomes so general and desperate that a class of workers overworked and underpaid nevertheless conclude that they may as well quit work as to go on working on their present terms, the social outlook is indeed gloomy.

It is the bankruptcy of Russia in public esteem that Russia has to face. And it seems to be equally the bankruptcy of Russia in a more literal sense; the failure of Russia to induce foreign lenders to supply her with the means of going on in her present conditions and with her present organization. When that happens with a private corporation, in a civilized country, the resource is an immediate receivership, for the benefit of creditors. The receiver proceeds to a "reorganization." A reorganization is evidently a necessity for Russia, and in Count WITTE Russia has a friendly receiver, who will proceed with the most tender interest for the holdings of the old stockholders. If anybody can save them, he is the man to do it. But can anybody save them?

TOO MUCH MONEY.

A few days ago we were discussing the whimsical complaint that $800,000,000 of gold was too much to be in the United States Treasury. We dissented only because there is work for each dollar to do, and that no considerable portion of that large sum could be dispensed with unless the Treasury were taken out of the banking business.

A similar reply could hardly be made to the suggestion that there is—or was—too much money in the Pennsylvania Treasury. It is a bad system which piles up State cash by the million when so many Republicans are at large in the neighborhood. The same remark can be made about our own city's finances. Last week it was announced that $50,000,000 of tax money had been collected. It was an embarrassment to the money market to collect it, and its loaning helped to cause the unnatural ease which was generally remarked. Of course the city does not incur $50,000,000 of obligations in any week, nor does it pay out that much money in any such period. For the earlier portion of the year the city runs on credit, and then it collects a year's dues almost at once. From every point of view it would be better if taxpayers were allowed opportunity to discount their taxes on the same terms that the city borrows money in anticipation of its income. A more equable collection and disbursement would be better in every way.

There is nothing to be said in justification of congestion of public funds in official hands. Cities and States ought not to be lenders of money any more than the Treaeury ought to be in the banking business.

FIGHTING ACCIDENT SUITS.

That is an impressive organization of street and steam railway companies which was announced in yesterday's papers, to protect its component corporations against fraudulent suits for damages. Without doubt, there are many such suits. There is a great temptation to bring them, whenever an accident occurs that involves many persons. There is a very great number of potentially dishonest persone, who might "see channels" in an accident in which they were involved, even if not injured. There is also a considerable number of members of the legal profession who have won, and earned, the title of "ambulance chasers," and who are quite ready to prosecute baseless claims by any means, including subornation of perjury. Such prosecutions any honest man, and any honest corporation, if that term bas not come to be a contradiction in terms, would have no choice but to fight.

But how about the other side? In the same papers which contained an account of the formation of tbis impressive "alliance" there also appeared the announcement of an indictment, for subornation of perjury, of an "investigator" of the New York City Railroad. It is familiar knowledge that many more sucb indictments might justly be found, and, if justice were done, might be prosecuted to convictions. It is equally familiar knowledge that it is the "policy" of some of these corporations to fight just claims against them by all, just and unjust, legal and illegal, means, and to pay no damages until the court of last resort has decided that they must pay. Morally, and, indeed, legally, there is no reason for preferring the powerful and fraudulent corporations to the weak and fraudulent claimants and ambulance chasers. Subornation of perjury is a charge which quite as plausibly lies against one as against the other; a weapon which is as freely used against the enforcement of just claims as in the enforcement of unjust claims.

A real and gratifying new departure would be made by the railway corporation which should announce and make good its intention of settling all just claims, on such a basis that they would not be brought into court, and at the same time of fighting all unjust claims to the bitter end. When the policy of fighting is adopted equally against just and unjust claims, honest juries before which just claims are brought cannot be prevented from awarding exemplary damages. In such cases, such juries ought to award such damages. A railway corporation which made a point of justly settling just claims would find its reward when unjust claims were brought before a jury.

SCHOOLBOYS AND CIGARETTES.

A competent investigator, Dr. SHAW of Indianapolis, has found out that of the boy pupils of nine grammar schools in Providence 90 per cent. smoke cigarettes. He says also as one speaking with authority backed up by personal examination that other schools elsewhere are about as bad, and that the habit has laid an appalling hold on American youth beyond anything which the public at large has dreamed of. The small percentage of exempts found by Dr. SHAW not only in Providence but in other places is hardly enough to stand against the practical universality of the habit, so far as our tremendous army of schoolboys is concerned, at least in the cities and larger towns, where such a habit has a chance of escaping the attention it would infallibly receive in the schools of smaller communities. The boys of a country district could not all come home smelling of tobacco without some domestic inquisition into the causes of the phenomenon and a due and unhesitating district agitation thereon to the extent, if necessary, of shutting up the schoolhouse and all the rural tobacco joints and quarantining the boys, birched to a proper mood of penitence, under their respective trundle beds.

The situation is one which seems to challenge public attention and invite some form of correction, though how it is to be applied presents the serious difficulty which Indiana in her robust pioneer efforts against it has already discovered. It has not there been found that severe and radical legislation on the subject, going so far as to forbid the admission of cigarettes into the Commonwealth or their exposition for sale therein or use in any way, has produced the deterrent effects expected of it. The crusade embarked upon with such superheated zeal has in reality left the tobacco question there very much as it was, those, young and old, who wish to smoke the weed en papillotte finding no difficulty in obtaining it. If corrective efforts in this direction are to have any value, it would appear that they must proceed along different lines from those which Indiana has marked out for them. What these ought to be nobody as yet seems to know, except a lot of antitobacco enthusiasts, and these only think they know. Publicity is the best thing to be thought of for a beginning; and from this point of view the efforts of Dr. SHAW, and perhaps others like him, are what the situation most urgently requires. If so large a proportion of American schoolboys are secretly saturating their tender systems with the essence of that poisoned preparation of tobacco which the cigarette makers are alleged to use, the sooner the public knows all there is to be known about it, that the rational and not the hysterical remedy may be thought out and applied, the better.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Brooklyn and Its Consciences.

Forty out of fifty-two talesmen who gathered—or perhaps we should say were gathered—in a Brooklyn court, this week, made solemn asseveration that they were unalterably opposed to capital punishment. Immediately thereafter they were released and went about their several businesses. Now, we do not want to be uncharitable—will not, on inadequate data, ascribe unworthy motives or disregard for truth to anybody; and if we were the one or were capable of the other we would be particularly careful in the case of Brooklyn men, who are, as is well known, deserving of a peculiar respect which involves the assumption tbat they are all right even when circumstancee seem to be against them. Of course, in this case of the talesmen the againstness inflicts a terrible strain on one's determination to think the best and leave the rest. The escape from a tiresome and expensive duty not only followed, but might have been expected to follow, the statement of a fixed dislike for legal killings, and every one of us could have made the statement with some degree of truth. It is not only easy but entirely proper to be "opposed" to capital punishment, and so nearly universal is this antagonism that it probably has given in recent years even to the worst of murderers one additional chance of escape besidss the many which a grotesquely anachronistic system of criminal law provides for criminals of all sorts. Of adult males, however, considerably more than twelve in fifty-two, taking them by and large, would find it difficult to say conscientiously that their antagonism to capital punishment went tbe lengtb of absolutely denying the State's right to inflict it, or that they were honestly unable to take the responsibility of pronouncing guilty a man they thought guilty, simply because tbe State would tben take the responsibility of protecting society from further assault from him by putting an end to his life. Hence is it an almost impossible task to believe that none of these forty Brooklynites had a thought of escaping jury duty when he announced the unalterability of his opposition to capital punishment—to belisve that quite all of them had bestowed upon tbe subject the thought its intelligent determination requires and took the position they did because they could not take any other and retain their self-respect. But the almost impossible task can be performed—must be, when tbe alternative is the suspicion that a lot of hard lying was done in that Brooklyn court.

Witte Is Far Advanced.

People with a taste for collecting enormously significant trifles, verbal and other, will not waste their time if they carefully seize and pin up somewhere for present study and future reference one of the statements made by Count WITTE to the delegation of strikers who called upon him Wednesday. "Remember," he said, "the Government may fail, but with it you will perish also, by playing into the hands of the bourgeoisie you are fighting." This sentence is crowded with admissions and meanings tbat come strangely indeed from one who seems to be, for the moment at least, the acting head and special representative of so much of tbe Russian autocracy and bureaucracy as can be called intelligent and capable of self-defense. It admits, for instance, the possibility that the common people of Russia, by a form of revolution never tried in any land before on a scale large enough to make it the same thing, may overthrow the organized power which hitherto has considered them among the "natural resources" of field or forest—important as sources of income, but as little to be consulted as feared. Then the Count's warning to the strikers tbat in fighting the bourgeoisie they were making the fatal error of playing into the bourgeoisie's hands, put him almost avowedly among those most radical of radicals wbo see in the great, comfortable, middle class—a recent acquisition in Russia—the real enemy not less of the proletariat than of the aristocracy and the real defenders and supporters of the gravest wrongs which oppress the people. By implication he told the delegates that the only hope of the class they represented was in the perpetuation of the Russian Government, as it is in spirit, but changed in detail to accord better with the advanced views of to-day, not of yesterday. Some of his hearers may have understood him, but it is doubtful if many of their followers will do so, and the chances are that despite his warning the bourgeoisie will bave its day in Russia as elsewhere. The successive stages of national development follow a regular course and their progress is—or at least has been—always the same.

Any Change Would Be Reform.

President ROOSEVELT could enjoy his trip through the South just as much, and permit what we believe is a large fraction of his fellow-countrymen to be a lot happier, if he would retire for age and on a good pension the expression "men who wore the gray and men who wore the blue." It is, as it always was, a good phrase, and, as substitute for worse ones, it served many a noble purpose for many and many a year. Also it excellently illustrates the trope called metonomy, but, Oh, it is so old, so old, and of it we are so tired, so tired! North and South always thought—and thinks—each of itself, extremely well. Nowadays each thinks of the other well enough to make plain speaking permissible, and there no longer seems to be any reason for covering up the fact that once they differed about matters somewhat more important than the best color for military uniforms. Kindliness and suavity are admirable, but there is such a thing as being too kind, too euave, and after the excess there is nothing quite so refreshing as the presentation of facts under their own names. The men who wore the gray and the men who wore the blue thought extremely little about their clothes, and it is really cruel for anybody but an advertising clothier to dwell so long and so often on a trivial difference of taste.

As to Automobilists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was greatly surprised at your flippant editorial, "Fining Automobilists," in to-day's TIMES in defense of the prevailing speed of automobiles. Your reflections and etatements are constantly contradicted by the ungentlemanly, selfish, dangerous, and very often fatal actions of the automobilists themselves. When brought before the court "gentleman chauffeurs" and tbeir underlings have often testified as a cowardly defense that "every automobile driver exceeds the speed limit." But out of reach of the law, their brazen and defiant spirit is as manifest as the noonday sun.

Not long ago a highly respected and well-bred man, "a gentleman and a scholar," after being fined by the Magistrate for fast driving, said unblushingly: "Well, after this day I shall look out for the 'cops'!" Thus does the automobile change gentle nature. Some time ago a notoriously unprincipled and, apparently, subsidized colleague of yours went so far in sweet indulgsnce as to refer to automobilists as "innocent and unsuspecting pleasurs seekers!" But THE TIMES cannot afford to excite the suspicion tbat its editorials are written in order to favor and protect one of the richest, most lawless, and consequently most dangerous elements in the community.

New York, Oct. 25, 1905. A. C. H.

Give the Devil His Due.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There has been a great deal said and written about the elevated railway hogs, ths surface car hogs, the Subway hogs. Now in justice to ths men I have happened to rids with I should like to say a few words. I am neither very young nor beautiful, but I never have to etand. Some one always offers me a seat. Generally the men who offer their seats are just ordinary men; sometimes workmen, who really must be tired and need to sit down as they go to and from thsir day's work. I have old men and young men offer ms a seat, and I say that the men are courteous.

I always feel unwilling to avail myself of their kindness, but glad that they offer, for it shows that ths New York men are all right, and anyway men are generally what women make them. I do not blame men for not getting up to give their seats to women wbo act as though the msn had no right to be on earth, much less sitting while they stand.

New York, Oct. 24, 1905. JUSTICE.

FOR JEROME.

Those Who Oppose a Government of Grafters, for Grafters, and by Grafters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During this election campaign the eyes of the entire country are turned toward New York—not upon the parties, but upon Mr. Jerome. They know from what they read, and perbaps from experience, what it means when a city tries to free itself from the net of red tape, graft, and corruption.

During tbe year the people are indignant, on all sides they see flagrant violations of what they believe are their rights, yet when election comes those very people flock to hear those very perpetrators who try to make the voters admire their virtues and forget their vices. It is a most difficult thing to find good reasons why Mr. Jerome should not he elected. Some tell us tbat be ought not to be elected because he is not a "grafter." That Mr. Jerome has done all in his power to give the people a clean and independent administration, so far as his office is concerned, no well-meaning man will deny. He is a fearless and aggressive man; in addition, his honesty and loyalty in performing his duties make him a splendid leader of sensible voters—especially during an age when honesty and independence in politics are collapsing into a state of the worst kind of demoralization.

The question is, Will the people at least imitate him? Now is their opportunity to show what independence and right thinking can do in advancing good government. Will they take it? That's the question. What will be the use of their complaints after election, when the politicians will already have oiled their machinery and set it going to their own satisfaction? If the office of the District Attorney is made a part of that machinery, then morality and decency will suffer a lasting setback.

If elected, Mr. Jerome's mission will then have been of double interest. First, his election would show that, with the proper man in the lead, government can be made pure, honest, and independent of party bossism. In the second place—and of far more importance—it would show that there is in this city a large enough element of decent, conscientious, courageous, and unpurchasable citizenship to overthrow the rule of self-made "politicians." MAX SCHONBERG.

New York, Oct. 25, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Let us know we have one honest man in office who will enforce the laws upon rich and poor alike, for the punishment of vice is absolutely necessary for the suppression of crime. Law is nothing unless it be supported by rewards and punishments.

Where favors are extended to criminals it is as fatal to society on the one hand as the want of true generosity is on the other.

I say to every voter, especially those who pray, to vote as they pray, or quit praying. At my little humble home I pray for Mr. Jerome, and will vote for him. JOHN P. QUINN.

No. 800 West Seventeenth Street, New York City, Oct. 26, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is a crying shame that a man of Mr. Jerome's calibre, honest, able, straightforward, and uncompromising, should have to fight so hard against the combined forces of political greed. Where is the moral revival that we hear so much about? Is it to come only in religion, and not force itself into the material side of life? We say we admire a man for taking a stand, and holding it, but does it not seem a terrible thing that because men are chained by the illusions of a party name they should put our whole community in danger by voting for a party tool? Why cannot human beings put their small prejudices completely aside in such a vital issue? I hardly believe there is one man—honest or dishonest—who does not acknowledge in his heart of hearts that Mr. Jerome has served the people well, and that this community is better for his having served it. Then, why will men vote for an uncertainty?

Jerome as They See Him Elsewhere.

From The Boston Herald.

The withdrawal of Judge Flammer greatly improves Mr. Jerome's chances of election. Tammany may yet bave good reason to regret its attempt to turn down "the enemy of graft."

From The Utica Press.

The work, the time taken, and the annoyance incident to a campaign for better things, if unrewarded by success, makes it just so much harder to accomplish anything next time. Jerome was entirely right when he said that such conditions in this country are serious.

From The Chicago Tribune.

Outside of New York City, however, Mr. Jerome will poll a tremendous vote.

From The Omaha Bee.

Not the least interesting feature of the campaign is the independent candidacy of District Attorney Jerome for re-election. He has made a fine record in office, and has a large and enthusiastic following.

MY PARTY, 'TIS OF THEE.

A New National Anthem, Says a Pleader for More Independence.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent editorial article you commented unfavorably on the nomination by the Democratic Party of James W. Ridgway. This calls attention to the demoralization caused by the present party methods of party government in the city, State, and Nation. At the present time the Mayoralty contest seems to be a walkover for McClellan, and the chimera of party loyalty is more than likely to drag into office of one sort or another many nominees who are no more worthy of election than is Ridgway. The difficulty of properly voting a epilt ticket will also aid in this indiscriminate party voting. Surely it is time to destroy, or at least diminish, the enormous power of the great political parties, so that respectable voters may be able to vote for respectable candidates irrespective of party. Let me quote what Lord Rosebery says of party government in England:

"The fact is tbat party is an evil, perhaps, even probably, a necessary evil, but still an evil. It is the curse of our country that so many, especially in high places, should worship it as a god. Its operation blights efficiency. It keeps out of employment a great mase of precious ability. It puts into place, not the fittest, but the most eligible from the party point of view; that is, very often the worst. Efficiency implies the rule of the fittest; party rule means the rule of something else—not the unfittest, but of the few fit, the accidentally not unfit and the glaringly unfit."

We have paraphrased the good old National hymn, "My Country, 'Tis of Tbee" and we sing "My Party, 'Tis of Thee."

A First Lien.

"Roosevelt, being half a Southerner, might go the whole thing, and accomplish a merry coup by becoming a citizen of Mississippi," says a contemporary. Virginia has a first lien on him in that respect. He already owns property in this State.

OSBORNE'S DILEMMA.

All Foes of a Government of Grafters, for Grafters, and by Grafters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Poor Jim Osborne" seems to bave fallen upon evil times. His dilemma, however, scarcely does credit to his known intelligence and must be a source of trial to his sincerest well-wishers. That he should have failed to size up the merits of the political phenomena involved in Jerome's independency and have consented to oppose these and their far-reaching benefits was bad enough, but his acceptance of a place on a ticket wbich the head of that ticket had already bespoken, or sought to bespeak, for the very man that he, Osborne, would have to run against, showed a want of judgment incompatible, it would seem, with high offics.

Small wonder, therefore, that he already finds himself witb a little less than an "organization" following, and the spectacle of his invoking the heavens against an antagonist who continues to make light of him and whom, as is known to all men, McClellan and many other "good" Tammanyites would like to see elected; whose candidacy, moreover, they actually, if only by their silence, further—this would be humorous if only the man himself had a little humor. It is pathetic in one so sincerely serious, so well entitled, too, to respect.

Jerome doubtless felt as mucb when styling him "Poor Jim." Even so he is not unlikely to add to tbe gayety of the nation before he has finished—or Jerome with him. H. F.

The President's Uncle on the Alabama.

From The Charleston Post.

In a recent issue of The Navy League Journal there is a sketch of the United States ship Kearsarge, and a brief description of her duel with the Confederate cruiser Alabama off Cherbourg, in which the following statement occurs: "The Alabama was manned by outcasts of every nation, with no personal interest in the cause for which they fought." At Mobile yesterday President Roosevelt, thanking a son of Admiral Raphael Semmes for a badge presented to him on behalf of the citizens of Mobile, said: "Admiral Semmes had under him on the Alabama one of my uncles." President Roosevelt is an honorary member of the Navy League, of which The Journal is the official organ. Is the editor of the paper liable for lese majeste?

Dreams as Detectives.

From The London Chronicle.

The American banged at Edmonton, Alberta, on Saturday was by no means the first murderer against whom a dream had played detective. Penny showe at fairs still remind the Suffolk laborer how the body of Maria Martin was found buried in the Red Barn in 1828, nearly a year after ehs had disappeared, in consequence of her etepmother's repeated dreams of exactly such a discovery. But since Maria was known to bave gone to the barn with Corder (the murderer) on the day of her disappearance, it was not so very surprising a dream. Far more remarkable is the case of Stockden, a Grub Street victualer, murdered in 1695. According to the contemporary curate of St. Giles, Cripplegate, one Mrs. Greenwood had three dreams. In the first ths dead man showed her the whereabouts of the chief murderer; in the second his name and face, whereupon he was arrested, confessed, and gave away three accomplices; in the third one accomplice, whom she identified in prison.

"Boss" Murphy Out West.

From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Western Democrats attendant upon the National Democratic Convention of last year retain vivid recollections of Mr. Murphy in the role of a cork bobbing about upon a raging sea, too light to sink, and seeming to appear in evidence on the crest of every white-capped, storm-tossed wave rolling in or off ehore. Impressions of majesty or puissance were not among the things left at St. Louis by the new boss of Tammany. They who had seen Croker and Kelly felt that Tammany was on a tohoggan.

APPEAL TO FISHERMEN BY ROOT AND DURAND

Fear Complications That Might Follow Precipitate Action.

STILL PERIL OF FRICTION

British Ambassador Says He Will Urge Local Officials of Newfoundland to be Moderate.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—While the most critical points in the Newfoundland fisheries controversy apparently have been settled, a letter from Secretary Root to Secretary Shaw, made public to-day, points out there is still ground for possible friction and expresses a wish that pending negotiations now in progress American fishermen and local officials avoid any precipitate action in the assertion of what they conceive to be tbeir rights. The promulgation of the letter followed a conference between Secretary Root and Sir Mortimer Durand, the British Ambassador. The letter follows:

"DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
"WASHINGTON, Oct. 25, 1905.

"To the Secretary of the Treasury:

"Sir: The immediate difficulty experienced by the American fishing fleet on the treaty coast of Newfoundland appears to be happily disposed of. There are, however, some other questions bearing upon the relations between the recent legislation of Newfoundland and American rights under the treaty of 1818 with Great Britain, from which, in default of a clear understanding, further difficulties may possibly arise. These questions are now under consideration by the two Governments, with a confident expectation of reaching a satisfactory conclusion.

"In the meantime I wish to bring to the attention of our American fishermen some expressions contained in a recent letter received by me from the British Ambassador. He says:

"I note with satisfaction that the Government of the United States will do everything in their power, as we on our side shall certainly do, to prevent any collision between American fishermen and those of Newfoundland, and I trust that they will also do everything in their power to prevent the occurrence of any other untoward incident pending inquiry into the question of the Newfoundland act respecting foreign fishing vessels and the supposed misapprehension on the part of certain Newfoundland officials with regard to the statue of vessels on the American register.

"The Government of the United States cannot doubt the desire of his Majesty's Government to adhere strictly to all treaty provisions, and all that seems required in order to bring about a satisfactory conclusion in a case of this nature is the exercise by tbose concerned on both sides of patience and temper in the assertion of what they conceive to be their rights. It would be most unfortunate if the case were to be complicated by any precipitate action on the part of American fishermen or local officials. I will do all I can to prevent such action on the part of the local officials, and look to you witb confidence to prevent it on the part of the American fishermen.

"We cannot fail to agree heartily with the spirit and purpose shue expressed by the British Ambassador. I am sure that knowledge of the fact that the Government of Great Britain is dealing with the subject in this spirit will lead all American fishermen to exercise under all circumstances the patience and good temper which the Ambassador justly deems so important.

"May I ask that you will communicate the contents of this letter to the Collector of the Port of Gloucester, with the request that be bring it to the notice of the owners and masters of the American fishing fleet, so largely owned at that port? I have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient servant,

"ELIHU ROOT."

McKINLEY STATUE UNVEILED.

Bronze Figure Near Forest Park in Springfield, Mass.

SPRINGFEILD, Mass., Oct. 26.—The monument erected in memory of President William McKinley was unveiled this afternoon. The monument stands on Pecousic Hill, near the entrance to Forest Park, an eminence overlooking the Connecticut River.

Lieut. Gov. Curtis Guild, Jr., delivered a eulogy on the martyred President. Miss Sallie Leeds, granddaughter of the late Elisha Morgan, original President of the memorial commission on whom was conferred the honor of unveiling the monument, sat on the speaker's stand with her father, Alfred Leeds. When Jamee T. Abbe, President of the memorial commission delivered the presentation speech and reached the words, "It is a pleasing privilege, Mr. Mayor, in behalf of our subscribere to present to the City of Springfield through you, her official head, this masterpiece of the sculptor," Miss Leeds pulled the cord which released the large American flag enveloping the monument, and as the cheers of the multitude rang out the bronze image of the late President was revealed.

On behalf of the city Mayor Frank W. Dickinson gave the responsive address.

FAIRBANKS TO BANKERS.

We Need Sound Bankers as Well as Sound Money, He Says.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 26.—"We need not only sound money and sound banks, but we need sound bankers also," said Vice President Fairbanks to the Indiana Bankers' Association in session here, today. "There is no system of supervision, I care not how thorough and searching it may be, which can surely protect stockholders and depositore against either inefficiency or dishoneety. In banking there is little difference in final results, whether a bank is operated by men who do not comprehend the real science of banking, or by those who are wanting in a high order of business morality. Failure is the result in either caee.

"There is no department of our domestic economy where there is required a higher order of sound business judgment and a more inflexible adherence to honest, conservative business methods than in banking."

Special Franchises Worth $356,829,555.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 26.—The total valuation of special franchises in New York State, made public to-day by the Board of Tax Commissioners, is $356,829,555, as compared with $302,688,757 a year ago. New York City accounts for $302,193,550 of this total, an increase over the 1904 valuations of $50,672,100.

SHAW TO COMSTOCK: YOU CAN'T SCARE ME

As to Daly, Believes a Rest in Prison Would Do Him Good.

EVEN ROOSEVELT IN DANGER

President Lately Alluded Publicly to Population Question—Comstock Government of America.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1905.]

LONDON, Oct. 26.—"Well, what is it now?" demanded George Bernard Shaw as, backed up to his grate fire, he received me this morning in his charming home, Adelphi Terrace.

I showed him a telegram to the effect that Anthony Comstock had warned Arnold Daly under threat of criminal prosecution not to produce Shaw's play, "Mrs. Warren's Profession."

Shaw at once assumed that Comstock's warning was tantamount to a threat to imprison Daly, and commented on it in that sense. He said:

"You tell me Anthony Comstock threatens to put Arnold Daly in prison if he produces 'Mrs. Warren's Profession,' and ask me what I have to say.

"Do you remember the classic telegram sent by Lord Clanricarde to his tenants in Ireland? 'If you think you can intimidate me by shooting my agent you are very much mistaken.'

"Well, all I can say is if Comstock thinks he can intimidate me by imprisoning Daly he does not quite know his man. Let him imprison Daly, by all means. A few months' rest and quiet would do Daly a great deal of good, and the scandal of his imprisonment would completely defeat Comstock's attempt to hide the fact that Mrs. Warren's 'profession' exists because libertines pay women well to be evil, and often show them affection and respect, whilst pious people pay them infamously and drudge their bodies and souls to death at honest labor.

Comstock's Postcard Performance.

"Because I have been striving all my public life to awaken public conscience to this, while Comstock has been examining and destroying ninety-three tons of indecent postcards, it is concluded that I am a corrupt blackguard and Comstock's mind is in such a condition of crystal purity that any American who reads, sees, writes, or says anything of which he disapproves or which he is 'doggoned if he understands' must be put in prison.

"Well, far be it from me to question the right of America to manage its affairs its own way. Every country has the Government it deserves, and I presume Comstock couldn't govern America without America's consent. He will not lack supporters.

"I cannot fight Comstock with the American Nation at his back and the New York police in his van. Neither can Daly. I have advised Daly to run no risks. When this news reached me I had already cabled both Daly and my agent, Miss Marbury, to countermand the performance, because I think New York has had enough of me for one season. Now I am bound to leave Daly free to accept the challenge and throw himself on the good sense of people who want to have the traffic in women stopped instead of driven underground for its better protection.

Elderly and Intimidated.

"He is young and bold; I am elderly and thoroughly intimidated by my knowledge of the appalling weight of stupidity and prejudice, of the unavowed money interest, direct or indirect, in the exploitation of womanhood, which lies behind his opponent. I cannot save Daly. If these forces are too strong for his supporters, I am afraid he will be uncomfortable in prison. But I also have a presentiment that Comstock will not be quite comfortable out of it.

"When a man begins to value himself, not on the number of decent postcards he puts in circulation, but on the number of indecent ones he throws out of it, he is on the high road to a condition of mania in which he is apt to seize every postcard he sees and declare it indecent. An Indian who counts the scalps he has torn from his enemies is under heavy temptation to get up quarrels with his friends in order to have an excuse for scalping them.

"Comstock's reputation grows with every blackguard he imprisons. A man in that position generally ends by seizing respectable citizens by the collar, raising the cry of blackguardism against them, and throwing them into prison.

"If Daly goes to prison and it becomes impossible for me to visit America without a safe conduct signed by Comstock, it will be time for President Roosevelt, who lately alluded publicly to the population question, (an indecent subject, according to Comstock,) to consider whether even he will be safe when he retires.

"Fortunately, the clubs of Comstock's policemen cannot reach across the Atlantic, and the point of my pen can.

"That's all I have to say."

BRITISH SHIPS' ANCHORAGE.

Department Directs Positions of the Squadrons While Here.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Secretary Metcalf of the Department of Commerce and Labor issued modified regulations to-day governing the anchorage of vessels in New York Bay and Harbor during the visit of the British squadron Nov. 7 to 18.

The first British vessel may anchor directly off Fifty-fourth Street in the Hudson River, and other vessels of the two squadrons may anchor in single line up the river at such distances apart as may be determined by the commanders. The order directs the officers to notify the commanders of the squadrons that the war vessels should avoid fouling the telegraph cables crossing the river at Seventy-ninth Street.

Between 126th Street and 130th Street a space of 1,000 feet in the clear will be reserved for the ferry. The anchorage buoys off Sixtieth and Seventieth Streets, respectively, will be removed to avoid fouling.

CAMPAIGNFUL HOBOKEN.

Strenuous Days for Speakers in the City Across the Hudson.

For sheer enthusiasm, strenuosity, and political vigor, Hoboken in its Mayoralty campaign has this city stunned.

George Steil is the Democratic candidate for Mayor. On Tuesday night a crowd of Republicans, whoss candidate is Dr. Joseph Stack, attended a meeting at First and Monroe Streets.

When Mr. Steil took the stand in his own defense and started to speak, an apple, whose age did not make it venerable, in the strict sense of the word, described an arc in the air and landed upon the left eye of the Democratic Mayoralty candidate. Mr. Steil was stunned, but with great presence of mind braced himself and said:

"But to resume!"

Assistant City Clerk Charles Darcy delivered only the first part of a speech, owing to the interruption caused by the contiguity of a dead cat. Then the police arrived.

Yesterday morning the Democrats found that the Steil banner at First and Monroe Streets had been removed. Detectives are on the trail of the vandals. To-night, with the aid of a cordon of police, the cause of Mr. Steil will again be urged.

ONCE FAMOUS SLEUTH DEAD.

Richard King, Who Caught the $40,000 Express Wagon Robbers.

The funeral of Richard King, a once famous detective Sergeant of this city, who died on Wednesday at New Canaan, Conn., will be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery on Saturday.

King, who became a policeman on April 23, 1850, was a terror to evildoers as long as he was on the force. In 1865 he was made a detective Sergeant, and in 1873 he was sent to the Central Office. King, with his side partner, Holly Lyon, was successful in nearly every big case that came along.

Before he became a Central Office man, King had arrested "Ed" and "Wash" Goody, silk robbers, and in 1874 King and Holly arrested "Patsy" Conroy, one of the masked burglars who robbed Judge Emmett's home at New Rochelle. Later the two detectives arrested Conroy's six accomplices, all of whom were sentenced to long terms in prison.

The same year King arrested John Durkin, who robbed Jacob Vanderbilt's home on Staten Island. A year later King landed Daniel Hovey and "Jim" Sweeny, who stole an Adams Express wagon containing a safe with more than $40,000 in cash in it. He recovered $30,000 of the plunder, which was buried under a flagstone at Nassau and John Streets.

King was 86 years old. He was retired from the police force on June 24, 1886.

8TH AVENUE HADN'T FALLEN.

But the Crowd Heard It Had and Flocked to the Penn. R. R. Hole.

There was a lot of excitement early last night at Eighth Avenue and Thirty-second Street. Every minute or two a photographer would arrive, and prepare to take a shot at the landscape. Young men were racing about asking questions and making hieroglyphics on scraps of paper. Recruits to their ranks came in every minute or two.

Word had gone out that the timbers that hold up the surface of Eighth Avenue while Charles F. Murphy's brother's company digs a hole underneath for the new Pennsylvania station and tunnel had been knocked down by colliding trains, and that Eighth Avenue had tumbled into the hole. It was supposed even that several cars full of people might have disappeared with the section of the avenue that had sunk.

The young men with the kodaks and the young men with the scraps of paper were disgruntled at what they saw. No part of Eighth Avenue had disappeared, no cars were missing, no one had been sent to the hospital.

At 4:30 o'clock the hindmost of six dirt cars attached to a little engine on its way with a load to the foot of West Thirty-first Street had left the track and knocked out one or two of the supports under Eighth Avenue. As a precaution, the police closed the avenue between Thirty-first and Thirty-third Streets, and cars and vehicular traffic was suspended for an hour.

The West Thirty-seventh Street police asked for two men from the Tenderloin to help in keeping back the crowd.

FIRST ROYAL LINER HERE.

The Tagus Is to Run Between New York and the West Indies.

The Royal Mail Steamship Packet Company's steamship Tagus, which is to start the new fortnightly service of that line between New York and Southampton via the West Indies, arrived yesterday afternoon.

The Tagus came from Southampton via Colon, Barbados, and Kingston, leaving Kingston last Saturday. In addition to the Tagus, the Royal Mail will have three other ships in its New York service. The Tagus will sail for the West Indies to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Pier 50 in the North River, adjoining the White Star piers, is used by the new line. Among the arrivals on the Tagus were Capt. James F. Van Duzer and Paymaster Joseph S. Bulcher of the United States Navy. The ship is one of the largest and finest vessels ever engaged in the New York-West Indian trade. She was a British transport in the Boer war, and was the vessel that conveyed Gen. Piet Cronje from South Africa to St. Helena.

BALL GAME CAUSES REUNION.

Sons In Opposing Nines Persuade Parents to be Reconciled.

As the result of a ball game, in which their sons played in opposing nines, the separation proceedings pending between Mr. and Mrs. Charles Griswold of Jersey City have been discontinued. Mr. Griswold and his wife have both been prominent socially.

Two months ago Lawyer Goldenhorn applied to Chancery on behalf of Mrs. Griswold for a separate maintenance and alimony. The husband retained a lawyer to fight the application. Their neighbors remembered that the Griswolds had not been seen together for some time.

At the time of their separation Mrs. Griswold took her nine-year-old son, Malcolm. The other, eight-year-old Edgar, remained with his father. There was no communication and the children did not meet.

There was a ball game between two local clubs on the grounds at Greenville Monday. Each of tha boys saw his brother on the other nine. They lingered after the other players had gone and talked together. Mrs. Griswold came to the ball ground looking after Malcolm. The boys pleaded to be together, and that they might be brothers again begged their parents to "make up."

The result is the discontinuance of the suit and a family reunion.

"College Widow" Company In Wreck.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 26.—A Western Alabama passenger train from Atlanta left the track a few miles east of this city at one o'clock this afternoon. Seven cars and the engine were derailed. The passenger coaches were badly damaged. The "College Widow" theatrical company, containing about forty-five persons, was aboard. Fred Halsted, a member of the troupe sustained a slight injury.

SUBWAY A YEAR OLD; WHAT IT HAS DONE

It Has Carried a Total of 106,000,000 Passengers.

AVERAGE OF 300,000 A DAY

Times Square Fifth Among the Stations with 5,000,000 Fares—18,000,000 at the Bridge.

One year ago to-day the Subway was opened to the public. A hundred and six million passengers have since paid a nickel apiece to ride in it. It has realized the wishes of the yearning ones, who for years had waited for a railroad that would send them "to Harlem in fifteen minutes." Everybody connected with the Subway is satisfied with what it has accomplished.

William Barclay Parsons, the man who, as Chief Engineer of the Rapid Transit Commission, planned the Subway and saw it completed, said yesterday:

"The record of the first year's operation has been exceedingly gratifying to me as showing that it has fully and successfully met the public demand so far as it can. The full measure of the success of the Subway, from the point of view of the public, will not be fully realized, however, until the original plans of the commission, including lines north of Forty-second Street on the east side and south of Forty-second Street on the west side, are completed. When this is done the public will have the full benefit of the Subway.

"The line to Brooklyn is in such condition that next year will see direct rail connection between that borough and the financial, commercial, shopping, amusement, and residential districts of Manhattan."

Based on the number of fares paid, the stations rank in importance as follows: Brooklyn Bridge, Grand Central, Fourteenth Street, Fulton Street, and Times Square. Times Square is far ahead of all other local stations. Five million persons, a number exceeding by half a million the estimated total population of New York City, boarded Subway trains there during the year. Supposing that just as many got off at Times Square 10,000,000 persons have passed through the station since Oct. 27, 1904.

Record of Big Stations.

Eighteen million fares were paid at the Brooklyn Bridge, 10,000,000 at Grand Central, and nearly 7,000,000 at Fulton Street. The average number of passengers carried in the Subway every day was about 300,000. The estimated number of passengers on all the elevated lines for the same period is 261,666,685, an average of 716,895 a day. A fair estimate of the number of passengers carried by both Subway and elevated is 1,000,000 a day.

Only part of the Subway was opened a year ago. Since then the Lenox Avenue Branch to West Farms, the section from the Brooklyn Bridge down Broadway to South Ferry, and a mile stretch north of 135th Street, under Broadway, have been opened. The Interborough Company expects to run trains under Fort George and over the long viaduct to the Ship Canal by Jan. 1. The Brooklyn Branch will be opened next year.

Of the problems that a year's operation of the Subway has raised none has interested the public as much as that regarding ventilation. On hot days the air in the tunnel was almost insufferable, and hundreds of thousands forsook rapid transit for the surface cars. The engineers have been wrestling with the question of ventilation, and think they have devised a remedy. Mr. Parsons and Mr. Rice, who is now chief engineer of the commission, expect to submit their report on the matter to the Rapid Transit Commission within a few weeks.

The Ventilation Remedy.

"The difficulty is not bad air, it is heat," said Mr. Rice yesterday. "The great speed of the trains requires an enormous amount of energy, and great waves of heat are thrown off from the motors. This heat is a good thing in the Winter—it makes the Subway comfortable. There is nothing unhealthy about the air, but the heat is a great disadvantage."

"Will the tracks be separated by partitions in future subways?" Mr. Rice was asked.

"They will, but every track will not necessarily be in a tunnel of its own. Trains running in the same direction will be separated from those running in the other. In this way a steady draught of air will be created in each compartment. But we are confident of being able to cool the air in the present Subway. The means will be described in the report soon to be put before the commission.

"After a year of operation we can say that we have real rapid transit. Day after day, every two or three or four minutes, according to the time of day, trains run from Brooklyn Bridge to Ninety-sixth Street—to the lower edge of Harlem—in fourteen and a half minutes. And New York is the only city that has real rapid transit. The four-track feature of our Subway is the reason."

Mr. Rice produced a map showing the routes for proposed subways.

"You will notice," he said, "that though the Subway now in operation follows Broadway, it is not straight. That is simple enough, for Broadway itself is far from straight. There are lots of curves. Now look at the Third Avenue route—seven and a half miles without a curve—or at this Eighth Avenue route—not a curve in it for miles. The speed attainable on these perfectly straight tracks will be much greater than is now possible."

Express Trains Above 96th Street.

Asked about express service north of Ninety-sixth Street Mr. Rice said:

"There will be express service under Upper Broadway, but it won't be necessary to build more tracks. There is a third track all the way except in the deep Fort George tunnel. From the northern end of the Subway express trains can run on the third track, south in the morning and north in the evening rush hours."

E. P. Bryan, the operating head of the Interborough Company, when asked to say something about the Subway's anniversary, said:

"During the first year of operation the Subway has justified our most sanguine expectations. The popularity of the Subway has, we think, been demonstrated by the patronage. Unforeseen engineering difficulties have prevented the completion of the section to Fort George and across the Dyckman Meadows. The delay in the construction of the Ship Canal Bridge has also prevented the completion of the work called for under Contract No. 1."

General Manager Hedley said:

"For several months the operation of the Subway was hampered by incomplete terminals and the newness of the system, so that the train service could not be run up to the maximum. Since the completion of the lines to South Ferry conditions have been much improved.

"Five hundred of the first cars purchased have passed through the shops; the end doors have been made considerably larger, and the bulkheads inside the cars have been removed. This has been the subject of favorable comment on the part of the passengers and has led to a marked difference in the time it takes to embark and disembark."

Since the strike last spring the Subway employes get better wages than they did before. The officials of the company say that their relations with the men have never been so friendly as now.

A plan to lengthen the local platforms so that they can accommodate seven cars instead of five is now under consideration. It is likely that work on the platforms will begin in the next month or two.

FULL ROLL AT THIS WEDDING.

All Governors Island Sees Private Lewis and Miss Becker Wed.

All Governors Island, officers and enlisted men alike, were present in St. Cornelius Chapel on the island yesterday afternoon to witness the marriage of Private Forrest Franklin Lewis of Company E of the Eighth Infantry, and Miss Elizabeth Katherine Becker of 222 West Thirteenth Street. The chapel was elaborately decorated in honor of the occasion, and as a wedding is a rarity among Uncle Sam's "thirteen dollar" men, every boy in blue from grizzled Sergt. Way, the veteran of the Indian and Spenish wars, to the youngest private in Col. Smith's regiment, was at the chapel when Lewis and his bride walked to the altar.

Col. Smith, commanding the garrison, and Capt. Millar, the Adjutant, were there. So were most of the officers' wives and daughters, not to mention a score or two of the bride's friends from Manhattan and Brooklyn. Lewis is the son of a merchant of Montpelier, Vt., and is a graduate of Goddard Seminary in Vermont. He enlisted two years ago, and will, on the expiration of his time, go to Vermont and go into business with his father. Some of the presents were from the officers of his command, another was from his comrades of Company E, while one of the gifts that were received by the bride was a check for $2,000 from relatives in Europe.

ROGER M. SHERMAN DEAD.

Mount Vernon's Corporation Counsel, Who Caused the Fight on Brush.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, Oct. 26.—Roger M. Sherman, Corporation Counsel of Mount Vernon, and one of the best-known lawyers of the Westchester County Bar, died at 2:30 o'clock this morning at his home on Chester Hill. He was stricken with paralysis about six weeks ago while cruising on the Sound on his yacht the Nomad.

It is said that worry and excitement brought on by a suit that he was prosecuting against the water company to compel it to reduce its rates, brought on the attack. It was Mr. Sherman's appointment as Corporation Counsel that led to the fight between Mayor Brush and the Republican organization. The organization was bitterly opposed to Mr. Sherman, and when Mayor Brush persisted in naming him against their wishes they turned him down for renomination. Mayor Brush has since come out as an independent candidate.

Mr. Sherman was born in Albany 56 years ago. His great-grandfathar, the Rev. Josiah Sherman, was a brother of Roger Sherman, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Mr. Sherman was graduated from Columbia Law School. He was Pardon Clerk under President Grant, and afterward served seven years as Assistant United States District Attorney of New York. Then he entered the firm of Darlington, Sherman & Jenkins, with offices at 206 Broadway. Mr. Sherman was counsel in the Fayerweather will case, and was also counsel for George Bissert. He wrote the brief that got the Tenderloin detective out of Sing Sing.

Mr. Sherman was a member of the Republican Club of New York and of the New York Athletic and New Rochelle Yacht Clubs. He was twice married. His first wife was a daughter of a former Governor of Wisconsin. He afterward married a grandaughter of Henry Inman, the painter.

CARRIAGE RIDE CHEERED HIM.

Boy Who Was Run Over Didn't Feel So Bad Afterward.

Mrs. John B. Simpson of 998 Fifth Avenue was riding down Seventh Avenue at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon with her little daughter, when her carriage got mixed up in a tangle, resulting in painful injuries to Charles Tyron of 60 East 120th Street, an eight-year-old boy.

With other boys he was riding on the end of a truck. Just ahead of the truck was a fire engine that had broken down. The firemen were working hard to repair it, so that they could continue on their way to a fire. The engineer blew off steam. The truck and carriage horses took fright. The boy fell from the truck under the hoofs of the carriage horses, was stepped on, and his left leg run over.

Mrs. Simpson jumped out and picked up the boy, asking him where he lived. He told her and she carried him to the carriage. The driver had his horses under control and was told to drive to the lad's home.

Little Miss Simpson was cleaning his scratched face with her handkerchief, when her mother asked if he was much hurt.

"No, it's not very bad," he said. "Better let me sit up to get all that's comin' to me, when I go carriage ridin'."

Mrs. Simpson did not leave the boy's home until a physician had examined the boy and said that he would be about in a few days, as his injuries were not serious.

WANT MADE RUBIES CHEAPER.

Importers of the Reconstructed Gems to Protest for Low Duty.

Maiden Lane houses importing from Paris the reconstructed rubies which caused a stir in the precious stone trade two years ago are preparing to make a contest before the Board of United States General Appraisers, and, if necessary, in the courts, to obtain a lower duty. It is understood that importers who deal in high-grade rubies and emeralds will oppose their effort, and that many of the retail jewelers, fearing an unfavorable effect on the value of natural rubies, will join in the opposition. The jewelers say that rubies are second in importence only to diamonds, and fine specimens of pigeon-blood rubies are the most valuable stones in tha world.

More than forty protests against the duty have been filed by the firms importing the reconstructed rubies, which are made of ruby dust or aand or cuttings from other rubies. The duty is 50 per cent., the product being described as a manufactured article not especially enumerated in the tariff schedules. The importers desire to get a 10 per cent. duty, which can be done if the authorities classify the product by similitude as precious stones. This proposed classification is very distasteful to the importer of natural rubies. He says that if adopted it would open the door for irresponsible tradesmen to sell as natural rubies the manufactured product, declaring that their character had the Government's indorsement, as shown by the customs records.

FORBIDS CART-TAIL SPEECH.

Mayor of Plainfield Withholds Permission from Democratic Candidate.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Oct. 26.—Mayor James F. Buckle has prohibited Edward Nugent, Democratic candidate for State Senator, from beginning a cart-tail campaign among the workingmen. For several days Mr. Nugent, who is an Elizabeth lawyar, had advertised that he would invade the stronghold of Ernest R. Ackerman, his Republican opponent, to present the doctrines of equal taxation and limited franchises. To-day he was to have spoken to 1,000 machinists at the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant, where City Clerk James T. McMurray and Police Commissioner Andrew McArdell are Superintendents, but Mayor Buckle withheld permission.

"Let him hire a hall or a vacant lot if he wants to speak," was the answer Buckle gave to Nugent's manager.

Nugent says he will reach the voters at any cost. He used a page in each of the local papers to-day.

When Carl Schurz Writes

When a man like Carl Schurz, a man who for fifty years has enjoyed the confidence of the greatest legislators of the world, a man who never writes a word without giving it due thought, and who, though writing in an acquired tongue, has made himself a master of that tongue—when such a man presents the Reminiscences of his long and useful life, that work marks an epoch in history and an epoch in literature. When a magazine like McClure's publishes these Reminiscences, it marks an epoch in magazine-making, even for McClure's.

These Schurz papers, which begin in the November McClure's with the fascinating story of the boyhood of Schurz, will take up before long his point of view of such men as Sherman, Grant, Lincoln, Greeley, Cleveland and others whom he knew as intimate friends.

Buy McClure's to-day—the November number—and begin to read this great series of papers with the first one.

FRENCH JUDGE SENDS E. F. SHEPARD TO JAIL

Automobile of W. H. Vanderbilt's Grandson Killed a Girl.

DAMAGES OF $4,000 IMPOSED

Shepard to Appeal—His Counsel Say He Is Being Made a Scapegoat—Imprisonment Postponed.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—The Ninth Correctional Tribunal of the Seine to-day sentenced Elliott Fitch Shepard, son of the late Col. Elliott F. Shepard of New York and a grandson of the late W. H. Vanderbilt, to three months imprisonment and $120 fine, and to pay $4,000 damages to the parents of Madeline Marduel, who was killed by Mr. Shepard's automobile at St. Ouen last April 24.

The case came up upon the opening of the court. Mr. Shepard was present, accompanied by his counsel, Maître Anquetin. The defendant rose and stood facing the Judge while sentence was pronounced. The Judge lengthily reviewed the circumstanes of the accident, and said the automobile exceeded the regulation speed limit of twenty-five to thirty kilometers an hour. Such excessive speed was a menace to the public, and should be severely punished.

The Judge also pointed out that the girl killed was twelve years old and a useful assistant to her family. Therefore the family was entitled to pecuniary redress for her loss. He then pronounced the sentence.

Following the announcement Mr. Shepard and his counsel withdrew from the courtroom for the purpose of considering the question of making an appeal or adopting some other step.

After conferring with counsel, friends of Mr. Shepard said he intended to appeal from the fine and imprisonment, but that the company insuring the automobile would not appeal from the $4,000 damages awarded to the parents of the dead girl. The appeal postpones the imprisonment until a final decision is given.

Mr. Shepard says he deeply regrets the affair, but feels that the prosecution assumed undue proportions owing to the recent popular agitation against fast automobiling.

Maître Poincaré, counsel for the prosecution, emphasized the need of making an example of Mr. Shepard, declaring that American millionaires had the habit of coming to France and running over peasants like chickens. Counsel for Mr. Shepard maintain that this plea has had the effect of making him the scapegoat for a number of automobile accidents which have recently aroused popular indignation.

Elliott Fitch Shepard is the only son of the late Col. Elliott Fitch Shepard, who married Miss Margaret Vanderbilt and who died about twelve years ago.

Mr. Shepard is about thirty years old. In 1897 he married Mrs. Alfred Potter, a Philadelphia widow, daughter of a storekeeper of Greenport, L. I. The couple separated not long after the marriage, and in 1903 Mrs. Shepard brought suit for divorce. The case, however, was dropped, and there have since been rumors of a reconciliation.

Shepard was sent to Yale, and got into trouble in his freshman year. He left the university and went to Paris to live. After his quarrel with his wife he again went to the French capital, where he has remained most of the time since. He has made several business ventures in Paris, all of which have resulted disastrously. He has tried the liquor business, the banking buiness, and the manufacture of automobiles, and is said to have lost a fortune in each undertaking.

It is said his mother grew tired of providing capital for him, and at last succeeded in persuading him that he was not fitted for a business career.

LOUBET SEES A BULL KILLED.

Then Goes Away—Spanish Cabinet Row Over Decorations.

MADRID, Oct. 26.—President Loubet left Madrid for Lisbon at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The postponed bullfight took place prior to his departure. The President did not desire to attend it, but owing to the national character of the entertainment he went to the bullfight with King Alfonso, witnessed the brilliant cavalcade, and departed after the first bull had been killed.

The Ministerial situation has become graver, owing to the peculiar attitude of the Minister of Marine, Señor Villanueva, who objects to President Loubet bestowing the Grand Cross of the Order of the Legion of Honor on him after he conferred the Grand Collar, a higher decoration, on the Minister of War.

The action of Señor Vallanueva is threatening the disruption of the Cabinet. The Minister has written to Premier Montero Rios formally refusing the proffered insignia.

Instead of the usual gold casket, the address was inclosed in an oaken casket, the balance of the money voted by the Municipal Council being, at the request of Gen. Booth, given to the Salvation Army.

HEROIC STATUE OF MOLTKE.

Unveiled in Berlin—Kaiser and Imperial Family Present.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—A statue of von Moltke, the gift of the army to the German people, was unveiled here to-day, the one hundred and fifth anniversary of the Field Marshal's birth, in the presence of Emperor William, the imperial family, all the great personages of State, and many thousands of people.

The military display was most brilliant. Ten thousand troops of the Berlin garrison were massed near the scene of the unveiling.

The marble figure is the work of Prof. Uphues, who designed the statue of Frederick the Great now in Washington. The figure is eighteen feet high.

No Trace of the Steamer Kaliyuga.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 26.—Telegrams were received to-day from the Captains of the steamers Centurion and Frontenac, which have been searching for the missing steamer Kaliyuga, saying they had covered the entire east and north shores of Lake Huron without obtaining any trace of the vessel. It is now practically certain that the boat, with seventeen persons, went down.

Negro May Be Lynched If Caught.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 26.—Mrs. G. W. Moore, wife of a merchant on Peachtree Road, near this city, was assaulted by a negro this morning. Track hounds have been following the negro all day, but at a late hour to-night he had not been captured. It is feared the negro will be lynched if caught.

WOOD PLEADS SELF-DEFENSE.

He Shot Boyhood Friend in Quarrel About a Young Woman.

Lester F. Dwight, manager of a telephone exchange, who was shot early yesterday morning by William W. Wood, a dentist, with whom he shared a bachelor apartment at 414 West 124th Street, probably will recover from his injuries.

The two men had been friends from boyhood. Not long ago, according to the police, they met a young woman. Both were attentive. Then there were quarrels, and the two men ceased to speak to each other.

Yesterday morning they came face to face in their apartment. There were sounds of scuffling, and then five pistol shots. Dwight staggered out to the street, where he met a policeman, who called an ambulance from the J. Hood Wright Hospital.

In the meantime other tenants had notified the police. They broke down the door, and found Wood tearing up and burning letters. On a table were his will and a letter from his mother, Mrs. A. B. Wood, now playing at the American Theatre. The mother's letter showed that she was aware of trouble. The will read:

My last will and testament. I hereby bequeath to be paid at my death to my mother, Anna B. Wood, $1,000, and to Gertrude J. Fonthan $5,000.

Wood was taken to the police station, where he said that he had shot in self-defense. His face was badly bruised. Dwight was there waiting for the ambulance, very weak, but still able to stand.

Dwight listened to Wood's explanation until he said that they had quarreled over a woman. Then he interrupted and said that if Wood mentioned her name he would kill him.

"No danger, Lester," said the prisoner, "neither of us will do that."

"Bill, you're a poor shot," said the wounded man, collapsing.

He was taken to the hospital, where it was found that he had been shot three times. The surgeons said that he probably will pull through. Wood was held in Harlem Court to await the result of Dwight's injuries.

Miss Fonthan, who is named as a legatee in Wood's will, formerly lived with her mother at 59 West Ninety-ninth Street. The property is owned by her mother. It was said there that they were now living at 307 West 142d Street. At this address no one would say whether or not Miss Fonthan and her mother lived there.

STOWAWAY DIES ON STEAMER.

Bluejacket of the Des Moines Was Trying to Get Home.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—A stowaway died on board the British steamship Ethelwold, which arrived here to-day from Port Antonio with a cargo of bananas. The man was found in the hold of the vessel last Saturday, the day following the departure of the ship from Port Antonio. He was ill and died on Tuesday.

In one of his pockets was found a note beginning "Dear Ruth," and signed "Pim." It requested the person addressed to send any effects of the writer's she might have to Mrs. Kate V. Jeeks, 1,467 Stevenson Street, Baltimore. The body was brought to this city.

A member of the crew of the steamer Ethelwold admitted to-night that the stowaway had been carried on board the steamer at Port Antonio by a negro employed in helping to load the vessel at that port. It was also learned that the man previously to being taken on board the vessel had attempted to get on a steamship bound for Baltimore, but had been caught and sent to prison.

able condition from illness and lack of abel condition from illness and lack of food. He fell in with the negro, who took pity on him, and carried him aboard the steamer. His death is believed to have been due to starvation.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 26.—Thomas A. Jeeks was the stowaway who died on the Ethelwold. He leaves a wife in this city. He married in June, 1904, Kate Schmieke, and three days after the wedding enlisted in the navy.

He was on the Des Moines, and according to a letter to his sister, he and others of the crew were left ashore at Port Antonio. They had been on leave, and the warship sailed without them. Jeeks wrote to his wife and sister that he meant to come home as a stowaway.

DENOUNCE CITY OFFICIALS.

Merchants Say They Complained Vainly of Grand Street's Condition.

The committee appointed by the Grand Street Merchants and Property Owners' Association to seek relief from the conditions prevailing in that thoroughfare, which is torn up while the motive power of the car line is being changed, issued its report yesterday. It charges that Borough President Ahearn promised to correct the situation and failed to live up to his promise; that the Health Department failed to act, and that the Street Cleaning Department reported: "It is almost impossible to keep a street clean and in order during the present condition of Grand Street."

The details of a visit to Mayor McClellan are presented for the consideration of the association.

"We were promised that cars would be running by Oct. 1," the report continues. "At this date it is still a matter of speculation whether we will have cars by Jan. 1. A complaint from Fifth Avenue or Broadway merchants would probably set our Health Commissioner jumping. The fact that this crowded tenement district has been in constant danger from fire and disease did not seem to give any concern to our city officials.

"It's for you to offer suggestions as to what is best to be done."

C. G. DELANO ARRESTED.

Lawyer Held in Boston on Complaint of His Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Oct. 26.—At the request of the Boston police, Chief of Police White last night arrested Charles G. Delano, a New York lawyer, who was at a hotel here. Mr. Delano is wanted in Boston to answer a charge made by his wife, from whom he separated fifteen years ago. In 1892 he is alleged to have defaulted his recognizance and gone to New York, where he has since lived, and where he prepared the briefs in the Molineux case and has brought out several law works.

Mr. Delano came to Pittsfield about a wek ago in regard to the settlement of an estate left by his mother, who died in Northampton recently. In some way it became known in Boston that Mr. Delano was here and his arrest was requested. He secured counsel this morning and tried to obtain from the Berkshire courts an order for his release on bail. The court denied the petition and officers took Mr. Delano to Boston this afternoon.

20 HURT IN A CRASH ON THE NEW BRIDGE

Runaway Car Jams Into Two That Were Stalled.

HAVOC IN THE MIDDLE CAR

Telescoped and the Passengers Pinned Down—Motorman Who Stuck to His Post May Die.

A broken-down truck on the Williamsburg Bridge yesterday morning was primarily responsible for an accident that may cost two men their lives and caused injuries to more than twenty persons.

There were three cars in the wreck. The first one, No. 2,057 of the Fourteenth Street line, came to a stop near the Manhattan terminal just behind the truck, which had cast a wheel and had slewed across the trolley tracks. Behind it came Car No. 2,757 of the same line. It came to a stop within a few feet of the first car. A minute later a car of the Christopher and Eighth Street line came down the incline leading to the terminal at full speed.

At first the motorman, John Holden, of 445 East Fourteenth Street, did not see that the car ahead was stalled. When he realized that it was stalled he made frantic efforts to control his car, but it had gained too great headway or else something went wrong with the brakes. The real reason may never be known, for Holden has been unconscious in the Eastern District Hospital ever since the accident. He has a compound fracture of the skull and internal injuries that will probably cause his death.

The third car crashed into the one ahead, jamming it into the car stalled in front. The middle car, which was jammed with passengers, as were the other two, was telescoped. The sides and roof were shattered, the bottom knocked out, and the machinery reduced to scrap iron. The seventy-five passengers were thrown into the forward end. Men trampled on women and fought to get out.

Despite the number of persons injured and the wild scenes attending the accident, only one person besides Motorman Holden remained in the hospitals last night. He is George Breold, 17 years old, of 22 Melrose Street, Brooklyn, who is employed by the General Electric Company in Manhattan. He is in Gouverneur Hospital and the doctors fear that his skull has been fractured.

In the face of what seemed to be certain death, Holden stuck to his controller on the third car. He was thrown forward into the car ahead and was dug out of the debris by the police.

The noise of the collision as the rear car shot squarely into the one ahead, rending the iron work and reducing the wood to splinters, was heard at the Delancey Street Police Station a few blocks away. About a dozen men, standing near the front platform of the last car, jumped to the roadway before the crash and escaped unhurt. A second later the crowd on the back of the second car was caught by the platform and the dashboard of the colliding car. Splintered fragments of wood and pieces of glass were showered over the imprisoned passengers.

The men who had jumped from the oncoming car got to work at once. Among them were Alexander J. Williams of 268 Rodney Street, Brooklyn; Anton Gagel of 17 Locust Street, and Frank Siebert of 63 Penn Street. They bounded into the struggling mass, kicked out half a dozen windows in the last car, and dragged out three women. All three were cut by glass.

The reserves of the Delancey Street Station had as much trouble fighting their way through the mass of humanity at the bridge terminal as they had to rescue the victims. An enormous crowd had gathered crying that the bridge had fallen down. The reserves from two other precincts were ordered out to take care of the crowd, while the Delancey Street policemen turned their attention to rescuing the injured. Nearly all the injured were treated by ambulance surgeons and went home.

The wreck blocked traffic on the north roadway of the bridge for an hour and a half.

IN DEFENSE OF DAN PATCH.

Trainer Hersey Says Champion Pacer Cannot Be the Trotter Arrin.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 26.—"If Dan Patch is the trotter Arrin, as they contend in Canada, then Dan Patch must be exactly fifteen years of age," said Harry C. Hersey, trainer and driver of the pacing champion. Hersey secured a veterinary to-day who, after making an examination of Dan Patch, made affidavit that the horse could not be over nine years old. Hersey has just arrived from Toronto. He says that John Thompson, the Ontario horseman, who allegee that Dan Patch is Arrin, a trotter stolen from Thompson in 1896, was thrown out of Dan Patch's stall at Toronto by a groom when in the act of examining the horse.

"According to Thompson's own confession Arrin was foaled in 1890," said Hersey. "Oscar Ames of Kentucky, whom all horsemen know, bred Joe Patchen to Zelica in 1895, and the result of that union was Dan Patch. Thompson must be seeking notoriety."

MISS BLAKE NOT A MEDIUM.

Friends, Interested in the Ronalds Suit, Declare That.

The friends of Elizabeth N. Blake, the young woman to whom Peter Lorillard Ronalds, the whip, who died last Saturday, deeded valuable real estate, now deny that she is a spiritualist. Reginald Ronalds, his son, is now seeking to have the deeds set aside on the ground that his father's signature was obtained by fraud.

In his petition the son asserts that his father, when he signed the deeds, was more than 75 years old, and that Miss Blake, to induce him to sign, used "coercion, fraud, and undue influence."

Reginald Ronalds asserts in his petition that to secure the deeds from his father Miss Blake "represented to him and induced him to believe the said instruments should be executed and delivered by him in obedience to the commands of the spirits of certain relatives of the said Peter Lorillard Ronalds, Sr., who were long since deceased."

This is the only mention made of spiritualism in the petition. It does not make clear whether the plaintiff charges Miss Blake with personally acting as a medium, or induced Mr. Ronalds to visit other persons who made the alleged deception.

Miss Blake, who is in the house at which Mr. Ronalds died, 113 East Thirty-fifth Street, denied herself to callers yesterday. A young man with a band of crêpe on his left coat sleeve answered the door bell.

"I was Mr. Ronalds's man," he said. "Miss Blake is prostrated by the bringing of the suit against her, and will see no one. Her attorney is Abram I. Elkus."

Mr. Elkus has offices in Pine Street, and a reporter went there, but Mr. Elkus declined to discuss the case. He would not admit that he was Miss Blake's lawyer, but added that he might have something to say later in the week. Reporters could not find either of Mr. Ronalds's sons, Peter Lorillard, Jr., and Reginald.

Mr. Ronalds's children, Peter Lorillard, Jr., and Fannie G. Ritchie; his widow, Mary Frances Ronalds, and Bertha Perry Ronalds, the wife of Peter Lorillard, Jr., are codefendants in the suit, but are named only in a friendly way to cover all possible points.

BRONXVILLE POLICEMAN SHOT

Met Two Men in the Street Who Said "Halt!" and Then Fired.

Policeman R. Hyleson of Bronxville was shot early yesterday morning and is in the Mount Vernon Hospital in a serious condition. Hyleson was in full uniform and was walking along one of the principal streets when two men coming from the opposite direction called to him to halt. Hyleson continued to advance and one of the men drew a revolver and fired. The bullet entered the policeman's mouth and lodged in the back of his neck. He fell and the men fled into the woods.

Although badly hurt Hyleson managed to get out his pistol and sent two bullets after the highwaymen. The woods were searched for his assailants, but they were not found.

LETTER CAUSED HIS CAPTURE.

Fred Meyer, Wanted for Brooklyn Shooting, Caught in Baltimore.

Fred Meyer was arrested in Baltimore yesterday, charged with the murder of Thomas McNichols in Brooklyn. McNichols was a retired business man, who lived at 1,163 Sixty-first Street.

After the shooting, which resulted from a quarrel, Meyer escaped. Several days ago a letter came to Capt. Harkins of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, saying that Meyer was in Baltimore. The letter writer, who did not give his name, said that Meyer was in the habit of standing in front of a certain fish stand in that city. A policeman who knew him was sent to Baltimore and found Meyer just where it was said he would be.

CLARK STOLE FOR TWO YEARS.

Question of How He Deceived Bank Examiner Is Being Solved.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 26.—It has been made clear by all the authorities connected with the defunct Enterprise National Bank that Cashier Clark carried on his peculations for at least the last two years.

How he did it without the Bank Examiner making the discovery is the question to be solved by the Controller of the Currency.

H. R. Mattern, the National Bank Examiner, whose district includes the Enterprise, lives in Franklin, Penn. The bank's examination filed by him Aug. 25, 1905, was sworn to by T. Lee Clark, Cashier; A. F. Schwerd, David Morrison, and August Langenheim, Directors, on Aug. 30, before F. P. Koehn, a notary public.

According to the best information, fully $1,500,000, or more than one-half the total assets, are lost. That was not done between Aug. 25 and Oct. 19 of this year. Several attorneys have been making an investigation for clients and are convinced that a systematic method of robbing the bank has been practiced for more than two years, and all the time the bank was insolvent.

Edward P. Moxey, the special Government Bank Examiner; Judge F. F. Oldham, Assistant Examiner Lyon of Philadelphia, C. C. Murray, assistant, and Receiver John B. Cunningham held a conference to-day, after which Mr. Moxey said:

"My coming here means that there may be suspicions of illegal dealings in the affairs of the bank. I do not want to say anything that would incriminate any one unjustly. The information I get will be turned over to United States Attorney J. W. Dunkle, and if there are grounds for proceedings they will be brought."

BOY WANTED LIFE SENTENCE.

Young Burglar Saw No Prospect of Being Able to Reform.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26.—William R. Phillips, aged seventeen, who in the Superior Court to-day was sentenced to imprisonment to from two to eight years for burglary, asked Judge Gager to give him a life sentence.

The boy said he had become fixed in a criminal career through contact with criminals in a Massachusetts prison, and that he saw no hope ahead of mending his ways after his release from the present sentence. The court answered that the penalty could not be changed.

SONS AGAINST FATHER.

Weep in Court as They Tell How He Murdered Their Mother.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Oct. 26.—At the trial here to-day of John Johnson for the murder of his wife in Yonkers on May 15 last his two sons were put on the stand in the Supreme Court. The boys testified against their father, and they wept and he wept.

Johnson's wife refused to live with him because he was a convicted burglar. The sons, Stephen, aged 12, and Edward, 8 years old, told how their mother was sitting on the veranda with them in the evening, when their father walked up the steps and without warning shot her. The father embraced the boys and then fled.

The prisoner is being defended by ex-District Attorney George Andrews, who will contend in his defense that Johnson killed his wife in a fit of jealous rage.

SHOT CHINAMAN AS PROTEST.

Labor Agitator in New Zealand Objected to Immigration.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 26.—The steamship Moana to-day brought news from Wellington, N. Z., of the murder of an old Chinaman by Lionel Terry, an English labor agitator, who lectured and worked in the United States, particularly on the Pacific Coast.

Terry, before surrendering to the police, wrote to Lord Plunkett, Governor of the colony, saying that he killed the Chinaman as a protest against alien immigration. After a lecture upon the need for the purity of the Anglo-Saxon, Terry went to the Chinese quarter of Wellington and killed the first Chinaman he met by shooting him. Terry was educated at Oxford and has served in the Garrison Artillery and the British Horse Guards. He served in the Jameson raid and Matabele war.

BATTLEAXE BEATEN BY MOLLIE DONOHUE

Whitney Stake Winner Third to 30 to 1 Chance Outsider.

HANDZARRA WON THE STAKES

Kiamesha and Benevolent Were Successful Favorites for the Oneck Stable at Jamaica.

When Battleaxe, a stake winner for the Whitney stable in the Summer, was beaten by the obscure filly Mollie Donohue, at 30 to 1, in the last race at Jamaica yesterday, the betting patrons of the track went wrong for the only time in the course of the afternoon. Mistaken as the crowd was in the estimate of Battleaxe, it was a singular feature of the day's racing that, in spite of the suspicion which has been thick about results through the entire meeting, there never was a hint that Battleaxe had been beaten other than honestly as the race was run, and that in spite of the fact that, opening favorite at 2 to 1 on, he went back in the betting so fast that at post time he was 7 to 5 against, while the shrewd horsemen and professional backers bet all around him and backed about every horse in the race except the winner, which was the last-chance outsider. Horsemen had refused to believe that Battleaxe is a really good horse, though he did win the Grand Union Hotel Stakes at Saratoga, but the public somehow or other rated him as close to the best of the smart two-year-olds of the Whitney Stable, and, as he was made top weight by the handicapper, Battleaxe was talked of as one of the best bets of the day for the six-furlong handicap, last on the card.

When the call to the post was sounded, J. F. K. and Old Guard both had been backed down, and started equal second choices in the field of seven that ran, Midas, stable mate to Battleaxe, having been scratched. The horses broke with Pantoufle first away, but she was in front for only a few strides. O'Neill, who rode Battleaxe, taking the Whitney colt to the front with a rush, and, whatever his orders may have been, riding in a style which suggested that the action of the Stewards regarding certain races ridden by Miller, Davis, and Shaw had left him determined to take no chances on his own account. In twenty yards Battleaxe showed in front, and drew clear of his field in the run to the first quarter, from which point to the head of the stretch, beginning the run home, Battleaxe was galloping in the lead, with the race seemingly as good as won.

At that point he began to tire under the weight and pace, and in another fifty yards was trying his best to stop, with O'Neill hard at him with whip and heels. At the last quarter pole, Mollie Donohue, which had closed from fourth place to second, went on after Battleaxe, followed by Old Guard, Mollie Donohue getting up to him just inside the final furlong, and from there on to the winning post holding him safe and winning rather easily, while Battleaxe stopped so at the end that Old Guard got up on the post and beat him a head for second place.

In one other race of the day a favorite was beaten, but this time it was not a popular favorite, but one made by stable support, Frank Farrell and his friends backing the Farrell horse Keator into the place of post choice, after Handzarra opened favorite, and through the betting remained the horse best backed by the general public in spite of the support that Keator and Aeronaut received. The race was for the Ravenswood Handicap, the stake feature of the day, for which eight horses ran, with Aeronaut the top weight. There was an unusual delay at the post, but the field went away in a line when the barrier was sprung, Handzarra at once jumping out of the crowd and to the front, and from the first stride to the last holding first place. To the head of the stretch, the fast horses Aeronaut, Keator, and Belle Strome made a hot pursuit, but their efforts stopped all of them when they reached the stretch, and Santa Catalina, closing the gear, went on and finished second, four lengths behind Handzarra, which won easily.

In the remaining four races the post favorites and the horses selected by the form followers were winners, the Oneck Stable furnishing two of the four in the mile-record-holding filly Kiamesha, and the smart two-year-old Benevolent. Kiamesha ran in the third race, a condition event, in which she conceded ten pounds each to the three horses that opposed her among them the fast horse First Mason. Kiamesha, starting at odds on, took the track at the break, and galloped in the lead from end to end, winning in a canter. Benevolent made all the pace in his race and won with ease. Frontenac and Jack Young, in their respective races, closed from behind, Frontenac winning, ridden out, from the pacemaker Rusk, while Jack Young won easily. Summary:

De Oro Challenged for Pool Title.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 26.—Thomas Hueston, who made a good showing in the last tournament for the world's championship continuous pool title, has posted a forfeit and formally challenged Alfredo de Oro, the present champion, to a 600-ball match for a side bet and the title. According to the conditions under which de Oro holds the diamond championship emblem, he has forty days to play the challenger or surrender the title and emblem. De Oro is at present in Cleveland, Ohio.

HORSE SHOW AWARD HISSED.

Chicagoans Rebuked Judges' Decision in Giving First Prize to Moore's Pair.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 26.—One of the most remarkable scenes ever witnessed at a horse show occurred this evening when in the $1,000 contest for the best pair of harness horses, any size, the judges awarded the prize to J. H. Moore's Burlingham and Burlingame. When Mr. Moore's number was announced as the winner nine-tenths of the large attendance arose to its feet and hissed for several minutes, hooting and cat-calling. When the Jordan pair, Hildred and Plymouth Champion, were driven up to receive third prize the same persons cheered even longer than they had hissed. When Mr. Moore's horses came up to get the ribbon the hissing was renewed and kept up until they were driven from the arena. The Vanderbilt pair, Amazement and Astonishment, which got second prize, were also cheered.

In the afternoon Mr. Vanderbilt scored a victory in the heavy-weight harness class when he carried off the first prize of $100 with Dr. Selwork, and also the second prize, $50, with Amazement. In the harness horse class for park use to a T cart, first prize went to E. D. Jordan's Lord Burleigh and Lord Belfast.

SPRINTER MORTON SAILS.

English Champion Won Eight Out of Nine Races in This Country.

J. W. Morton, the champion English sprinter, has sailed for home after a most successful tour. During his six weeks' stay on this side of the water he competed in nine races, winning eight and finishing second in the other events. Morton landed at Montreal on Sept. 2, and two days later won the 100-yard dash at the Montreal Caledonia games in 9 4-5 seconds, defeating, among others, P. J. Walsh of the New York Athletic Club. In the Canadian championships he won the 100-yard event from C. J. Seitz, the Georgetown crack, by six inches. Morton also won the 120-yard special from Lawson Robertson in even time. At Travers Island he scored a hollow victory over Seitz in a match race, and on Oct. 15 ran 120 yards against a stiff breeze at Celtic Park in 12 seconds.

His only defeat was at Madison Square Garden, when he lost the fifty-yard dash to W. D. Eaton of Amherst in the world's record time of 0:05 2-5. Morton subsequently won the sixty-yard scratch event at the same meeting. He will return to this country next year, when he will endeavor to time his arrival so as to compete in the Amateur Athletic Union championships. Morton is the best sprinter in England and defeated Champion Duffey of Georgetown in the majority of their races.

One Race Ended at Woonsocket.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Oct. 26.—Only one of the three harness races scheduled for this afternoon was finished. Mary Scott, the favorite, won the 2:18 trotting after four heats. Summary:

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

The Stewards of the Jamaica meeting yesterday continued their inquiry into the riding of Jockey Shaw on H. B. Duryea's three-year-old Dreamer, when that horse was beaten by Platoon and Grapple in the first race on Thursday. The case will remain in abeyance pending the return of Mr. Duryea, who is absent on a trip to the South. Shaw, in explanation of his riding on Dreamer, made a statement concerning that horse's peculiarities, which he alleged that Mr. Duryea would corroborate, and it remains for Mr. Duryea to confirm this and clear the rider of suspicion. The Stewards have decided to suspend Shaw until Mr. Duryea returns, and, as the owner of Dreamer had planned a hunting expedition in Mississippi, Shaw will be on the ground for an indefinite period.

The sale of the fast two-year-old Lotus, one of the sensational horses of the Fall season, by W. P. Burch to C. E. Durnell, on private terms, was announced yesterday at the Jamaica track. Lotus, a brown filly by Watercress-La Fleur, is the horse which was sick at Saratoga and supposed to be on the point of death, and which Mr. Burch declined to sell to J. E. Madden for $6,000, the offer having been made with the knowledge of Lotus's sickness, in the hope that she could be bought for a smaller price than the $15,000 set on her earlier in the season. The price paid for the filly by Trainer Durnell, who is supposed to have acted for John W. Gates, was not stated; but Mr. Burch persistently has declined to part with her for less than $15,000, and rumor has fixed the price at that figure.

Application has been made to The Jockey Club by J. L. Holland and John Frank of Albany, on behalf of the Island Park race track, near Albany, for dates for a race meeting next year, twelve days being requested. It is proposed by the club controlling the Island Park course to give a meeting next season between the Buffalo and Providence meetings, and as the idea of a Northern circuit as an outlet for the excess of horses racing on the metropolitan tracks has been approved by The Jockey Club, it is believed that the plan of the Island Park Club will be carried out.

Following his finish in second place behind Kiamesha in the third race at Jamaica yesterday, First Mason bolted with the apprentice Jockey Sewell and went once and a half around the course after having run a mile and a sixteenth. He threw Sewell at the far turn, but the boy hung to the bridle, and after a long delay got back to the scales and made his weight, the official decision being withheld until Sewell had weighed.

Keator, the post favorite for the Ravenswood Handicap at Jamaica yesterday, jumped on Aeronaut's heels at the turn into the stretch, and then stumbled and dropped out of the race himself, pulling up lame. Aeronaut was not seriously hurt.

Wotan, entered yesterday as the property of S. Deimel, ran in the first race in the name and colors of Albert Simons, trainer of the horse, to whom Wotan has been transferred.

The race run by Kiamesha at Jamaica yesterday, it has been decided by H. K. Knapp, her owner, will not necessarily be her last race of the season, as the filly seems to have just come to her best form and is fresh and full of vigor. No definite plans have been made, but, as Kiamesha is entered in several stakes to be run in the early part of the Aqueduct meeting, she may have her last race of the season there.

George Wheelock, President of the Metropolitan Turf Association, the bookmakers' organization which combated the race tracks early in the season in the effort to secure official recognition, has stated his intention of resigning his office in the near future. Wheelock is said to have made a profit of nearly a million dollars in the single season of 1904. The stated cause of his wish to retire is ill-health.

Jockey "Willie" Knapp won just one-half of the racing programme at Jamaica yesterday, three winning mounts, all of them favorites, making up his day's work. His winners were Frontenac, in the first race, and Kiamesha and Benevolent, for the Oneck Stable, in their respective trials. In other races Knapp was once third and once unplaced.

STAR PUGH DEFEATED AT SPEEDWAY MATINEE

Susie G. Again Won from Pacing Rival in Fast Time.

CLOSE FINISHES THE ORDER

Baron de Shay Ran Away, but Captured the Trotting Feature from Invader and Kitty Wilkes.

The third of the fall series of matinee races under the auspices of the Road Drivers' Association was held yesterday on the Speedway. Eight events were on the card and several spirited contests were witnessed. With only two more matinees scheduled the competition for the silver trophies is becoming keen and interesting. Star Pugh and Susie G., in Class A pacing, are only one point apart, and Baron de Shay and Kitty Wilkes, the crack trotters, are close together. It is proposed to postpone the final matinee until Election Day so as to insure a big crowd of spectators and a good entry list.

Susie G. and Star Pugh furnished three exciting heats. Dr. Madara and Cascade also started. Susie G. led the first heat for half the distance when she broke and Star Pugh won by half a length from Dr. Madara, which made a strong bid at the finish. Susie G. was third, two lengths away. The second heat was one of the best contested during the afternoon. Star Pugh and Susie G. paced neck and neck the entire distance, the latter nosing out Star Pugh at the wire. The time, 1:02½, is the second best for the season. The third and deciding heat was confined to Susie G. and Star Pugh, the other two pacers being ruled out. It was a repetition of the preceding heat for three-quarters of the distance, when Star Pugh broke and Susie G. came on alone and won as she pleased.

In the first heat of the Class A trot, Baron de Shay and Invader finished first and second, but were set back for running, the heat being given to Kitty Wilkes. Baron de Shay ran fully a mile up the Speedway before his driver could pull him up. The run did not affect his speed as he scored an easy victory in the second heat, with Kitty Wilkes second. With Invader ruled out in the third heat, Baron de Shay had no difficulty in winning again from Kitty Wilkes.

El Mora won the Class B trot in straight heats and Bow Rane secured first honors in Class C trot, after losing the second heat to Ortine. Gracie Pandit made a show of her field in the Class D trot. The field for Class B pacers was the biggest on the card, seven starters facing the flag. Don Riley was forced to trot 1:03 in the first heat to win. The second heat was a close one for the entire distance. Ogden Smith, which was leading fifty yards from home, broke in the final strides and Don Riley repeated in a neck and neck finish.

I. A. Hopper drove the winners in the other two pacing Classes, Bessie Thompson winning in straight heats and Bessie Reid taking two out of three heats in the last event on the card. Summaries:

Automobile Notes of Interest.

Chairman Robert Lee Morrell of the Racing Board of the American Automobile Association is anxiously awaiting a letter from the Automobile Club of France regarding the disposition of the Vanderbilt Cup, which was won by Hemery in his Darracq car. Word has been received that a letter is on its way, and as soon as it is received a committee meeting will be called to discuss its terms, if necessary, and make some preliminary plan for the race next year if it should appear that the contest will be held here.

A. R. Shattuck, Chairman of the Good Roads Committee of the Automobile Club of America, has sent a circular to all members of the club reminding them that the amendment authorizing the bonding of the State for $50,000,000 for the building and improvement of roads will come before the voters for action on election day. Mr. Shattuck advises all lovers of good roads to vote in favor of the constitutional amendment, as it stipulates the use of a definite sum for a long term of years.

An automobile garage has been installed at the Wykagyl Country Club, near New Rochelle. The club laid out an excellent golf course early in the season, and so many members this past Summer have driven to the grounds in the motor cars that the establishment of a garage became a necessity. Many members now store their cars in the club garage. A competent mechanician and chauffeur, who is a graduate of one of the New York automobile schools, has been secured to take charge of the garage.

Ernest S. Partridge, Vice President and General Manager of the Decauville Automobile Company, sailed for Paris yesterday on the steamer Amerika. Mr. Partridge goes abroad to oversee the preparation of Decauville cars for the forthcoming shows. While in Paris he will also attend to the establishment of the Paris branch of the American company, which has been rendered necessary by the large number of cars owned by Americans who are touring through or living in Europe.

The first consignment of three carloads of Franklin cars has been received by the Decauville Automobile Company, the new metropolitan agents for the Franklin car. The cars include runabouts and large and small touring cars. The new limousines have not yet been received, though many orders have been placed.

The 40 horse power Decauville racer, with which Guy Vaughn has won so many races during the last three years, and which was the car used in the making of the 1,000-mile and the 24-hour record by Vaughn at the Empire track this year, has been sold to Dr. A. F. Morris of this city. He will use the car in beach and track races in the future.

FOOTBALL EXPERTS FIGURE ON UPSETS

Keenest Interest in To-morrow's Games on the Gridiron.

COLUMBIA MEN CONFIDENT

But Princeton Expects to Win by Good Score—Yale at West Point—Can Indians Beat Penn?

The keenest interest is being displayed in the games scheduled for to-morrow on the gridiron. At Columbia there appears to be a growing confidence not only in the ability of the team to hold Princeton to a low score and to tally itself, but also in the possibility of a victory for the Blue and White. Unless some startling advances have been made in the secret practice during the past week, it is hard to see wherein the confidence arises. By all signs shown in the previous games of the two elevens, the Tigers should win by a score of over 20 to 0, if they present their full strength.

Coach Edwards of the Princeton team was in town yesterday morning, and said that it was the intention of the coaches to play the best men at the start of the game and give them a thorough workout. Aside from the prominence of the game itself, they considered this necessary to prepare for the Cornell game next week, which they regard as almost as severe a test as that against Yale.

The line will be played as it was against Lafayette, with the exception of the transposition of the two guards. It is hoped Brashear will be able to go in at end, though, should he not be, Fryer will be given a chance. Tenney will go back to quarter back at the start of the game, while Bard and Simons will start as half backs. This is the best team the Orange and Black can show in the present condition of the men.

Columbia may present the same line-up as against Amherst, with the single exception of quarter back, where there is a strong probability that Collins will play. The coachers have not yet announced their decision on this point.

The West Point game with Yale is sharing the attention of the college men with the American League Park match. The Yalensians have been working like Trojans to avoid the defects in the defensive play shown in the trial with Penn State. It is safe to say that with the grilling they have received during the past six days they will play much better football. It is likely that Hockenberger will replace Erwin at guard. The chances are the Blue line will do better at stopping West Point's line drives than did Harvard, with the additional preparation Eli has had, but there are fears expressed that Beavers's fast end running may play hob with Yale on account of the weakness of right end, where Cates is far from up to standard. At the Military Academy there is a quiet feeling of confidance and determination that augurs well for the team's success.

There is a bigger chance of an upset in Philadelphia than anywhere else. The demoralizing effect of Draper's disqualification after the offensive and defensive system was built around his great ability can only be appreciated by those in close touch with the team's work. The successive loss of five of the Quakers' best men makes the chance of any success for the Red and Blue extremely unlikely in any of the big games.

The Carlisle Indians have made a great showing this year. They have scored the highest total of points of any team in the East and have met fairly strong competitors. They made a better showing against Penn State than did Yale. The team is in perfect physical condition, appears able to gain ground and to defend equally well, and is fairly strong in kicking.

Nothing is expected of the game at Cambridge between Harvard and Brown, despite the Crimson's supposed worriment. There is more chance of something interesting developing at Annapolis, where the strong Swarthmore team plays. If the "Middies" can keep up their pace against this team they will show greater strength than they have had for three years.

The Columbia eleven had the last hard practice before meeting the Tigers yesterday afternoon. The scrub and 'Varsity scrimmaged for about an hour and neither side succeeded in scoring. According to the statement of Coach Smith, Carter may play in the game, but the matter has not been definitely decided as yet. According to one of the coaches, the matter lies entirely with him. He must pass off another condition to be eligible.

Considerable Columbia money has been sent to Princeton and covered at odds of 3 to 1 by the Tiger supporters. A number of bets have also been made on the score, the Princetonians wagering that they would tally three times.

As the contest will be the first that Princeton has played in New York in a number of years, the game is attracting unusual attention, and the demand for seats has nearly swamped the office of the manager of the team, Gerald B. Curtis. It is feared there will not be seating capacity sufficient to accommodate the crowd.

Princeton yesterday wound up her hard work preliminary to the Columbia game. The Tigers showed a marked progress in team work, and their heavy rushes were very effective. The practice was remarkably free of fumbling. During the first half the 'Varsity literally ripped up the scrub, and went down the field at will, making long gains on each formation. Bard and Daub started at half, but were later relieved by Simons and Hamil, who put up a fine game. Cooney was again in his position, and Waller played centre. Otis went to full back, as McCormick is in the infirmary with an abscess. Herring has not been able to resume right tackle, and there is considerable doubt as to whether he can be utilized against Columbia. O'Brien was at end, and played splendidly.

Yale took her final practice yesterday before leaving for West Point. The 'Varsity scored twice on sharp and snappy attacks on the strongest scrub that could be mustered. The line, composed of Cates and Shevlin, ends; Forbes and Bigelow, tackles; Hockenberger and Tripp, guards; Flanders, centre, then faced the scrubs, strengthened by two extra backs and by Edgar Glass, who were unable to make much progress, though Linn rounded Cates's end for a touchdown.

To-night the team leaves for New York, where they will stop at the Murray Hill Hotel, going on to West Point in the morning.

Harvard had open practice on Soldiers Field yesterday. The eleven has taken a big stride forward and it showed it plainly, putting up a strong game both offensively and defensively. Three touchdowns were scored in two fifteen-minute periods of play.

The most encouraging feature of the day was the return to the scrimmage of Pierce, the big guard, who has been laid by with a broken wrist, and Guild, full-back, who has had a broken collarbone. Both put up a strong fight. Pierce will strengthen the weak right side of the line, with Knowlton at tackle and MacDonald at end.

Another feature of the play was the introduction of a tackles back formation. Both Brill and Knowlton rushed with the ball in this formation and made substantial gains. In the scrimmage Nesmith made a 35-yard end run, while Newhall gave one of the prettiest exhibitions of dodging seen this year in returning a punt. He shook off at least ten players and was finally downed by Coach Brown.

The New York University football team resumed practice yesterday. Capt. Cragin will not be able to play again for a week, owing to a badly injured knee. Counell has been laid up with a sprained ankle, but will in all probability be in the game against Stevens. The men are confident of trouncing the Jerseyites on Saturday.

Manager John Hinchliffe of the Fordham University team announces that the Middlebury College of Vermont has canceled its game with Fordham, which was scheduled for Saturday. Negotiations are pending for a game either with Union College or the Amherst "Aggies."

OPPOSED TO ROUGH FOOTBALL

President of Johns Hopkins University Says It Should Be Discountenanced.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 26.—President Remsen of Johns Hopkins University to-day expressed himself in favor of college athletics when ruled by the spirit of fair play.

"I am not opposed to football as a game," he said, "though I take little personal interest in it. I do think, however, that football is peculiarly open to a number of unfair practices which I regard as very reprehensible to all; such violation of fair play as slugging purposely, injuring an opponent, and every form of intentional roughness I am unalterably opposed to. Such things not only endanger life and limbs, but degrade the moral sense of the players as well. I once had a conversation upon the subject with a well-known football player.

"'Is it true,' I asked of him, 'that in football certain actions directly contrary to the rules of the game, such as slugging, are not regarded with disapproval so long as the offender is not detected?' He admitted that it was true. 'Then,' said I, 'football played thus is an immoral game.'

"I have no reason to believe, however, that such practices are countenanced in most colleges. Certainly they are not countenanced here."

FORDHAM'S FALL GAMES.

Cassasa Won Three Events and Was Second in Two More.

The annual Fall interclass games of Fordham University were held yesterday at Fordham Field, before a large crowd of the students and many other spectators, who were delighted with the showing made by the wearers of the maroon. COST OF AUTO RUNNING PUT TO SEVERE TEST

Prizes Offered for Cars That Beat Railroad Rates.

SIX DAYS' CONTEST PLANNED

Fourteen Machines to Start Monday for Philadelphia—Strong Rule on Speed Regulations.

An additional entry was received yesterday for the National economy test, to be held next week by the New York Motor Club, bringing the total number of cars up to fourteen that are now ready to start in the initial run to Philadelphia. The Contest Committee met last night at the headquarters of the club in the Hotel Cumberland. The members are A. L. McMurtry, Chairman; W. J. P. Moore, M. L. Downs, Frank J. Griffin, Dr. C. C. Moore, and A. R. Tucker, Secretary of the club. Matters of detail were carefully considered, and if necessary, after the closing of the entries at noon today, another meeting will be held this evening. The competing cars pay a fee of $100.

The conditions for this test have been drawn up in the most careful manner. No technical detail that may have any effect upon determining both the reliability and economical running of the competing cars has been omitted. When the cars start out each morning the exact amount of gasoline taken in the tank will be measured, and the tank will then be sealed. The observer will keep an accurate account of all fuel used by each car, noting the quantity of water and lubricating oil as well as gasoline.

The test will continue throughout the week. The run on Monday will be to Philadelphia, 90 miles, starting from the Smith & Mabley garage, Broadway and Fifty-sixth Street, between the hours of 8 and 10 o'clock in the morning. On Tuesday the cars will return to New York. Wednesday morning they will go to Albany, 150 miles, and return the following day. Friday morning the run will start to Southampton, L. I., 101 miles, and the return journey will be made on Saturday. In order to qualify for the trophies offered for the test the cars must show a high average on all three runs.

The National economy trophy offered by the club will be awarded to the owner of the car making the most economical showing per passenger for the six days' test. The McMurtry Medal of Honor will go to the gasoline car having the least ignition trouble during the week. The medal offered by W. J. Morgan will be presented to the owner of the car consuming the least gasoline per passenger, other charges not being considered. W. J. P. Moore offers a touring trophy for the car making the best record for economy, including tire charges.

The railway fare to and from the three places is $14.53. It will be the chief aim of the cars to make the trip per passenger at as great a reduction from this sum as possible, and engrossed certificates will be presented to the owners of all cars that succeed in beating the railroad rates.

Official garages have been selected in Philadelphia, Albany, and Southampton, besides this city, and Superintendents of the contest will be at each garage to receive the cars as they come in. The Superintendents will then have practical control of the cars until the observer gives the word to start on the following day. In the garages only necessary repairs and adjustments may be made. All of these repairs will be carefully noted. The committee insists strongly upon the observance of speed regulations. The rule on this point specifies:

"Cars must be driven with due regard to the rights of other users of the highway and with consideration for horse-drawn vehicles and pedestrians. Violations of this rule, if willful and in the committee's opinion tending to bring motor cars into popular disfavor, may result in disqualification."

The committee has appointed H. H. Everett Superintendent of Observers, M. C. Reeves Superintendent of Garages, W. K. Coleman Superintendent of Gasoline and Oil, and E. L. Ferguson Chief Inspector.

BURGLARS USE A ROPE.

Get Into 54th Street House at the Top and Loot It Downward.

By means of a rope, according to the police, burglars entered the rear window on the top floor of the residence of Mrs. Mary C. Byrne, 40 East Fifty-fourth Street, between 6 and 11 o'clock last night. While the sole occupant of the house, Mrs. Tattenback, sister of the owner, was attending to the household affairs on the first floor, they ransacked the house from the second floor upward and escaped with the plunder, leaving no clue to their means of escape. Two thousand dollars worth of silver and some jewelry was taken.

The window of the bedroom at the east side of the rear of the house had been forced. It is supposed that the burglars dropped by means of a rope from the roof and escaped back to the roof after plundering the house.

John D. Rockefeller lives at 4 West Fifty-fourth Street.

BAD WEST SIDE FIRE.

Blaze Wrecks a Building in Desbrosses Street This Morning.

Firemen had a hard job in getting under control a fire that started in the six-story building 18 to 22 Desbrosses Street early this morning. The building was occupied by the Crown Cordial and Extract Company, the Dexter Manufacturing Company, the Thompson Pettit Manufacturing Company, and the California Wine Company. D. A. Van Horn, a manufacturer of cut glass, and Julius Cohen's California Essential and Distilling Company, which occupied the upper floors, were burned out.

The firemen had the fire under control at 1:45. The damage was estimated at $100,000.

DRAPER A PROFESSIONAL.

This Was the Reason He Was Disqualified by Pennsylvania's Faculty.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—It developed today that D. W. Draper was disqualified by the Pennsylvania Faculty Athletic Committee, not under the one year's residence rule, but for professionalism. The residence rule did not apply, as Draper at the time he played at Swarthmore was a student in the preparatory school and not in the college. This would not disqualify him. But while at Swarthmore he is charged with accepting free room rent and board, which is prohibited under the rule defining an amateur. A Pennsylvania coach said to-day:

"The acceptance of a scholarship, free board, and free room rent at Swarthmore College in the year of 1901, which the eligibility code of Pennsylvania prohibits, was proved against Draper. The Faculty Athletic Committee had no other alternative than to declare him ineligible, not for this year, but permanently.

"Draper is a manly, courageous, honest-spirited fellow and commands the respect of players, students, and Faculty, and his folly is very regrettable."

The statement that the information concerning Draper's career at Swarthmore was furnished to the Pennsylvania authorities by Harvard missionaries is officially denied.

Financial Notes.

Eight shares of Bank of Commerce stock sold on the Stock Exchange yesterday at 200, 26 shares at 199¾, and 100 shares at 199.

James W. Wallace, President of the Central Trust Company, has been elected a Director of the Pressed Steel Car Company to succeed the late George S. Macklin. John H. Regan has been elected Assistant Secretary.

William A. Porter has retired from the Vice Presidency of the E. W. Bliss Company. He will be succeeded by Frank C. B. Page. William J. Grinden succeeds Arthur T. Porter, who retires as Second Vice President, and F. M. Leavitt has been elected a Director.

Poor's Manual of Railroads for 1905 has been issued. It shows that the heaviest railroad construction of 1904 was in the Southwest, where 1,716 miles of road were built. This number compares with 25 miles built in New England. The new issue of Poor's Directory of Railroad Officials also appeared yesterday.

Stocks Lower; Call Money Rates, 3@4 Per Cent.

Market Declines on the Russian Disorders—Grain Markets Advance.

After the first hour of trading in yesterday's stock market the movement of prices became extremely confused with advances in such issues as Delaware and Hudson and Chicago and Northwestern, and fractional declines in many of the active stocks and extreme breaks in the Metropolitan shares. Late in the day the general list developed weakness, which increased to the close, when losses running from fractions to 2 points were the rule, save in the special issues mentioned, which managed to retain portions of their earlier gains. The market gave plain evidence of uncertainty as to the outcome of the strikes in Russia, and near the close of the day this was intensified by reports on the floor of the Stock Exchange that gold had been engaged for export. Foreign dispatches were by no means reassuring in their reports on the Russian situation, telling as they did of the spread of the revolutionist propaganda and of the extreme measures adopted by the police to crush the movement. The Paris market opened weak as a result of this situation, and in the curb market in London, after the close of the Stock Exchange, there were reported fairly heavy sales of securities for Continental account. Russian bonds were down well over a point in London and the general market was heavy. From Paris there were received cables repeating the rumors afloat in banking circles in that city that the Russian disorders would delay the issue of the Russian loan, but beyond these rumors bankers here had no information regarding the matter.

The rumors of engagements of gold for export were not borne out, and probably arose from the fact that an inquiry regarding supplies of the metal was made at the Assay Office. Demand sterling, however, touched 4.8710 during the day, and with the quotation little more than 25 points from the gold point the possibilities in the situation are forcibly brought home to the market. A serious extension of the Russian disturbance might have no little effect on the exchange market. Any inducements by the Bank of France, such as it has often offered, would unquestionably lead to exports.

The untoward conditions in Russia had direct reflection yesterday in the grain markets, where May wheat rose 2 cents and corn nearly 1 cent. On the Cotton Exchange prices fell sharply, the Government's ginning figures being accepted, for the time being at least, as indicating a crop well up to the average if nothing more. Money rates were again easy, and abroad there was little change in discounts. The Bank of England reported reserves at 40⅛ per cent. against 43¼ per cent. a week ago, but made no change in its rate. The German Bank return disclosed a strengthened position. An interesting development of the day was the letting of contracts for 21,000 cars for the New York Central lines, it being understood that some 9,000 additional cars will be ordered within a day or so. This is most acceptable proof of confidence in the duration of the present prosperity.

NEAR GOLD EXPORT POINT.

Foreign Exchange Rises and Shipments Are Talked Of.

The foreign exchange market rose yesterday to within a small fraction of the point at which gold exports could be arranged. Rumors were current in Wall Street that engagements of gold for export had actually been made, but these reports proved unfounded. At least one inquiry, however, was made at the Assay Office for gold bars, and it was said in some quarters that an export movement was likely to being very soon. Demand sterling rose here as high as 4.8710, reacting about 10 points before the close, though retaining a firm tone. In Paris sterling exchange closed weak at 25f. 15c. A decline of another centime in Paris or a quarter of a cent advance here would be sufficient to send out gold.

Heavy maturities of finance bills continue to be the dominant factor in the exchange market. Foreign bankers are said to be indisposed to make advances to our bankers over the beginning of the year, owing to possible end of the year requirements.

LEATHER DIVIDEND PASSED.

Need of More Capital for Operating Expenses Given as the Reason.

The Directors of the American Hide and Leather Company passed yesterday the dividend on the company's preferred stock as forecast in THE TIMES yesterday. This suspension of the dividends on the stock comes within a year of the first dividend, which was announced last January. The need of increased working capital was assigned as the reason for the passing of the dividend. This official announcement was issued after yesterday's meeting:

"Owing to the present high ruling price of raw material, which requires considerable additional capital to operate to the company, it was the sense of the board that it is for the best interest of the company to use the earnings in the operation of its business."

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Money was in good demand and short supply in the market to-day. Discounts hardened. Much business went to the Bank of England.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was inactive. First-class securities were dull, owing to the monetary position and unfavorable Bank return. Consols were easier. Home rails were in continuous demand and improved substantially.

Americans opened dull and mostly lower, especially Chesapeake & Ohio, on New York realizations. They remained unsettled and inactive, with several stocks below parity, though there was no pressure to sell here.

Canadians were depressed at the opening. Later they rallied slightly, and closed dull and below the best quotations of the day.

Foreigners were irregular. Japanese were firmer. Russians were weak, on the strike situation.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 102.

Bar silver dull at 28⅜d. per ounce.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

"I see," said a disgruntled trader yesterday, "that a bull movement has started in Distillers Securities, the whisky stock. I don't wonder at that. This market is enough to drive us to drink."

***

The perplexities of the professional trading element are increasing. The market's speculative moods change so rapidly that it is almost impossible to anticipate fluctuations. The average professional trader deals more in fluctuations than in stocks or values. He cares very little about values. There is this peculiarity about the market, that when it gets suddenly weak it looks as if it were going to fall all to pieces, and then, an hour later, when it is strong again, the bull side seems irresistible. It has been a very treacherous market in that way. Traders, almost in spite of themselves, sell it when it is weak and buy it when it is strong, and get whipsawed both ways. For those who disregard small fluctuations and play only to catch the swings of the market, the situation is equally confusing, owing to the manner in which influential banking opinion is divided. It has been so for some time. There is no longer any pretense of concealing the fact that powerful banking interests are arrayed on opposite sides of the market. They have been coming more and more into the open, becoming more and more outspoken in their views, and in at least one instance there has been evidence of heavy cross-firing in a stock hitherto controlled absolutely by one group of financiers. The stock is Union Pacific.

***

Up to this point the bull interests have been able to control the situation. They held the market without a serious break in spite of an 8 per cent. call money rate several weeks ago, and resumed operations for the rise aggressively last week, when money became a little easier. It is noteworthy that the same conservative banking authorities who so far have been right in their money market predictions do not change their opinion in the least. They insist that a 4 per cent. rate for call money is temporary.

***

When gold imports began last September, bullish enthusiasts predicted that the movement would not stop short of $50,000,000. We imported in all less than $9,000,000, and now Wall Street contemplates the possibility of gold exports in the near future. An inquiry for exportable gold was made at the Assay Office yesterday.

***

The market made an erratic exhibition of strength in the early trading yesterday. The features were stocks like Reading, American Smelting and Refining, American Locomotive, Delaware and Hudson, and specialties generally. American Smelting, Delaware and Hudson, and American Locomotive touched new high records. Brokers reported, as on Wednesday, that there was continuous pressure on the general list. London was a heavy seller of Union Pacific. The United States Steel shares were distinctly heavy even in the forenoon. Metropolitan Street Railway suffered a further decline to 120¾, but the weakness of that stock had apparently ceased to be a matter of general concern. In the afternoon the whole market turned weak and declined more or less steadily after 1 o'clock. There was no recovery in the last hour. The selling tended rather to increase in volume, especially in Union Pacific, which declined to 132⅞ in the last few minutes of trading and closed at the lowest eighth. The United States Steel stocks also closed at the bottom. A good deal of speculative selling in the late afternoon was influenced by rumors of gold exports and uneasiness over the state of things in Russia.

***

Omaha stock became unusually active yesterday morning, advancing to 193¾. It fell back sharply in the afternoon and closed at 191. Northwestern simultaneously advanced 5 points, to 224½. It has been rumored several times that Omaha stock would be exchanged share and share for Northwestern, and the report, naturally, was revived yesterday. There may be some basis for it. There is a disparity of nearly 30 points between the two stocks.

***

The leadership of such stocks as Reading and American Smelting does not help the general market much. In that capacity they have been without influence on this occasion as they have been at previous times. Each stock has its following. Both are easily advanced, owing to the manner in which the floating supply is controlled. The general market, however, disregards their movements. The trading in American Smelting is confined almost entirely to a limited number of houses and individuals, and is always the same. In Reading the case is similar. Activity attracts a certain amount of professional interest, and with the assistance of traders a market is made, but the speculation never becomes really broad in either stock. The position of American Smelting is probably stronger than that of Reading. Those who control the movements of American Smelting own nearly all of the stock and believe in it as an investment. What they do in the market is incidental. It is imaginable, on the other hand, that the bull crowd in Reading would like to have a market on which to distribute stock.

***

The tape has yet to explain why the high market valuation placed upon Reading common is not reflected in the price of Baltimore and Ohio stock.

***

The position of Union Pacific is an inexhaustible source of speculative interest. The reasons for this lie beneath the surface. The stock has not been a very prominent feature of the market recently. The transactions on this price level have been attracting attention, not for their volume, but because of the diversity of their origin. It is rumored persistently that the Morgan people have been accumulating the stock, and that it has been supplied to them freely by those who control the property. This has been going on, or is supposed to have been going on, for some time, and if such a situation as Wall Street imagines does actually exist, a contest for control of the market in Union Pacific would be the logical outcome. Persons who believe themselves to be well informed in the matter are a little apprehensive as to the outcome. There has been evidence of conflicting operations in Union Pacific for a month or more. The stock has been well sold very steadily and at the same time heavily bought, but not in a manner characteristic of manipulation. There was evidence on Wednesday of strong accumulation. Yesterday the stock was heavily and aggressively sold on the decline to 132⅞.

***

Before the April decline in the general market (a very violent decline) there were rumors of a contest in Union Pacific corresponding exactly to those which are now in circulation. It was no secret then that a group of financiers controlling the Union Pacific property had sold a great deal of stock above 130, and it was freely predicted that they would never be able to get it back. They did get it back. Union Pacific declined to about 116 before the thing was over. It was thought then that the Morgan people had been accumulating the stock on an extensive scale, and it looked for a while as if a point would be reached beyond which the insiders would not dare lose any more of it.

***

The selling movement in the Rock Island issues stopped abruptly yesterday. In offices where traders had been selling the stock freely on Wednesday the inquiry was anxiously made: "What's the matter with Rock Island to-day?" Instead of wanting to know why the stock had declined, everybody demanded to know yesterday why it did not go on declining. Once during the day a broker sent in, at the request of some clients who were short of the stock, to find what kind of market there was for it. The report came back from the floor that two specialists were keeping the market and that the stock was quoted 30¼ bid, 30½ asked.

WABASH DEFICIT, $1,459,372.

Most of it Due to Additions, Repairs, and Improvements.

The report of the Wabash Railroad for the year ended June 30, made public yesterday, shows that the operation of the road this past year resulted in a deficit of $1,459,372. Gross earnings showed an increase of $1,672,978, operating expenses an increase of $2,819,935, and net earnings a decrease of $1,146,962.

The heavy additions to operating expenses, which account in large measure for the year's deficit, were due chiefly to numerous extraordinary expenses charged to operation. It is this policy of including in operating expenses large sums for improvements and betterments that has been advanced by the debenture bondholders as the basis of their demand for interest on their bonds.

The gross and net earnings and the disposition made of income for the past year compared with the figures for 1904 were as follows:

	1905.	1904.
Total revenue	$25,434,940	$23,513,332
Expenses of operation, taxes, rentals, &c.	22,089,940	19,250,873
	$3,344,999	$4,262,459
Interest on bonds	3,468,572	3,092,422
Net revenue	†$123,572	$1,170,036
Additions to property	656,862	591,446
	$780,435	$578,590
Sink. fund, ac. new equip.	678,936	459,299
	$1,459,372	$119,291
Div. deb. "A" bonds	....	105,000
Def. to prof. and loss.	$1,459,372	*$14,291

*Surplus. †Deficit.

The increase in the road's operating expenses was about evenly divided between the cost of conducting transportation and the cost of maintenance of equipment. An important item in transportation cost was an increase of $330,105 in the amount paid as damages for injuries to individuals. The amount paid for loss and damage to property increased by $105,214. The year's expenditures for extraordinary repairs and for improvements and additions were $1,450,471. This amount is only about $9,000 less than the deficit shown in the income account.

The road's earnings from passenger traffic were $8,917,828, compared with $7,045,525 the previous year. This large increase is accounted for chiefly by the increase in travel on the road due to the St. Louis Exposition. The number of passengers carried one mile increased by 165,285,650.

The report gives the details of the Wabash's operating contract with the American Car and Foundry Company covering 1,200 cars of various types. Payments for these cars are being made on a mileage basis, and will be completed in July, 1909, after which the cars will belong to the Wabash Railroad. The sum of $86,337 was paid on this account during the year.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—New York exchange was 5c discount. Time and call loans, 4@5 per cent.

Pressure on the stock of Swift & Co. developed in such magnitude to-day that the stock during the morning session on the local Exchange fell to 105½, the new low record price for the year. Early in September the stock sold at 110½. The former low price of the year was 106, made in February, while the high price of 114 was made in January, about the time of the publication of the annual report.

Among other developments in local securities, one of interest was the sale of Canal and Dock at 65 in the face of semi-official statements concerning the negotiations for the sale of land of the company to the Iroquois Iron Company in the Calumet district. In the afternoon the stock, on assurances of the sale, jumped to 70. Subway was weakened from 46⅛ to 44¾.

Biscuit preferred rose 2 points. Street's preferred eased ⅞.

DRUNKEN MAN'S REMARK CAUSES RUN ON A BANK

Small Depositors Besiege the Trenton Trust and Safe Deposit Co.

ALL DEMANDS MET PROMPTLY

Irresponsible Assertion That the Institution Was Unsafe Spread Till a Panic Was Started.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, Oct. 26.—An idle remark by a drunken man in a barroom yesterday has caused a $100,000 run on the Trenton Trust and Safe Deposit Company, one of the strongest banks in this city. The man who is thought to have caused the run said that the bank was not in good condition. It had closed business for the day with $25,000 more on deposit than at any time before, but the drunken man's remark was circulated through the poor sections of the city, where the bank had caused iron deposit banks for savings to be circulated, and the depositors were panicstricken.

They flocked to the bank, most of them being women without hats or cloaks. They stood in line and could not be persuaded that the bank was safe. The bank kept its doors open two hours after the regular closing time, and, although it could, under its contracts, have exacted two weeks' notice of the withdrawal of these deposits, every one that called at the paying teller's window received his or her money.

At 5 o'clock the bank closed for the night, but not until Col. Washington A. Roebling, Vice President of John A. Roebling, Sons & Co. and Vice President of the bank, told the crowd that he would deposit $100,000 in the morning, and that if this amount was not enough to meet all demands, he would put in more money. The bank has made arrangements to get a large sum of money this morning, and will probably begin to keep open day and night until all depositors are satisfied.

None of the well-to-do business men of the city have withdrawn their deposits. At the Directors' meetings of the other banks here to-day, it was in every instance voted unanimously to let the trust company have all the cash it needed.

President Hugh Hamill said to-night that there was no valid reason for the run, and that the company had made ample provisions through other Trenton banks to meet any demands that may be made to-morrow. The amount drawn out by the hundreds who took part in the run is less than $100,000 out of total deposits of about $3,000,000.

BURLINGTON ROAD ENJOINED.

Union Pacific Move in Fight for North Platte Valley.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 26.—Judge Munger, in the United States District Court this afternoon, granted an application of the Union Pacific Railroad Company for an injunction restraining the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad from interfering with the construction of a line being built by the Union Pacific up the North Platte Valley. The application prays that the injunction be made perpetual.

The petition of the Union Pacific alleges that the company established a line up the valley long ago by surveying and setting stakes from O'Fallon to Northport, Neb.; that right of way had been purchased, and the construction work already begun. It claims supreme right to construct its line.

Both the Union Pacific and Burlington have filed amended articles of incorporation, with a view to building an extension up the North Platte River Valley.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—The local money market is unchanged. The usual table of rates, &c., follows:

Call loans, 5@5½ per cent.; time loans, collateral, 4½@5@5½ per cent.; time loans, mercantile paper, 4¾@5 per cent.; Clearing House loans, 5 per cent.; New York funds at par. Clearings, $23,414,051; balances, $1,636,705; Sub-Treasury debit, $49,594.

To-day's local market was for the most part very strong. Early prices were fractionally below the previous night's closing, but a good demand was in evidence, and advancing prices were seen under the lead of Copper Range, North Butte, and Boston Consolidated. The tone throughout this whole copper list is excellent, the only unfavorable feature at present being an accumulation of stop orders, which may cause a reaction.

Closing prices were irregular. Complete list of transactions follows:

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—The local market was in entire sympathy with New York, opening strong and closing weak, at about the lowest prices of the day. Trading was much less active than yesterday.

Lehigh Valley was again the leader, rising to a new high record, 83, but breaking to 81 at the close. Lehigh Coal and Navigation trust certificates declined from 113¾ to 112¾, and the unassented stock from 113 to 112¼. Reading and United States Steel common were sold heavily in this market for the New York account. In the inactive issues the declines ranged from ¼ to ½. Keystone Telephone preferred was an exception, advancing 5 points to 45.

Manufactures of Silk Must Pay 30 Per Cent. Ad Valorem—Other Decisions.

In a decision by W. B. Howell the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday overruled a protest filed by Harry Robinson of New York regarding the rate of duty applicable to manufactures of silk. It is held by the tribunal that the merchandise is properly dutiable at 30 per cent., as returned by the Collector of Customs.

Other importers' protests overruled were filed by Julius Sternfeld & Co., C. B. Richard & Co. and others of New York.

The board sustained claims filed by Ungerer & Co., Charles Fridenberg and others of New York, regarding the rate of duty applicable to olive oil.

DISMISSED KANAWHA CASE.

Suit Involving Coal Lands Thrown Out of United States Circuit Court.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 26.—The motion of the defendants in the receivership suit against the Little Kanawha syndicate to quash the service was granted by United States Circuit Judge Richards to-day, who at the same time abrogated the temporary injunction against the sale of the property of the syndicate. This left pending a motion for the appointment of a receiver, and the attorneys expressed a desire to clear up the case. Judge Richards dismissed the whole matter for lack of jurisdiction. John S. Jones of Chicago, who began the suit, may now carry it to the United States Court of Appeals.

Coal and railroad property valued at $8,000,000 is involved in the suit, George Gould and Joseph Ramsey, Jr., being among the defendants.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

GRAIN.—WHEAT—New high levels for the season were made in the wheat market yesterday. Prices at the close showed 2⅛@2½c net advance. There was a big speculative trade in the New York market as well as at Chicago and a cash demand from abroad that was only limited by the offerings. That light sales were reported was due to inability to get the wheat, sellers fearing to make contracts for delivery ahead owing to the strained freight situation all over the country, but particularly east of Chicago. Europe was evidently much exercised over the Russian situation, and was ready to pay even the high prices demanded by the American seller. According to a Broomhall cable from Odessa, the market there was very excited, and loadings extremely difficult, owing to the general railway strike, and the outlook was said to be very serious. Private cables from other sources confirmed this pessimistic report and made the Russian situation the leading factor of the day in all domestic markets. All commission houses announced a growing outside business as a result of the advancing tendency of the market. At first there was some disposition to take profits, which, with Broomhall's estimate that Argentine shipments would be around 1,600,000 bushels for the week, or about three times as large as the previous week, weakened the markets a trifle around noon, but the same people were heavy buyers again in the last hour when the market developed its strongest period, basing their operations to a great extent on late rumors of a huge export trade in flour at the West. Some dispatches claimed that fully a million barrels had been sold to Europe, but this total was regarded by best informed people as excessive. Minneapolis reported a big demand for cash wheat again, and the Northwest was a heavy buyer at times during the day. Foreign markets, except Liverpool, which closed ⅛@1d net higher on the Russian news, were not so strong as the previous day. Paris closed partly 15 points net higher, while Berlin was ¼ mark lower, and Budapest only 4 points higher, although in the latter case this represented 22 points rise in two days. The interior receipts aggregated 1,245,000 bushels, compared with 845,000 bushels the previous year. Seaboard clearances, while fair, were not so large as the day previous. Cash wheat in the New York market closed strong, as follows: No. 2 red, 95⅝c, elevated, and 96⅞c, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 99⅝c, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, 98⅛c, free on board, afloat. Exporters took 86 loads. December on the curb was quoted 96⅝c.

CORN—Exceptional activity continued to be the feature in the New York corn market. It led all Western markets in point of strength, and closed ⅛@1⅛c net higher, December showing greatest buoyancy. Shorts were heavy buyers here owing to the continued strong spot situation and the railroad troubles, but there was also a good commission house trade. At the West the market was held back by the poor cables and selling of May by elevator interests, besides which the fine weather added some weight on the bear side. Export demand continued on a big scale, although actual sales were hindered again by a lack of offerings. Business was estimated at 75 loads, all ports, with possibly a larger amount worked but not reported. Interior receipts were 379,000 bushels, compared with 197,000 bushels last year. No. 2 corn at the close was quoted at 62½c, elevator, and 62c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 64c, and No. 2 yellow, 65c, free on board, afloat.

COTTON.—The cotton market was less active than yesterday, but the volume of transactions was much above the average, and the market ruled very nervous. Early fluctuations while comparatively narrow, were very rapid and irregular, with orders so well divided that it was almost impossible to establish any definite trend of values, but later the market ruled heavy under quiet but persistent bear pressure and the liquidation of old long accounts. It did not seem that the decline which carried the market below the close of last Tuesday, was due to any less bullish a view of the census figures, but parties who had carried cotton over until Wednesday morning.

Responding to rather disappointing cables, the Russian news, and more favorable weather reports, the market opened weak at unchanged prices to a decline of 15 points. Heavy overnight buying orders caused a rally to within 2@5 points of the finals of the previous night during the first half hour, but the heavy realizing and bear pressure checked the upward tendency around 10.67c for January, and after a very irregular middle session, turned weak and January declined to 10.44c, or 27 points net lower, and 31 points below the high level of the previous day. The close was barely steady at a net decline of 24@27 points. Sales were estimated at 600,000 bales. There was nothing in the late news to unsettle bullish sentiment apparently. Port receipts for the day overran early estimates, but were exceeded by exports, and Southern spot markets were generally steady to firm, and, in most instances, from 1-16 to ⅛c higher.

Contract prices ranged as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Wed. Close.
October	10.32	10.18	10.17@10.19	10.42

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 26.—Spot cotton—Fair business doing; sales, 10,000 bales; speculation and export, 1,000 bales; American, 9,000 bales; receipts, 5,000 bales, all American; middling upland, 5.81d. Futures opened irregular and excited, 18@21 points higher; closed easy at a net advance of 9@11 points. October and October-November, 5.65; November-December, 5.66; December-January, 5.71; January-February, 5.74; February-March, 5.76; March-April, 5.78; April-May, 5.79; May-June, 5.80; June-July and July-August, 5.81. Manchester—Yarns dull; cloths, more inquiry, but not much doing.

COFFEE.—There was less pressure against near months during the session in the coffee market, and after an opening decline of 5 points on some months, the market had a sharp rally, with the close steady at a net advance of 10@15 points. Sales were nearly 90,000 bags, of which about 22,000 bags represented exchanges. The opening decline was due to somewhat disappointing French cables, easier primary markets, and rather heavier primary receipts, accompanied by favorable weather reports from Sao Paulo. The rally seemed to be due to a moderate demand from Wall Street sources, support from trade interests, and rumors that the December long interest had been practically taken care of. The later report probably grew out of the smaller volume of near-by offerings, which may, of course, merely mean a temporary withdrawal of offerings for the purpose of promoting a partial recovery before again attempting to liquidate. A private cable from Havre stated that the market there was depressed by the very unfavorable closing of New York on the previous day, and the easier primary markets. Havre was about ⅛ franc lower early, but later recovered part of the loss, and closed ¼ franc lower. Hamburg was ¼ pfennig lower. Of the Brazilian markets Rio declined 75 and Santos 100 reis. Receipts at the two ports were 66,000 bags, against 51,600 bags last year. Sao Paulo receipts for the day were 40,250 bags, against 40,600 bags last year. The market for spot coffee was quiet but steady, with quotations on the basis of 8⅝c for Rio No. 7.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

ERNEST MARTIN & Co.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has appointed Eugene H. Pomeroy receiver in bankruptcy for the assets of Ernest Martin & Co., stock brokers of 60 Broadway and 101 East Fourteenth Street, and fixed his bond at $2,500.

LEONIDAS G. FAKE.—Leonidas G. Fake, dealer in dry goods at Poughkeepsie, has filed a petition in bankruptcy here, with liabilities of $4,104 and assets of $2,000 in stock and fixtures. There are fifteen creditors in this city, the largest being C B. Rouss, $905. Mr. Fake made an assignment on Wednesday to Louis J. D'Auzy of 549 Broadway, this city. Judge Holt appointed Robert Wilkinson of Poughkeepsie receiver.

LOUIS TREMMEL.—Louis Tremmel of 1,570 Bathgate Avenue, formerly a builder, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $20,313 and nominal assets, consisting of two shares of stock of the Louis Tremmel Company, of which he is President, value unknown, and a half interest in $71 cash in bank to the account of Tremmel & Fuche, in which firm he was a partner from 1894 to May 1, 1903. Of his liabilities, $19,000 are secured by mortgage on 133 Cannon Street.

LENA WULFERS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Lena Wulfers, who kept a café at 148 East Fourteenth Street, by Charles F. Nahmmacher, a creditor for $1,222. It was alleged that in August she transferred all her interest in the café, conveyed all her real estate, the location of which is unknown to the petitioner, and transferred to L. L. Hart large sums of money. The place was started in 1886 by her husband, Henry Wulfers, who died in July, 1901, and she has since conducted the business. It is said there were chattel mortgages of $11,000 on the fixtures.

ULRICH SCHLAEPPI.—The petition in bankruptcy filed on March 6 by Ulrich Schlaeppi, who formerly kept a restaurant and liquor business at 136 Bleecker Street, and was Vice President of the Huron Condensed Milk Company, has been dismissed by Judge Holt of the United States District Court. Mr. Schlaeppi has made a settlement with his creditors at 100 cents on the dollar, 64 cents payable in cash and 36 cents in notes due on June 21, 1906. Mr. Schlaeppi's schedules showed liabilities $63,495 and nominal assets $20,177, of which $10,377 was cash.

UNIVERSAL BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.—Samuel Sanders has been appointed receiver of the University Building and Construction Company of this city by Justice Stover of the Supreme Court in a suit brought by Ethel M. C. Pugh on a judgment for $216 obtained on Aug. 25 by James A. Noone, who assigned it to her. The company was incorporated in July, 1903, with a capital stock of $20,000 by East Side Hebrews for the purpose of building a synagogue at 58 and 60 Rivington Street. It was said that the assets of the company consist of a mortgage of $20,570 on the property given to the company by the synagogue for money advanced.

BERTHA LEVY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Bertha Levy, retail clothing dealer at 113 Stanton Street, by Cohen & Siegel, creditors for $550. It was alleged that she is insolvent, has made payments of $2,500 to certain creditors to prefer them, and has transferred merchandise and accounts amounting to $2,500. She was attached on Tuesday by D. Greenberg & Son for $500, and a City Marshal took possession of the stock, valued at $2,000. The liabilities are reported to be $10,000, and assets probably $1,500. She has been in business there over ten years. Judge Holt of the United States District Court has appointed Francis A. Griffin receiver of the assets.

J. ALDEN GAYLORD COMPANY.—Loren H. Mershon, President of the J. Alden Gaylord Company, dealer in investment securities at 35 Wall Street, against which a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Oct. 18 by Yuditha E. Gaylord, Secretary and Treasurer, on a claim for $969 for salary, has filed an answer to the petition, denying that she is a creditor in any amount. He asserts that while Secretary and Treasurer she was not to receive any compensation for acting as such, no compensation was ever voted to her by the Board of Directors, she accepted the office without compensation, and never made any demand for salary until Oct. 4. He also asserts that the company is not indebted to any one except current accounts of a nominal amount.

EDWARD A. ABBOTT.—Edward A. Abbott, residing at the Hotel Endicott, Columbus Avenue and Eighty-first Street, filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $149,956 and no available assets. The debts were contracted principally from 1895 to 1899. On Sept. 5, 1896, he conveyed to Robert L. Harrison, in trust, all his interest in stocks and bonds which were pledged for loans to pay certain claims and out of the balance to pay his creditors, the surplus to be paid back to him. He says that the Trustee has paid specially designated claims and has some stocks and cash on hand, the amount of which Mr. Abbott does not know. Among the creditors are Mary E. Abbott, $114,553, for loans; Nancy Thompson estate, $18,938; New York Transfer Company, $3,600; Major Thomas C. Treadwell, United States Army, $6,581; Phoenix Bridge Company, $2,377, and the Mechanics' Bank of Brooklyn, $1,579.

Suits and Overcoats for Men, $20.

Infinite good taste and good style are expressed in our series of Suits and Overcoats at Twenty Dollars.

Every line and curve defines the newest thought of the master tailorman and the latest knack of fashion. You can measure their qualities only by comparing with the products of the better class of custom tailors—with such they are on the same level.

Incorporated in every garment is our "Concave Shoulder" and "Closefitting" Collar.

The suits take form in a series of single and double breasted models, fashioned of plain or fancy cheviots, cassimeres in exclusive designs, blue and black Thibets and smooth surface worsteds in a diversity of patterns.

The overcoats involve a series of modes in medium length and extra long overcoats—the fabrics are smart cheviots, Kerseys, Meltons and velours, in black, gray, brown and fancy effects.

Other suits and overcoats $15 to $40.

An action for the specific performance of contract has been begun by the Broad and Beaver Street Company against the City Real Property Investing Company involving the properties at the southeast corner of Broad and Beaver Streets, known as 61 to 69 Broad Street, 34 to 46 Beaver Street, and 8 South William Street. Boreel Building Improvement.

The Boreel Building site at 115 Broadway is to be improved practically in accordance with plans announced several months ago by the owners of the property, the United States Realty and Improvement Company. Recently there have been reports to the effect that some of the neighboring property owners had refused to give their consent to the closing of streets necessary to the carrying out of the scheme. The North American Trust Company and the Fidelity and Casualty Company objected to the closing of Temple Street, between Thames and Cedar Streets. These objections, it was learned yesterday, have been withdrawn. An addition to the Trinity Building, about 25 feet wide, will be built along its northerly side, upon what is now the bed of Thames Street. Adjoining this on the north, and extending from Broadway to Trinity Place, a new Thames Street will be given to the city, and between this new street and Cedar Street will be erected a twenty-story building, which will be practically a duplicate of the enlarged Trinity Building. In return for the privilege of closing the block mentioned on Temple Street, the company has agreed to give a strip about three feet wide, which will be added to Cedar Street along its southerly side.

Great Opening Sale of Homes, Building Sites, Villa Plots and Boat House Lots

—AT—

LYNBROOK, L. I.

Few minutes from Long Beach—the new Atlantic City
All express trains stop at Lynbrook

TO-MORROW A. M. and P. M. AND SUNDAY A. M. and P. M.

Let it BE KNOWN and REMEMBERED that Lynbrook is not an inland town overheated in the Summer by sand blasts and made uncomfortably disagreeable in the Winter by exceptional snowdrifts and flurries. Strange to say that Lynbrook is ten degrees warmer in the Winter than either Kings or Manhattan, and yet that is a fact. It is cooled by the Southerly breezes of the Ocean and is three miles beyond the City line and "Rosedale Square." It has two public schools, churches, stores, water, gas, electric lights, good harbors and dotted all over with pretty cottages, dwellings and fine mansions.

ALSO LET IT BE REMEMBERED that the property we offer for sale to-morrow, Saturday and on Sunday, is no "wild cat" proposition. It is not miles from the depot or trolley. It is not away from a busy habitation. It is not peopled by "dead ones." On the contrary, it is surrounded by attractive homes, and wherever you turn houses are building. If "Lynbrook Court" is not an ideal investment and home centre then there is not a location fit to own or live in on the face of the Globe. Buy all you can carry, and make money faster than you ever calculated to make in your entire lifetime.

What Has Made Men Rich

Trace down the pages of the biographical history of the wealthy men of our country and you will find at least 75 per cent. of them who began life as a poor boy, but industry, economy, and energy have made their names household ones in the business and professional world. You will say that luck makes men wealthy. It is not so; though there are cases—a small percentage—where a windfall dropped into the lap of some man by his predecessor or his relationship or in the game of chance. But where there is one thus fortunate there are ten others who started on life's highway with strong arm and a clear mind, without friends, without money, and without influence, to battle against the whole world and mold for themselves by energy and endurance a fortune honorably made.

My dear wage-earner, if you desire the proof and convincing evidence of the headline of this advertisement, how men became wealthy, go out and ask the first successful man you know what made him rich—how did he start on nothing and become wealthy. He will repeat what we have said: GRASPING THE OPPORTUNITY.

The poor man, or the young man to-day without means, has greater chances and finer opportunities of getting rich than the boy or man twenty years ago.

Dame Fortune Knocks To-day at Your Door and Shouts, "Invest Now in the Suburbs! Grasp the Opportunity!"

Land Has Increased in Price Since 1900 in Westchester 500 Per Cent. Land Has Increased in Kings Since 1900 300 Per Cent. Land Has Increased in Queens Since 1900 500 Per Cent. Let Us Picture Now for You the Next Five Years and the Locality Where You Can Get Rich If You Will Grasp This Opportunity.

The great activity for investment and for homes will in the next five years be just outside of Greater New York on Long Island—just where the wage-earner can reach inside of 30 minutes for a 5 or 10 cent fare; where the line of travel by steam or electricity will be frequent day and night.

The Star of Prosperity Is Now Rising in the East, Coming Over the Fertile Fields of Long Island, and To-day It Reveals a Tale of Prophecy and Makes Known the Future Outside of Greater New York.

TO-DAY.

60 Trains a Day. One Every 20 Minutes. 10 Minutes from Jamaica. 30 Minutes from New York. 5 and 10 Cent Fare.
Finest Roads. Cheapest Land. Best Railroad Service Outside of Greater New York.
Population 5,000.

1910.

120 Trains a Day. Everything Electricity. 6 Minutes to Jamaica. 20 Minutes to Herald Square. Only 5 Cent Fare.
Beautiful Parks. Beautiful Homes. Largest Municipality on Long Island. With a Population of 30,000. Great Industrial Centre.

Lots and plots of land at Mineola will increase in value 500 per cent. in 5 years. Why not? Star of New York destiny says so. Lots at the Bronx have increased from $500 to $5,000 in the past 2 years.

MINEOLA.

It lies just three miles outside of Greater New York—just twelve minutes' ride from Jamaica by steam cars, where three lines of the Long Island Railroad centre—all trains from the North Line, from Oyster Bay and Roslyn, all trains from the east on the Main Line, from Greenport west; all trains from the south, Hempstead and Garden City; and, in addition to all, the connection with New York by the Queens County electric car line. No such railroad facilities or transportation anywhere outside of Jamaica WHERE CAN YOU GET SUCH SERVICE? WHERE CAN YOU GET SUCH AN ACCESSIBLE PLACE FOR A HOME?

WE HAVE BOUGHT $150,000 WORTH OF THE MOST CENTRALLY LOCATED LAND IN MINEOLA.

We have bought it close to schools, churches, stores, and within a few blocks of the depot, where every choice residence lot we have ought to be business property in ten years. And the announcement of this sale will pass through this city into the homes of hundreds of thousands of investors and homeseekers to-day. AND WE BELIEVE EVERY LOT WE HAVE WILL BE SOLD IN TEN DAYS. Such things have happened to us before. Therefore, we want you to be there at the

We have provided for 10,000 people during the six days at Mineola. Luoch will be served under our spacious tent, and accommodations with horses and carriages to see all our properties there. SUE LAWSON'S OLD FIRM.

Executors of Edward Cooper Want $171,206 from Bay State Gas.

Judge Lacombe, in the United States Circuit Court, signed an order yesterday granting permission to Edith D. Bryce, Lloyd S. Bryce, John E. Parsons, and E. T. Bedell, as executors of Edward Cooper, to bring an action, in conjunction with United States Marshal Henkel, against the former firm of Lawson, Weidenfeld & Co., composed of Thomas W. Lawson and Camille Weidenfeld, to recover $171,206, alleged to be due to the complainants from the Bay State Gas Company of Delaware.

According to the bill of complaint, filed yesterday, in 1899 Edward Cooper and Abram S. Hewitt sold to the Bay State Gas Company the capital stock of the Trenton Water Power Company, receiving $25,000 in cash, the remaining $135,000 of the purchase price to be paid within ninety days. This latter sum, it is alleged, has never been paid. The suit is to recover that amount, with interest.

When the Lawson firm dissolved and Weidenfeld became the liquidating partner, the firm refused to turn over the securities until a lien for money advanced for the gas company had been settled. The total value of the securities far exceeds the amount of both the Weidenfeld and Cooper claims.

MAY UPSET THE RUSSIAN LOAN

Revolutionaries Warn Foreign Bankers Against Lending Money.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 26.—The great strike promises to delay and possibly to interrupt the negotiations for a new Russian loan.

The foreign bankers who are here do not seem to be greatly disturbed by the situation, although they are constantly in receipt of letters from the revolutionists warning them that if they arrange a loan without the consent of the National Assembly it will be repudiated. Nevertheless they are not disposed to close with the Government until the situation has cleared up.

The fact that the strike may jeopardize the success of the loan is one of the most potent weapons in the hands of the opponents of the Government, and makes the foreign bankers the unconscious allies of the advocates of far-reaching reforms.

MOSS'S RAIDERS HACK INTO BIG POOLROOM

And Catch 351 Panic-stricken Men in Great Loft.

STALLED IN ELEVATOR FIRST

Lookout Had the Engineer Turn Off the Power—Ten Arrests in Injunction-Guarded Place.

A score of raiders, headed by Counsel Frank Moss and Supt. McClintock of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, hacked and smashed into a poolroom in a large loft on the third floor of a factory building in Marion Street, between Spring and Prince, late yesterday afternoon, and surprised 351 men in the elaborately fitted up place. The crowd made frantic efforts to get out, but failed to until the raiders had arrested ten men, for seven of whom warrants were granted by Magistrate Wahle in the Tombs Court earlier in the afternoon.

A crowd gathered outside and blocked traffic until the Mulberry Street police reserves came out.

The place has been protected by a temporary injunction granted by Justice Marean in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn on May 16. This restrained Acting Capt. Eggers and Capt. Martens of the Mulberry Street Station from interfering with it. According to Mr. Moss and Supt. McClintock, Detectives Shortell and Hartman have visited the place every day for the last three weeks, and have made bets on the races.

The raiders drove up to a corner near the building in a big covered truck, aboard which were three eighteen-pound sledges, twelve five-pound hammers, and four axes. Then McClintock called up Police Headquarters and informed Acting Capt. Costigan of McAdoo's Vice Squad of the intended raid. Costigan, accompanied by Detectives Hamilton, Murray, Johnson, and Sussillo, hurried to the corner, held a hurried council of war, and then started with the raiders in the truck for the building.

The "lookout" in front of the place was taken unawares. He was puffing on his pipe and unconscious of impending danger, when he was seized. He tried to cry out, but a hand quickly covered his mouth. Everything had run so smoothly that the raiders decided to ride to the third floor in the elevator, but precautions were taken to leave a couple of detectives down stairs. Word somehow reached another "lookout" that detectives were ascending in the elevator. He rushed to the engineer in the basement and told him to shut off the elevator power. The engineer, led to believe that some accident had occurred, quickly obeyed instructions. Frank Moss, McClintock, and the detectives in the elevator were chagrined when the elevator suddenly stopped between the second and third floors.

"Somethin' wrong," said the elevator runner, when the car would not respond to the lever. "Guess she's broke down."

Then he impressively cursed the elevator. It took the stalled raiding party several minutes to realize that they had been fooled, but a detective down stairs "caught on," rushed to the engine room, and made the engineer turn on the power. Then up the elevator went.

The great loft was a fortress. The main door was backed with heavy sheets of iron and with steel bars, and the detectives had to work hard and fast before the door yielded to the sledges, hammers, and crowbars. Meanwhile there was a lot of excitement inside. The 351 men were making frantic efforts to escape, and scores tried to get out of the windows at once. When the heavily barricaded door at last went in with a crash a hundred or more men made a rush to get through it. Moss told his men to draw their revolvers, and they did, flourishing them and threatening to shoot.

Before the panic had subsided Hartman and Shortwell went through the crowd and picked out the men they wanted. The names of the rest were taken. The elevator man, Joseph Burck, was arrested later.

The loft was partitioned off, and in one corner were hundreds of boxes of goods. The detectives say these were put there for a ruse. At one end of the loft was a spacious office, where ten men were kept busy recording bets, "writing sheet," and chalking up the names of winning horses. On the walls, clear around the loft, were racing sheets, charts, and pictures, while an immense blackboard bore the names of the entries. The detectives confiscated all this stuff, along with a Morse telegraph instrument and other racing paraphernalia. The place was fitted up in elaborate style.

The place was raided several times by Eggers, when he was in command of the Vice Squad, and by Capt. Martens, but in every instance the prisoners were discharged for lack of evidence. Then an injunction was granted by Justice Marean.

QUIZ ABOUT MORTGAGE TAX.

Realty Organization Trying to Learn Attitude of Assembly Candidates.

The Allied Real Estate Interests recently organized for the protection of property owners, and the present aim of which is to obtain the repeal or modification of the mortgage tax law, has sent an inquiry to each of the candidates for the Assembly to ascertain his attitude toward the law. Several replies already received by Allan Robinson, Secretary of the organization, favor its repeal.

VINCENT says

MY Clothes aren't wonder workers—they won't make a hobnailed hostler look like the descendant of a long line of dukes.

ANT-I-WET TRADE MARK REG'D. ON GOOD CLOTHES ONLY

Suits at Fifteen Dollars.

THERE is the rub—as Hamlet would say and as all the best retailers have been soliloquizing ever since the rise in woolens. It is easy to manufacture cheap clothing, for shoddy mixtures are cheaper if anything than heretofore.

It is no great effort, even with the advance, to make up nice suits to sell at $20, $25 or $30; but "$15" is the stumbling-block

Do not take this statement of ours as positive evidence, but look for yourself—go to any good clothier in New York City and see what he has to offer at $15!

You will find few styles. YOU WILL NOT FIND nice and desirable fabrics, nor will you find sizes to fit every proportion. The salesman will show you a suit at $15 if you ask for it, but he will immediately tell you that at $20 or $25 he can show you just about what you want.

This Is Where We Score.

As you come in at the Broadway entrance you will find stack upon stack, comprising three solid sections of Fall and Winter suits made of the most select, and in many instances exclusive, fabrics: Smooth finish cassimirs, fine mixtures, bright Cheviots, Tweeds and last, but most important, Worsteds in a great range of the newest effects and of course blacks in all textures.

Linings of imported serges; other trimmings and accessories of the highest type; workmanship of the "Hope" standard, including handwork in every vital part, not merely on the collars and button holes.

When WE say sizes to fit every form it means this, whether your weight is 150 or 300 lbs., whether you are 5'5" or 6'4," whether you are thin or stout, the suits are here for your selection and you will be fitted without the usual chalking and pinning, delays and disappointments—from this great line at

PRESIDENT IS HURT IN SHIP COLLISION

His Face and Hands Cut by Glass from a Smashed Window.

MAGNOLIA HIT BY FREIGHTER

His Tender Beached, Mr. Roosevelt on Another Vessel Reaches the Cruiser West Virginia Safely.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 27.—President Roosevelt was slightly cut on the face and hands by broken glass of a window in a collision which occurred at 11 o'clock last night between the lighthouse tender Magnolia, on which he was being conveyed from this city to the cruiser West Virginia on his return to Washington, and the United Fruit Company's steamer Esparta, inward bound. The Magnolia was immediately beached.

The Esparta is an English ship commanded by Capt. W. M. Rose, an Englishman. It appears that he misunderstood the Magnolia's signals and ran into her. President Roosevelt was reading in his stateroom, the window of which was smashed so violently that the glass was showered all over him.

After a careful examination of the damage to the vessel it was evident that there was no danger and the President and his party went to bed. Major Craighill of the United States Engineers was aboard the Magnolia. His ship, the Ivy, a sister ship of the Magnolia, had preceded her, and was some distance ahead. A boat was immediately put off for the nearest telephone, about a mile and a half away, and the order given to head the Ivy off at Pilot Station and have her return for the President and his party.

The transfer was made at 3 o'clock this morning. The vessel got under way immediately and the West Virginia in the Gulf was reached at 9:40. The cruiser, which had already lifted her anchor, got under way before 10 o'clock and started on her journey up the coast.

News of the accident, which occurred on the Mississippi, sixty miles below this city, reached New Orleans at 4 o'clock this morning, and within fifteen minutes two powerful tugs, with scanty half crews, without provisions or cooks, started on a race down the river.

One morning paper local force was in its office. An extra was rushed off, and within two hours the entire city was talking of the accident and wondering what further news would develop. Sorrow that the departure of the President had been thus marred was universally expressed, together with thankfulness that the accident, which might have been disastrous, resulted in nothing serious.

The crew of the Esparta refused to discuss the matter at all. The Captain referred to Capt. Dempsey, Port Superintendent of the United Fruit Company, who issued a brief formal statement, giving the exact facts from the standpoint of the Esparta. Finally two of the crew were prevented on to tell what took place.

These men said that President Roosevelt was thrown rather violently across his stateroom by the accident, and that both his face and hands were scratched to some extent. They said that he hurried on deck, fully dressed, and watched the beaching arrangements with the greatest interest, saying time and again, "Excellent! Excellent!" After the ship was safely ashore he went to bed and did not get up again until the Ivy arrived.

The version of the accident issued by the accident issued by the United Fruit Company's officials was as follows:

"The Esparta sighted a vessel, afterward found to be the Magnolia. The Magnolia blew two whistles, signifying her intention of passing to starboard, which was answered by the Esparta, which latter vessel continued on up the river, and at the time of such signal was within 100 feet of the west bank of the river.

"About two minutes after the Magnolia blew the first signal she blew one whistle, signifying her intention of changing her course and crossing to the inside of the Esparta.

"The pilot of the Esparta, seeing danger in such action, blew two whistles, and also the danger signal of three whistles, signifying the danger in such a move on the part of the Magnolia, as the pilot of the Esparta was aware of the fact that there was not enough room between the vessels and the bank of the river for the Magnolia to pass, as he had taken his ship in as close as possible, so as to leave plenty of room in the middle of the river for the Magnolia, and had the Magnolia adhered to her original signal and intention of passing to starboard, she would have passed clear, as the river is over a half mile wide at that point.

"Instead of this, the Magnolia hauled to port and the two vessels collided. The Esparta struck the Magnolia on the port side about twenty feet abaft the bow, and considerable damage was done to the Magnolia."

The lighthouse office here received the following dispatch from Commander James H. Sears of the Magnolia, dated Nairn, La.:

"The lighthouse tender Magnolia was struck on the port side at 11 P. M. Oct. 26 by the steamship Esparta, near Sixty Mile Point. No one was injured. The Magnolia was grounded. The President and party were transferred to the lighthouse tender Ivy, which was accompanying the Magnolia, and proceeeded to the West Virginia on time. The master, officers, and pilot were on duty on board the Magnolia at the time of the collision.

"It is believed that the Magnolia can

TRAIN KILLS RICH OLD WOMAN

Mrs. Todd, Owner of the Hoffman Arms, Dies in Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—The body of a well-dressed woman, at least 60 years old, was found late to-night on the Reading Railway tracks in Fairmount Park, near the Spring Garden water works. She had evidently fallen from or been struck by a train. Her body was fearfully mangled. On the woman's fingers were seven diamond and ruby rings. Two more were found in a handbag she had carried. In the bag was also found a card bearing the name of Mrs. M. Todd, 29 West Twenty-sixth Street, New York. The bag also contained a letter addressed to W. S. Heal, in care of Mrs. Todd, at the same address, and a check for $5 drawn on the National Bank of Peoria, Ill., to the order of Augusta W. Fisch.

The woman wore a silk dress of fashionable cut. Her body was taken to the morgue. Apparently she was a passenger on a train bound from New York.

Mrs. Margaretta Todd was the proprietor of the Van Hoffman apartment house at 29 West Twenty-sixth Street. She was 80 years old and left her home here yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock, presumably for Philadelphia, with a Mrs. Knight, a friend, who could not be found last evening.

The police of the West Thirtieth Street Station were asked to look for Mrs. Todd by George W. Armory of the Van Hoffman, who said she had $20,000 worth of diamonds in her possession and had disappeared under circumstances which made it probable that she might be robbed. The police were unable to find her.

Mr. Armory said he had known Mrs. Todd for fifteen years. He described her as being 80 years old and wearing a red wig. She left the house yesterday afternoon. He was standing in the front door when she came down stairs dressed for the street.

"I am going out," she said.

Mr. Todd remonstrated with her. She had had troubles with her lawyers and had discharged them. Since then she had talked frequently about her will and showed signs of mental unbalance.

"I am going to see about my will," said the old woman. "I had it changed yesterday."

A Mrs. Knight, known to both Mrs. Todd and Mr. Armory, volunteered to go with the woman, and they departed together in a cab. Mrs. Todd saying she would go to Philadelphia. It is believed that they caught the 2:30 train on the Pennsylvania for Philadelphia.

Mr. Armory said last night that he did not believe there had been any foul play in the woman's death. She was worth probably $100,000, he said. She built and owned the Van Hoffman Apartments. She was a widow with one daughter, Mrs. Frank Tousey, who is now in Vienna. It was stated last night that the purpose in changing her will was to affect the legacy to go to Mrs. Touser.

W. S. Heal, whose name is signed to a letter found in Mrs. Todd's pocket, is a tenant at the Van Hoffman. He is a manufacturer of novelties at 36 Cooper Square.

"BLACK HAND" MAN CAUGHT.

Seized in the Act of Taking Money Extorted by a Threat.

Four detectives who have been attending to all the "Black Hand" cases arrested Frank Ursetti, a tailor of 142 Elm Street, last night in the act of taking "Black Hand" money.

Michael Scancarelli, a contractor and real estate dealer, who lives at 142 Elm Street, received a letter signed "The Black Hand," demanding $500. The letter instructed him to put the money in a package and leave it in an old boiler in front of 199 Centre Street, between 8:30 and 9 o'clock last night.

Scancarelli went to Police Headquarters and told Detective Sergeant Petrosini of the threats. Petrosini put a marked five-dollar bill in a bulky package and had Scancarelli deposit it last night in the unused boiler and walk rapidly away. Petrosini and othsr detectives hid in doorways nearby. Just before 9 o'clock along came a young man. He paced up and down the block several times, and finally made a bolt for the boiler, thrust his hand in, got the package, and fled. Petrosini made after him, while Detective Bonnoil headed off the fleeing man. He fought furiously when the detectives laid hands on him, but was locked up.

COMMITTEE MET IN A CELL.

Chairman Dillon a Prisoner in the Jail He Manages.

PATERSON, Oct. 27.—A meeting of the Passaic County Jail Committee of the County Board of Freeholders was held in the cell of Chairman Michael J. Dillon this evening. As Chairman of the Jail Committee, Freeholder Dillon is the manager of the institution in which he is serving as a prisoner. The committee, in appointing his cell as the place for its meeting, followed a precedent furnished by the Penitentiary Committee of the Hudson County Board of Freeholders years ago in assembling in the cell of Freeholder Bindernagle to transact official business.

Freeholder Dillon is serving a term of thirty days in his own jail for beating his wife and then attacking two physicians who were called to attend her. The court, besides sentencing him to jail, directed that he pay a fine of $250.

Sheriff Charles B. Bergen made the best room in the jail ready for his prisoner. It is that used for the detention of witnesses, and adjoins the Sheriff's own apartments. It is equipped with rugs and furniture and lighted with electric bulbs. Chairman Dillon is allowed to wear his best clothes, smoke cigars, and entertain his friends.

MURPHY INDORSES OSBORNE

And Approves All Osborne's Speeches —Hopes He'll Keep It Up.

James W. Osborne, Tammany nominee for District Attorney, did not speak last night, and will not to-night, but Mr. Osborne asserts, and Mr. Murphy backs the assertion, that he has not been "called off" the stump.

"Mr. Osborne has not been sidetracked in this campaign," declared Mr. Murphy at Tammany Hall yesterday. "We approve of everything that he has said on the stump. He has not been sidetracked, and I hope he will be able to continue shortly."

Mr. Osborne was at his headquarters in the Imperial Hotel in the afternoon, and paid his compliments to Assistant District Attorney Rand for his speech of the night before.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION UNANIMOUS FOR JEROME

Nominates Him, but Gruber and Others Stay Away.

CASE GOOD, SAYS HALPIN

Tells the Delegates Lawyers Uphold Substitution Plan—Tammany Says It Won't Hold Water.

With hearty enthusiasm and absolute unanimity the reconvened Republican County Convention, which on Oct. 13 nominated Charles A. Flammer over William Travers Jerome for District Attorney by a vote of 237 to 9, accepted the resignation of Judge Flammer from the ticket last night at the Murray Hill Lyceum and nominated Mr. Jerome to take his place.

Whether the action of the convention last night will result in the placing of Mr. Jerome's name in the Republican column on the official ballot is a matter to be passed on by the Board of Elections and the courts. The leaders of the Republican organization say they have been advised by some of the very best lawyers in the city that the substitution of Jerome's name for that of Flammer can be legally made. Charles H. Knox, the head of the Tammany Law Committee, says such substitution is impossible under the election law, Section 64 of which provides that all declinations of nominations must be filed at least twenty days before the day of election. Mr. Knox says that if the Board of Elections should vote to make such substitution its members can be indicted.

When William Halpin, the President of the Republican County Committee, was asked last night to inform the public of the line of reasoning on which the Republican organization would base its application for the substitution, he said:

"We are not giving our case away in advance."

The leaders absent from the convention last night were Edwin F. Merwin of the First, Joseph Levinson of the Fourth, James March of the Sixth, George Wanmaker of the Fifteenth, Abrsham Gruber of the Twenty-first, and Edward H. Healy of the Thirty-fifth. It was explained that Mr. Wanmaker's absence was due to the fact that he was holding an important meeting in his district. The absence of the other leaders was unaccounted for. Not only did Mr. Gruber of the Twenty-first District remain away, but of his twenty delegates only one responded. The other nineteen were absent.

The convention was called to order by Senator Elsberg, who was Chairman of the original convention

When the name of Edwin F. Merwin of the First District was called there was a response to his name.

Mr. Halpin inquired if Mr. Merwin was present, and the reply was made by a member of the delegation that Mr. Merwin was not.

"No delegate will respond to any name but his own," said Chairman Elsberg sharply.

The roll call proceeded. When it was completed Chairman Elsberg announced that he had been informed by the Secretary that a majority of the delegates were present. He then said that the Chairman of the convention had received a communication which he would ask the Secretary to read. Secretary Shea thereupon attempted to read a letter from ex-Magistrate Charles A. Flammer, the Republican nominee for District Attorney, but, being unable to master Judge Flammer's handwriting, Chairman Elsberg read it for him. Here it is:

To the Republican County Convention of the County of New York:

With full appreciation of the confidence reposed in me and the honor conferred, I now, feeling it to be my duty, respectfully decline the nomination of District Attorney for the County of New York.

CHARLES A. FLAMMER.

Atlantic City, N. J.

When Chairman Elsberg came to the signature he also was puzzled. For a moment he looked at the paper earnestly before announcing the signer's name. The delegates smiled at his perplexity.

"He's forgotten who was nominated," suggested one, sotto voce. But at last Senator Elsberg read the name, and there was applause. He then asked what was the pleasure of the convention.

William C. Wilson, leader of the Twenty-seventh District, arose and moved that the convention reconsider the action by which Judge Flammer was nominated. The motion was seconded and prevailed.

William Halpin then moved that the convention proceed to nominate a District Attorney. The motion being put and carried, Mr. Halpin said:

"In a statement issued by Judge Flammer the other night he said that he desired to put himself in accord with the best traditions of the Republican Party by not continuing to be a candidate for District Attorney against William Travers Jerome. At a meeting of the Republican Executive Committee yesterday I was instructed to present its recommendation to you that this convention nominate William Travers Jerome for District Attorney to take the place of Judge Flammer on our ticket, and in obedience to that instruction I now place Mr. Jerome in nomination."

Mr. Halpin was cheered. Samuel S. Koenig, leader of the Sixteenth District, one of the original Jeroms men,

Congressman Herbert Parsons, the Republican leader of the Twenty-fifth District, who remained away from the former session of the convention because of his knowledge of the purpose of the leaders to turn down Mr. Jerome, was present last night and followed Mr. Koenig in seconding Mr. Jerome's nomination. He said:

Gilbert R. Hawes said that he desired to second the nomination of Mr. Jerome "on behalf of that little band of nine who supported him in the first convention."

"I don't agree with a previous speaker that we are making a sacrifice in nominating Mr. Jerome," said Mr. Hawes. "We are doing honor to ourselves and to the party."

Nominations were then declared closed, and Judge Otto Rosalsky moved that the Secretary of the convention be instructed to cast one ballot for William Travis Jerome for District Attorney. That motion was unanimously carried, and Senator Elsberg announced that Mr. Jerome was the nominee of the convention. The announcement was received with enthusiasm.

When a Committee on Vacancies had been appointed, Mr. Halpin announced that he had a statement to make to the convention. He said:

"The minutes of this convention will be filed to-morrow with the Board of Elections, and I wish to inform you that some of the most eminent lawyers in the city, whom we have consulted on the subject, have informed us that the substitution of the name of Mr. Jerome for Judge Flammer in the Republican column on the official ballot can be legally made. Moreover, we have their assurance that they will do everything in their power to sustain their contention before the proper tribunal."

Chairman Elsberg then declared the convention adjourned, subject to the call of the Chair. William Leary, champion Jerome shouter, remarked to Luther Little with a cynical smile:

"Well, we brought 'em to the bull ring."

MADE WOMAN PAY $194,000.

Shaw Tells How He Collected Revenue on an Art Collection.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 27.—Secretary Shaw, in the course of a speech here to-day on revenue matters in which he dwelt upon the vigilance of the Treasury and citing instances of large sums collected from some persons, said:

"A few years ago a lady of wealth and refinement associated a few friends with her and incorporated a public art gallery. This entitled her to the free entry of pictures and statuary, but she had to give bond that they were not for private use or for sale. I learned that her manner of making the gallery public was by inviting a few personal friends from among the public to visit her collection once or twice a year. I wrote her a kind letter asking for the rules and regulations of her gallery. She saw her attorney, and, on his advice, paid $194,000 in duty on her collection. She can now invite whom she pleases and exclude whom she will."

Among other things in justification of the Government expenditures he mentioned that $1.42 per capita was spent on the navy. He referred to the fact that the other day a moving battleship at a distance of a mile, and in five minutes, put out of ten shots nine 13-inch holes in a target 21 feet long and 17 feet wide, and then ten smaller holes in two minutes.

"There is not a battleship made by the hand of man that can live five minutes within a mile of that kind of marksmanship," concluded Mr. Shaw. "I am willing that the world shall know that we are spending some money on a navy, and have a navy to show for the money spent. So long as the world knows that we have such a navy we will never have use for a navy."

REBATES GO ON—STICKNEY.

Railroad Tells of a Way of Evading an Injunction.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 27.—The "Original Roosevelt Club" celebrated the President's forty-seventh birthday at a banquet here to-night.

A. B. Stickney, President of the Chicago Great Western Railway, supported the President's railroad rate policy. He declared his belief that rebates are still given by railroads enjoined by the Federal courts from giving them.

"The ingenuity which is now exercised by both railways and their customers to maintain secrecy of rebates can be illustrated better than described," he said. "Since the injunctions were issued I have been told (I do not vouch for its truth, although I have seen what purports to be a copy of the contract between shippers and the routing agency,) of cases where young men from so-called routing agencies in New York make periodical trips through the Western cities, leaving not bank checks, but packages of actual money, without note or comment, upon certain merchants' desks, taking no voucher or receipt.

"Curiously, when these packages are counted, they are found to be exactly a certain percentage, supposed to be 25 per cent., of the amount of freight which certain merchants have paid a certain railway company since the last previous visit of the young man, who thus distributes hundreds of thousands of dollars annually."

AFTER SYRIAN BISHOP AGAIN.

Warrants Asked for Him and 14 of His Friends for Conspiracy.

Already awaiting a hearing on a charge of assault, growing out of the war among the Syrians in this city, Bishop Raphael Hawaweeny of Brooklyn, head of the Orthodox Syrian-Greek Church here, may have to appear in the Butler Street Court this morning to answer another charge made by his enemies. The assault case against the Bishop was to have been heard yesterday, but as his counsel, James W. Osborne, the Tammany candidate for District Attorney, was unable to be present, Magistrate Dooley adjourned the hearing until Nov. 10.

After the adjournment Lawyer Le Barbier, counsel for the Bishop's opponents, told Magistrate Dooley of an alleged conspiracy among certain of the Bishop's adherents which threatened the lives of some of his opponents. Mr. Le Barbier said that at a meeting of some of the Bishop's friends at his house on Aug. 22 threats were made to remove some of the Bishop's enemies, and that the Bishop made no effort to stop this talk. Lawyer Le Barbier asked for warrants for the arrest of Bishop Hawaweeny and fourteen of his adherents on a charge of conspiracy. Magistrate Dooley said he would probably issue the warrants this morning.

ROOT HERE, OBEDIENT.

Won't Say a Word Even About Local Politics—Roosevelt Gag in Tight.

Secretary of State Elihu Root came to New York last night from Washington and registered at the Gotham. He will remain in town probably until Monday morning, principally for the purpose of arranging details for the removal of many of his house effects to Washington for the Winter.

Mr. Root was asked last night to waive the Presidential edict that Cabinet officers must not talk to newspaper men long enough to say something about the local campaign. He smilingly declined.

"Tut, tut," he remarked with a laugh, as he placed a finger upon his lips, "I can't talk about it."

Half a dozen questions were asked in rapid-fire fashion. "Will it be legal for the Republicans to place Mr. Jerome on their ticket? What do you think of Mr. Jerome's campaign? Has Mr. Ivins any chance of being elected? How about Mr. Hearst?"

"Really," replied Mr. Root, still laughing, "I have been so busy in Washington with my affairs at the State Department that I haven't had time to give the situation here much attention. How do things look, anyway?" Then after a moment of hesitation: "It is a very interesting campaign, isn't it?"

But that was all Mr. Root would say.

STATEN ISLANDERS GRUMBLE.

City Ferryboats Keeping Up Only a 30-Minute Schedule.

The trouble with the municipal ferry to Staten Island continued yesterday. It was demonstrated that under existing circumstances with the two slips for dockage, one at each terminal, it is impossible for the ferryboats to make a fifteen-minute trip with the four boats. It was shown that by running two boats the trip could be made in half an hour.

The 4:10 boat yesterday afternoon from New York discharged its passengers at St. George at 4:50. Last night the boats were delayed, and the Staten Islanders grumbled. The incoming boat had to wait in midstream several minutes to allow the boat at the dock to pull out.

$13,000 JEWEL THEFT IN THE HOTEL WOLCOTT

Apartments of Mrs. Calderon Carlisle of Washington Robbed.

ATTEMPT TO HUSH IT UP

Victim Refuses to Aid the Police After They Are Finally Notified—Inside Job, Detectives Say.

Some time between 11 o'clock on Wednesday night and 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon a thief entered the apartments at the Hotel Wolcott, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-first Street, occupied by Mrs. Calderon Carlisle and her daughter, of Washington, and stole a pair of pearl earrings valued at $3,000, and, possibly, a pearl necklace and other jewelry valued at $10,000 or more.

The hotel clerk professed ignorance yesterday of the fact that a robbery had been committed in the hotel, and would not allow reporters to send up cards to Mrs. Carlisle. When communication was had with Mrs. Carlisle despite the clerks, she refused to see reporters.

Mrs. Carlisle and Miss Carlisle registered at the Wolcott last Saturday. They were assigned to Rooms 608, 609, and 610, on the fourth floor. Wednesday night they went to the theatre. Returning about 11 o'clock, Mrs. Carlisle took off a pair of large pearl earrings. She put them in a silver box on the dresser. Miss Carlisle had on a pearl necklace valued at $5,000 or more, and put this with other jewelry in a trunk.

On Thursday morning Mrs. Carlisle and her daughter went out for a short time. In the afternoon at 2 o'clock Mrs. Carlisle looked in the silver box on the dresser for the earrings, but they were not there. The thieves entered her apartments Wednesday night while she and her daughter were asleep, or Thursday morning, while they were out of the hotel.

House Detective Ward was put to work on the case, but the Tenderloin police were not informed of the robbery until last night. Meanwhile the Central Office detectives had got wind of the affair and were already at work on it. Pinkerton men were also put on the case yesterday.

Detective Brueck, after looking over the ground, said that the robbery was an inside job. There were no evidences of the door or windows of Mrs. Carlisle's apartment having been forced. Mrs. Carlisle had no servants of her own.

She told Detective Brueck very little about the robbery, resenting what she called the interference of the police.

Yesterday a "J. M. Carlisle" registered at the Wolcott from Washington. A bellboy said that he thought Mr. Carlisle was a son of Mrs. Carlisle. He refused to be seen.

Mrs. Carlisle is the widow of Calderon Carlisle, who was a lawyer of Washington. He died about two years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle were prominent socially in Washington, and Mr. Carlisle, just before the war with Spain, was counsel to the Spanish Embassy. Mrs. Carlisle lives in the fashionable northwest end of Washington.

CANFIELD BACKING OSBORNE.

But Jerome Closes a Curb Favorite—McClellan Odds 3½ to 1.

The curb bettors heard yesterday that Richard Canfield, whom Jerome made confess he was a gambler, was the man whose money Wasserman Brothers have been offering on Osborne against Jerome. Though there was no confirmation of the rumor, many of the brokers believed it. A day or two ago Edward Wasserman offered to bet $50,000 on Osborne at 2 to 1. Things have happened since then, and no more is heard of such eagerness to back Osborne. Yesterday the odds on the District Attorneyship contest ranged from 10 to 9 on Osborne to 10 to 9 on Jerome. At the close Jerome was a slight favorite.

Fred Schmed was the most prominent bettor yesterday. He had an unlimited amount of cash, apparently, to bet at 3½ to 1 on McClellan, even on Osborne, or 8 to 10 on Jerome. Nobody seemed to have any Osborne money to bet at 10 to 8, though. Nearly all the District Attorney bets were made at evens.

Most of the brokers say they think the McClellan odds touched their lowest points when they were at 3 to 1. One of the last bets on the curb was one of $1,625 to $500 on McClellan, Schmed taking the long end.

Many small bets were made on the chances of Hearst and Ivins against each other, with Hearst a slight favorite. Though Wasserman Brothers early in the day were offering even money on Ivins's polling more votes than Hearst, as a rule the Republican candidate was not a favorite with the bettors.

TELLS OF A BRIDGE MURDER.

But Police Have No Records of Such a Tragedy.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—James J. McManus walked into a station house to-day and told the Lieutenant that he had committed a murder on the Brooklyn Bridge seventeen years ago.

"At the time of the murder, in August, 1888," he said, "I was a marine on the schoolship Alliance. 'Scotty' Wilson and I got shore leave one day and tramped the Bowery, drinking freely. We started to cross the Brooklyn Bridge, and near the other side we fought. I picked Wilson up and threw him over on to a lumber pile. He was killed. I was arrested, but I said that Wilson climbed on top of the railing and fell off."

When this dispatch was shown to the police at Headquarters here it was declared that the records revealed no such accident.

TRAIN DESTROYS BRIDGE.

Cars Drop Into a Creek and Many Persons Are Injured.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 27.—Twelve persons were badly injured to-night on the Southern Railway when part of a train was hurled from a wooden bridge seven miles from Lexington into a creek forty feet below.

The tender, mail, and the baggage coaches and the smoking car were splintered and thrown into the creek. The tender of the locomotive jumped the track about 100 yards from the bridge. Engineer Phillips threw the throttle wide open and barely succeeded in getting the locomotive across the bridge when the sides of the bridge were battered down by the cars.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Secretary Taft has transmitted to the Treasury Department his estimates of the appropriations required for the War Department for the fiscal year 1907. They aggregate $104,988,267.75, or $9,717,922.52 less than the appropriations made by Congress for the year before.

The amount asked for maintenance of the army is $70,170,719, or $839,731 less than the appropriations for the present year.

Under the head of public works, military and civil, the estimates call for appropriations amounting in the aggregate to $27,016,129.98, a reduction of $8,876,415.27 over last year.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 27.—The city passenger officers of the Pennsylvania Railroad system in annual meeting to-day at the Hotel Schenley discussed behind closed doors for two hours how to get better speed for passenger trains.

Additional fast trains are contemplated over the Pennsylvania lines. The eighteen-hour train between New York and Chicago has been so successful that it may be necessary to add another section by next year. Important changes in the passenger service, it is predicted, may follow to-day's meeting.

ROOSEVELT TOWER OF PEACE.

A Suggestion, Patented, to Kansas by American in London.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 27.—A "Roosevelt Tower of Peace," 1,200 feet high, at the geographical centre of the United States is proposed by James Weir Graydon of London, England. Besides the tower, he suggests a permanent international exposition at the point.

Mr. Graydon has written Gov. Hoch fully as to his plans because the geographical centre of the country is at Fort Riley, marked by a Government monument. To start a fund Graydon has employed a lithographing company to make lithographs of the monument, to be placed on sale in every community in the United States. He has patented his tower.

Graydon is an American graduate of the United States Naval Academy, who served as a volunteer under Grant and Sherman.

The little girls all remained at the asylum last evening, while the remainder of the 250 inmates were taken to an entertainment. It is supposed that in the absence of some of the nurses the children obtained something of a poisonous nature, which they all tasted. What it was the physicians cannot say yet.

MEET FOR REVOLT IN CZAR'S CAPITAL

Masses Gather in Defiance of Gen. Trepoff.

WHOLE NATION IS UNITED

Even Government Clerks Decide to Strike.

ALL NEWS MAY NOW STOP

Telegraphic Service Likely to be Suspended—Government Says Troops Will Show No Mercy.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 27.—In spite of the fact that warnings were issued last night that the Government would not permit revolutionary meetings at the universities, and in spite of the expressed intention of Gen. Trepoff to prevent them with force, a great demonstration took place at the university in this city this evening. Resolutions in favor of general strikes in every branch of activity were carried. Even the Government clerks decided to join the strike.

Gen. Trepoff declared this afternoon that the meetings in the university would not be permitted and called attention to the fact that army reserve men, workmen, house porters, members of the professional classes, and even policemen, had been invited, showing clearly, he said, that the meetings were not to be students' meetings, but political affairs organized by agitators. The General added that the troops had been instructed to prevent the public from entering the university.

This evening Gen. Trepoff instructed the police to close their eyes to the meetings, which were attended by between 15,000 and 20,000 persons.

The students had begun to gather in the university in the afternoon, and they asserted that they intended to hold the building as the students at Kharkoff held their university. Gen. Trepoff sent troops to the vicinity of the university, but he later withdrew them. They remained near by, in the Court House, the Bourse, and other buildings, in readiness to sally forth if necessary. There was no conflict in the course of the meetings in the university.

Big meetings were also held in the Technological and Art Institutes and in two engineering schools. The students at none of these meetings took a prominent part in the deliberations, yielding the hospitality of the college buildings without attempting to cloak the meetings under the guise of student assemblies.

With the hope of avoiding further meetings at the university, Gen. Trepoff later placed halls in three different parts of the city at the disposition of the people for meetings, thereby practically conceding the demand of the agitators of the right of assembly.

Gen. Trepoff has selected the Vassili Ostrov and Okhta Theatres and the Nabei Maison du Peuple as the places where meetings will be permitted. The latter two are situated in distant suburbs.

The scene inside the University this evening beggars description. In the great open-air court, with no light except a few flickering candles on a hastily constructed tribune, workmen, students, and professional men stood wedged together in the cold, while snow was falling, listening to revolutionary harangues.

Another great meeting was held in the Central Hall of the University, and scores of smaller meetings of the separate trades and professions were held in the other rooms of the building. Halls were set aside for teachers, physicians, bank clerks, journalists, printers, chinovniks, pharmacists, women, engineers, lawyers, tailors, and persons of other callings and trades, and a room was even set aside for non-commissioned officers of the army, but only half a dozen of these were present.

In all the sections strong minorities urged conservatism, but they were carried off their feet by the general enthusiasm, and resolutions for a general strike in every branch of social activity were adopted with a hurrah. Even the chinovniks in the Government service, whose meeting was largely attended, were possessed of the same spirit, and passed resolutions to stop all work in the Government departments to-morrow. This probably will include the Government telegraph agency, and may put the telegraph and cable service out of commission.

Another resolution, which was generally adopted, notified the authorities that the Assize Court buildings in Litania Street must be opened for a universal meeting of all classes at noon to-morrow, at which measures will be adopted against any person who is reported as not adhering to the general strike.

A remarkable feature of all the speeches was the spirit of complete confidence that the success of the movement was at hand and the manifest intention to force an armed conflict upon the Government. The meetings continued far into the night.

The last railroad link binding the capital with the outer world was broken late to-night, when the Finland Railroad suspended service between St. Petersburg and the Finnish border.

That the situation cannot end without bloodshed is the conviction prevailing in the higher Government circles, which, from moment to moment, are expecting a conflict between the troops and the revolutionists in St. Petersburg, and news of fighting in the provinces, especially at Kharkoff, which has been declared in a state of war. One of the most prominent members of the Emperor's Council said to-day, with every evidence of deep emotion:

"The situation is a grievous and a painful one, and I see no way out of it except by the employment of armed force. Please do not misunderstand me. I look upon the prospect with tears, but it is becoming more and more evident that the troops will be compelled to fire. I can see no other possible outcome. The revolutionists and terrorists are absolutely bent on forcing a conflict, and nothing we can do will satisfy them. The extension of the suffrage and the right of assembly will be nothing to them. They are determined to have bloodshed, and we cannot avoid the issue. It is a frightful disease from which Russia is suffering, and, sad and painful as it is, the Government must act with force."

The Minister said that the law creating a responsible Cabinet would probably be promulgated and Count Witte's nomination as Premier announced to-morrow. Under the statute the Premier may or may not hold a portfolio.

Count Witte spent almost the whole of to-day with the Emperor at Peterhof, and he has not confided to his colleagues whether he intends to take the Ministry of the Interior, the Ministry of Finance, or no portfolio at all. The present Ministers are in ignorance as to whether they will retain their places under the new leader.

To Use Ball Cartridges.

Warnings that in case of disorder the soldiers will fire ball cartridges are posted at every street corner of St. Petersburg. The following is the text of Gen. Trepoff's proclamation:

"The population of the capital is disturbed by rumors of expected grave disorders. Measures for the protection of life and property have been taken and I therefore ask the people to attach no credence to these rumors. If, however, any disturbances are attempted they will be put down at their inception before they have time to assume a serious character.

"I have given orders to the troops and police to suppress any such attempts immediately and in the most vigorous manner, and the military have been directed to fire with ball cartridges if the crowds offer resistance. No blank cartridges will be used.

"I find it necessary to give this warning to the people so that every person joining a disorderly crowd may know the risk he takes. In order to avoid grave consequences, prudent citizens should not join gatherings having disorderly purpose."

The strikers have succeded in stopping the machinery of the electric light plant here. Half the population is compelled to rely on candles or kerosene lamps for light, while the street lamps in a large part of the city have been extinguished.

At a meeting to-day of delegates from the professional unions, comprising doctors, druggists, and lawyers, it was decided to strike from to-morrow until a Constituent Assembly is summoned.

Street Car Service Stopped.

The street cars in St. Petersburg have ceased running.

The bank and office employes have agreed to affiliate themselves with the movement. The employes of the Siberian, Azoff, and Donskoi Banks have already struck.

The printers have resolved upon a unique demonstration in order to voice their demand for a free press. They have decided not to print a single regular newspaper to-morrow, and instead to publish clandestinely an uncensored paper for distribution by the workmen, containing the demands of the proletariat for a Constituent Assembly.

Reinforcements of troops are pouring into the city. Cuirassiers, Hussars, and the Omsk Regiment have arrived here from Tsarskoe-Selo, and 6,000 soldiers are coming by water from Reval. Even detachments of the crack Guard regiments are doing patrol duty.

Several trains with military escorts have forced their way from Moscow, but the railroad tie-up is practically as complete as yesterday. The Government's railroad battalions are now exhausted. The last were sent to Moscow and Syzran last night.

The Revolutionists have spread the tidings that a revolution has begun. One story afloat to-day was that a Provisional Government had been established.

There is an actual panic here. The streets are practically deserted except for the squads of infantry and cavalry, which are everywhere. The shops began to close in the afternoon in even the Grand Morskaia, the Nevsky Prospect, and other central streets. Many of the inhabitants shut themselves in their houses, scarcely venturing out to make necessary purchases of food, which has risen to famine prices.

The "Coalition Council" of St. Petersburg University, comprising representatives of both the students and the teaching staff, has issued a manifesto calling on the students to exert their whole strength in work both day and night for the revolution, to place themselves completely at its service, and especially to hold the doors of the university open to all political meetings.

MOSCOW STRIKE COMPLETE.

Governor Says Troops Will Fire to Kill at Smallest Gathering.

MOSCOW, Oct. 27.—The general strike became effective this afternoon. All the stores, the banks, and other business institutions are closed, and the communal activity of Moscow is at a standstill.

Great meetings are being held to-night in several quarters of the city.

All the employes of the water and gas works and street railroad lines struck today.

The Governor General has issued a proclamation saying that troops have been posted throughout the city and that they will fire with ball cartridges in the case of even the smallest gathering of people or the slightest sign of disorder.

The League or Leagues has divided the city into six districts, appointing an agent in each to carry on the agitation and to collect funds to support the strikers.

ALL RUSSIA AFLAME.

Conflict at Odessa Feared—Strikes, Riots, Panic, and Pillage.

ODESSA, Oct. 27.—The University Building is surrounded by Cossacks and police to prevent a meeting of 8,000 students announced for to-night.

The students, notwithstanding the presence of the armed force, are, as this dispatch is filed, gathering in the neighborhood of the University. A serious conflict is feared.

The export trade of Odessa is practically stopped. It is impossible to load steamers, since traffic on the railroad lines connecting the railways with the harbor has been suspended. Twelve British steamers are about to sail empty.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 27.—The most alarming reports are circulating about affairs in the South of Russia. Private reports received here are said to confirm the stories of the mutiny on board the battleship Catharine II. and the destruction by incendiaries of the battleship Patelelmon, formerly the Kniaz Potemkine, but the authorities do not confirm the rumors and telegrams of inquirys remain unanswered.

In the interior the people have neither mail nor newspapers, and are hearing the wildest stories of what is occurring. This is considered to be a bad feature of the situation, as it may lead to peasant uprisings which, in the absence of troops, may result in frightful excesses. In some towns a reign of terror is reported to exist.

At Minsk the people have shut up their houses, the Governor having warned them not to venture in the streets at the peril of their lives.

According to reliable reports, the troops at Kharkoff sided with the students and strikers. A state of siege has been proclaimed there. The situation to-night is most threatening.

After pillaging the shops of the gunsmiths at Reval to-day a crowd proceeded to plunder the factories. Troops were summoned, and the vodka shops were closed. The crowds went in procession through the streets singing revolutionary songs, discharging revolvers, and setting fire to the telegraph loes.

All the drug stores and many other shops in Saratoff are closed, the town is without artificial light, no street cars are running, and no newspapers are appearing. Many factories are closed. Troops guard the banks. The Saratoff Town Council has organized a committee for the protection of the citizens.

The treasury and aqueduct at Kieff are under guard, and the whole city is in the possession of the military. All the newspapers but one have declared in favor of a strike.

The strikers at Riga have plundered a gunshop and seized a number of rifles and revolvers and a quantity of ammunition.

Six armed men entered the Libau branch of the Moscow International Trade Bank yesterday and robbed it of $17,500. Five of the men were shortly afterward captured and $10,000 was recovered. The sixth man, with $7,500, escaped.

The stores at Samara are closed, the administrative offices are guarded by infantry and cavalry, and there are infantry patrols in the streets.

Cossacks at Poltava to-day dispersed a meeting of many thousand persons, several of whom were wounded. The newspapers have ceased publication.

It is reported that many persons were injured during the dispersal of a meeting at Novocherkassk, the capital of the Province of Don Cossacks.

BRESLAU, Oct. 28.—A special dispatch from Kieff says that the city is completely isolated on the west, and that telegraphic communication is interrupted.

Another dispatch says that the complete suspension of railroad, postal, and telegraphic communication with Russia is imminent.

NO MERCY IN POLAND.

Agitators Bearing Arms to be Shot—100,000 on Strike at Lodz.

WARSAW, Oct. 27.—The Governor General has ordered the troops to shoot every agitator caught armed.

The strike is in full swing at the factories here. The workmen are holding big meetings without interference on the part of the police

The police have ordered the shops to close at 7 o'clock, and all persons appearing on the streets after 8 P. M. will be arrested and searched. The military are guarding the street corners. The newspapers will not appear to-morrow.

The employes of the banks have declared a strike. Agitators to-night paraded the streets, stopping the street cars.

A detachment of troops in the suburb of Muranoff this afternoon fired four volleys into a crowd, killing two persons and wounding many.

A workman, a woman, and a child were killed in Mila Street to-day by a soldier who fired a number of shots at a workman who was posting incendiary proclamations.

LODZ, Oct. 27.—The Governor has ordered the officers, in the event of disturbances, to act without mercy.

The employes of all the local factories, street car lines, and suburban railroads have struck.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—A message from a reliable source in Warsaw says that an incendiary fire started there last night has not been extinguished and that one part of the city is in flames.

The telegraph line to Lodz was open this evening and the following message was received:

"The city is quiet. The street railway strike continues. There have been no mails for two days, owing to the railroad strike. As the city is cut off from adequate supplies the prices of food, coal, and petroleum are rising fast."

A telephone message received at Warsaw from Lodz to-night said that 100,000 men were out and that the strike was complete except at the gas works, where the military on guard compelled the force to continue at work.

The German telegraph lines are handling Austrian telegrams for Russia, as the lines beyond Lemberg are not working.

The telegraph lines in the interior of Russia seem to be cut.

Wirballen, the last station on the Russian side of the frontier, is filled with troops.

GOVERNMENT ARMS CAPTURED.

Strikers at Baku Also Seize 170 Pounds of Dynamite.

BAKU, Oct. 27.—The strikers at Baku have capt[illegible]ed a car loaded with Government a[illegible]s and 170 pounds of dynamite.

The Revolutionists at Tiflis have issued a proclamation calling on the recruits not to join the colors, but to support the revolution with all their power.

BERLIN MARKETS AFFECTED.

Situation in Russia Excites Grain and Stock Speculators.

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—The conditions in Russia are beginning to have a marked effect on the financial and commercial life of Berlin. The grain market to-day was wildly excited through the interruption of arrivals from Russia, and prices jumped up and down spasmodically. Large stocks of Caucasus wheat and South Russian rye were bought for Berlin account. Wheat opened at $1 a ton higher and oats at $1.10 higher.

The Boerse was also most adversely affected and Russian bonds gave way to an extent greater than after the defeats at Liao-Yang and Mukden. The weakness spread to all departments of the market, and domestic iron and coal shares suffered severely, especially the shares of companies dependent on Russian trade.

A HARD TASK—WITTE.

He Says That He Is Not Yet Russia's Physician.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES
Special Cable. Copyright, 1905.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Times to morrow will publish the following tele gram from Elkan Adler, a solicitor, dated St. Petersburg to-day:

"I saw Count Witte yesterday, being introduced by M. Sokoloff, editor of a Warsaw paper. He received us most affably and frankly admitted that the country was very ill and that he was not yet the physician. The peace negotiations at Portsmouth, he said, were much easier than such negotiations at home. The matter was very complicated and the position' bien triste et bien grave.

"Asked as to the Jewish question, he said there was no Jewish question. All were now agreed that Jewish disabilities must disappear. For years, as everybody knew, he was for the Jews and had the audacity to maintain their rights, but as regards curing the evil he feared that the sudden removal of disabilities, which he thought possible, even probable, might produce reaction.

"He thought the practical way was to take the questions seriatim—educational disabilities, the pale of settlement, and soldiers' rights. Such a gradual treatment would preserve the equilibrium and secure improvement.

"Then M. Sokoloff said the Douma would declare the complete equality of Jews before the law. Count Witte acquiesced and admitted that the Russian Jews were good patriots and that many emigrants would return if permitted. I said that Russia was a cruel mother, but their mother still.

"Count Witte added that other questions, like the Jewish, should be treated reasonably and practically."

THAT VIPER, SAYS JEROME, AND HE MEANS OSBORNE

Charge of Neglect in the Slocum Case Stirs Him to Wrath.

CHOATE HELPS RISING WAVE

He Will Speak for the District Attorney Next Wednesday—Ministers Also Invite Jerome.

The Jerome wave was still rising yesterday. Joseph H. Choate and the members of the New York bar associated with him in the recent call to the profession to support the District Attorney in his campaign are arranging a mass meeting for next Wednesday evening in Carnegie Hall, at which Mr. Choate himself, Mr. Jerome, and several of the foremost lawyers in this city will speak.

Mr. Jerome received a letter yesterday from the Rev. Frederick Lynch, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church, at Madison Avenue and 121st Street, asking him to occupy the platform of that church at one of the services on Sunday, Nov. 5, and address the congregation on the subject of "The Duty of the Church Toward Good Government."

"We want you to say what is upon your heart fearlessly, as you always do," the letter says. "The church is a big one, and you will have a chance to address about a thousand of the strong men in this parish. This is the most effective way I can conceive of contributing to the success of your cause."

It was understood last night that Mr. Jerome would accept the invitation. Tomorrow afternoon Mr. Jerome will speak in the Epiphany Baptist Church, at Sixty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue, where a meeting has been arranged by the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur and the Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters. The same morning Dr. Felix Adler will devote his customary address in Carnegie Hall to Mr. Jerome, his cause and campaign.

There was a sudden change last night in Mr. Jerome's attitude to his rival on the Tammany ticket. No longer did he speak of "Poor Jim," but of "that viper whom I took to my bosom." Shaking his fist angrily, he referred to the political backers of James W. Osborne as "traders in human flesh." And of the recent statements by his former assistant and present rival he spoke as "those delusions that come over him when he has an attack of tonsilitis."

Mr. Jerome was addressing a meeting at Beethoven Hall in Fifth Street. Fully 3,000 men and women, most of them Jews, were packed into the hall, taxing its capacity to the utmost. To them Mr. Jerome gave a full, detailed explanation of his action in two cases that concerned his hearers closely—the Slocum disaster and the police outrage at the funeral of Chief Rabbi Joseph. He did so after telling them how it had been brought to his notice that lies which reflected on his honor both as a man and a public official were being sedulously spread among them.

Of what his listeners thought there could be no doubt when Mr. Jerome finished. Rarely has he been cheered with more good-will. And time and again in his address he was interrupted and kept waiting for thirty and forty seconds at a time till the audience had vented its satisfaction with his words.

Nails the Slocum Lie.

"I find," Mr. Jerome began, "that all through this vast part of the city, where I myself live and where so many thousands of my fellow-citizens live—I find that diligently, by day and by night, in shops and in the streets, in social gatherings and hither and yon, evil-minded persons are circulating foul lies and calumnies in regard to me and what I have done in the last four years. Now I know this part of the city. We do not lack in intelligence here. We may not have so much 'mazuma' as some, but we have got brains, and we can nail a lie as quickly as anybody. I shall first take up and show you what I did in connection with the Slocum disaster.

"The question is whether, as District Attorney, I did my duty or not. You have got a right to call me to account. If thousands went to their death during scenes of such suffering and I was false to my duty of seeking to punish those responsible—why, I would have no right to look any decent man in the face, and much less to ask for his vote. I should be driven not only from office, but from this very city. I should not be permitted to live where a single decent man abides. [Somebody here called for three cheers for Mr. Jerome, and the whole audience got on its feet and shouted response.]

"I don't want these garbled, malignant versions of this thing that evil-minded people have been spreading to remain uncontradicted. I have no hesitation in denouncing those statements as lies, and as wilful lies."

Mr. Jerome then went over, step by step, all he did after the occurrence of the Slocum disaster to locate the responsibility and bring it home.

How Could Anybody Fall?

"Oh, the things that were seen there!" he cried. "Can anybody be so base, so wicked, so lying, as to charge me—as this man that I trusted and took into my bosom as a viper, this fellow, Osborne, has charged me—with not doing my duty in such a thing? Why, the wickedest, the vilest rascal that ever walked our streets would have risen up in the face of that horror and done his duty to the fullest extent! Do you think anybody could think of those children's bodies gathered out of the mud, of those families perishing together, of those horrors, and have them described to him, and have the evidence needed to punish the guilty, and then not do his duty?

"A man does not live in this whole city, bad as it is, who in the face of the horrors of the Slocum disaster would not do everything that lay in his power. And yet a man, whom I took as my friend, whom I took into my office and made my assistant, whom I had there serving you, after you had confided to me this great trust, he and the men with him—base, base ingrates and liars—have dared to spread among you the report that I didn't do my duty.

Didn't Advertise His Work.

"Now, let me tell you what I did. When everything that human effort could do to gather testimony serving to punish the guilty had been done, was I then to make a star case of it? Was I to go forth with brass band and trumpets and try to advertise myself with it? Or was it my duty to sit down calmly and figure out how the guilty men could best be brought to punishment? That was what I did—I studied the statutes of this State. And let me tell you, I was familiar with the statutes of this State when Jim Osborne was eating hog and hominy down in Georgia, or wherever it was."

Mr. Jerome described his conference with Gen. Burnett, the United States District Attorney, and with John D. Lindsay, head of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and how they, after weighing carefully everything, came to the conclusion that the only way of securing convictions was by trying the cases in the United States Courts.

"Now, Osborne," Mr. Jerome went on, "in one of those flippant, wild vagaries of his; in one of those delusions that come over him when he has an attack of tonsilitis, [laughter,] says that I was ignorant in deeming the question one for the Federal courts, and that the only thing that could he got out of those courts was an indictment of the Steamboat Inspectors. Now see and nail the falsehood. And remember he says that 'Jerome is on his knees to every great corporation.'

"That is what he has said, this man whom I trusted. Lives there a man so base that he would strike the hand that tried to help him? And remember, out of this man's own mouth has come the testimony that I tried to help him; that while he was my assistant I gave him the great star cases of which he is now talking; that since he went out of office I have spoken kindly of him and sent him important cases. So I have, but never again! Once bitten, always wise.

"The Federal Grand Jury indicted the Inspectors. They indicted the rich corporation to which I was supposed to be on my knees, and they did so on evidence that I and my assistants were instrumental in saving and collecting. They indicted the Captain of the steamer, the Commodore of the fleet, the President of the corporation, and its two most important officers. And they found several indictments against esch. Those are the facts, citizens, borne out by the records of the United States Court of the Southern District of New York."

The fate of the cases in court and the impossibility of securing a conviction in spite of three trials were next related by Mr. Jerome. He then took up the riots at the funeral of Rabbi Joseph, and in the same detailed way reviewed the actions of himself, of Mr. Rand, and of Assistant District Attorney Kresel in trying to bring the matter home to the policemen supposed to be most guilty.

"It is the same as the other thing," he said, "lies, lies, lies! And now they come with their lies, these traders in human flesh, and try to make political capital of this—Osborne and his political backers. Who are his backers anyhow? Who but Van Wyck and Carroll?"

Finally Mr. Jerome spoke of the attitude of certain Jewish newspapers owned by a single man, which had been trying to make themselves mouthpieces of the east side. As he rapped them time and again, using names, the audience howled with delight and cried repeatedly: "Right you are—all you say is true."

Labor President Helping Him.

Before going down to the east side, Mr. Jerome addressed another meeting of the same size, if not larger, at the Harlem Lyceum, in 107th Street. There he devoted himself to the boss and "it," saying: "I am trying to win my freedom by winning yours."

Incidentally, he told that the President of the Associated Building Trades, perhaps the largest labor organization in this city, came to his office last Thursday and asked not only for a chance to contribute to the campaign funds, but also for opportunity to do active work for Mr. Jerome. Once more he spoke of the withdrawal of Mr. Flammer in terms of sincere gratitude. Then he continued:

Strike Down the Boss.

"Go a step further and see something that never before within memory of living man has happened. You will hear of no such thing anywhere else in these United States. The great Republican Convention in this county is reconvened. The delegates are reconvened to consider a man whom many of them do not love; a man who, in National politics, is opposed to them; a man who, perhaps, has said many bitter things of them. Why are they reconvened? Because your voice—the voice of the plain people of America—has been heard. It has been heard, and the convention of one of the great political parties has taken heed. See what this means—what it means if, on Nov. 7, you should strike down the boss in this city."

HOW TO VOTE FOR JEROME.

House-to-House Canvass to be Made with Sample Ballots.

The Jerome campaign committee is sending out calls for volunteer speakers. It is planned to hold numerous meetings every night during next week, both indoors and on the streets. The principal object aimed at is to convince the voters that they can easily vote for Jerome without being in danger of invalidating their vote for the rest of their party ticket. And the speakers are wanted to instruct the voters how to do this. Those willing to serve are asked to send their names to Richard Welling, Union Square Hotel. Two thousand house-to-house canvassers are also wanted for the same purpose, and are asked to call on W. C. Langdon at the Union Square Hotel.

Sample ballots marked so as to show the voters how to vote for Jerome and their party ticket are now ready to be scattered broadcast. They will be sent out by threes, a yellow ballot showing how Republicans may vote for Jerome, a red one doing the same for the Democrats, and a blue ballot serving the adherents of the Municipal Ownership League. These sample ballots, which are facsimiles of the official ballot, show that the name of Mr. Jerome will appear at the top of the column headed by the black square, his party emblem.

The Jerome Campaign Committee has not yet been able to secure any suitable headquarters in the Eighteenth Assembly District, Murphy's home district. The landlords have proved strangely unwilling to let their premises even for compensations above what would customarily be given. The committee is now asking whether Mr. Murphy may have anything to do with this peculiar state of affairs. At present the Jerome headquarters in that district are in a large truck.

A canvass of the Judges of General Sessions yesterday revealed the fact that every one of them is in favor of Mr. Jerome. Judge Foster is a strong Tammany man, and has often differed with the District Attorney. But he said yesterday:

"We don't always agree, but I have always a very high regard for Mr. Jerome's opinion. He is an honest and good public servant."

Judges Cowing, Newburger, and Rosalsky and Recorder Goff indorsed Mr. Jerome in still more emphatic terms.

These additional names were received yesterday by Charles P. Howland to the call sent out by Mr. Choate and the other seventeen original signers of the resolution asking the bar to stand by Mr. Jerome:

STAMPEDED FOR HEARST.

German-American Democracy of Kings Was In an Uproar.

A meeting of the German-American Democracy of Kings County, which is out for McClellan, was held in Arion Hall in Williamsburg last night, and was attended by over 2,000 persons. After two speeches had been made, the meeting turned into a demonstration for Hearst. Seventy-five per cent. of those present participated in the cheering which greeted the mention of the Municipal Ownership candidate's name.

Frederick Weldner presided. J. Grattan McMahon was speaking, and mentioned Mayor McClellan's name. There was an immediate uproar.

"This is evidently a Hearst meeting!" shouted the speaker.

"Three cheers for Hearst!" was the response.

McMahon tried to go on, but was unable to make himself heard. Then the Chairman whispered in his ear.

"Your Chairman is very much excited," said McMahon. "He has asked me to quit and I will. How much are you getting for this?"

"Nothing! Nothing!" was the reply.

Dr. Charles Pflug then spoke for an hour. He told the audience he had been instructed to "go easy" and refrained from mentioning the candidate's name.

Other speakers were Herman M. Metz, James W. Ridgway, Henry Kaufman, Dennis Brannigan, and Gottfried Westernacher.

Your cost accounting may not satisfy you. You know in a general way what your product is costing, but sometimes you have misgivings about one or the other department. One of these departments is running at a loss, but you are not sure which department is at fault. You accept small orders, but you are not certain of just how small an order you can fill at a profit.

Every department and every job should produce profit. If it does not, you should know it at once.

We are ready to establish methods in your concern which will give you this knowledge. May we not send a representative to discuss the matter with you?

ALL RED FLAGS FLY IN A HEARST PARADE

East Side Hisses and Stones the Emblems of Anarchy.

AMERICAN FLAG MISSING

"We Want to Divide Everything"—"Hearst and Freedom"—These the Mottoes of the Marchers.

Russian and Polish Hearst enthusiasts to the number of several hundred paraded through the lower east side streets last night, and startled the residents. The paraders carried half a hundred red flags and red lights and were headed by a band that played the "Marseillaise."

Some of the flags bore inscriptions. One was:

HEARST UND FREIHEIT

"Hearst and freedom!" shouted many of the followers of the parade. In anticipation of trouble, it was accompanied by several policemen.

"We want to Divide Everything!" was another motto. "Hoch für Hearst!" was still another.

There was no American flag in the parade, and at one point this caused trouble. The paraders were stoned and hissed, but the band played on.

The parade started in front of a saloon at 133 Clinton Street. Three or four hundred men got in line. The sidewalk and streets were crowded as soon as the news of the red flags and red lights spread through the densely populated district. There was no demonstration at this point; the crowds just gaped.

Pretty soon the band struck up the "Marseillaise," and the march was on. The big red "Hearst for Freedom" flag fluttered to the breeze at the head of the parade. The line of march led into Broome Street, then to Suffolk, to Delancey, and back to Clinton. At the corner of Rivington Street some one got the notion that something was amiss.

"Hey! What's the matter with the American flag?" shouted a voice.

It carried far and the crowd woke up. Stones and sticks were picked up and hurled at the paraders and the line wavered a little, but the band marched sturdily on and kept hammering away at "La Marseillaise."

The police interfered and a riot was prevented. Although hostilities ceased the excitement increased. The people of the east side had seen something new and said so loudly

"This is the Chicago of New York! some of them cried, and more came out to see and wonder. The line of march was continued until a halt was called at Suffolk and Broome Streets. Here a man whose name is spelled Korobitski felt called upon to make a speech.

"Vote for Hearst; he will give you everything," was the tenor of his remarks.

The parade went back to its starting point and disbanded.

The climax of the Hearst campaign will be reached to-night with the big labor demonstration at the Durland Riding Academy in West Sixty-sixth Street. The Hearst managers predict a record-breaking attendance, and arrangements have been made for a number of overflow meetings.

A feature of the demonstration will be a parade which is to precede it. It was estimated at the Hoffman House headquarters yesterday that 15,000 voters would be in line. It will consist of seven divisions, which will start from different points and converge on Durland's at 7:30 o clock to-night.

The starting points are: Beethoven Hall, 210 East Fifth Street, Abingdon Square; Workingmen's Municipal Ownership Association headquarters, 238 Fourth Avenue, First Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street; Bohemian Hall, East Seventy-third Street, Municipal Ownership League headquarters of the Twenty-first Assembly District, in West 100th Street, and Municipal Ownership League headquarters, at 401 West Forty-sixth Street.

The slogan for the occasion is "Stand Up and Be Counted."

Mr. Hearst and the other candidates on his ticket will speak.

POSTER ATTACK ON HEARST.

Tammany Pictures Him in Yellow, Running from Bomb He Has Fired.

Tammany has started a poster fight against Hearst. All over the city yesterday huge posters were being placed. They show a big red bomb, labeled "Czolgosz," from which a wreath of smoke arises, forming the outline of the late President McKinley, who is pointing a warning finger at a flying figure dressed in yellow pajamas. The figure is labeled Hearst. This is labeled "Lest We Forget."

"How about Hearst?" reporters asked of Murphy when he arrived at Tammany Hall yesterday. Mr. Murphy stood looking at the poster.

"He won't be running next week,'" he said, with a laugh. 'There's plenty of color in that poster, chiefly yellow, and it will be all over town by to-morrow."

The leader held conferences with his lieutenants all day, and late in the afternoon, with J. Sergeant Cram, visited Mayor McClellan's headquarters and had a long talk with the Mayor.

Tammany Hall issued yesterday a letter signed by the Rev. John A. Wade, the Rev. Luke J. Evers, and the Rev. Adolph M. Radin, respectively the Episcopal, Catholic, and Hebrew chaplains of the Tombs Prison, denying charges of graft made by Candidate Ivins against the Tombs management under Warden Flynn, and demanding that Mr. Ivins prove his accusations or retract them.

For the Hearst Ticket.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn decided unanimously yesterday that the Municipal Ownership ticket in Brooklyn was entitled to a place on the ballot and that the name of Justice Burr as a candidate for the Supreme Court belonged on that ticket.

The decision affirms that of Justice Maddox in the court below. Charles C. Wise had appealed.

make the necessary repairs to return to New Orleans under her own steam."

Immediately upon hearing of the accident and escape of the President, Mayor Behrman sent the following dispatch by wireless to him on board the West Virginia:

"New Orleans is overjoyed to learn that you and your party escaped without injury and regrets inexpressibly the discomfort the accident occasioned. We pray that your voyage home will be safe and delightful."

Gov. Blanchard sent the following:

"People of Louisiana regret accident of last night. Rejoice it had no serious consequences. Trust your voyage to Washington will be pleasant and devoid of further mishaps."

THE WEST VIRGINIA SPOKEN.

Wireless Message Received at the Pensacola Navy Yard.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 27.—The cruiser West Virginia, with President Roosevelt on board, was spoken to-day by wireless telegraphy, the ship at the time being about 300 miles off.

The message was received at the Pensacola Navy Yard, and stated that the West Virginia would reach Key West Saturday night.

PRESIDENT NOT "ABROAD."

On a National Ship He Is Still on American Territory.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—So far as the official records show, President Roosevelt, on leaving the South on the West Virginia, is the first of the Chief Executives this country has had to go beyond its territorial limits.

The attention of some of the legal authorities here having been called to the fact, they were unanimously of the opinion that in going beyond the three-mile limit the President has in no sense vacated his office, even temporarily. They point out that there is really nothing in the Constitution prohibiting the President from leaving American territory, and in the present case, being on a National ship, the deck of which is as much a part of American territory as the District of Columbia, he has not legally departed from the country.

In fact, some lawyers here express the opinion that even should the President go to a foreign country the doctrine of extra territoriality would extend to that country with him.

According to a report received at the Navy Department to-day the wireless telegraph station at Key West picked up the armored cruiser West Virginia at a distance of 225 miles as that vessel went down the coast en route to New Orleans and was in communication with the West Virginia at a distance of 375 miles after she had passed.

Naval officials are watching with considerable interest the effort of the commander of the West Virginia to maintain communication with the mainland by wireless telegraphy as she bears the President northward on his return from the South. It is the aim of the naval authorities ultimately to so perfect the wireless system along the Atlantic seaboard that vessels sailing up and down the coast may be kept in the closest possible touch and that ships may be communicated with at the greatest possible distance from shore. Wireless stations have been installed at intervals all along the coast from Cape Cod to New Orleans, and plans already have been formulated to bring the Isthmus of Panama in direct wireless communication with the United States.

PRESIDENT'S HARD LUCK.

Weather Bureau Couldn't Hold Storm at Sea for Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—"For once," said a Weather Bureau official to-night, "the President's luck has deserted him. Our big storm on the Atlantic has gone ashore, and we have nothing left down there to take its place. The President wanted to get into that storm, we know, and we tried hard to hold it for him, but he was just two days too late to touch the tail of it.

"We have a choice cold wave under preparation to-night, but it is up in the Northwest, and what little will be left of it after we have handed it out as it comes across the country will hardly attract the President's attention. However, it is likely to make a little ice at Hampton Roads when he arrives, and it may serve to kill any stray germs that may have concealed themselves on the West Virginia."

PRECAUTIONS FOR PRESIDENT.

Costly Methods Taken to Guard His Train from Accident.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct 27.—Traffic officials of the Illinois Central estimate that the extraordinary precautions taken over the run of the Presidential special from here to New Orleans made the cost of the haul fully fifteen times the amount received by the road.

One expensive item was the coal burned on the two engines, every lump of which was carefully hand picked, taking ten men several hours to load each tender.

Each mile of roadway was paced by a separate track walker until the special passed and every switch point and spur was not only spiked but guarded, as was each grade crossing.

A pilot train carrying high officials preceded the special all the way, and every station on the line was surrounded by police or constables, who kept all strangers off the right of way.

All other trains, even the fast mails, were laid out from thirty minutes to two hours, and the run surpassed anything in railr[illegible]d history for precautions against all accidents.

RACKET FOR HEARST CONFINED TO SPOTS

Main Floor and Stage Audience Make a Lot of Noise.

SILENCE IN THE GALLERIES

Some Scandinavians Who Impassively Watch Him in Brooklyn Say They Aren't for Him.

William R. Hearst, candidate for Mayor on the Municipal Ownership ticket, addressed two crowded meetings in Brooklyn last night. One of these was held in the old Montauk Theatre, at Fulton Street and Flatbush Avenue, the other in Prospect Hall, 271 Prospect Avenue. Both places were crowded to suffocation, and there were the same riotous acclaim and flag waving that have become a familiar feature of all Hearst gatherings in this campaign. Racket and crowds have never been lacking at these meetings.

In the Montauk Theatre the cheering lasted less than five minutes. This is comparatively tame for a Hearst meeting. Moreover, from a close observance of the auditorium when Mr. Hearst made his appearance on the stage, the applause and cheering was confined to certain spots on the orchestra floor and the stage. In the two gallery tiers, which also were crowded, there were rows of impassive faces.

In Prospect Hall the cheering lasted almost ten minutes. It seemed to come out of full lungs with genuine and spontaneous enthusiasm behind it. But there also the same condition was observed. The acclaim was practically confined to the main auditorium. In the gallery sat the audience that seemingly represented the district—principally Scandinavians, who had their wives with them. There was practically no cheering above the orchestra floor.

These Scandinavians who make Prospect Hall the gathering place when their societies and clubs have dances in the Winter, are, as a rule, stanch Republicans, not likely to be swayed by sentiment to a candidate representing another party. It is true that many of these are believers in municipal ownership because they have liked its work in the countries of their birth. But they are not believers in Mr. Hearst, many of them declare.

There was anotheh feature of the Prospect Hall demonstration that forced some observers to the conclusion that the euthusiasm for Mr. Hearst either was engineered by a clique of enthusiastic believers in what he stands for or a carefully organized claque. At the big labor demonstration held in Clermont Avenue Rink the night before a feature of the ovation to Mr. Hearst was the jangling of a small cow bell. The same bell figured in the Prospect Hall demonstration last night.

Mr. Hearst went to the meetings last night in an automobile. He made his first address at the old Montauk Theatre. The place was crowded.

C. Augustus Haviland, one of the leaders of the Hearst movement in Brooklyn, presided, and ex-Controller Bird S. Coler preceded Mr. Hearst as a speaker. Mr. Hearst again warned his audience against the "political trust."

"On Oct. 23," he said, "the papers heralded the news that Murphy and McCarren were to be haled before the life insurance investigators to tell where they got some of it, what they did with it, and how much they are going to use to elect McClellan, and now the investigation has been adjourned until after election. Then it will be too late for you to express your resentment in the only way the grafters fear—a vote against them at the polls.

"McCarren nominated Jimmy Ridgway, a disgrace to Brooklyn, and no clamor either from within or without the party stopped him. Charles F. Murphy is battening on fat contracts, and no clamor either from within or without the party can stop him. My friends, rise in your wrath and repeat the rebuke of the Tilden campaign."

At Prospect Hall, at the mention of Senator McCarren's name, there was a big demonstration against McCarren, and when Murphy's name was mentioned scores yelled "Where did he get it?" At the same hall Mr. Hearst read newspaper quotations regarding the insurance investigation. He happened to pick up a clipping from a paper that has incurred the ill-favor of the labor organizations. The hissing and groaning were worse than when McCarren's name was mentioned. Mr. Hearst dropped the clipping as if it had been a red-hot iron. Then the hissing stopped, and somebody shouted "Hooray for the Joinal."

Hearst League Quits Hearst.

An organization that calls itself the William Randolph Hearst League met last night in Independence Hall, Twenty-seventh Street and Third Avenue, and denounced Mr. Hearst and indorsed Mayor McClellan. Joseph S. McMulroney, secretary to the President of the Park Board, presided. He accused Mr. Hearst of having "meditated treason to the Democratic Party two years ago and of having been forced into line by his own league." The league suported Mr. Hearst for the Presidential nomination.

$35 Kuppenheimer overcoats 22.50: $15 and $18 suits and overcoats at 10.50

THERE is no requirement of the well-dressed man that is out of the range of the Simpson Crawford Co. clothing section, and that is especially true of to-day's sale. Its scope is as broad as that of the high class individual clothing house. In quality, cut, fit, workmanship and style we traverse the same road. At price we part. Second Floor.

COPYRIGHT 1905 BY THE HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER

Our clothing is sold on a purely dry goods basis—a policy that regulates the price of every suit and overcoat according to the purchasing facilities of this organization, which often means a saving of one-third to one-half. We allow ourselves a certain per cent. profit, and when we succeed in buying a lot of suits or overcoats at one-third less than regular prices you can depend upon it the price will be one-third less to our customers. Recently we have been especially fortunate, as indicated by the following values for to-day.

Notably the KUPPENHEIMER OVERCOATS at $22.50. These coats are sold throughout America at $35 and $40. The name KUPPENHEIMER is known throughout the country, and the other day when we placed one hundred and twenty-five coats on sale they met with immediate and satisfactory response. We have seventy-five at this price and will fit you to a coat in fifteen minutes at $22.50 for which you would pay a high-class tailor $50 and wait two weeks. 22.50

The materials are foreign Elysians, Vicunas, Smooth Kersey and other Overcoatings, that go into the high grade merchant tailored coats—lined throughout with silk, satin or serge. The lot includes the new ultra fashionable styles in all sizes.

19.50 FOR MEN'S 30.00 OVERCOATS.—Made in the popular full box style—in medium and extra long lengths—also the latest creation, "THE SURTOUT." The fabrics are all merchant tailor effects in Kerseys, Elysians, Vicunas and Beavers. All colors and all sizes. 19.50

Almost unbelievable

250 men's Winter suits and 175 men's Winter overcoats } Values $15 & $18, at 10.50

TO the hundreds of men that believe $15 or $18 is enough to pay for a suit or overcoat we say emphatically that no manufacturer in the country has a better reputation for his specialty than the one that made these $15 and $18 suits and overcoats. They embody all the style, fit, quality and workmanship you could possibly expect for $15 or $18, and any garment that you buy at one of those prices would be a great disappointment to you should you see one of these garments at 10.50. If we could tell the name of the manufacturer we could pack our clothing department all day to-day.

The SUITS consist of worsteds, cheviots and black Thibets—single and double breasted, tailored in the latest fashion—values $15 and $18, at..... 10.50

The OVERCOATS are kersey and frieze—all lengths in blue, black, gray and Oxford—also fancy TOURIST coats—sizes to fit every build—special..... 10.50

We make a specialty of boys' suits at $3.00—boys' overcoats $3.95

ONE THOUSAND SUITS is a big order for boys, but we placed an order with the manufacturer for ten thousand boys' suits and you can readily see that in making up such a large lot the expense of cutting, fitting, &c., is reduced to a minimum, to say nothing of the saving on the material. It is the celebrated Simpson Crawford Co. special, and the only suit we know of at $3.00 that stays in the race to the last with a five dollar suit. A new lot of two thousand is now on sale—Norfolk, sailor, and double-breasted models at $3.00, suitable for school or dress wear.

BOYS' OVERCOATS. Winter coats that would sell ordinarily for not less than $6.00—long, swagger coats with broad shoulders—long enough to cover the shoe tops—single or double breasted style—made of high grade vicuna in black or Oxford; sizes 7 to 16 years..... 3.95

TOURIST COATS. A decided favorite with the boys and a quality, style and workmanship so pleasing to the parents that they are glad to let the boys have their way. Fancy Scotch effects—black, blue and gray frieze—finely tailored, belted back—sizes 9 to 16 years; special to-day at..... 4.95

IVINS A CANDIDATE TO SAVE CITY, HE SAYS

Finds People Between the Devil and Deep Sea.

NOW HE'S SURE OF WINNING

Says a Graft Trust Exists and the Present Government Is as Bad as Citizens Will Stand.

"When I was asked to take the Republican nomination for Mayor," said William M. Ivins, speaking last night in the auditorium of the United Charities Building, "I did not hesitate. It seemed to me too bad that the citizenry of New York should be placed between the devil and the deep blue sea, with Tammany on the one hand and Hearst on the other, and I concluded to make the race.

"We all know what Tammany will do if it has four years more of power," he continued. "We don't know what Hearst might do, and of the two evils the unknown is not the least to be feared. The split in the Democratic Party is so radical, with the McClellan wing and the Hearst wing, that I defy any one to study the situation and read anything but my election. If this town shakes hands with the devil, or jumps into the sea, it's the fault of the Republicans and nobody else."

Mr. Ivins addressed four meetings last night, making his round in an automobile and receiving a warm welcome at each stopping place. The burden of his plea in all four of his speeches was the necessity for Republican unity. He did refer to the withdrawal of ex-Magistrate Flammer from the race for District Attorney and the consequent change in the political situation.

The Republican candidate's first appearance was in the Twenty-fifth Assembly District—his home district. It was there that he spoke in the Charities Building. A crowd of several hundred persons, including many women, welcomed him.

"Tammany is crafty," said he. "It knows its plight, and what is it trying to do? It is pleading with Republicans to save the community from Hearst by voting for McClellan.

"Tammany Hall is nothing but an organized appetite for plunder—a big graft trust. It can no more be controlled by Mr. McClelan than could the insurance companies be controlled by the honest Directors. There is not at the head of any one of the municipal departments a man who occupies his office by virtue of his character and capability. The administration of Mr. McClellan is purely a Tammany administration, and the people are being given as bad a government as they will stand for.

"There may be a reason why some Republicans do not want to see me elected. They may fear the execution of the law. They tell you it is because they fear Hearst, but that is not it. All righteousness is not in the Republican Party, nor is all unrighteousness in Tammany Hall. But the Republicans who are going to vote for Mr. McClellan all have their offices very near Trinity Church." [Laughter and applause.]

At the Amsterdam Opera House, in West Forty-fourth Street, a crowd which jammed the place to the doors cheered for five minutes when Mr. Ivins appeared. He was introduced as "the only candidate fit to be Mayor." After repeating his warning to Republicans to stand by their colors, he said:

"The main issue of this campaign is not whether this city shall own her surface railways and subways at some future time, but whether Charles F. Murphy, ex-Senator Plunkitt, and men like them shall own the City of New York now." [Applause.]

"I want to ask you a question," interrupted a man in the body of the house. "Did you, while affiliated with the administration of Mayor Grace, say that the people were asses and should be fed on straw?"

The question was put in a loud voice and was heard by everybody. There were cries of "put him out," but Mr. Ivins was calm.

"Stand up, my friend," he said, "and let me see you."

A man rose to his feet.

"Now, look at me," the candidate continued. "Look at me and tell me if you think I am a man who would make such a statement."

"Mayor," pleadingly called a man from the gallery. "Don't pay no attention to that man. That's Buggy O'Brien."

The roar of laughter that followed interrupted proceedings. Several policemen appeared, and O'Brien was led from the hall despite Mr. Ivins's protest.

"I don't like that, gentlemen," he said. "I think it's a healthy sign when honest questions are propounded at a meeting such as this is."

"That's all right, Mayor," said the man in the gallery. "But you can't argue with a crazy man."

"Maybe not, but I didn't know he was crazy. At any rate I never said any such thing."

Continuing, Mr. Ivins asserted his independence of politics and politicians.

"I've always owned myself," he declared. "And I'm still my own owner. I've never worn any man's political livery and I never will. When I'm elected Mayor every man in this city who has a suggestion to make will find me receptive, and any man who tries to use me, be he Democrat, Republican, financier, or philanthropist, will have the door shown to him."

"I say 'when' I'm elected Mayor, not 'if,' because the split in the Democratic Party is so wide that it forms a great highway through which I'll march to the City Hall on election day. I'll stay there when I get there, too—all four years."

Several hundred persons lined up on the sidewalk when the candidate clambered into his automobile, and gave him a parting cheer.

At the next stop, Bohemian Hall, in East Seventy-third Street, a rather disorderly crowd was encountered. Many boys were present, who persisted in interrupting Mr. Ivins.

The last meeting addressed was that held in the Republican Headquarters of the Ninth Assembly District, Eighth Avenue and Twenty-third Street.

"When I take the Mayor's chair," Mr. Ivins told this meeting, "I will not do so as a politician, but as a plain citizen.

"I will give you clean streets; there is no politics in that. I will give you decent tenement houses; there is no politics in that. I will give you decent gas at reasonable figures, pure water and plenty of it; there is no politics in that.

"I will spoil the game of every grafter and redeem the good name of this city. I will make it my business to oust the Murphys and the McCarrens and the Oakleys."

ATTACKS THE MAYOR ON GAS.

He Signed Remsen Bill, Says Ivins, in Defiance of the Pblic.

William M. Ivins went at Mayor McClellan in an epistolary way yesterday with more incisiveness than he has yet shown. Incidentally he made a comment upon the letter which Grover Cleveland wrote to Mayor McClellan, expressing his hope that McClellan would be elected.

"Mr. Cleveland is a great man," said he, "and as good a judge of the propriety of such action as I am. I voted for him in 1884 and 1888, but not in 1892, as I was out of the country."

Mr. Ivins said he had noticed that Mayor McClellan had been referring with pride to the fact that a city lighting plant was in process of erection. Taking that statement of the Mayor as his text, Mr. Ivins issued a long statement, in the course of which he said:

"The Mayor seems to be a little rash in bringing up this lighting problem. Commissioner Oakley betrayed the public in signing the gas contracts. Public indignation had compelled the Mayor to repudiate his Commissioner's action, yet he did not remove him. Oakley's service in other respects has been inefficient and worthless. The public knew it, Mr. McClellan knew it, and yet he kept him, and keeps him in office. Why? Are there other services for the gas monopoly to be performed?

"Nor is the scandal of the public lighting contracts and of the retention of Oakley in contempt of public sentiment the only contribution which Mayor McClellan has made to handing over the city to the gas monopoly. Has the public forgotten the Remsen Gas bill?

"The Remsen Gas bill had passed the Legislature during the term of Mayor Low. He promptly vetoed it. With the Remsen bill on the statute books the city would be powerless either to resume expiring franchises or to prevent the further growth and expansion of the monopoly, or to acquire the rights of the gas monopoly by condemnation proceedings except through the expenditure of enormous sums.

"The Legislature passed the bill again, and Mayor McClellan signed it. He signed it in defiance of the people's rights, and an outraged public was forced to appeal to a Governor, who saved them from the Mayor whom they elected. What the Mayor's motives were we do not know."

IVINS FOR THE WOMEN.

Reason They Shouldn't Have Votes Is They Haven't Taken Them.

William M. Ivins, in reply to a letter from Martha Williams, President of the New York County Woman Suffrage Association, yesterday came out in favor of woman suffrage. Mrs. Williams had put several questions to Mr. Ivins. In reply he said:

"The best answer to your questions is that I am a member of the International as well as the National Association for the Promotion of Equal Suffrage. The best and the only reason I know of why woman should not have the suffrage is that she has not taken it. When she wants it she will have it.

"I think the mistake which is made by the advocates of woman suffrage is that they address themselves too much to the men. I think they should rather, for the time being, exclusively address the women. Women make public opinion so rapidly, once there is unanimity of plan and purpose among them, designed or undesigned, that it never becomes necessary to wait until even a majority of them are in agreement. We may take it for granted that when a thoroughly respectable majority of women insist upon the right to vote, and persist in their insistence, the men will not delay in according it to them. It is natural that the men should not give it to them until they have to, or until they see that it is wise to. They do not want their political plans interfered with. But when they see that the time has come they will not wait for the fortress to be stormed; they will do as they have always done—they will make the best of it and surrender as gracefully as possible.

"I believe that the wisdom of woman is of that direct and simple kind that, were she enfranchised, she would drive us a long way, and speedily, upon the road of civil service reform. Because there is one thing in which I have noticed that all women are relentless—they pardon anything but incompetency, and in the selection of their servants they are guided, far more independently than men, not by any consideration of sympathy or personal liking, but with an eye mainly to the results.

"And in the same way, I believe that the enfranchisement of woman would be the beginning of economies now undreamed of. If there is one thing woman knows how to do, it is to get value for her money."

PASTOR SEEKS DIVORCE.

News to Many in Stamford That the Rev. W. J. Cady Was Married.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 27.—A good many people in Stamford learned to-day that the Rev. W. J. Cady, ex-pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church here, was a married man, when it became known that Mr. Cady had brought a suit for divorce from his wife, who was Miss May Nichols, a daughter of the late H. F. Nichols of Newburg, N. Y.

Mr. Cady and Miss Nichols were married at Newburg, N. Y., April 4, 1900. In the complaint he alleges that his wife deserted him on Sept. 10, 1901. It is understood here that Mrs. Cady will not contest the suit.

He came to Stamford as pastor of the local church in 1902 and made a sensation by his sermons on local conditions, political and otherwise. He resigned a few weeks ago. It was part of his duty to make calls on his parishioners. Some of the younger members of the gentler sex seemed to be taking a deep interest in him. This caused gossip. One Sunday he astonished the congregation by announcing from the pulpit that he was a married man, but that there was safety in numbers, for he had seven of the ladies of the congregation after him.

CLEVELANDS AT HORSE SHOW

Ex-President's Party After Day at Chicago Goes On to Nebraska.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland were the guests of Paul Morton at the Chicago Horse Show, at the Coliseum this afternoon, and left at 5 o'clock in the private car Rocket for Lincoln, Neb. When the Cleveland party left Chicago it numbered more than 100 persons, all of whom are going to Arbor Lodge, near Nebraska City, to witness the unveiling of the statue of J. Sterling Morton.

A Lincoln dispatch says that Mr. Cleveland is expected to remain at Arbor Lodge for several weeks in the hope that complete rest will benefit his health.

Mr. Cleveland reached Chicago at 7:40 this morning over the Pennsylvania lines. Carriages were taken to the Stratford Hotel. The party was complete, except that Mr. and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson did not come. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland were accompanied by Paul Morton, Miss Pauline Morton, Dr. J. D. Bryant of New York, and Master Wirt Morton. Miss Morton left the train at Englewood to visit relatives. Joy Morton and Mrs. Paul Morton joined the party here.

ODELL-HEARST DEAL SHOWN BY DECISIONS

Assembly Combinations in 20 New York Districts Upheld.

9 IN KINGS; 2 IN QUEENS

If Odell Carries Half of Them He Will Probably Be Able to Elect a Speaker.

Justice Stover, in the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon, decided many applications with reference to the rulings of the Board of Elections regarding the placing of Republican candidates for Assembly and Alderman on the Municipal Ownership ticket. He upheld the Hearst indorsements of Republican candidates for members of the Assembly and Board of Aldermen in every instance except that of the Eighth Assembly District.

Republican candidates for the Assembly have received Hearst indorsements in these districts of New York County: Second, Third, Fourth, Seventh, Tenth, Twelfth, Fourteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-eighth, Twenty-ninth, Thirty-second, and Thirty-third.

Hearst indorsements were given to the Republican candidates for Assembly in these districts of Kings: First, Second, Fifth, Sixth, Tenth, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fifteenth, and Nineteenth.

In Queens, the Republican candidates for Assembly in both districts were indorsed by the Hearst League.

This shows that there is a combination between the Republicans and the Hearst men to vote for Republican Assemblymen in twenty out of the thirty-five districts in New York County; in nine out of twenty-one districts in Kings, and in the two districts of Queens. If this combination should prove effective in all, or even the greater part of the districts named, State Chairman Odell very probably would be in control of the Legislature, which is now his chief object in the campaign in view of the fact that a Speaker must be elected to succeed the late S. Frederick Nixon, and that the result of that election will determine which of the two Republican factions, the Odell faction or the Black-Barnes faction, is in control of the Republican organization.

In nearly every instance where Republican candidates for the Assembly received the Hearst indorsement the Republican candidates for Aldermen were also indorsed by the Hearst organization.

The Board of Elections overruled the objections to the Hearst petitions of Louis Freidel for Assembly in the Eighth District and Harry Silversteln for Alderman in the same Aldermanic district. Justice Stover reverses this ruling, holding that the necessary number of signatures, after deducting signatures proved to be forgeries, were not attached to the petitions.

The Board of Elections sustained objections to the Hearst petitions in favor of Anthony J. Gulotta, Republican candidate for Assembly in the Fourteenth District, and of Carl E. Brand, Republican candidate for Alderman in the same district. Justice Stover overrules this decision and holds the petitions good.

The Board of Elections sustained objections of the same sort in the cases of Samuel Hoffman, Republican candidate for Assembly in the Tenth District, and of George J. Schneider, Republican candidate for Alderman in the same district. Justice Stover reverses that ruling.

William Young, Republican candidate for Assembly in the Twenty-first District, will also have his name on the Hearst ticket through a ruling made by Justice Stover.

Justice Stover also sustained the right of Max Eckman, Republican candidate for Assembly in the Twelfth District, and James J. Smith, Republican candidate for Alderman in the same district, to have their names printed on the Hearst ticket.

The objections of Moses Herrman, Tammany candidate for Municipal Court Justice in the Fourteenth District, to the petition filed by Edgar J. Lauer, the Republican candidate, for a place on the Municipal Ownership ticket were overruled by the Board of Elections, and its ruling is sustained by Justice Stover.

Justice Stover in his opinion says that an objection was made to the validity of the petitions on the ground that the Board of Elections had no power to decide objections after midnight of Oct. 23. The papers, he says, show that the board did not complete its examination of the papers until after midnight. No assertion is made that the board intentionally delayed the proceedings, but on the contrary Justice Stover says it is evident the board diligently endeavored to discharge its duties. Justice Stover holds that the intent of the statute is to direct, and is not mandatory. Any other holding, he said, would prevent a review by the court and place it within the power of the Board of Elections entirely to defeat the object of the statute by withholding a decision until midnight of the fifteenth day before election.

Justice Stover then deals with the objections raised as to the number of signatures required to nominate an Alderman. It was set up that 500 signatures were necessary for that purpose. Justice Stover says that, according to a decision of the Appellate Division, only 100 names are necessary. Justice Stover further holds that it is not necessary that the signers of such petitions should be registered voters.

The objection to the petition nominating Edward J. Lauer as a Hearst candidate for Justice of the Municipal Court in the Fourteenth District set forth that the petition did not contain the names of 1,000 electors. Justice Stover holds that the office of Justice of the Municipal Court is a municipal office, and is embraced under the clause which requires 500 electors on the certificate for nomination.

TORPEDOES TO RAISE BODIES.

Army Battery Will Be Sent to Yonkers to Work on Wreck.

A United States torpedo battery will be sent to Yonkers to assist the police in recovering the bodies of the persons drowned by the sinking of a small boat in the Hudson River on Sunday morning. Only one body, that of Benjamin Benson, has been found. The others who lost their lives in the accident were Eric Nelson and his nine-year-old son, Eric, Jr.; Carl Thompson, and P. Simpson. It was suggested to Police Capt. Woodruff yesterday, as the sunken boat was a menace to navigation, that he apply to Gen. Grant for assistance in raising the wreck and recovering the bodies by requesting the General to detail a torpedo battery from either Fort Schuyler or Fort Totten to Yonkers for that purpose. The Captain at once communicated with Gen. Grant. After explaining the matter he was referred to Col. Livermore, Chief of the Department of Engineers, who assured the Captain that the Engineering Department would do all in its power to aid the Yonkers police.

THE CAMPAIGN NO CINCH, DECLARES M'CLELLAN

Warns Democratic Club Members That All Must Work.

SPEAKS AT FOUR MEETINGS

At Each He Tells Plans for Municipal Lighting and of the Little Plant Now Ready.

Mayor McClellan made another tour by automobile last night, addressing four meetings in Manhattan and the Bronx. There were great demonstrations at each of the meetings, and throughout Harlem a blaze of colored lights and fireworks greeted his machine as it sped on its way.

Municipal control of public utilities was the Mayor's subject at each of the meetings, while in the Bronx he also spoke at length on the additions his administration had made to the school facilities of that borough. At each meeting the Mayor laid stress on the fact that his administration has begun the construction of a $7,500,000 municipally owned and operated electric-lighting plant to light the streets, parks, and public buildings of the city.

He also declared that this plant could be utilized to give relief to the people from the extortions of the lighting monopoly if it did not of itself meet the popular demands in an adequate fashion.

The Mayor also announced at each meeting that on Monday next the city would open the first municipal lighting plant under the Williamsburg Bridge. This plant will light the bridge and the neighboring school houses, burning refuse supplied by the Department of Street Cleaning.

The Mayor's first meeting last night was at the Democratic Club, where an interesting programme had been prepared. Ex-Justice D Cady Herrick, who was last year's Democratic candidate for Governor, presided at the meeting. Mr. Herrick was introduced by Judge O'Dwyer of the City Court as the man who ran against Gov. Higgins and as the man who would succeed Gov. Higgins.

Would Be a Calamity, Says Herrick.

"To defeat Mayor McClellan would be a calamity to the city," said Mr. Herrick, "and would be an object lesson that honest, conscientious, intelligent public service counts for nothing in this community."

A letter was read from Robert B. Roosevelt, uncle of the President, saying it was with sincere regret that illness prevented him from attending the meeting.

"It is the duty of every well-wisher of the city to support so plain, honorable, and able an administration of city affairs as we have had under Mayor McClellan," said Mr. Roosevelt in his letter. "It is our duty to prolong it and show that we appreciate the men who have given our city a good name among the cities of the country."

It was about 8:30 o'clock when the Mayor reached the club, and he was introduced at once.

"It is a relief for me to address at least one audience where I do not have to urge my hearers to vote the Democratic ticket," said the Mayor. "Here I know you all vote the ticket from top to bottom, so I want to ask you to do more for me.

"This campaign is not 'cinch.' It means hard work for each of us until the votes are counted, and I want you to work for success. There never yet was a fight worth winning that was a cinch, and I want each of you to do everything you can with honor and decency to help me win this battle for our party."

From the Democratic Club the Mayor jumped to Terrace Garden, where there was a great Italian meeting, presided over by ex-Coroner Antonio Zucca. Herman A. Metz, the nominee for Controller, and Patrick F. McGowan, nominee for President of the Board of Aldermen, spoke before the Mayor reached the hall. Cheer after cheer greeted the Mayor, who immediately won the hearts of his hearers by addressing them in their native tongue.

He urged them, as they loved and honored the city of their home, to stand by the ticket which he had the honor to head.

Leaving Terrace Garden at 9:05 a jump was made to Harlem Casino, at Lenox Avenue and 124th Street. As soon as the Mayor's car and its convoy containing the reporters reached Fifth Avenue and 110th Street there was a waiting crowd with fireworks and colored lights. By mistake the reporters' car was ahead of the Mayor's at this point, and it got the red fire and the cheers intended for the Mayor. The streets were lined all the way from 110th Street to the meeting place, and the fireworks were continued. A big float also accompanied the party through 125th Street, with "Welcome" in big letters of fire.

The Harlem Casino was packed to the walls with a mass of humanity, and the demonstration on the Mayor's entry lasted six minutes.

Must Work as Never Before.

"I know by this welcome that I am facing a Democratic audience," said the Mayor. "I know I don't have to ask you to vote the straight ticket, but I want to urge you to have your friends and neighbors vote the ticket and to work as you never have worked before to make the Democratic victory the greatest in the history of the city."

"You're all right, Georgie," yelled an enthusiast from the gallery, while the Mayor joined in the laugh.

"This campaign is one of the most important the city has ever seen," said the Mayor. "Democratic good government is at stake and that is more vital than anything the voters have been called to pass upon in a generation. If re-elected I can promise you an administration of honesty, first of all, then efficiency and economy."

The Mayor said he had tried faithfully and loyally to give the city a decent and clean administration, and called attention to the fact that during his two years of office, appropriations aggregating $120,500,000 had been made for permanent improvements.

"This is more spent for the happiness and the comfort of the people than has been spent in any other two years in the history of the city," he said, "and yet the assessed valuations of the city have been increased less than 5 per cent., and the tax rate has been reduced in every borough of the city."

Leaving Harlem Casino the Mayor went to Zeltner's Hall, at Third Avenue and 176th Street, in the Bronx. There the biggest meeting of the night was addressed. It was 10:10 o'clock when the Mayor got there, and Controller Grout, Louis F. Haffen, and Herman A. Metz had concluded their speeches. Patrick F. McGowan followed the Mayor.

There was a tremendous demonstration when the Mayor entered, the crowd singing and cheering for eight minutes. The Mayor himself joined in singing the "Star-Spangled Banner" and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." At one side of the big hall was a sign, "Only One Encore Allowed." It caught the Mayor's eye, and he laughed outright as the cheering continued.

"This will never do," said the Mayor laughing, "when that 'No Encore Allowed' sign is hanging over there."

"Good boy, Georgie!" and "You're all right!" yelled the crowd, with a refrain of "Four, four, four years more."

The Mayor closed by giving a list of new schools and street and other improvements in the Bronx to which his administration was entitled to the credit, he said.

BROKE UP TWO MEETINGS.

Gangs of Boys Began Stone Battle and Elders Fled.

Two political meetings in the neighborhood of 134th Street and Seventh Avenue had to be called off last night.

The negro Democrats of the neighborhood were to hold a meeting on the northeast corner. White Republicans were to hold one opposite. There was a great deal of noise and rivalry. Both parties had bands.

Just as matters were getting interesting a crowd of seventy-five negro boys, who had loaded their pockets with brickbats, appeared on the scene from one direction and were met by a gang of a hundred or more white boys from another. Then began a battle that made everybody run to cover. The two meetings, bands and all, vanished for the night. One boy was arrested.

ENTERPRISE BANK SECRETS.

Will All Come Out at the Trial, Special Examiner Intimates.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 27.—E. P. Moxey, Special Examiner for the Federal authorities in the Enterprise National Bank failure, announced to-day that the condition of the bank would not be made known for some time, because publicity would interfere with the collection of the assets of the bank and with the ends of justice.

When pressed for something definite Mr. Moxey answered:

"I cannot tell you anything, but it will all come out at the trial."

Asked as to what trial he had reference, he would make no answer.

The first suit against the Enterprise National Bank, growing out of the failure, was brought in Common Pleas Court No. 3 this afternoon. D. L. Paterson of this city charges T. Lee Clark, the cashier who committed suicide, with feloniously taking and hypothecating a valuable certificate of stock pledged as security for a loan. Mr. Paterson seeks to restrain Lemart S. Cook, the Guarantee Title and Trust Company, and the Enterprise National Bank from further hypothecation of the certificate in question.

The inquest into the death of Cashier Clark will be held Monday afternoon.

SECOND SUIT CASE FOUND.

Contained Arms and Legs of Winthrop Torso—Rings on Hand.

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—A second suit case, containing the arms and legs of a woman, presumably those of the torso found on the Winthrop shore on Sept. 21, was picked up in the Charles River near the new Charlestown Bridge this afternoon by one of a lighter's crew. The case and contents evidently had been in the water a long time. The limbs were incased in a wrapping identical with that wound about the torso. On one of the bands were three gold rings.

The case has been identified by the second of the two pawnbrokers who sold two suit cases to a man answering one description. One of the straps had been removed. The other was like the strap fastened about the Winthrop case.

The rings found on the right hand today bear no engraving, but the police hope they may lead to identification of the victim. On the little finger was an old-style gold band, its edges worn thin, chased with the design of a small pointed raised cross and a larger cross depressed. On the ring finger was an opal, the cluster settings of which had been lost, and on the middle finger was ana imitation garnet. The trade mark initials "H. B." were stamped inside the opal ring. The rings were inexpensive, disposing the police believe, of the theory that the victim was a woman of wealth. Hands and feet were well cared for.

SMALLPOX ON A SHIP PASSED AT QUARANTINE

Case Discovered at Ellis Island After 2,000 Had Been Exposed.

TOO LATE TO GET THEM BACK

Hundreds Stop in This City and the Others Scatter—Disease Brought on the Nord Amerika.

A case of smallpox was discovered at Ellis Island yesterday among the immigrants landed from a ship that had been passed by the health officers at Quarantine. The case was not discovered until more than 1,000 steerage passengers on this vessel and 1,000 from another ship that had been examined with them had got away. Several hundred of these are in this city, and the others have scattered to other parts of the country.

The case was that of a Greek woman who was among the 1,228 steerage passengers landed in New York late Thursday afternoon by the Italian liner Nord Amerika from Naples, Genoa, and Palermo.

The woman was among the last batch of steerags passengers from the Nord Amerika to bs examined, and though messages wers sent in every direction in an effort to find the other eleven hundred and odd passengers and bring them back to the island for vaccination and disinfection, none had been found late last night. Fortunately the examination of immigrants is now made by compartments; that is, all the aliens are brought before the Marine Hospital surgeons and Immigration Inspectors by classes exactly as they are assigned to accommodations on board the liner that brings them; and all those who were in the compartment with the woman have been held. There were fifty-nins other passengers in this compartment, and all but a dozen who had been passed and were on their way to New York were on the island when the case of the Greek woman was discovered. Some hurry telephoning halted these at the Barge Office and they were brought baek.

The fifty-nine were assigned to the old railroad room on the first floor of the main building, and a corps of Marine Hospital surgeons began examining them. The result of this examination the surgeons refused to tell last night. It was said by others that should new cases develop it would probably mean the temporary paralyzing of the Government machine on Ellis Island pending the disinfecting of the buildings and removing the suspects to some point near New York, probably North Brother Island.

The condition of the Greek woman was discovered as she passed through one of the wire-nstted lanes through which the immigrants pass on their way to the land of freedom. At the head of this lane stood a Marine Hospital surgeon, thumping and examining every immigrant. When the Greek woman came near he saw that she was ill. He rubbed his hand across her forehead and felt the telltale little humps that are called "shots" hy the doctors, because they feel like shots embedded beneath the skin. Ten minutes later it was announced that the woman had a bad case of small pox and orders were sent out to bring back all the Nord Amerika passengers that could be found.

Then it dawned on the immigration officials that nearly 1,000 of the 1,491 steerage passengers of the Hamburg-American liner Pretoria, in late Thursday night, had been examined at the same time and in the same room with the Italian liner's passengers. The other 400 from the Pretoria were about to he landed at the island and were ordered back to the ship. Four hundred from the Sloman liner Scotia were also sent back to that vessel.

Dr. Doty, the Health Officer of the Port of New York, who is in charge of the examination of vessels at Quarantine, was notified of the smallpox case, and an hour later the Quarantine boat Governor Flower arrived at the island with Dr. Doty on board. Dr. Doty had the railroad terminals in Jersey City and New York notified, but the Nord Amerika's passengers had already been sent on their way.

The Health Department of the City of New York was then notified that probably several hundred persons, all of whom had probably been exposed to smallpox, were in the city.

Robert Watchorn, Commissioner of Immigration, did not take a serious view of the situation. He said that he had no fear of an outbreak and that the several thousand immigrants due to-day at the island would undergo the regular examination, and unless some contagious disease was discovered among them they would not be detained.

William Hartfield of Bolognesi, Hartfield & Co., the New York agents of the Nord Amerika, said that Dr. Doty had informed him that a case of smallpox had been discovered at Ellis Island, but that he did not fear any outbreak of the disease. Dr. Doty, when seen later, declared that there was no cause for alarm.

"This thing has happened at Ellis Island before," said he. "The passengers who were in the compartment with the woman will be held until all danger has passed. The case discovered to-day will not interfere with the work on the island."

Some of the vessels due to-day are the Cunarder Pannonia and the American liner New York. The Pannonia comes from Mediterranean ports, and has nearly 2,000 steerage passengers. The New York has 475, but they are all from English and French Atlantic ports, and should they be detained it will be simply as a precautionary measure. The same rule will apply to the steerage passengers that arrived last night on the Cunarder Lucania and the French liner La Lorraine.

The Nord Amerika was thoroughly fumigated and disinfected last night at her pier at the foot of West Thirty-fourth Street.

Dr. Vittorio Ravazza, the ship's surgeon, said that every one of the 1,238 immigrants on the ships was vaccinated before the ship left the Bay of Naples.

"Dr. Stonor at Ellis Island," he said, "told me that neither the health officers at Quarantine nor the officers of the ship could he blamed, for it was impossible to detect the disease until it had developed."

The Nord Amerika was originally the famous English tea racer Sterling Castle, owned by Thomas Skinner & Sons.

In 1883 she made the record voyage from Hankow, China, to London in 26 days 18 hours—a continuous speed of 18 knots.

Henry T. Bangs, 40 years old, who says he is a mining expert, and gave his address as the Hotel Gallatin, in West Forty-sixth Street, was arrested yesterday morning and arraigned in the Tombs Court on information received from Chicago. The charge against him is embezzling $2,500.

JAPANESE BOND CONVERSION.

Proposal for Exchange into 4 Per Cent. Securities to be Made.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cable. Copyright, 1905.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Times in its City article to-morrow will say:

"With reference to the impending Japanese loan conversion scheme we understand that the scope of the offers to the hondholders has not been definitely settled. It has, however, been decided to propose terms of repayment or of exchange into new 4 per cent. bonds both to the holders of the two 6 per cent. external loans, aggregating £22,000,000, floated in 1904, and to the holders of the two 6 per cent. internal exchequer bonds series, totaling 200,000,000 yen, ($100,000,000,) issued in the first half of the present year.

"Little doubt exists that the condtions of the conversion offer will prove acceptable to the great majority of bondholders."

TO QUELL KOREAN REVOLT.

Japan to Exercise Her Treaty Right—Troops Sent from Seoul.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cable. Copyright, 1905.

TOKIO, Oct. 27.—The insurrection in the provinces of Korea southward of Söul is increasing. Murders, the destruction of property, and other outrages are frequent.

The Korean authorities are making no effective effort to quell the disturbance. Japan has therefore decided to exercise her treaty right and to take the law into her own hands.

For this purpose troops were dispatched from Söul on Oct. 25.

RUSSIA CHOOSES ENGLAND.

Germans Believe Their Efforts to Prevent an Entente Have Failed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—There are various indications that Russia has chosen an entente with Great Britain rather than an entente with Germany. Emperor William's recent speeches are significant, indicating, as they do, that the Emperor regards war as a by no means remote possibility in the near future. Very significant, too, is the following, which appeared in the inspired Kölnische Zeitung to-day:

"Our efforts to convince the world of our desire for peace have failed. In future let us make less effort of this kind. Let us not look to the right or the left, hut go straight ahead to our goal. Let us strengthen our economic and political armor, and with it our confidence, so that we and those of our friends who desire to be our real friends need not fear the whole world in arms."

According to the Tageblatt, it is considered surprising in diplomatic quarters here that Great Britain has not yet accepted the invitation of Russia to take part in a second conference at The Hague. A Foreign Office official told me to-day that, as England and Russia had now practically reached an understanding in regard to affairs in the Far East, it could hardly be believed that England would decline to take part in the conference. It was true, however, that England and the United States demanded that definite propositions regarding the maritime rights of neutrals in time of war be presented to the conference instead of indefinite proposals, as at the last meeting.

PRINCE'S PERILOUS TRIP.

His Train Was Stopped Six Times by Suspicious Objects.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—Prince Frederick Leopold of Prussia, who represented the German Emperor with the Russian army in Manchuria, had a rather adventurous journey on Wednesday night from Warsaw to Alexandrovo, a distance of 140 miles.

The Prince's train was due to leave Warsaw at 8:30 in the evening. Dining and sleeping cars were attached and dinner was to be served at 9 o'clock. All preparations had been made for departure and a guard of honor was drawn up on the platform, when the officer commanding the guard was informed that the Prince was sleeping in the Governor's house. The guard was withdrawn and word was given out that the Prince would not make the journey that night.

The tables were cleared and the servants had prepared to retire when the Prince with his staff and a Russian escort appeared and the train was ordered to leave immediately. Troops then filled the station, the public were excluded, and the Prince's staff were ordered not to leave the train. Guards with fixed bayonets were posted at the doors of every car.

Other extraordinary precautions were taken and the train left the station with all the windows thickly muffled and the lights of the engine extinguished.

The military ahead signalled to the train six times in the course of the night to stop, as suspicious objects were observed on the track. At 5 o'clock in the morning Alexandrovo was reached and the train was taken over by Prussians.

RUDOLF LEHMANN DEAD.

He was the author of "An Artist's Reminiscences" and "Men and Women of the Century."

Prince Charles will leave Denmark to assume the royal functions immediately after the official notification of his election is conveyed to him.

FORTY ART NEOPHYTES LEARN THE REAL GODS

"The Owls" at the Students' League Receive Due Homage.

ALSO EAT AND DRINK $75

When a new aspirant to fame enters the Art Students' League at 215 West Fifty-seventh Street it is a sacred rule that he cannot bs admitted to the inner circle until he has propitiated ths "gods" thereof. The propitiation costs whatever the new student can afford toward reaching the hearts of the "gods" through their mouths.

Last night in the workroom of ths Art Students' League, on ths top floor of the building, forty aspiring mortals entertained 100 "gods." Murger and Du Maurier may have written all there is to be said, but a veracious, though humhle, report is due thoss cynics who declare that Bohemianism is dead and that Nsw York City has not a Quartier Latin.

The workroom of the Students' League is a long chamber, with skylght overhead. On every available placs on the walls somebody has wlped his hrushes; over this another has stamped his soul in a Phryne, a Bacchus, a monk, an outburst of sudden poesy or a cynicism.

Here are names that were then merely a string of letters, hut are now names in ths sense of greatness. Across a sacred space of whitewashed wall and signed hy "Cox"—Kenyon Cox—appear the lines, swept with a brush:

Work thou for pleasure—paint, or sing or carve,
The thing thou lovest though the body starve.
Who works for glory misses oft the goal;
Who works for money, coins his very soul.
Work for the work's sake then, and it may be
That these things may be added unto thee.

In another part of the walls appears a line of bare footsteps receding into nothing—tbe charcoaled thought of a pessimist, who saw the students march from ambition to obscurity.

I am a peevish student, I.
My star has gone from yonder sky.
I think it went so high at first
That it just went and gone and BUST!

The spattered easels, palettes, tables, and chairs were piled recklessly to one side of the room. At 7:30 a delegation of students marched to the kitchen, in the basement, where "Carrie the Cook" delivered over viands worth $75. At ths same time "Old John" Miller, the janitor, shouldered a keg of beer. Then ths whole procession filed solemnly up to the workroom.

"Here," said Brother Teague, monitor of the evening lifs class, best known as "The Owls," "are $75 worth of eats and drinks, hy the consumption of which the newcomers are brought to see the light."

The green students started to applaud. A horrified "hush!" came from the veterans. Brother Teague—they were all brothers—advanced to the beer keg, arranged the spigot, hroached the cask, and handed the first glass (with a sandwich) to Instructor George B. Bridgeman.

As he drank, a roar went up; chairs were seized and smashed against the walls, and veterans jumped on those that were only split, and—the initiation of the green students had begun.

There was an attack upon the "eats and drinks." Carrie, the Cook, fat and forty-three, came in, all aheam and beaming.

"The Slob," "The Disgruntled," and "The Squid"—veterans all—caught sight of her.

"Carrie!" was the roar. "She's all right. Who's all right? Why, Carrie! Who's Carrie?

First in peace, first in war,
First in the heart of the evening life.

Then in the arms of a slender student, Carrie, already described, waltzed a turn of the room amid shrisks and the smashing of chair legs.

After that it was a wild medley. Brother "Squid" played Rubinstein at the piano (specially imported) in a far corner, while Brother Smith, commonly called "The Bat," roared "Cascy" from a model's pedestal on which were painted the worós:

FAKIRS' EXHIBIT.
SHOW NOW GOING ON.

The green student who had contributed the first $2 to the feast was elevated to the pedestal and promptly canonized. He tried to speak, hut a dozen hands, cach with a steln, reached up—and he fell.

Brother Williams here made a gravs mistake. In the cellar he found a keg which he said contained hard cider. There was a rush. Brother Williams hroached it and said the "cider" didn't taste like what mother used to make. Then "Old John" appeared and threw up his hands in horror. Brother Williams had hroached a cask of disinfectant. But he suffered no ill effects.

Instructor Bridgeman, who had taken an active part in the festivities, then made a speech. With the assistance of a student, who played slow, sad music, he imitated in French a "barker" before a Parisian circus.

"Entrez, Messieurs et Mesdames, entrez!" he howled, while the students yelled and banged the floor, walls, and tables with tin pans.

At 11 P. M. the students declared they were only just heginning. The reporters were hoisted on chairs and threatened with a fearful end unless "speeches" were forthcoming. Carrie the Cook was brought in again by a delegation and photographed with the students.

Carrie and "Old John" and Instructor Bridgeman sat in the middle, side hy side, each with a crown of sandwiches.

"This is art," said a Brother, as the public view of the exhibition ended.

WOMAN IN FEAR OF LIFE FLEES CHINATOWN HOME

American Wife of Tom Lee's Aide Tells of Unreported Murders.

KNOWS THE TONGS' SECRETS

Mrs. Sam Yoon Sing Hurries to Relatives in West Virginia on Warning of Friends.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Sam Yoon Sing, white wife of a New York Chinaman, who passed through Washington to-day on her way to Littleton, West Va., says she is fleeing from Highbinders in fear of heing killed if shs stayed in New York.

Littleton was her home before she went to New York, and her maiden name was Lucy Rosehury. She is about 25 years old, intelligent, and fairly good looking. Sing, a cigar dealer at 18 Mott Street, she says, is a first lieutenant of Tom Lec, the Mayor of Chinatown. Her story follows:

"I can speak Chinese like a native, and consequently cams in possession of many secrsts of the Highbinders and other organizations of the Celestials in New York.

"It is because of my knowledge of the Chinese language and of these secrets that I was compelled to fly from that city, and I determined to return to my people in West Virginia, where I feel that I will be safe. I know that should I return to New York my life would not he worth a pin, and I was advised by the wife of a friendly Chinaman to get away from there as soon as possihle, which I did.

"You may not believe it, but I have seen the white wives of Chinamen who knew too much killed and their bodies cut up and sent away.

"I have seen four American women, all wives of Chinamen, disposed of. One was known as 'Sheeny Annie.' The Chinamen gave it out that she had gone to Boston after her disappearance. But I know that she had been murdered and her hody hurled either in the backyard or the rear hallway of a Mott Street house, No. 16, I believe. The body afterward was taken up and sent hy express to Chicago.

"Others who were done away with were a girl they called 'Crazy Mamie' and another known as 'Hockway Mary.' These girls were heard crying and screaming and that was the last ever heard of them.

"The Chinamen who are members of the Highhinder Society boast that they fool the police because, as they say, 'Chinamen never talkee.' It is because their American wives can talk both Chinese and English and will talk if occasion demands, that they are murdered and their bodies disposed of in such manner that the perpetrators of the crimes are never brought to justice."

The young woman said that in addition to the American women of whom she spoke she knew of a Japanese woman from San Francisco who had married a New York Chinaman and had been killed. The Highbinders, she said, employed Chinese detectives to watch the suspected persons and the police.

The warning she received to leave New York, she said, came from the white wife of a Chinaman. This woman told her that some of the Highbinder leaders had been to see her husband about putting Mrs. Sing out of the way.

Mrs. Sing, on receiving the warning, told her husband she was going to a store to get some provisions. Going out in her ordinary street clothes, she took the first southbound train.

She said that Emma Wing, the white wife of Willie Wing, had heen sent to Hongkong for knowing too much about Mott and Bayard Streets, and was not allowed to comc back.

The headquarters of the On Leong Tongs is in the cigar store of Sam Yoon Sing. Tom Lee's first lieutenant, at 18 Mott Street. Sing was behind the counter last night. He speaks English hetter than most Chinamen. He said:

"When my wife told ms that she feared she would be murdered, I hegan to think that the trouhle in Chinatown had unhalanced her mind and I told her so. She replied that she was going to take her money out of the Bowery Savings Bank and go back to her home in the South. She promised to write to me, but as yet I have received no lstter from her.

"Why do you come here to inquire about her? Has sbe heen killed? My reason for thinking that she might have heen murdered was that she had about $200 with her when she left New York.

"I was one of the men who was arrested during ths trouble here in Chinatown, and my wife was greatly worried about that. When the detective came to my place my wife almost collapsed. Then she said she was afraid she might he killed in the feud. I told her that if she wanted to go back to her folks she could. That night, Thursday night last week, she started away, and I have not heard from her since. I don't believe any of the Chinamen down here would kill her."

McCaddon Again Remanded.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—At the request of the French authorities, Joseph T. McCaddon, the American showman who was arrested at Southampton Sept. 30 on the charge of frauduient bankruptcy, was again remanded for a week at Bow Street Police Court to-day. Counsel for the defense protested against the long delay in securing evidence, which, the warrant on which McCaddon was arrested stated, the prosecution had already secured.

ANTI-M'CURDY TRUSTEES PUSHING INVESTIGATION

Surprised the Mutual's President with Their Resolution.

HIS SPEECH NOT DELIVERED

But He Had Intended to Tell the Board That Everything in the Company Would Be Attended To.

It appears now on unquestioned authority that the element in the Mutual Life Insurance Board of Trustees, which is behind the pending investigation is in a large measure admittedly hostile to President McCurdy and his associates as the result of the revelations that have been made to the Armstrong insurance investigating committee.

It was learned yesterday that when these revelations began to come out the first impulse of several of the men who now stand sponsors for the investigation by the Trustees was to resign from the Mutual's board. They took counsel with one another and with many of their business associates who were not in any way connected with Mutual affairs, and the result was a determination to face their responsibility as Trustees, to ascertain in detail the state of affairs that has existed in the company without their knowledge, and then to insist on stringent measures to clear up the Mutual.

Thus the programme was laid out for Thursday's meeting of the board, but at the same time it now appears, President McCurdy was laying out a programme of his own for that gathering. This, as he communicated it to some of his friends, was to include a speech by himself concerning the legislative investigation and the Mutual share of it. It was Mr. McCurdy's intention, according to those who were apprised of it in advance, to admit that some slight cause for criticism had been discovered which had not come to his attention in the performance of the President's arduous duties. They also say he intended to assure the Trustees that these minor matters would be attended to and that the business of the Mutual would not be disturbed in any essential particular by the agitation accompanying the investigation.

President McCurdy, however, was destined to be surprised. Some short time before the meeting—whether it was a matter of days or hours does not appear—he was informed that his Trustees had a resolution which they proposed to put through the meeting calling for an investigation by a committee of the board. Mr. McCurdy expressed great surprise at this, for the usages of the Mutual's Board of Trustees have been such in the past that any programme laid out by the President of the company has habitually gone through without substantial opposition. President McCurdy, indeed, on the witness stand before the Armstrong committee, testified that in the Finance Committee of the Mutual action had always been taken unanimously. Furthermore, he frequently referred in his testimony to "my Trustees" just as he said "my actuary" and "my medical examiner."

Despite Mr. McCurdy's surprise, however, the information was conveyed to him that the resolution would be introduced, and he thereupon had the choice submitted to him of introducing it himself or having somebody else introduce it. The official report of the meeting at which the resolution was adopted was authority for the statement that President McCurdy introduced the resolution.

President McCurdy met a group of reporters in the corridors of the Mutual Building yesterday and was asked by them if he had anything to say about the pending investigation.

"Nothing at all; nothing at all," he said, and he waved the reporters away and rushed into an elevator. An effort was made also to see him at the Vice President's office—the exact location of his own office being still a mystery—but it was said that Mr. McCurdy would see no one.

Many of the Mutual's Trustees regret keenly that Effingham B. Morris of Philadelphia feels unable to serve on the investigating committee. Mr. Morris's position of complete detachment from the affairs which will necessarily be under investigation and his high standing in the financial community of Philadelphia made him, in their view, a particularly desirable member of that body. The committee has power, however, to fill vacancies in its membership or to add to its numbers, and it is not expected that there will be substantial difficulty in getting a good man for Mr. Morris's place. The name of H. McK. Twombly was among those mentioned yesterday in connection with the vacancy. No action, however, will be taken until next week, when William H. Truesdale, President of the Lackawanna Railroad, who is expected to be Chairman of the committee, will return to the city.

Soon after the Armstrong committee reconvenes, George G. Haven will have an opportunity to go on the stand to correct the impression conveyed by President McCurdy's account of the meeting at which his salary was raised to $150,000 a year, that Mr. Haven was a member of the Salary Committee and persuaded Mr. McCurdy to accept the advance. Mr. McCurdy testified in detail that he met the members of the Salary Committee, who, he said, were Mr. Haven, George F. Baker, and A. D. Juilliard, and that they requested him to leave the room while his own salary was under discussion, announcing on his return that it would be $150,000 a year instead of $100,000 a year, as theretofore. Mr. Haven has informed counsel for the Armstrong committee that he was not a member of the Salary Committee at that time, and he is said to be anxious to know just who the individuals were who were responsible for the increase made in President McCurdy's salary.

The return of E. H. Harriman from his Western trip started comment in the financial district yesterday as to when he would be called before the Armstrong committee. It is understood that Mr. Harriman's testimony has always been considered necessary in connection with the Equitable Life Insurance Society's affairs, and that this idea is still entertained by the Armstrong committee and its counsel. No date has been set for Mr. Harriman's appearance, as it has not been determined whether he will be put on the stand before Mr. Hyde testifies or afterward. Mr. Harriman told reporters who went to see him yesterday that he had not been subpoenaed, but could be at any time.

John R. Hegeman, President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, will be the first witness before the committee when it reconvenes.

COMSTOCK ON A RAID.

Finds Some Postcards That Suit Him and Makes Three Arrests.

Anthony Comstock, the head of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, went to a stationery and novelty store in Broadway, near Thirty-seventh Street, yesterday afternoon and caused the arrest of William Schiessinger, the proprietor, his wife, and his daughter Leah, who is 21 years old, for selling improper postcards.

Mr. Comstock went as far as the door of the store with Special Agent Bamburger and Patrolman Kidney, who are known as the "naughty picture squad," and who had got warrants from Magistrate Mayo. Leaving the two outside, Mr. Comstock went in and told Miss Schiessinger that eh wanted some postcards, "the best you've got."

Miss Schiessinger called her mother, who soon selected a picture card that met with Mr. Comstock's requirement. He picked out two more and then asked the price of the three.

"The set will cost you 80 cents," said Mrs. Schiessinger.

"Eighty cents!" exclaimed Mr. Comstock. "That's a pretty steep price."

"Well, you see," said Mrs. Schiessinger, "since Anthony Comstock has been running around pinching pictures the prices have gone up, especially the good ones."

Just then Mr. Schiessinger walked in. He recognized the customer at a glance.

"What are you doing here?" he demanded.

"I have just called," said Mr. Comstock, "with warrants for the arrest of you and your wife and for the young lady."

The Schlessingers were taken to the Jefferson Market Court, where they were paroled for examination on Monday.

JOZSI KOPPAY HERE TO PAINT ROOSEVELTS

Hungarian Artist Hopes to Win the President's Consent.

HE DISLIKES ADVERTISING

Wouldn't Have Come If He Had Known What a Sea Trip Meant, but Likes the Country.

Jozsi Koppay, the Hungarian portrait painter, who arrived from Vienna on the Deutschland, brings with him a letter of introduction to the President. After introducing M. Koppay as the "foremost portrait painter in Europe," the letter expresses the hope that either Mr. or Mrs. Roosevelt will favor the artist with a sitting.

After exhibiting some pictures he has with him on Nov. 6 in New York, the artist will go to Washington. He has letters of introduction to the Austrian and German Ambassadors. M. Koppay took particular pains to avoid reporters on his arrival here, saying he had a dread of being advertised. He prefers to be known through his pictures only.

"I shall be here five months, and then I shall never come back," he said, "because if I had realized what a dreadful thing a sea voyage is, I should not have come at all."

The painter is a slender, dark-eyed, dapper little man. He persists in calling himself an old man (though he is only forty-six) with a charmingly contradictory sigh.

"You will paint Miss Roosevelt's portrait?"

"I should be honored to do so, but my visit is principally one of curiosity to see this great country, and to have the privilege of meeting the President, to whom I have a letter of introduction.

"Already I have written to my friends and my wife in Europe that they must certainly come over and see this America once," he continued. "I tell them that this is the country of the future, here the millennium will be achieved."

Besides the sketch of a portrait made four years ago of the Czarina, in which she looks amazingly young and happy, M. Koppay has brought with him some sketches in oil of the Princes and Kings one reads of daily, and the pretty women that are famous in the European Courts. He has taken a little studio in Forty-fourth Street temporarily, but will travel a good deal during his stay in America.

In his collection is an old painting evidently by a master.

"It may be a Rembrandt, it may be a Tietjens; I don't care who the painter was, it is a wonderful picture," he said. "Who painted it does not matter to me; there it is, a beautiful example, an inspiration I shall not part with as long as I live."

Woman Hurt; Motorist Escapes.

NUTLEY, N. J., Oct. 27.—Mrs. George MacKnow of Passaic Avenue was struck by an automobile and severely injured while crossing Main Avenue at Washington Place, Passaic, this afternoon. The chauffeur put on speed and escaped. A crowd gave pursuit and got the number as either 12,072 or 2,072. An effort will be made to find the owner of the machine.

DRAGS POLICEMAN 3 BLOCKS.

Runaway Pulls Him from His Wheel in Fifth Avenue—Woman Hurt.

Bicycle Policeman Eugene O'Sullivan had a chance to show his mettle yesterday. While he was riding leisurely down Fifth Avenue near Eighty-fifth Street he heard a clatter and looked behind him. What he saw was a runaway horse hitched to a runabout coming toward him at full speed. In the vehicle were a man and a woman. He was tugging at the reins and she was screaming at the top of her voice.

"Save us," she cried, "or we'll be killed."

O'Sullivan sent his wheel forward with a jump, and as the horse passed he grabbed its bridle. The runaway pulled the policeman off of his wheel and dragged him three blocks. At Eighty-second Street the horse ran into a truck. O'Sullivan fell under the horse, and the woman in the runabout was thrown out, and fell beside him.

She was badly bruised, and had a rib broken. To the police she said she was Mrs. Elizabeth Randolph of 215 East Eighty-ninth Street. O'Sullivan's right wrist was broken, and he was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital. Mrs. Randolph was taken to her home by her companion, Louis Reinach of 215 East Eighty-ninth Street.

FIRE WRECKS NEW FLAT.

Charcoal from Plumber's Furnace Started It—Workmen Had to Run.

Burning charcoal from a plumber's furnace set fire to and damaged yesterday to the extent of $20,000 the six-story apartment house in course of construction at 148th Street and Broadway.

The flames were discovered a few minutes after noon in the rear of the second floor and spread so rapidly, owing to the mass of shavings and rubbish, that many of the workmen, who were eating their luncheon found it difficult to reach the street in safety. Deputy Chief Binns found the entire upper part of the structure a mass of flames, and because of the high wind, which was scattering showers of sparks over Washington Heights, sent in a second alarm. After half an hour's stubborn fight the flames were under control, there being little left but the shell of the structure. Herman Fichter of 306 East 119th Street is the owner.

Fireman Edward Smith of Engine Company No. 6 was knocked down and cut by a falling beam.

UPHOLD TRUCK OWNERS.

Employers' Representatives in Conference Decide to Aid Open Shop.

The Presidents of eighteen employers' associations, representing a capital of over $150,000,000, indorsed the stand for the "open shop" taken by the New York Team Owners' Association at a conference yesterday in the Astor House. It is understood that whether the strike against Thomas Orr is lost or won the union proposes to order more individual strikes for the closed shop.

The meeting was called by the New York Team Owners' Association to ascertain the sentiment of the New York employers on its open shop fight.

Albert Foster, a strike sympathizer, was fined $10 in Jefferson Market Court yesterday for assaulting a new driver named Schultz.

ROAD BUILDING RIVALRY AHEAD, SAYS HARRIMAN

Union Pacific in the Best Position, He Adds—Hill Amused.

LAUGHS AT CONTEST STORIES

"Glad Harriman's Feeling Good," He Adds—Waiting for Reary to Open Up a Baffin's Bay Route.

E. H. Harriman, just returned from his trip to the Far East, expressed the opinion yesterday that this country is likely to experience a period of competitive railroad building. James J. Hill, who also returned to his office yesterday after an extended visit to the Pacific Coast, took exception to this. He said, at least, that that view of the situation had never presented itself to him.

Wall Street was more than usually interested yesterday in the return of these two men, the leading spirits in the rival railway systems of the Northwest. Reports had been current of a renewal of the struggle between the Hill and Harriman lines and of the probability of very sharp competition between the two systems. Word had come by telegraph that the Union Pacific had taken out an injunction against the Burlington, which was attempting to build a new line along the North Platte River, and also that a counter-injunction had been obtained by the Burlington.

Both Mr. Hill and Mr. Harriman made light of the legal struggle between the two companies. Mr. Hill, in fact, declared he had no knowledge that an injunction had been taken out by either side. The matter was an unimportant one, he said, and not capable of being made a serious point of issue between his lines and the Union Pacific.

Mr. Harriman's statement in regard to the probability of competitive railroad building was made in an interview at the Union Pacific offices in the Equitable Building yesterday afternoon. In reply to a question concerning the general railroad situation in the Northwest he said:

"I think we are apt to run into an era of competitive railroad building, just as we have passed through an era of competitive railroad buying. In any event, the Union Pacific is in the best position of any railroad west of the Missouri River. It has nothing to fear, nor does it care."

Concerning the contest between the Burlington and the Union Pacific in the North Platte River territory, Mr. Harriman said:

"We are building a line in the North Platte region, and an attempt has been made to stop us, but we secured an injunction against those seeking to prevent our construction. The matter, however, is a very small one and of merely local importance. It is without significance."

James J. Hill, told of Mr. Harriman's view that the Union Pacific was in the best position of any road west of the Missouri, contented himself with this reply:

"Oh, yes, doubtless. Our roads are cripples and about to go out of business." To this he added the remark: "I am glad, though, that Mr. Harriman is feeling so good."

Asked if he agreed with Mr. Harriman's statement that an era of competitive railroad building was approaching, Mr. Hill said, making his reply carefully:

"That view of the situation has not presented itself to me."

In regard to the Burlington's extension along the North Platte, Mr. Hill said that it was doubtless intended to shorten the distance from points on the division of the road running southward of the North Platte River and the Burlington's line to the northward running through Northport, Neb. Mr. Hill indicated on the map of the road that the new line would probably run from Dickens to Northport. The territory was large, he said, and if the Union Pacific cared to build a line there also there would be plenty of room for both, he thought.

He said emphatically that the contest in that section could not be magnified into a general struggle between the Union Pacific and the Hill lines.

"There is no struggle," he said, "nothing of that kind. All that is untrue."

Mr. Hill also denied that the Burlington was to build to Salt Lake City.

"Three-quarters of all the railroad extension stories," he said, "are hot air. The Salt Lake City extension is one of the fables."

There was a report that the Burlington planned to extend westward at the rate of about 200 miles a year. In regard to this Mr. Hill said:

"I am a Director of the Burlington, and I know of no such plan having come up."

In reply to an inquiry concerning the specific purposes for which the proceeds of the recently announced issue of $25,000,000 of stock by the Great Northern is to be used, Mr. Hill said that was a matter for the Board of Directors of that road to announce. The interest of the public at large, he said, was not sufficient to call for a general announcement of the plans of the management of the road.

Mr. Hill was inclined to meet facetiously the inquiries in regard to the extension of the Great Northern to Winnipeg, in Canada. He was asked if it was true that Great Northern interests had been buying land for a terminal at Winnipeg and intended building a line to that point.

"We will do that," Mr. Hill replied, "when Peary has discovered a free passage. Then, with the aid of pontoons, we will build a line by way of Baffin's Bay. The climate in that country is splendid. Ten months of Winter and two of Autumn. The ties there would last for a hundred years."

One of the reporters present asked Mr. Hill whether, in view of those conditions, he could not use ties made of ice. He was disinclined to give his approval offhand to such an innovation in railroad building. All he said for publication was, "Well, I had not thought of that."

Besides expressing his views in regard to the railroad situation, Mr. Harriman said yesterday that conditions throughout the country were never better. Referring to his visit to the Far East, Mr. Harriman repeated what he had said at various Western points in regard to the enterprise of the Japanese, his conviction that China would open up, and his belief that in commerce on the Pacific America would have either to compete with or co-operate with Japan.

INVENTOR MARCONI HERE.

Says the New Cunarders Will Have Improved Wireless Apparatus.

William Marconi arrived here on London last evening on the Cunard liner Lucania to consult his lawyers about a patent suit in which his wireless telegraph invention is concerned. He expects to return to England in a week.

The inventor relieved the monotony of an uneventful trip by taking personal supervision of the wireless apparatus aboard. On Tuesday, when the liner was nearly in midocean, messages were received on the Lucania from England and America at the same time.

"The most important thing I have to tell you," said Mr. Marconi, "is that we propose soon to install long-distance transmitting machines on the twenty-five knot Cunarders now being built. That is something that has not been done before—the transmitting of long-distance messages on shipboard. The instruments will cost $25,000 each.

"We propose to establish in the near future a commercial system between England and Canada."

The only person at the pier to meet Mr. Marconi was William Walter Bradfield, his chief engineer here. Mr. Bradfield will go to Ireland soon to assist in developing the wireless system between that country and England.

The fact that Mr. Marconi was aboard was evident from the ship's log, which showed that the Lucania was in wireless communication with more ships than any other liner has ever been on a single voyage.

Other passengers on the Lucania were Frank Parker Aborn, Robert Atkinson, G. A. Barclay, Capt. H. M. Benson, George M. Booth, Cedric Chivers, Ernest H. Every, Jacob H. Haffner, Charles H. Goschen, Jr., Leopold Hufford, Jr., John H. McFadden, D. H. Moffatt, Marcus Mustorgi, A. F. Phelps, Walter Rimington, R. S. Sale, James D. Sargent, C. E. Strome, J. H. Strong, William F. Weber, and Philip Stern.

DR. VON NOORDEN FINDS AMERICA PROGRESSIVE

Noted German Praises Our Hospitals and Medical Schools.

CRITICISES RESEARCH WORK

This and Practical Bedside Teaching, He Thinks, Are Hampered by the Construction of the Buildings.

Prof. Carl von Noorden, physician in chief to the City Hospital at Frankfort-on-the-Main, and the most noted authority on tissue changes as manifested in the internal organs, returned to this city early yesterday after a two weeks' tour of the leading medical centres of the country. Before leaving New York on his trip, on which he was accompanied by Mrs. von Noorden, Dr. von Noorden had delivered six lectures on diabetes, its pathological chemistry and treatment, as a part of the course known as the Herter Lectures at Bellevue Hospital Medical College.

Dr. von Noorden, who is staying at the Gotham, told a TIMES reporter yesterday some of his impressions of the United States, its people, and its institutions.

"Of course," he said, "my chief interest naturally centres in matters relating to my own profession and the members of it I have met here, many of whom I had already known during their Summer visits to the hospital at Frankfort. On my trip I examined the hospitals and colleges in Chicago, Washington, Baltimore, and Philadelphia, delivered lectures in them, and assisted at clinics. I met with the warmest welcome everywhere, and both Mrs. von Noorden and myself are extremely grateful.

"But after all I must confess the greatness of the country impressed me more than I could ever have imagined it would. I found everything on a scale much grander than I had anticipated. I am so delighted to see the progress and the intense desire for progress on every hand. This intensity seems to be incorporated in every one here; not only have I observed it in the members of my own profession, but in all others. It has impressed me very much indeed.

"After lecturing before the Harvey Society on Oct. 14, we went to Niagara and spent a day there. The grandeur of the spectacle amazed me, as it does every visitor.

"Then we went to Chicago, where I was very cordially received by the medical men. Both the Chicago Medical Association and the German Medical Society gave receptions for me. I delivered two lectures there, one on gout and the other on Bright's disease. I was sorry not to have seen more of Chicago, but my programme was already too big for the limited time at my disposal.

"I visited the great Armour plant, and was especially interested in the chemical preparations. I mean the dietetic food preparations, which, in my opinion, are excellent.

"We visited Pittsburg next, and I spent two days with friends, taking a rest, which I assure you was much needed after four days in Chicago. Then we went to Washington, which I fully believe to be one of the most wonderful new cities of the world. Physicians from cities in Virginia and Baltimore visited me there. I was sorry I couldn't see more of the National Capital, but a Johns Hopkins man dragged me off to Baltimore to see the medical colleges.

"I do not regret it. I got a full impression of the excellent scientific work that is being done there. I observed the same thing in Philadelphia. Medical education is progressing here in an extremely rapid way. The combination of theoretical education, demonstrations and the practical work that makes up the medical student's course during the first two or three years, is admirable. It is much more extensive than we can give our young men in Europe. It augurs well for the future.

"I met with the same kind reception in Philadelphia as elsewhere. There was almost too much in the line of receptions and banquets; they nearly killed me.

"I visited the truly wonderful medical laboratory of the University of Pennsylvania. I never saw an institution with such magnificent teaching facilities. The arrangements there indicate great progress; the methods are excellent. I assisted at some clinics and delivered some lectures, and then last night we came here.

"Naturally, when I compare these institutions with ours in Germany, I find some things to criticise. I have received the general impression that the theoretical education here is excellent, but the research work in the clinics and the bedside teaching is hampered. This is not the fault of the physicians, but because of the construction of the hospitals. It is difficult to combine hospital and laboratory work so that the one properly influences the other. Improvements are beginning however, and new and great means of overcoming these difficulties can be brought into play.

"I have now been physician in chief to the City Hospital at Frankfort-on-the-Main for more than eleven years. Post-graduate teaching only is given there. I have combined the laboratory and hospital work in a special manner, which I think greatly modifies the conditions I have spoken of as existing in American institutions. I have devoted years to the solution of the problem. I have a private clinic there, and every Summer many Americans, both members of my profession and patients, visit the hospital.

"I believe that there are too many small colleges and universities in this country. I think if they were combined into a few, better and more concentrated work could be done.

"The visiting physicians to the hospitals are changed too often. It is bad for progress and research work. The hospitals themselves are new and excellent. I intend later, however, to write more fully my impressions in some medical journal.

"I shall remain here twelve days to rest and see New York, for I haven't had a chance to see your city yet. We will sail on Nov. 7 on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse."

Dr. von Noorden will deliver a lecture before the Metropolitan Medical Association on Oct. 31. His six lectures in the Herter course, published in book form, are out to-day.

Alfred J. Pitkin, President of the American Locomotive Company, is not severely ill. He has been working too hard and is going to take a rest. Instead of going out of town to some health resort, he will take life easy for a while in his home in Riverside Drive.

"Mr. Ritkin," said the company's secretary yesterday, "has been trying to take care of his work and his cold at the same time. There is nothing serious the matter with him, but he has decided to pay more attention to his cold and get it well. He will be back at work in a week or two."

PATRICK LOSES APPEAL; TO TRY FEDERAL COURT

D. B. Hill to Put Question of Gray's Action to Supreme Bench.

CULLEN CENSURES HIS DELAY

Objection Should Not Have Been Withheld, Chief Justice Declares, Until After Decision Was Unfavorable.

ALBANY, Oct. 27.—The Court of Appeals this afternoon denied the motion for a reargument of the appeal of Albert T. Patrick from conviction for murder in the first degree and sentence to death for the killing in 1900 of W. M. Rice in New York City. The motion was made on Oct. 2 by ex-Senator David B. Hill.

Mr. Hill raised the point of the propriety of Judge John Clinton Gray, of the Court of Appeals, sitting in the case, in view of the fact that his son, Henry G. Gray, had participated as Assistant District Attorney in the prosecution of Patrick.

Mr. Hill said late this afternoon that he hoped to carry the Patrick case to the United States Supreme Court. His statement follows:

"Possibly I ought not to feel disappointed that the Court of Appeals has denied a motion for a re-argument of this case. That court has granted but one motion for a re-argument in either a civil or criminal case in five years. The court evidently proceeds upon the assumption that it never makes mistakes. There has been no change of opinion on the part of any of the seven Judges. The court still stands four for an affirmance of the conviction, including the vote of Judge Gray, to three for a reversal of the conviction.

"The theory of the denial of the motion seems to be that a reargument would not change the result, as the court was irreconcilably divided on the question of the legality of the conviction, and would remain so. The conviction in New York City for forgery in the Abeel case was affirmed by the Court of Appeals last week, in which the court stood precisely as it stood in this case, viz., four for conviction to three for reversal, in which Judge Gray participated and gave the casting vote for the prosecution. One of the questions involved in that case was practically involved in the Patrick case.

"With all due respect to the learned Court of Appeals, I still insist that Judge Gray was disqualified from sitting in the Patrick case, and that our objection to his sitting was duly and reasonably taken. Whether Judge Gray's son participated in the 'preparation' of the appeal, neither the court nor defendant's counsel are presumed to have any actual knowledge, as that work is done in the District Attorney's office and not in open court, and it makes no difference with the question of legality or propriety presented, but the fact remains that he was and still is a Deputy Assistant District Attorney and appeared in the case against the defendant on the motion for a new trial for newly discovered evidence.

"The fact, if it be true, that 'many and great Judges have allowed their relatives to practice before them' in the past does not make the practice any the less unjustifiable either in law or otherwise. These and numerous Federal questions involved in this remarkable case the defense hope to present to the Supreme Court of the United States for final decision."

The opinion by Chief Judge Cullen holds that the propriety of Judge Gray's sitting was for him alone to decide, but adds:

"The objection is now presented not to Judge Gray alone, but to the whole court, and it is only just to our associates that we should express our views on the subject. Many and great Judges have allowed their relatives to practice before them; others have declined to hear cases in which near relatives appeared as counsel, but we have never heard of a Judge refusing to sit in any case because at some earlier period his relative had taken part in the legal proceedings in the cause. Mr. Gray, in no way, appeared, either in the preparation or in the argument of the appeal.

"While if Judge Gray had retired from the hearing of the appeal his associates would have respected his motives, at the same time they would have felt that delicacy had been indulged in to an excessive degree at their expense and that a burden which in the ordinary practice of the court would, in the first instance, have fallen upon him, had been rather unwarrantably imposed upon one of them. Counsel should not have awaited Judge Gray's action, and finding that action unfavorable, now take the objection.

"While in a capital case we would not hold an appellant to the rule, that the point overlooked must have been raised by counsel on the argument, it is just as true of such a case as of a civil case 'that there must at some point be an end of the litigation.'"

The Court of Appeals within a few days will assign a new date for the execution of the original sentence.

MENELEK'S MAN AT COLUMBIA.

El Hadji Pores Over Koran in Library —Amazed at Moving Building.

El Hadji Abdullahi Aly Sadik Pasha, Hakar of Harrar and envoy of Menelek, Negus of Abyssinia, visited Columbia University yesterday, to get an idea of Western educational methods. He was the guest of Prof. Richard Gotthell of the Department of Oriental Languages. The Pasha wore a frock coat and a red fez.

Prof. Gotthell, in showing him the library, handed him a Koran, which El Hadji seized and began reading very devoutly the famous Sura Kahf. He spent three-quarters of an hour at this, while the professor and his stenographer vainly tried to shut him off.

When the Abyssinian saw the workmen moving College Hall, he threw up his hands in amazement, exclaiming "Wallahi, Kullubum, Magganin!" He could not understand how a building could be moved entire.

EVEN MONEY ON JEROME.

When there is no electioneering purpose in view in "rigging the odds" on political candidates, the state of the betting on an election is a valuable indication of the result. The condition is not often fulfilled. But it is fulfilled in the canvass of Mr. JEROME. Betting on elections is one of the forms of gambling which the District Attorney is theoretically supposed to prosecute, and would practically do so, doubtless, if evidence were submitted to him, and if the game were worth the candle. The legal penalty of disfranchisement at the immediate election would probably, if enforced, reduce by a considerable percentage the registered vote. But this drastic process, besides being impracticable, would operate bi-laterally, and so nobody has an interest in setting the machinery of the law in motion in the case of those imprudent persons who "bet their sentiments." The present question is not of these. Neither is it of the persons who appear in the aleatory arena, a few days before election, with a "betting fund" contributed with the express purpose of making it appear that the candidate of the contributors to the fund has the better chance of election, and of so intimidating that curious but numerous variety of voter whose vote is assumed to be influenced by his desire to be on the winning side.

The Jerome fund has been contributed by persons whose only conceivable purpose in contributing was to secure an honest and courageous administration of the District Attorney's office, such as we have had under Mr. JEROME for three years. Nobody imagines that it includes any money destined to other than necessary and legitimate campaign expenses. Nobody imagines, in particular, that it includes or can include a betting fund, intended to influence directly the betting market, and indirectly the votes of those who are influenced by the state of the betting market. And yet, in the opinion of those mercenary and cold-blooded speculators who bet for the purpose of winning money, Mr. JEROME'S chances have advanced from the 100-to-1 against him which such speculators three weeks ago found normal to the even money which is now reported.

Which advance is, in the terms of the market, entirely "justified." The original offerers of a hundred to one, or ten to one, against him were without doubt influenced by the fact that he was nobody's candidate but his own and that of the people. He had no "organization" behind him, except, to be sure, that of the Citizens' Union, the existence of which, in municipal politics, would be completely justified if it had never done anything else than to supply an organization for a popular candidate who had been rejected by all the "regular" organizations. But the members of the Citizens' Union were and are a feeble folk, compared with the voters enrolled under one or another of the "regular" banners. Ten to one, or a hundred to one, (there really is not much difference,) may well have seemed not too long odds to put against so desperate a chance.

But things have been happening since these odds were confidently offered. By far the most important of the things has been the inspiring and "magnetic" canvass which Mr. JEROME has been making for himself and for all of us. And then, in the second place, there has been the "contributory negligence," and, still more, the contributory diligence, of the Tammany candidate, Mr. OSBORNE, who has succeeded in convincing his fellow-citizens that he was a mere and sheer Tammany candidate, and that there was no reason whatever why he should receive anything but the irreducible minimum of the "machine" or "brute" Tammany vote. There have been reasons to suppose that he would not receive even that. Nobody supposes that Mr. MURPHY is the boss of Tammany Hall because he has personally endeared himself to his official henchmen, the district leaders. He is the boss simply because the district leaders did not see their way to displacing him. Mr. JEROME has said in public that the majority of the district leaders were friendly if not favorable to him, and the statement has not been challenged by those concerned. He has further said in public that the Tammany candidate for Mayor pleaded with the Tammany boss to have him made the Tammany candidate for District Attorney. Neither has this statement been challenged with success, it appears that the quarrel, so far as Mr. JEROME'S candidacy is concerned, is not between him and "the organization," but within the organization, that it is a quarrel between the district leaders and the principal candidate on the one side and the precarious boss on the other. The argument from the power of the organization thus loses a large part of its force.

But this is not the whole case. The withdrawal of Judge FLAMMER from the Republican ticket leaves Mr. JEROME, so far as that action could do it, the candidate of the Republican organization. He is at any rate the candidate of the Republican candidate for Mayor, as he was the candidate of the Democratic candidate for Mayor. It is true that, according to what seems the better legal opinion, he cannot now be lawfully substituted for Judge FLAMMER as the Republican candidate, and that Judge FLAMMER has thus failed to give full effect to his excellent and public-spirited intention. It even appears that the only event that could have given effect to that would have been his own death. We do not in the least sympathize with, on the contrary we deprecate and denounce, the cynical suggestion that his withdrawal should have been accompanied by his suicide. This community has work for Judge FLAMMER to do yet, and is all the more disposed to intrust it to him by reason of his unselfish withdrawal in favor of the people's choice for District Attorney. But all these things, taken together, indicate that the gallant action of Mr. JEROME, in offering himself as a candidate, as his own man and the people's man, and as no other man's man, has been justified, and that "even money on JEROME" is as exact an expression of the chances as could be expected. It will be a disappointment to the majority of voters in the County of New York if it is not changed before election day to odds on JEROME.

BORROWING UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

From the point of view of the Russian Government and its needy Treasury, the strikers, Social Democrats, and other agitators have chosen the awkwardest possible moment for their demonstrations. Some of the chief bankers of the world have been in St. Petersburg during the past week conferring with Russian Treasury officers about the terms of the new loan, which it is now understood will involve the placing of $250,000,000 of Russian bonds. To negotiate this immense loan at a time when Russian railroads are paralyzed and half the empire seems to be aflame with sedition of one sort or another is about like trying to renew a lapsed fire insurance policy while the house is burning up.

The world's bankers and investors have cause enough to be worried about the Russian bonds they already hold without taking on any occasion for worry by further investment. If the autocracy should be overthrown by a revolution a great scaling down of the debt would be almost inevitable. It is becoming more and more evident that even though the present great uprising should be quelled the days of absolutism in Russia are numbered. Stability of the Russian institution can be secured only by changing its form from autocracy to a Constitutional Government.

Inasmuch as the holder of the bonds of a State desires nothing so much as the stability of that State's Government, the present goings on in Russia must of course deeply concern the negotiating bankers in St. Petersburg. A better opportunity for exerting a wholesome pressure to accomplish a desired reform probably never presented itself to a group of the world's great financiers. Reform your institutions or we take no bonds—that would be the blunt way of putting it. The bankers could indeed do the greatest possible service to Russia, and a service of undoubted value to other nations having dealings with Russia, if they should insist upon liberalizing reforms as a condition precedent to underwriting the loan. The imposing of such a condition would seem to be a matter of the most common prudence from the point of view of the bankers themselves. For instance, $20,000,000 of the new loan have been allotted to the United States. It is almost unimaginable that this investment market should exhibit any appetite for Russian bonds so long as the Government of Russia remains in its present unstable condition. The empire needs money—it must have money. It can get it only from the great bankers, who in turn must sell their bonds to the investing public. In the present crisis their influence, if wisely exerted, ought to be determining. They could secure at least a beginning of Constitutional organization.

MR. M'CLELLAN'S PROMISES.

There is sound sense and good counsel in ex-President CLEVELAND'S letter to Mayor MCCLELLAN. Mr. CLEVELAND confesses to a feeling of astonishment when he sees "the evidences of rank hysteria pervading a canvass which should especially be characterized by sober thoughtfulness." To this indictment we fear New Yorkers must plead guilty. Sober thoughtfulness is the one thing that has been conspicuous by its absence in the speeches made by a considerable number of candidates now before the people. There has been an unconscionable amount of hysteria about Mr. JEROME, who is a good man and ought to be re-elected as a matter of course without fuss or displays of passion. Mr. IVINS got a bit hysterical at the outset when he promised almost immediate municipal ownership of the gas works. Mr. HEARST'S campaign from top to bottom is pure hysteria; indeed, it would be impossible to advance or defend his peculiar principles by any other than hysterical methods. Sober thinking would demolish them in one evening.

Mr. MCCLELLAN'S campaign has been carried on in a decent, orderly, and dignified manner from the beginning. For that reason, among others, it appeals strongly to Mr. CLEVELAND. Mr. MCCLELLAN has appeared before the people not as a demagogue or as an adventurer, but as one of their servants, sensible of the great responsibility he bears, knowing very well the legitimate needs of the city and conscious of the limitations of his official powers. Moreover, Mr. MCCLELLAN has not cut loose from sound and well-tried economic principle, he has not abandoned the honest, conservative, seasoned convictions of his mind in order to take up crazy fads of yesterday. He has not thrown to the dogs the teaching of human reason and human experience. He does not promise 55-cent gas—nobody with the slightest sense of responsibility for his words would make any such pledge. He does not single out any class of the city's people and say to them, "If I am elected Mayor I will see to it that your annual incomes are increased," for he knows that the fulfillment of any promise of that kind would not only be beyond his power, but that if the promise were kept he would be guilty of an offense comparable to the misuse of life insurance funds for the gain of sons, sons-in-law, cousins, and friends. The wage of city employés is a question altogether of the value of the service, and that question is one which a man of soberness and conviction would not attempt to determine offhand upon the stump.

Mr. CLEVELAND declares that it is every good citizen's duty to strive against the tide of demagogic agitation that is now sweeping through the city. Mayor MCCLELLAN is doing more than anybody else to stay that tide. His speeches have been well calculated to enlist the attention and command the confidence of sane and sober men. For two years he has carried on the public business of the city under the eye of the people, and his administration has been so satisfactory as to increase their respect and confidence. He has proved himself to be able, he has shown himself to be upright. He has been fully alive to the interests of the city, and he has intelligently promoted the comfort and welfare of the people. Voters whose mental faculties and power of judgment have not been entirely annihilated by the prevailing hysteria know that Mr. MCCLELLAN will not mark the beginning of his second term by measures of revolution or of confiscation or of harebrained and dangerous innovation. He will be a Mayor like all of those under whom the city has prospered, and grown, a Mayor like Mr. GRACE, Mr. HEWITT, and Mr. Low, under whose administration property owners and citizens of all classes can sleep nights without disturbing dreams of Socialistic experiments announced for the next day.

These are among the reasons why Mr. MCCLELLAN is going to be re-elected by an impressive majority; it is for these reasons that voters who have been swept off their feet by the tide of hysteria are now recovering their breath and their senses and are coming in increasing numbers to the McClellan standard.

THE AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION.

To each voter in this State there will be handed on election day a ballot relating to seven proposed amendments to the Constitution as to the adoption of which severally he will be asked to answer "Yes" or "No."

The first relates to the debt limit of the City of New York and provides that in determining its borrowing capacity all bonds issued since Jan. 1, 1904, for purposes of water supply may be omitted. On this we advise all our readers to vote "Yes." Cities are limited in their debts to 10 per cent. of their assessed valuation in order to avoid all possible danger of borrowing more than the revenues from taxation can readily meet. Debt for water supply is not paid from ordinary taxation; it is met from special water rates, leaving the yield of ordinary assessed valuation entirely untouched, and that yield is and always will be ample for a debt one-tenth of the valuation. The present Constitution simply requires double security for the water debt and hampers the city as to needed improvements.

The second amendment abolishes the direct tax now required for payment of State indebtedness and permits the Legislature to direct its payment by indirect taxation. It is of small importance.

The third provides for a Justice of the Supreme Court for every 60,000 inhabitants in all the judicial districts except those of New York City, where only one is allowed for 80,000 inhabitants. It is a queer way of remedying the pressure of business here where it is the greatest.

The fourth amendment is unqualifiedly bad. It gives the Legislature power to fix hours and wages for all labor employed on public works directly or under contractors, a power that has been already limited and repudemned by the highest courts of the State not only as unconstitutional, but as opposed to public policy, invading private rights oppressive, and distinctly Socialistic in the worst sense. It is also opposed flatly to the principle of home rule and compels every community to pay the highest rates for the least service. It is an offensive form of class legislation, taxing the whole community for the benefit of a favored number. The amendment ought unquestionably to be defeated, and we strongly urge our readers to vote against it and to be sure to vote. This is the more necessary because the real object of the amendment is not revealed in the ballot, which on this point reads: "Shall the proposed amendment to Section 1 of Article XII. of the Constitution, relating to the organization of cities, be approved?" To this question it will be well to answer by putting a cross in the space marked "No."

The fifth amendment authorizes a debt of $50,000,000 for roads. It is approved by the automobilists and by the Good Roads Convention. If legislation under it were sensible and fair it would not be a bad thing, though its intention is to please the country districts offended by the canal amendment.

The sixth amendment authorizes the issue of certificates of indebtedness to run for fifty years instead of twenty, as now. Our opinion is that the present limit is long enough for that form of indebtedness. Debts for a longer term should be in bonds, and subject to the conditions attaching to a bonded debt.

The seventh amendment allows Justices of the Appellate Divisions to perform all duties of a Supreme Court Justice except in the one of the division to which they are assigned. Lawyers differ as to the advisability of the change.

If the people approve the first amendment and kill the fourth they will have little reason to regret it.

THE TASK OF SISYPHUS.

The railways are struggling with their impossible task of carrying forthwith the things shippers want carried. Only a few days ago we were remarking upon the Pennsylvania's allotting the largest known contract for rolling stock. Yesterday this was surpassed by the New York Central's award of contracts for $25,000,000 worth of cars. Of course there cannot be many of such record contracts, for there are not many railways capable of needing them in their business, or of paying the bills if the need for them existed. But many little roads are making contracts which are records for them individually, and in the aggregate the year's business of this sort will long stand unsurpassed.

The significance of these orders does not all lie upon the surface. Unparalleled activity in the iron and steel trade, great prosperity for the car supply concerns, and unusual activity in general trade are obvious at first glance. A moment's consideration shows that if the crop movement were all that embarrasses the railways it could be relieved by diverting the rolling stock from other uses. It is because they cannot be spared from the railways' general traffic that new stock is needed. And a moment's further thought points to great activity in ocean freights as a result of this tremendous overland movement. The logic is sustained by the facts. Old merchants can recall perhaps larger activity for short periods in selected trade, but taking one line with another, it may be doubted whether the aggregate of offerings for export was ever equaled, and ocean freights are booming as well as the railways' business.

Now everybody is blaming the railways for their shortsightedness. Why did not they foresee and prepare for this avalanche, and not deprive themselves and others of the profits of the boom? Wall Street needs to be reminded that only a little while ago it was declaring that the railways were overextending themselves, and making plans of extravagant dimensions. Credit was withheld, and railways could not spend because they could not borrow. Undeterred by such criticisms some railways even during the temporary depression did make forehanded provision, and one leading annual report this week showed expenditude of over a million dollars in excess of necessity spent on rolling stock at a time when traffic was rather lean in anticipation of exactly what has happened. Now what does sapient Wall Street do? It marks down the stock for the company's extravagance at a time when it has the cars and the traffic is rolling in in tidal waves. As a rule Wall Street buys when it should sell and sells when it should buy. That is how investors thrive, and speculators are wrong oftener than right.

The procession led by Mr. KOROBITSKI of several hundred citizens through the east side last evening, bearing scarlet banners and other Anarchistic devices emblazoned "HEARST und Freiheit!" "Hoch für HEARST!" "We want to divide everything," and singing the soul-stirring "Marseillaise," afforded a spectacle of peculiar interest to all judicious voters of this community.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Half a Loaf That May Be No Bread.

"Highly commendable" will probably be the general comment on the news that a special department of hygiene is to be established at West Point, with the object of giving to the cadets such knowledge of medicine and surgery as is required for the proper care of the men hereafter to be under their command. And of course the plan, abstractly considered, really is commendable; if judiciously carried out it would produce admirable results. Army officers, like everybody else, certainly ought to know as much about hygiene, for themselves and others, as they can learn without interference with their regular business, and there is not the slightest danger that they will learn too much. The reference to "medicine and surgery," however, is more than a little disquieting, because the relation of those arts to hygiene, while not remote, is not close enough to warrant the assumption that the authors and advocates of this plan are sympathetic with, as well as deeply versed in, advanced ideas about protecting and maintaining the health of an army. For this and some other reasons it is not entirely unfair to see in the establishment of the new department one of those half-measures to which the opponents of a change in old customs are so fond of resorting, when the demand for reform approaches the irresistible, in the hope that by granting something, or what looks like something, they may delay for a while the complete concession from which their indurated minds shrink with horror. The thing needed, and the thing which so many of the older officers in our army and others are opposing with all their large might, though very quietly, is a reform of the military medical service that will not only give the troops as many and as competent doctors as they need—to which the officers have no objection—but will also give those doctors both the rank and the authority which they require for the proper performance of their duties and the attainment of the best possible results. It is in the matter of authority that the real pinch comes. The old idea of an army surgeon is that of a doctor—any doctor will do—who putters around about as he pleases in time of peace, provided he doesn't make too much trouble for his betters, and who, in time of war, remains well in the rear and gives such care as he can to the sick and wounded soldiers sent back to him from the front. The new idea, which with much more convenience than accuracy may be called the Japanese idea, is vastly different—and vastly better in the judgment of everybody except the officers who only think of an army as something to fight with. That idea makes the members of the Medical Service close associates of the line officers at all times, with a deciding voice in many matters besides the treatment of disease and injury. What the West Pointers need is not so much knowledge of surgery and medicine, or even of hygiene, as it is of the importance of taking full advantage of the method that served the Japanese Army so well, and did it, too, without any interference whatever with the fighting efficiency of the Japanese Army—did it, indeed, with an enormous increase of that efficiency.

Times Square and the Subway.

Times Square, according to the Subway accounts, just made up for the first year of underground service, supplied the road with 5,000,000 passengers, and in amount of traffic led by a long distance all the other stations at which access can be obtained only to local trains. The 5,000,000 includes, of course, only the passengers who passed the ticket boxes to enter the cars, and as it is an entirely warrantable assumption that it would take another 5,000,000, or 10,000,000 in all, to enumerate the whole number of passengers using the Times Square station for both entering and quitting the trains, this enormous total gives, or begins to give, an idea of the activity which now daily centres in a locality that only a few years ago was distinctly one of the city's quieter parts, frequented by comparatively few except those who passed through it without a stop in getting back and forth between uptown and downtown. At present all of these millions, as well as perhaps as many more who come to and go from the immediate neighborhood of Times Square by other lines of transportation, resort to it for definite purposes of business or pleasure, and not only has it already become one of the city's most important centres of activity, but obviously its eminence as such has only begun and is sure rapidly and continuously to increase as the years go on.

New York Finds a Defender.

We were glad to receive and to print the letter in which "Justice" protested yesterday against the constant complaints about "New York manners," especially as illustrated in the divers varieties of street cars, and declared that her own experiences in these public vehicles had been proof that in them courtesy is the general rule and boorishness the exception. Well disposed as we are to believe as much good as we may of New York, we cannot but think that if "Justice" did not slightly exaggerate when she said that she "never" has to stand, and that some one "always" offers a seat, she must have been unusually fortunate in her choice of lines and of hours for travel, but we are quite sure that she approached the truth quite near enough for kindly and generous purposes, and much more closely than do those who are constantly howling that New York manners are peculiarly and preposterously bad. We half suspect, however, that when "Justice" described herself as "neither very young nor beautiful," she suggested a picture with the accuracy of which others would not agree, and that, at any rate, she manages by the help of an inner radiance to give to masculine observers the impression that she is of the women whom it is a pleasure as well as a duty to treat with gentle consideration. Such women are never the objects of discourtesy except as they are the victims of falling walls—by the accident of unseeing and unthinking circumstance. The women who do not command the ordinary, minor courtesies of life in all times and places where the display of such courtesies is practicable should intermit their lamentations at least long enough seriously to ask themselves if the failure is not due to some lack, obvious or subtle, in themselves.

Light in Street Signs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If possible will you ascertain the reason why the street corner signs along Columbus Avenue are not lighted at night? They were put up, I believe, during the last administration, and proved to be a great convenience both to pedestrians and street car passengers at night, but are practically useless now because they are not lighted. Whose fault is this?

Where B. W. B. Brown is Running.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent, "R. T.," is in error in saying that Benjamin W. B. Brown is the Republican candidate for Alderman in the Twenty-ninth Assembly District. Mr. Brown is the candidate in the Twenty-ninth Aldermanic, which is coterminous with the Twenty-seventh Assembly District. I live there, and I know.

JEROME.

More Words of Encouragement from Aroused Voters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

William Travers Jerome is the central figure of the present municipal campaign. Other questions pale before the issue of his re-election. His unimpeachable integrity is equaled only by his splendid courage. He has captured the hearts of the people, because he stands forth in simple righteousness and appeals to them directly to vindicate his honest purpose to serve them faithfully without fear or favor if he is re-elected.

Mr. Jerome has long since proved himself a terror to evildoers as District Attorney, and now, as the independent candidate for re-election, standing on his own platform, he proves himself the terror of the Prince of Good Ground and the leading lord of Tammany Hall.

"Where did he get it?" This is the slogan, the handwriting on the wall, the burning question for Charles F. Murphy to answer. Will Murphy answer it? Never! Why? Simply because he dare not.

Mr. Jerome is the Daniel of the present campaign. The mighty King reclines in splendid luxury, the cynosure of all eyes, surrounded by innumerable minions who hover around him craving for one glance of recognition, enraptured by his smile or cowering beneath his frown. All is magnificent revelry. Then suddenly the merriment ceases. Terror seizes the trembling multitude. There on the palace wall, in characters of living light, appears the fatal warning: "Where did he get it?"

The answer at the polls will be: "He got it square in the neck."

HENRY D. CLAPP.

New York, Oct. 27, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Everybody knows that the District Attorney's office affords all kinds of opportunities to get IT, and when Osborne said that Jerome was a fool if he didn't get IT it would follow that if Osborne gets a chance he would get IT. Otherwise he would be a self-convicted fool. In either case the decent people of New York ought to see to it that he is kept out of that office. Jerome can make even the Mayor do what is right, and that's what we want and need in this city. Down with the bosses!

G. H. GUDEFORD.

New York, Oct. 27, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times.

Three times three and a—NO "tiger!". Praise and thanks to Judge Flammer, the man who dared, the man who saw his duty and dared to do it; the "river which rose above its source"; the man who loved not "Caesar less, but Jerome more." I am a Democrat, Mr. Editor, proud to be such by inheritance, but I thank God, and I say it reverently, that I am not a Democrat of the stripe of Murphy, but I am of the brand of Grover Cleveland, Judge Jerome, and men of that school, and when the man of the hour, Judge Flammer, comes out into the open with a letter as appears in THE TIMES this morning, say, Mr. Editor, doesn't it make your blood sizzle? Again three times three for the man who has blazed the way—Charles A. Flammer.

JEROME AS A NATIONAL FIGURE.

His Fight Against the Party Machines Applauded Everywhere.

From The Copper Country Evening News.

The individual in the present New York municipal campaign who is attracting the most attention is William Travers Jerome, in his lone, rattling dash for re-election as District Attorney simply on his merits, unsupported by any political organization. He may accomplish what no other man in the metropolis could do, challenging as he has done all the political machines in the city.

From The Dallas (Texas) News.

The defeat of District Attorney Jerome of New York for re-election would show either that those in favor of reform in the metropolis are less numerous than those opposed to it, or else that many good men are bulldozed and buncoed by party bosses into voting against their own convictions.

From The Springfield Republican.

Mr. Flammer should have the entire credit of his withdrawal in favor of Mr. Jerome in the contest for the District Attorneyship. It is a curious case of a candidate winning public respect by immolating himself. Mr. Jerome's chances are now distinctly improved.

From The Hartford Evening Post.

It is now practically Jerome against Osborne, the Democratic nominee, and to the outsider it would look as though Mr. Jerome had a fair show to win.

From The New Haven Register.

People are growling and muttering because the spirit of graft is poisoning the body politic everywhere, and in their righteous indignation are asking for an opportunity to reveal the spirit of '76. Well, the chance is being given them, in the form of Jerome's protest against political graft.

From The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Jerome, in fact, is a sort of National hero. He is making a unique and strenuous personal fight, and he stands a good chance to win. The situation is without precedent and Jerome is in a class by himself. His election, resulting from an appeal to the independent masses, would be a spectacular triumph over organized and formidable opposition.

From The Minneapolis Journal.

Jerome's defeat could not hurt Jerome. It can and will be an irreparable damage to the reputation of New York.

Would Protect Electricity's Consumers

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a constant reader of your daily since its start almost, will you accord me a few lines to enlist your aid in procuring legislation to protect consumers of electric current for power? If I am correctly informed, there is no State or city inspection of meters; thus if a party is or thinks he is overcharged the company may, if it chooses, investigate itself, with a strong probability that the answer will not be in favor of the consumer. Thousands of your readers would thank you to agitate for official inspection.

Same Ticket for Subway and Elevated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why would it not be a good scheme for the Interborough Company to make the tickets of its systems, the Subway and elevated, interchangeable? I grant you to do this would make somewhat more clerical work for the company, but the convenience to the public is beyond estimation. Don't you think the matter is worth agitating?

Wise In His Generation.

From The Washington Star.

"What do you think posterity will say of you?" asked the indignant patriot.

"Because," answered Miss Cayenne, "it was the only way to keep the eldest child from playing the piano."

ANOTHER HEARST PROMISE?

Cabmen Think He'll Abolish Traffic Regulations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The manager of the cabstand at one of the large hotels is telling his patrons that all the cab drivers are going to vote for Hearst because he has promised, if elected, to "do away with the traffic regulations."

Up to the present time Hearst has promised indiscriminately to raise the pay of the street cleaners and various other classes of city employes, to remove the restrictions that have been placed upon the push-cart nuisance, to rectify the insurance evils, and, finally, in a speech on Thursday night, to resign and let Mr. Stokes be Mayor if he did not keep all the other promises that he had made. If there were any chance of Hearst, once elected, keeping this last-named promise, it might be worth while for somebody to make a catalogue of the others that he has made during his "hot-air" campaign.

But, seriously, if Hearst, in a cheap effort to enlist the cab drivers, is promising to do away with regulations that have proved their wisdom in the safeguarding of the lives of thousands of the people for whom he professes to care, it will be a good thing for decent folks to bear in mind on election day.

A HEARST ARGUMENT.

His Election, Thinks One, Would Check Corporate Control of Politics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After a careful perusal of your editorial on "Mayor McClellan's Strength," it appears to the writer that here are factors in evidence in this campaign never before so forcibly presented to the attention of the voter. A wave of sentiment is sweeping over the country against corrupt corporation control of our Municipal, State, and National Governments, the full extent of which cannot at present be gauged. The knowledge that colossal fortunes, consciously gaining in magnitude and with limitless possibilities for expansion under existing conditions, are debauching our Government through such machines as Tammany, causes apprehension at the inevitable consequences of the continuance of such conditions.

While personally in favor of Mr. Ivins, who apparently is a clean, independent man, unfettered by boss control, and while hoping almost against hope for his election, owing to the probability of his being "knifed" by the Republican machine I believe that between the remaining candidates the election of Mr. Hearst, with all his "yellow," would not prove a disaster, but would rather serve to awaken the predatory powers to their peril in persisting in their present course, especially if after spending, as they undoubtedly will, hundreds of thousands of dollars to buy votes for their candidate.

Thinks Comstock Right for Once.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For once Anthony Comstock is right. Mr. Daly has no right to compel his actors and actresses to commit to memory such stuff as Shaw has put into "Mrs. Warren's Profession," and if Mr. Comstock does not stop it, when he is the only one who has the power to stop it, then he is partaking criminis in the public defilement. The play is to be read, if at all, in camera. It should not be publicly presented. As for young Mr. Daly, in "John Bull's Other Island" his part makes him say that an Irishman is always eager to throw away reputation and emolument for a whim or a shadow. But who would have supposed he himself as a manager would illustrate the statement in his very next production?

Shaw and the Puritan Standard.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to commend your article in this morning's paper on Comstock and Shaw. It is really a comfort in these days when one is surely impressed with the words of another that "Mankind is broken loose from moral bands." We seem to have gotten so far and away from the Puritan standard of right that even if we know it we are afraid to assert it, as witnessed by the scenes in the late Convention of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, when Mr. Chew presented his resolutions. What a loss Mr. Shaw is to his native bogs!

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me the McCarren issue in Brooklyn in the coming election is being ignored. It is this: Will the Democrats steal the Republicans' thunder? In other words, will they stand Pat?

VERSES.

Suggested by the intermezzo music of Sir Henry Irving's production of "Henry VIII."

Torches without—and softly falling rain;
Within the palace, light and song, and dance.
The gallants bow; the ladies—beauteous train—
Advance, retreat, and bend with smiling glance,
While music fills each soul with soft delight,
And expectation waits—for the King comes to-night!

The viols croon and drone in tuneful strain,
As sweep the satins, and the velvets rare;
And jewels shine, like sunbeams after rain,
On matrons' coif, and maidens braided hair.
How smooth the measure runs, while glances stray
To the great doors through which the King must take his way!

Amids the throng, one holds her petty court;
Slender of throat and waist; a graceful maid.
Her young lips smile; she laughs with glee at nought;
Her charms by nature given—by French arts played.
She lifts her head—is there no thought of fear?
The doorway darkens; hats are doffed; the King is here!

"BIG TIM" SULLIVAN TO LEAVE THE BOWERY

And Reside in His Own Mansion, Off Riverside Drive.

BUYS A STANDARD OIL HOUSE

It Is 310 West 73d Street, and Has Cost Him $90,000—He'll Now Keep a Butler.

Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan, the original "Big Tim" of New York and "Dry Dollar" of Albany, is about to desert the Bowery and the east side, and reside—fashionable people all reside—near Riverside Drive. He will establish his new home there after Jan. 1.

To make his entry into the upper circles in befitting style Congressman Sullivan has purchased the house at 310 West Seventy-third Street, one of the handsomest residences in the Riverside section. It is two doors from the Drive. He will have as one of his nearest neighbors Charles M. Schwab, former President of the United States Steel Corporation, whose marble palace, directly across the street, is now nearing completion.

Mr. Sullivan purchased his new residence a little less than two week ago. At that time the purchase was reported as "for a client of Thomas L. Reynolds." It was made through Slawson & Hobbs, real estate agents. The name of the principal has been kept a profound secret. It should not have come out till after election.

The price paid for the mansion was $90,000. Title will pass to Mr. Sullivan on Dec. 14, giving the Congressman ample time to have his house warming with the dawn of the new year.

To be Schwab's Neighbor.

The house is occupied at present and has been for three years, by Richard C. Veit, Superintendent of the Foreign Department of the Standard Oil Company. He purchased it from George E. Fahys, the watch case manufacturer, who built it six years ago, at the time of the Riverside section boom. It was then considered, in the matter of appointments, one of the finest residences in the city. To-day, though so many magnificent mansions have been built in the meantime, it maintains its earlier reputation.

The house is built for entertaining on a large scale. It has a frontage of twenty-five feet, and is so constructed as almost to cover the lot, which has a depth of 102.2 feet. Only one house stands between it and Riverside Drive, and the front is built out in such manner that the front windows command the sweep of the drive and the river beyond. This view is all the finer from the fact that the position of Mr. Schwab's mansion opposite, permits an unobstructed view of the Hudson.

The house is constructed of white stone and light colonial brick, and contains sixteen rooms. Mr. Veit has in it to-day a fine library and a valuable collection of paintings, said to be one of the best private collections in the city. These, however, will not pass to the new owner, although it is contemplated that an arrangement will be made by which some of the elaborate furnishings and costly rugs will remain in the house when Mr. Sullivan takes possession.

The entrance is through a door of massive iron grille work into a fine entrance hall paneled in San Domingo mahogany and with ceiling beams of the same wood. Back of this are kitchen and pantries large enough to meet the wants of a good-sized hotel.

On the second floor in front is a library paneled and beamed in mahogany. Immense bookcases ready for the Congressman's extensive library, are built into the walls. This room takes up about half of the first living floor of the house facing out on Seventy-third Street and the drive. Back of this is a daintily furnished drawing room decorated in white. Beyond is the dining room, a circular apartment, wainscoted almost to the ceiling with beautifully grained mahogany relieved with Vernis-Martin panels. The rest of the floor is occupied by a serving room for the butler.

Above are three stories of sleeping rooms. There are eleven of these, all, except those occupied by the servants, decorated in the most artistic manner. Mr. Veit is giving up the house because his sons are at college, his daughter was married recently, and only himself and Mrs. Veit, with a corps of servants, remain to occupy it.

While Congressman Sullivan's new move will no doubt bring dismay to his thousands of friends on the Bowery, it is understood that he will desert them only in the sense of taking up a new abode. For many years he has lived at 38 East Fourth Street, but the exigencies of political life and the necessity of having a place to meet his host of constituents have forced him to maintain still another residence in the time-honored Occidental Hotel, at the Bowery and Broome Street.

It was said last night that, in spite of his long flight, "Tim" can still be the idol of his Bowery adherents, for there is nothing in the law that makes it incumbent upon a candidate for office, whether for Senate, Assembly, or Congress, to live in the district from which he is elected. If Mr. Sullivan still maintains a voting residence in the Occidental, as it is said he will, the odious charge of being a "carpet bagger" will fail of effect in his case.

At present "the Big Fellow," as he is affectionately called by his constituents, votes in the Sixth Assembly District, the Eleventh Senate District, and the Eighth Congressional District. Now he is to become a resident of the Nineteenth Assembly, the Seventeenth Senate, and the Fifteenth Congress Districts. His Assembly district leader, in a strong Republican district, will be James J. Hagan, ex-Warden of the Tombs.

Bought for Occupancy.

In the deal for the property it was distinctly stated that the house was being purchased for residence purposes, and would be so utilized as soon as the present occupant moved out, so that any question that this is a real estate speculation is eliminated. It was also said when the deal was made that the new owner contemplated entertaining extensively, and that one of the reasons for choosing the Veit house was because it afforded such opportunities.

Mr. Sullivan is a man of large wealth, the greater part of which he made in real estate speculations. He has been identified, openly or under cover, with many large deals in suburban real estate. In many of these Thomas L. Reynolds and the Congressman's nephew, Alderman Sullivan, "Little Tim," were associated with him.

Mr. Reynolds was recently the unsuccessful candidate for the leadership of the Twenty-seventh Assembly District, now presided over by James J. Martin. In that campaign Congressman Sullivan was one of Reynolds's stanchest supporters, but he lost nevertheless. Mr. Martin's chief backer was First Deputy Police Commissioner McAvoy.

Diplomatic Denial from "Little Tim."

"Little Tim" Sullivan is the avowed spokesman for "Big Tim" when the latter cannot be found, as was the case last night. THE TIMES reporter found the lesser Sullivan at the Sullivan clubhouse, 207 Bowery, and asked concerning the new move of his illustrious uncle. Said Alderman Sullivan impressively:

"Nothing to it."

And that was all he would say.

ASHAMED OF A UNIFORM.

Secretary Bonaparte Dismisses Employe for Affront to Sailor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Because he was ashamed of the United States uniform, an employe of the Norfolk Navy Yard has been dismissed from the service by Secretary Bonaparte.

The man agreed to lease two rooms of his house to a machinist's mate serving with the reserve torpedo flotilla. When the man turned up wearing his uniform as a petty officer, his landlord asked him to wear civilian clothes in future.

They had a dispute and the sailor promptly preferred charges. The landlord told the department that neither he nor his wife had any objection to the uniform, but prejudice existed among his neighbors, and if a uniform was seen in his house the family could not maintain its social position. Mr. Bonaparte would not accept the excuse.

"MUGSY."

And What He Did for a Starving Mother with "T'ree Kids."

"Step dis way, lady," said the grimy-faced little messenger holding open the door of the East 104th Street Police Station.

A woman, shabbily dressed, with a baby in her arms and two little ones toddling behind her, came in. All were crying save the messenger, whose face was grim with the shadow of responsibility. He gently closed the door, and, slewing his cap peak over his right eye, climbed the rail before the Sergeant's desk.

"Well?" said Sergt. McKeown.

"I dooes it out dis way," said the boy gravely. "Dis lady's f'm Bal'imore. Come in on de Pennsy dis mornin'. Her old man—meanin' de fambly main squeeze —was to hev met her. Didn't do it.

"Gent comes along while de kid was hollerin' and rings fer a messenger. Dat's me, now talkin'. He seys, seys he: 'Take dis here lady an' de t'ree kids to Mr. Newmans's, at 72 East One Hunner an' Fift' Street. Well, nelder de main squeeze nor Boss Newman hed a bell-button dere. Guess de dope was wrong. Anyway, de lady an' t'ree kids bein' down an' out, an' shy on cornbeefand', I brung 'em along here."

At this the woman burst into tears.

"He's been so kind, this little fellow, trying to find him for us," she said. "My husband, Israel Greeson—I am Mrs. Greeson—came from Baltimore some time ago and found work here. We came on to-day, but through some mistake he was not at the station. I understood his address to be with a Mr. Newman, somewhere in 105th Street, east or west—for the life of me I can't remember. I know I'm very stupid, but—"

"Maybe you didn't wait long enough at the station," said the Sergeant.

Hermes in blue shoved his cap on the back of his head, dug his hands in his pockets, and planted his feet wide apart.

"Sarge, you make me tired," said he. "Get wise, man—get wise. De lady is on de ragged edge, an' de kids is fair howlin' f'r grub. Git a move on!"

The Sergeant stared hard at three feet odd of pure nerve and seemed about to say something, but changed his mind. Instead, he laid down his pen and rang a bell. To the doorman who answered he said:

"Here's a dollar. Get this lady and her kiddies some grub. And tell Thompson I want him and the matron, too. Hullo, Thompson, go out and find this lady's husband. And matron, make Mrs. Greeson and her family comfortable."

Hermes the undaunted seemed to approve, but did he say so? Not he. He pulled his peaked cap over the right eye again, squinted out of the window with his left, and remarked:

"How's de wolld usin' you, Sarge?"

"Oh, pretty good. What's your name?"

"Me? T'ought you knew. I'm Mugsy."

"Well, you're a white boy, Mugsy."

"Aw," said Mugsy, "you gimme a pain."

And with a disgusted air he walked out and was lost in the vast army of messenger boys.

Through the United Hebrew Charities Mrs. Greeson found her husband last night at 75 East 105th Street. She had mistaken the street number.

FLEEING TIME CAUGHT.

The Stolen Alarm Clock of Comic Opera Turns Up in Real Life.

Policeman Patrick McCarthy of the Eldridge Street Station had almost completed a tour of his post early yesterday morning when he saw stealing through the shadows of Chrystie Street the shadow of a bulky man.

"What are you doing abroad at this hour?" demanded the policeman.

"Going home," was the reply. "Been out having a good time."

"Your body seems to be out of all proportion to your head," rejoined the policeman. "What have you under your—"

"Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Cuckoo!" interrupted a voice from beneath the man's coat.

"What is it?" asked the policeman.

"Time," replied the man.

"What are you doing with it?"

"Keeping it, of course."

"Humph!" retorted McCarthy, "It strikes me you stand a pretty fair show of doing it. Come along with me."

At the station the man said he was Michael Goldberg, no home. In the Essex Market Court later Morris Kritanskey, a tailor, of 250 East 116th Street, appeared as complainant. The tailor said his place had been entered in the night and three suits of clothes and a cuckoo clock stolen. Magistrate Moss held the prisoner for trial on a charge of burglary.

SHAW PLAY AROUSES NEW HAVEN AUDIENCE

Some Lines in "Mrs. Warren's Profession" Start Protests.

M'ADOO CONSIDERING ACTION

Arnold Daly, After New Haven Opening, to Come Here Monday—Safe on First Night.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 27.—Bernard Shaw's four-act social study, "Mrs. Warren's Profession," was staged at the Hyperion Theatre to-night. The play has existed in book form for some years, but no manager dared put it on until Arnold Daly broke the ice with his Garrick Theatre company, with whom he will open in New York next Monday.

To start such an extreme Shaw play in a New England town was bold enough for anybody, and that the attempt was justified in the impression made on New Haven is not so certain. The big audience to-night was not sure whether it dared stay out the play or not, and there were a number of withdrawals. The house manager had to suppress a number of the audience from outspoken protest at certain dialogues in the play.

The scene is an English town, at the house of Miss Warren, the young daughter of Mrs. Warren, intellectual and unable to understand her mother's character and reputation as she hears it. Frank Gardner, son of the rector, is in love with the girl. Mrs. Warren arrives with one of her roué companions, Sir George Crofts, and discovers in the rector one of her early admirers.

In the second act the daughter discovers her mother's character. Frank Gardner learns that he is half-brother of the girl he loves and gives her up. The lines are broad throughout the four acts.

Fred Tyler acted Sir George Crofts, the roue, George Farren was an architect, John Findlay a conventional minister, and Arnold Daly was Frank Gardner. Mary Shaw, who starred in "Ghosts," was Mrs. Warren, and Miss Crystal Herne took the part of the daughter.

Mr. Daly, called before the curtain after the third act, said:

"I do not think Mr. Shaw's play appeals to the lewd minded, but should be taken as it is—as a strong moral lesson on a phase of society that some might not care to see portrayed, but hidden, but which can with profit be shown in such a play as this. If Mr. Comstock wants to shut us up next Monday I only ask that he come to see it, when he will see that it is not on the order of the 'Night Owls.'"

After the play Mr. Daly declared:

"If Mr. McAdoo thinks he ought to stop "Mrs. Warren's Profession," he probably will do it. But he certainly won't do that until he sees the play. We should be delighted to have him come and see it on Monday, when I am sure that he, as well as any right-minded man, will see that it is merely a strong moral lesson."

Mr. McAdoo said yesterday that he had spent the greater part of Thursday evening reading "Mrs. Warren's Profession." An official complaint had been made to him by some women, and he wanted to see for himself whether the allegations were true.

"I have no power to prevent the initial performance at any theatre," said the Commissioner, "and I have no power to revoke a license after it has once been granted without going to the courts."

MANSFIELD IN "DON CARLOS."

Audience in Toledo Carried Away by Its Enthusiasm.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Oct. 27.—Richard Mansfield produced his version of Schiller's "Don Carlos" here to-night before a big audience. The final curtain did not drop till past midnight, and there were some tedious spots in the play.

The scenic effects were gorgeous and brought out great applause. The tapestry drops that Mr. Mansfield had hoped to use between scenes were not used to-night, as they will have to be retouched.

In the first three acts Mr. Mansfield did not receive much applause, but when he reached the climaxes in the fourth and fifth acts the audience was carried to wild outbursts of enthusiasm.

ELECTRICITY DINNER HALTED.

Park Visitor in Search of Strange Fare Lands in Bellevue.

He sat on the grass in Central Park yesterday afternoon gazing intently at the sky through a two-foot gas pipe. His clothes were inside out, and around his chest and waist were coiled about fifty feet of clock spring.

"Who are you and what are you doing there?" asked Policeman Cain, happening along.

"S-h-h-h," answered the stranger. "I'm the wonder of the age. I eat electricity. I'm hungry and am out for dinner."

"That so?" observed Cain. "What's all this business?" indicating the clock spring and the gas pipe.

"This," said the man, pointing to his wire armor, "is that with which I gain breakfast, dinner, and supper. It contains the negative and the positive. It keeps me alive. It brings my food from heaven. And this," indicating the pipe, "is that with which I search for sustenance."

Cain seized the man as he jumped to his feet and took him to the Park Police Station. There the prisoner gave his name as Louis Krenn of 370 East Tenth Street. Magistrate Finn of the Yorkville Court sent him to Bellevue.

MEPHISTOPHELES IN COURT.

No Crime to Get Drunk, Says the Magistrate, and Lets Him Go.

Clad like Mephistopheles, in red tights, and with horns and a tail, a man who first said he was John Huston and then changed it to George O'Brien, of 128 East Forty-second Street, was arraigned in the Tombs Court yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was arrested at Wall and Broad Streets by Policeman McKirsch of the Old Slip Station, after he had caused such a big crowd to collect that traffic was blocked.

The prisoner said he was employed by one of the exhibitors in the tobacco exposition at Grand Central Palace, but denied that his action in parading through Wall Street in his Satanic habiliments was a press agent scheme. He said that it was all due to an absinthe frappé that he drank in the morning.

"Well, it's no crime to get drunk," said Magistrate Wahle, "and this man wasn't any more to blame than the people who followed him. A circus player in such costume wouldn't be arrested if he appeared in the street, and this man hasn't done any more. He is discharged."

WILLIAM A. DUER DIES AT THE MACKAY HOME

Had Been Ill Since His Return from Europe a Month Ago.

LAWYER AND SOCIAL LEADER

He Was Mrs. Clarence Mackay's Father and the Son-in-Law of William R. Travers.

ROSLYN, L. I., Oct. 27.—William A. Duer, 57 years old, father of Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, died at Mr. Mackay's residence, Harbor Hill, to-day. He had been ill since his return from Europe a month ago. Dr. Martin, Dr. Delafield, and several other well-known physicians of New York had been attending him, but held out no hope to the family. Mr. and Mrs. Mackay and other members of the family had been at his bedside for two weeks, expecting his death every day.

Mr. Duer's funeral will take place on Monday morning, at Trinity Chapel, in Twenty-fifth Street, near Broadway. The burial will be private.

There have been very few men with a larger circle of friends or who were more popular in New York society than William A. Duer. Descended from a family that has given to this country statesmen, Revolutionary heroes, jurists, college Presidents, and writers, he represented the very best element in New York social life.

Mr. Duer was the fourth son of William A. Duer, who was President of Columbia College. He was born at Hauxhurst, Weehawken, N. J., on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 23, 1848, and was graduated from Columbia in 1871. Until 1880 he was associated with the late Benjamin D. Silliman in the practice of law. From 1880 until 18_2 he was associated with the late David Dudley Field, and in 18_ the firm of Deyo, Duer & Bauerdorf was formed, of which he was a member up to the time of his death.

Later Mr. Duer had charge of the affairs of his father-in-law, William R. Travers, the banker and wit, and after the death of Mr. Travers he took charge of the estate. He was very young when he married Miss Ellen Travers, who was a granddaughter of Reverdy Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Duer went out a great deal in society and entertained much. Mr. Duer was famous for his quaint humor. One child was born to Mr. and Mrs. Duer, a daughter, Katherine, who is now the wife of Clarence Mackay.

Miss Katherine Duer made her début in the Winter of 1896, and was married to Clarence Mackay in the Spring of 1897 at the Duer home, 17 West Twenty-first Street. This house was sold in 1900, and Mr. and Mrs. Duer removed to the Waldorf-Astoria. Every year they made a trip abroad.

Mrs. Duer died at the Waldorf in 1902. On her deathbed she dictated a list of the charities in which she was interested and wished continued. Mr. Duer never recovered from the blow of his wife's death. He had taken several trips abroad, and in the interim visited his daughter, Mrs. Mackay, in this city and at Harbour Hill. Last Summer while in Germany cirrhosis of the liver developed, and since his return in September he has been a very sick man.

William A. Duer had four brothers and two sisters, of whom Edward A. Duer and James Gore King Duer survive him. The family was descended from Col. William Duer, who was born in Devonshire, England, and came to this country in 1747. He was a son of John Duer, a planter of Antigua, and his wife, Frances Frye, was a daughter of Gen. Frederick Frye, a President of the West India colonies. He came to New York as Secretary to Lord Clive and married Lady Katherine Alexander, the daughter of William Alexander, Lord Sterling. She was the celebrated Lady Kitty Duer of colonial days.

Lady Kitty Duer was a descendant of the de Peysters and Livingstons of Livingston Manor on one side and on the other—her father's—she traced her lineage back to Robert II. of Scotland. Col. Duer was one of the most distinguished men of his time. He was Colonel of Militia, a delegate to the Continental Congress of 1777, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and delegate to the first New York Provincial Congress.

Edward Duer, William A. Duer's eldest brother, married Miss Van Buren, a granddaughter of President Martin Van Buren. Two of his nieces, the daughters of James Gore King Duer, Mrs. Alice Miller and Miss Caroline Duer, are well known as writers of fiction and verse. Among the family connections are the Gracies, the Kings, Mrs. Waddington, Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer, Mrs. Frederick Bronson, Archibald Gracie, and many other well-known New York families. The old Duer country estate adjoins the Stevens home, on Hoboken Heights.

Mr. Duer was a member of the Union, Knickerbocker, Brook, Weda, and Lawyers' Clubs, and of the Sportsmen's Club of Long Island. He was a Trustee of the Union Trust Company, of which his uncle, Edward King, is President. He was also interested in many charities, among them the Lying-In Hospital, of which he was President for many years, and the New York Institution for the Blind. He was once a Governor of the New York Hospital, and was interested in the management of the House of Refuge.

TO DEDICATE NEW HOSPITAL.

The Philanthropic Will Supply Needs in William's Bridge.

The Philanthropic Hospital, recently chartered by the State Board of Charities, will be dedicated to-morrow afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. Its temporary building is located at the corner of Briggs Avenue and Maple Street, Williams Bridge, and the permanent hospital building will be near by. Addresses will be made by Corporation Counsel John J. Delany, Magistrate Charles G. F. Wahle, and Prof. Charles Howard Bangs. The ladies' auxiliary will hold a reception after the speechmaking.

On account of the increase in population in that quarter of the city, the need of a hospital became evident last Spring. In accident cases it was necessary to convey patients a distance of four miles.

Among those interested in the Philanthropic Hospital is Louis Mann, the actor. He is a Director of the instiution, and organized a benefit concert for it last Spring, from which $1,000 was realized.

Rare Washington Print for $8.50.

A rare American engraving of George Washington's last illness was among a number of interesting portraits of the Father of his Country, sold by the Anderson Company in West Twenty-ninth Street, last evening. The scene shows a room with Martha Washington seated, weeping, and a bed on which Washington is lying with a doctor timing his pulse. It sold for $8.50.

The November McClure's is Noteworthy

Carl Schurz begins his Reminiscences by describing his boyhood in Bavaria. These Reminiscences will go on for over a year, with the absorbing interest of a novel. Ray Stannard Baker produces some astounding facts about railroad rate making, and shows how these rates set the prices we pay for everything we use. Kipling shows his old power in a new field in his story "With the Night Mail," the most convincing story on aerial navigation yet written. There are five other short stories which are not overshadowed by the leading features, good as they are, and pictures illustrating them by eight well-known artists. If you are not in the habit of reading McClure's, you will find an investment of ten cents in the November number the most surprisingly profitable investment you ever made.

PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY HAILED AT BIRTHPLACE

Roosevelt Home Club Dines in the Room Where He Was Born.

$10,000 FOR PURCHASE FUND

Announcement Cheered — Senator Thurston a Speaker — Some Enthusiasts Slide Down the Banisters.

President Roosevelt was 47 years old yesterday, and the Roosevelt Home Club celebrated his birthday by a dinner last night in the room where he was born in the house at 28 East Twentieth Street. On the east wall of the room was a large portrait of the President. A few feet off was a portrait of President McKinley.

Gen. James K. O'Beirne announced that a man who wished his name kept secret had contributed $10,000 on condition that a similar contribution should be offered for a fund to purchase the old house and to hold it for the club. The estimated cost of the house where Roosevelt was born is $60,000. The announcement of the contribution was received with cheer after cheer. Some of the more enthusiastic at the dinner made it the occasion for sliding down the banisters with cow-boy yells. The hand rails to the stairs are as sturdy as they were in the days when the young Theodore may have slid down them.

Back of the speaker's table there was the banner of the club with its motto, "All I ask is a Square Deal for Every Man."

William D. Murphy acted as toastmaster. To his right were Senator John M. Thurston, John R. Van Wormser, Admiral Coghlan, and Col. W. C. Church. To the left of the toastmaster were Postmaster Willcox, Gen. James R. O'Beirne, and the President of the club, L. P. Glasch.

The first thing on the programme was the playing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" by the orchestra. Most of those at the dinner did not recognize the tune at first; they blame the orchestra for that. But in a minute everybody was on his feet. Then the toastmaster, standing behind a bronze equestrian statue of the President, representing him leading his men to victory on a bucking bronco at Santiago, a poetical-sculptural license, said that the diners were there to pay tribute to Mr. Roosevelt and his character.

Senator Thurston, who followed, said, in part:

"I would like to have a vote this Fall in your city, or a candidate to tell some truths. There are more grave problems before us than our fathers knew. A century ago all our struggles were with foes on the outside. To-day they are with those on the inside. It is fortunate that we are led by a patriotic man, made in God's own image, Theodore Roosevelt. The American Republic will live if we are square and true. It will degenerate and die if we are false.

"We are facing the problems of wealth and poverty, and should settle them for once and for all, conditions of the proper acquirement of wealth and the conditions that make poverty to some apparently the only end of their struggles. I am not one of those pessimists who insist that the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer. It is an age of great opportunity.

"Forty-seven years ago there was a boy born here without wealth such as we speak of to-day. He has risen from the cradle, rocked by a Southern mother, to the position where to-day he is the master spirit of the world.

"Some say that he is too strenuous. He has been strenuous for the good of his country. They said that he was too strenuous at San Juan, too strenuous on the occasion when he sent an American warship into the Mediterranean to bring from bondage an American captive. They say that he was too strenuous when he brought coal to the fireside of the poor when interfering in the coal strike, and they say that he was too strenuous in bringing about peace in the Far East. Teddy doesn't think so, and neither do we."

VIVIEN

By W. B. MAXWELL

THIS is the greatest hit of the season in London. Here are the comments of some of the English papers:

"With this book Mr. Maxwell has achieved greatness."—The Morning Leader.

"'Vivien' is a remarkable performance. It contains an immense number of characters, and all are most carefully studied and individualized. . . . Here, for once, we have a book written by a writer who brims over with what he has to say, and who not only writes, but feels and sees."—Westminster Gazette.

"In many senses the book is a new 'Vanity Fair.' There is quiet humor, a philosophy pleasantly tinged by cynicism, and a style which, while never in a hurry, is admirably adapted to the story and carries the reader unhesitatingly along with it."—Manchester Courier.

CHICAGO CONVENTIONS WIDE APART ON RATES

Rival Meetings Adopt Opposing Resolutions and Adjourn

BOTH PRAISE MR. ROOSEVELT

"Regulars" Demand More Power for Commerce Commission, While "Antis" Oppose Such Action.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Both the "regular" and the "anti" sessions of the Inter-State Commerce Law Convention adjourned sine die to-day after passing resolutions, without making any efforts at reconciliation, and as a consequence there will be two regularly organized bodies working in the interest of railroad rate legislation. The title adopted by the "anti" convention for its permanent organization is Federal Rate Regulation Association, while the "regulars" retain the name Inter-State Commerce Law League.

When the Steinway Hall Convention, the so-called "regular" body of delegates, assembled, Joseph H. Call of California presented the report of the Committee on Resolutions.

It congratulated the country "that Theodore Roosevelt as President of the United States has shown his wisdom and patriotism in recommending to Congress Constitutional, effective, and just measures for the regulation of inter-State commerce that shall provide for the people a National tribunal with power to substitute a reasonable and just rate of classification for one proved to be unreasonable and unjust, and yet that shall preserve to the railroads just and reasonable control over their properties and revenues," and continued:

We specifically agree with the President that the only constitutional and effective method for the supervision of rates, classifications, and practices is by amending the Inter-State Commerce act so as to provide that:

"The Inter-State Commerce Commission should be vested with the power, where a given rate has been challenged and after full hearing found to be unreasonable, to decide, subject to judicial review, what shall be a reasonable rate to take its place; the ruling of the commission to take effect immediately and to obtain unless and until it is reversed by the court of review."

The amendment of the Inter-State Commerce act should be sufficiently broad to cover all inter-State transportation service, including all charges, regulations, and exactions in connection therewith, whether provided by railroads themselves or through arrangements with others.

In moving the adoption of the report Chairman Call said:

"Three-quarters of the corporate wealth and commerce of this country is directly controlled by a dozen persons. We want the power of enforcing the law taken out of private hands and returned to the people.

"The names of some of these men appeared recently in connection with the infamous life insurance frauds. The names also appear on the list of Directors of the largest trusts. Some of them spend a part of their time in Sunday school and church praying for God to make them good. They play golf part of the time. Some of them put in part of their time giving away libraries, so that their names may appear engraved on granite tablets. But they all put in most of their time scheming to raise the price on the necessities of life."

Ex-Gov. S. R. Vansant of Minnesota seconded the motion for adoption of the report of the Committee on Resolutions, and said:

"The time has come to separate the sheep from the goats in the fight against the railroads. We are the sheep, and the goats held their convention in another hall. The principal characteristic of a goat is to butt, and they are attempting to butt President Roosevelt off the right road, but they will fail."

The report was finally adopted by a unanimous vote.

J. C. Keel caused laughter by declaring that he believed Texas would go Republican at the next National election if President Roosevelt was a candidate for re-election.

"Texas is the greatest Democratic State in the Union, but her citizens love President Roosevelt," said Delegate Keel from the Lone Star State. "If he runs for President next time I think Texas will be for him on this freight rate legislation issue."

The Finance Committee submitted a report recommending that a fund of $10,000 be raised to send a delegation to Washington during the next session of Congress to work for the passage of the desired legislation. The plan of the committee was approved and $7,000 of the fund was raised by contributions made by the delegates.

At the Studebaker Hall convention, where the so-called "anti" delegates gathered, under Chairman McLeod, the report of the Committee on Resolutions was read and adopted. In part, it was as follows:

We declare as a fundamental basis of our deliberations and of our purposes an unquestioning faith in the wisdom, integrity, and high purpose of President Roosevelt, our appreciation of his influence which permeates every branch of Government, every industry, and all development of the entire Nation, and our confidence in his leadership.

We are unalterably opposed to conferring upon the Inter-State Commerce Commission, or to any appointive agency, the power to prescribe specific rates for transportation, believing that such action would prove a dangerous experiment, inimical to the best interests of commerce and the continued development of this country.

Recognizing existing evils connected with the transportation interests of the country, viz.: All forms of rebates or favoritism extended to one individual or locality to the disadvantage and detriment of others, private car lines, industrial terminals, or switching lines, manipulation of freight classification, unfair and unequal distribution of freight equipment, &c., we demand the most rigid enforcement of laws, which, if found to be inadequate, should be so amended as to provide speedy, efficient, and permanent relief.

We recognize the great and almost universal dissatisfaction with the Inter-State Commerce laws, as now administered or enforced, as due to the delay in reaching a determination of questions demanding early and final settlement, and we urge upon Congress the imperative necessity for providing the necessary machinery for relief.

N. W. McLeod of St. Louis was elected President of the association.

EVILS OF MONEY SUCCESS.

E. J. Ridgway Deplores the Acceptance of Carnegie Libraries.

Special to The New York Times.

CLINTON, N. Y., Oct. 27.—E. J. Ridgway, President of the New York Delta Upsilon Club, editor and one of the proprietors of Everybody's Magazine, at the annual convention of the Delta Upsilon fraternity at Hamilton College to-day delivered an address on "Money and the Man," touching upon the subject of "tainted" money. He expressed the view that there was only one kind of tainted money, and that was counterfeit.

"I believe that money can be accepted from big thieves without in any sense justifying or even palliating thievery," said the speaker. "To me the worst feature about accepting money from a Rockefeller or a Carnegie is the humiliation. It seems like colossal effrontery for Carnegie to take our money from us by the millions and give it back to us by the mills.

"You are responsible for the Rockefellers and all the rest. You made their business respectable. Your innocence at first, then your admiration for success, then your pathetic homage. Remember what you and Carnegie did for poor Charles Schwab. A clean, able young fellow, hardworking, ambitious. Carnegie put him at the head of the Steel Trust. The newspapers and magazines featured him extravagantly. You bowed in the dust. No wonder he lost his head. Money success makes brutes or beasts or fools of most men, and still the best brains in America go on striving for it."

Porter and Ebray Guests of Honor.

Gen. Horace Porter, formerly Ambassador to Paris, and Alcide Ebray, recently appointed Consul General of France in this city, were the guests of honor at the meeting of the Alliance Française at the Carnegie Lyceum last night. Mr. Ebray declared that nothing could promote the literary friendship between France and America as much as a close political friendship, and this Gen. Porter had done much to promote.

DESPERADO WOUNDED TWICE.

Langdonburg and Companions Opened Fire on Pursuing Posse.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 27.—John Langdonburg, 30 years old, a desperado known as "Paterson Jack," was captured in the Preakness Mountains last night after being shot twice by Policeman Thompson of Little Falls. He was brought to the county jail to-day. Langdonburg and two companions are wanted here for burglary. A posse of policemen and citizens started out to beat the bushes of the Preakness Mountains in the effort to capture the trio.

The three have terrified the Little Falls, Mountainview, Lower Preakness, and Wayne sections for some time. They exchanged shots with J. R. Williams, ticket agent of the Lackawanna Railroad station, who refused to surrender the office receipts. The trio were returning in the direction of Little Falls when met by Policeman Thompson and three other men. The trio opened fire at sight of the four men, and Langdonburg was shot and fell. The other two escaped. Langdonburg's wounds were not dangerous. One of the bullets pierced a tattoo mark: "To the memory of my mother."

Pocket knives and razors found in Langdonburg's possessioh were recognized as part of $100 worth of cutlery and tools stolen from H. W. Mills & Co.'s hardware store, on North Main Street.

Langdonburg served twelve years for the Whitehall Post Office robbery, in which the gang removed the office safe and afterward tumbled it into the Passaic River.

FIGHTING CHANLER'S SUIT.

Custodian Seeks Leave to File an Amended Answer to Complaint.

Thomas T. Sherman, who was appointed committee of the person of John Armstrong Chanler, obtained an order in the United States Circuit Court yesterday requiring Mr. Chanler to show cause why Mr. Sherman should not be allowed to file a supplemental answer to Mr. Chanler's complaint that his property is being unlawfully withheld from him by Mr. Sherman.

In his affidavit Mr. Sherman declares that he's the defendant in an action brought by Mr. Chanler to recover $263,538 damages, which he alleges he has sustained through the appointment of Mr. Sherman as committee of his person.

Mr. Chanler has always said that Virginia is his residence. Mr. Sherman was appointed his custodian after the courts had declared him to be of unsound mind. Mr. Chanler contends that Mr. Sherman's appointment was null and that the New York courts have no jurisdiction over him in the matter. Mr. Chanler escaped from Bloomingdale Asylum some years ago, and is believed to be now in Virginia.

DOMINGANS CHASE BANDITS.

Attack on American Collector Arouses Effort Against Lawlessness.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Bureau of Insular Affairs of the War Department has received a cable message from Col. George R. Colton, Controller and General Receiver of Customs Receipts at Santo Domingo, reporting the attack upon David F. Morris, a customs officer, en route with guide and servant to take station at Tierra Nueva, on the Haitian frontier. He was ambushed by a band of robbers and wounded in the shoulder, left arm, and left side. The robbers got a small amount of money. A native doctor says there is no doubt of Morris's recovery.

The people of the country set out to capture the criminals. The report declares that the incident, while such as may occur in any rough border territory, has caused intense feeling against the prevailing lawlessness, and will result in a stronger Government control.

DAWES AS BEEF CASE WITNESS

Speeches Attacking Government Case Lead to Issuing a Subpoena.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—A subpoena as a witness in the "Beef Trust" trial on Nov. 20 was served to-day on Charles G. Dawes, ex-Controller of the Currency.

Mr. Dawes has opposed in speeches the course of the Government in prosecuting the packers. His public expressions are said to have led to the issuance of a subpoena so that what he knows concerning the packers may be stated under oath. His speech to the bankers at Lincoln, Neb., on Oct. 24, especially attracted attention.

NOT TO QUIT GRAND CENTRAL.

But New Haven Road Will Use Pennsylvania Terminal, Says Mellen.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 27.—C. S. Mellen, President of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, declared to-day that there was nothing whatever in a report that the New Haven Road would quit the New York Central. He said:

"Our continued use of the Grand Central Station is assured. There has been no thought of going elsewhere. When the Pennsylvania station is completed there will be a through service established by way of the same to points South and West, and possibly, if there is a public demand, some service locally may be established to and from that station. But that is so far in the future no action looking to such a result has been taken as yet."

ORANGE HAS A $50,000 FIRE.

Many Structures in Peril for Lack of Water Pressure—Inquiry on Delay.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 27.—A fire, which for an hour threatened to sweep the manufacturing and business district of Orange, started shortly before noon today. For a time the firemen, hampered by lack of water and rotten hose, were absolutely powerless.

The flames quickly destroyed the large hat forming mill of Willegerod & Co., causing a loss of more than $50,000. The fire started in the "devil box," where the fluffy waste is kept. Time and again the large woodworking mills near by caught fire. The firemen, dragging up the ladders hose which threw the water barely ten feet, managed, in the face of the terrible heat, to stop the fire. The factories of the Wood Fibre Company and R. Neill & Co. were scorched.

The operators at Police Headquarters tried in vain to telephone the pumping station at Millburn, but could get no response for twenty minutes. The water works has failed to answer the telephone three times lately when asked for additional fire pressure. An inquiry will be made as to this matter.

PLEAD FOR PROF. MITCHELL.

Boston University Officials at Methodist Bishops' Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The case of Prof. Hinckley G. Mitchell, whose election to fill the Chair of Hebrew at the Boston University the college of Methodist Bishops refused to confirm six months ago because of his interest in the "higher criticism" of the Bible, but who has since been renominated by the Trustees of the university, was to-day again before the college, which is holding its semi-annual session here.

The Bishops gave a hearing to a delegation of officials from the university who practically reiterated the arguments heretofore made in behalf of Prof. Mitchell, holding that he had been misunderstood and was not wrong in his teachings.

It is expected that a vote on the case will be taken to-morrow.

ATHLETE CONFESSES TO PROFESSIONALISM

Champion Duffey Admits Making Money from Amateur Athletics.

EXPOSES "STARS'" METHODS

Explains Causes of Existing Conditions and Attempts to Justify Actions of So-Called Stars.

Arthur F. Duffey, the world's "amateur" champion and holder of the record for 100 yards—9 3-5 seconds—has undertaken the exposé of the pseudo-amateur and the methods whereby he is able without means to live and travel in comfort, if not in luxury, and have a sufficient supply of pocket money, without endangering his amateur status. The subterfuges and evasions, which all have known were practiced, are to be laid bare without mincing words. While the information may enlighten some who still hold to the belief that the majority of the "stars" that tour the world are bona fide "simon-pures," most of those who have been in close touch with track sports know the methods quite as well as the champion and understand their limitations in attempting to prove the charges against any particular man. None know the facts better than the Amateur Athletic Union officials, and the impossibility of securing evidence.

The importance of the exposure is therefore not in what Duffey says, but in the announcement of his magazine publisher, Bernarr Macfadden, in "Physical Culture. In prefacing the series, who is specific in declaring that Duffey is not himself an amateur and has not been for several years back. While most of those in the know have believed this for some time, it has never been possible to establish it, so it must be assumed that Duffey has himself at last torn the veil from his false pretense.

The announcement says:

Arthur Duffey, the only man who has ever succeeded in running 100 yards in 9 3-5 seconds, has recently become connected with this magazine. He will take entire charge of the athletic department, and in addition to that he intends to expose the crookedness of amateur athletics in all its nauseous details.

He is not in any sense an amateur, according to the definition of the Amateur Athletic Union. He has not been an amateur for several years, and still he has been competing not only in this country, but in Australia and England and in various other parts of the world, as a bona fide amateur athlete. He has supported himself by his ability as an "amateur" athlete since the year 1898, and when you realize this condition is not unusual, that athletes who are working away for $5 medals and glory alone are rare, you will appreciate its import.

Many may say that Mr. Duffey's confessions of his own conduct are not of a commendatory character. He believes that he is honestly entitled to every dollar he has accepted. The present state of the amateur athletic world clearly indicates the need of changing the rules defining an amateur. The definition should be of such a character that there would be no need of the athlete parading under false colors. If he is worth a certain amount of money to an amateur club, he is entitled to it.

A strict observance of the present rules would bar a very large number of our finest athletes, would rank them with professionals, who have made the word "sport" reek with dishonor.

It is not to be imagined that this statement has been made by Duffey's employers without full knowledge of the facts, and it may be accepted at once as entirely justified and authorized.

The years mentioned cover the entire period of Duffey's active competition. It includes the making of his world's record figures. It includes the years of inter-collegiate competition. It includes National and international competitions. It includes as recently as seven months ago races in which Duffey posed as an amateur, competing against amateurs, after making affidavit to the effect that he had never received financial benefit from athletics directly or indirectly.

The rule defining an amateur includes the provision:

An athlete has forfeited his right to compete as an amateur and has thereby become a professional, by Ever having directly or indirectly accepted or received remuneration for engaging in any athletic exercise.

There is no possibility of evading this clause except by a direct stultification of conscience and falsely swearing to an untruth.

The existent conditions described do not call so much for rule changes as for a greater prevalence of common honesty, and the creation of a sentiment among athletes that shall mark the man who accepts bribes to pose falsely as unclean for until the men themselves root out the evil it will always continue to exist. The only rule change needed is to give the authorities governing athletics the right to disqualify on suspicious circumstances as subversive to the entire fabric of true sport.

Among other things in his article Duffey says:

As matters stand there is no line of demarkation between the star amateur and the declared professional.

There are three factors that make possible the "amateur" evil. First, the current popularity of athletics; second, the more or less unscrupulous athletic managers who do not hesitate to adopt any means and methods that lead to big gate money brought in by "stars" as attractions, and, third, the star himself, who can hardly be blamed for giving ear to a proposition which includes "expenses" of so liberal a nature that he can easily afford to compete for these alone, irrespective of the intrinsic value of the trophy. By using the polite fiction "expenses" he may receive a sum for a single event which, while not interfering with his amateur status, will nevertheless make the occupation of the amateur athlete a profitable one indeed.

The managers of the meetings to which I am alluding are as keen as they are clever. Also that they recognize the "queerness" of their methods is evidenced by the fact that their overtures to star amateurs are conducted with much caution. You will never find them committing their propositions to writing, and their interviews with the athletes are either conducted in private with no other person present but themselves and the stars, or else they take place through the medium of a third person. Furthermore, the expenses to be allowed are only known to the parties directly involved. If the arrangement became known to the public or the associations the consequence might be unpleasant, and that for manifest reasons. Of course I do not feel justified in giving to my readers the exact sums which crack athletes receive under the guise of expenses, but I may say that they are of an extremely liberal type, and explain how it is possible for an amateur of very moderate personal means or of no means at all to travel all over the world in order to take part in contests and return to the land of his birth with a bank acount of a very comfortable nature indeed."

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

GRAIN.—WHEAT—Although new high records for the season were made in wheat yesterday the advance was by no means so steady as on the previous day, and in the last hour prices broke about 1¼c from top, closing ⅛ to ¼c under the previous night. This was a result of unloading in various quarters, including, some reports said, wheat held by the leading Chicago bull. After such a big advance as the market has had this week such operations would not be at all surprising, and the trade was quite ready to believe such reports and assisted the break by putting on the market considerable wheat for short account. Part of this was covered after the regular close, however, advancing December from 96 to 96⅜c. The foreign news appeared to be about as bullish as the day before, but the market was technically in a less responsive position. Liverpool at one time was up about 2d from Thursday, but right at the close eased off ⅛ to ⅜d from top. At Berlin there was an advance of 2¼c a bushel, and Budapest showed an upturn of 3c per bushel in the last three days. The Paris market closed 20 to 50 points net higher. The Russian news included reports of a revolution at Odessa and serious conditions at other points in the empire. Liverpool's early strength was explained by strength in Manitoba offerings, together with the Russian situation and serious Argentine crop conditions. Exporters continued their activity, although the unsatisfactory freight situation prevented so large a business as the previous day. The wheat sales reported at the close were thirty loads, all outports. At its best point the market was up to 97 7-16c for December, representing about 5c advance for the week. Broomhall reported Argentine shipments as 1,856,000 bushels, compared with 584,000 bushels last week. A strong feature in the situation, and one that had considerable affect in the afternoon, was the shipment of 461,000 bushels of wheat from seaboard points, mainly New York. At the same time weekly wheat and flour shipments, according to Bradstreet's, were 4,267,000 bushels, or the heaviest total in a long time. Pacific Coast dispatches reported heavy loadings of wheat at Northern points, mostly for Europe. The interior receipts for the day were 1,197,000 bushels, compared with 1,280,000 bushels last year. No. 2 red wheat in New York closed 95½c elevator and 96⅜c free on board afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 99½c, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, 98c free on board afloat.

COTTON.—After some early irregularity, the cotton market firmed up and recovered a good part of its recent loss on covering and fresh bull support promoted by the talk of a big spot demand in the South, the large exports, and smaller interior receipts. The close was very steady at practically the best point of the session, or a net advance of 12@16 points higher.

The opening was steady at a decline of 7 points on October, but generally unchanged to 4 points higher on better cables than expected, and the big spot business in the English market. It was an October and November notice day, accounting for the break in October, but no notices of consequence were in circulation, and October, after selling about even with last night's prices immediately after the call, was neglected during the balance of the session. Later months showed a declining tendency early, and January broke to a net loss of about 6 points, or to 10.30, on bear pressure and liquidation encouraged by the reports of the unsettled condition in Russia.

Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were unchanged to ⅛c lower. A moderately good business was reported from several points and private wires claimed that there was a very good demand in the interior, particularly around Savannah and Memphis. Exports for the day were 60,000 bags.

COFFEE—The coffee market was moderately active and again showed a steady to firm tone in the absence of important near-by liquidation. The opening was unchanged to 5 points lower, owing to somewhat unsettled primary markets and rather disappointing European cables, but prices soon rallied on a moderate demand from shorts and Wall Street bulls, and after the closing French cables showing an additional gain prices here worked a partial 10 points higher. The close was steady, net unchanged to 10 points higher. Sales were reported of 38,250 bags. Early cables from Havre indicated an advance of only ¼@½f, which was not considered a favorable showing in view of the advance in the local market of the previous day, but Havre closed ¾@1f higher. Of the primary markets, Rio was 75 reis lower, while Santos was unchanged. Receipts at the two ports were light at 59,000 bags, against 58,000 bags last year. Jundiahy receipts were 41,000 bags, against 32,000 bags last year, and the Sao Paulo receipts for the day were 49,826 bags, against 37,900 bags last year. Warehouse deliveries on Thursday were 22,994 bags, against 86,032 bags last year. Primary receipts so far for the month have been about 176,000 bags more than for the same month last season, reaching 5,?05,000 bags so far reported, against 5,769,000 bags in 1904. The market for spot coffee was steady but unchanged, with quotations on the basis of 8⅝c for Rio No. 7.

YALE AND PRINCETON TEAMS FRATERNIZE HERE

Big Elevens Meet in the Corridors of Murray Hill Hotel.

AWAIT TO-DAY'S HARD GAMES

Blue Confident; Tigers Worried by Outlook—Indian Victory Feared by Penn—Contests Scheduled.

To-day's Principal Football Games.

Columbia vs. Princeton at New York.
Yale vs. West Point at West Point.
Penn vs. Indians at Philadelphia.
Harvard vs. Brown at Cambridge.
Syracuse vs. Lehigh at Syracuse.
Annapolis vs. Swarthmore at Annapolis.
Wesleyan vs. Union at Schenectady.
Cornell vs. Haverford at Ithaca.
New York University vs. Stevens at New York.
Michigan vs. Drake at Ann Arbor.
Chicago vs. Northwestern at Evanston.

With the big college football elevens engaged in hard gridiron battles to-day it is not unlikely that one or more surprises will be in store. The schedule marks the opening of what may be considered the real football season. Games up to date have been more in the nature of preliminary contests, the only exception being the Harvard-West Point battle last Saturday. Cornell stands alone of the big six in that the Ithacans, in following out the policy adopted this season, will meet a weak eleven in Haverford. The other teams, including West Point and Annapolis, are scheduled to face opponents more nearer their own calibre than they have met so far this season. With the exception of Yale, there is grave apprehension among the coaches of the big teams as to the outcome of to-day's contests.

The Yale and Princeton coaches and players fraternized at the Murray Hill Hotel last night, and a general reunion of old-time players who acquired fame on the college football field was the result. The Yale contingent, numbering forty, came on from New Haven last night and made the Murray Hill Hotel their headquarters. They will leave for West Point at 10 o'clock this morning. They were followed by the Princeton aggregation, and the corridors quickly resembled the night before the Yale-Princeton game of bygone days, when the great annual championship contest was decided in this city. Prominent among the ex-Princeton players were "Ad" Kelly, "Billy" Bannard, "Alex" Moffat, and Prof. John B. Fine. Yale's delegation included Ralph Bloomer, Frank Hinkey, Vance McCormick, "Burr" Chamberlain, "Jack" Owsley, George Foster Sanford, and "Beau" Olcott, who is guiding the football fortunes of Annapolis this year, and will go to West Point to-day to get a line on the playing abilities of the army cadets.

Famous football battles were played over again, and prospects of to-day's encounters freely discussed. There was a general reticence with the Princeton men regarding the Columbia game. Contrary to general opinion, the Tigers do not expect an easy contest. As one of the coaches expressed himself, "We will be satisfied if we win by a single touchdown." This feeling is shared by the players and followers alike. While the members of the team are not seriously injured, they are in poor physical condition. Many of them have not yet recovered from the bruises they received in the Lafayette game, while others are suffering from the effects of a week's unusually hard practice.

In direct contrast to Princeton's worry and uncertainty, Yale is brimful of confidence. The members of the team are in excellent condition. Morse and Shevlin are the only men not in perfect trim, but their injuries are slight, and Yale expects to make the best showing of the year and win from West Point by a big score.

After the teams had retired the coaches and old-time players met, and in a general way discussed the suggestion of President Roosevelt to modify the playing rules. The general sentiment was that the game is entirely satisfactory as now played, and the necessity of radical changes exists only with a few, the masses preferring the present style of playing.

The Yale-West Point game will serve as a comparison between the Yale and Harvard elevens. Last Saturday the Cadets held the Crimson team down to one touch-down, the result of a fumble, while Penn State showed the weak spots in the New Haven team. West Point will put her strongest team against Yale, and with the experience gained in the Harvard contest the eleven should make a good showing. West Point has always made special preparations for Yale, as the team would rather win this contest than any other in the season, with the exception of the Navy game, and this ambition has spurred the Cadets on to their best efforts. With Erwin, the left guard, ineligible to play for Yale, the game should be close.

Pennsylvania has cause to fear the Indians. George Woodruff, the Quakers' old coach, has drilled the redskins in the same kind of game as played at Philadelphia, and with the red and blue eleven crippled by the loss of six of its best players, it is not improbable that the Carlisle aggregation will lower Pennsylvania's colors. Harvard is greatly concerned over the outcome of the game with Brown. The latter made an excellent showing against Pennsylvania last Saturday.

The game between Swarthmore and the Naval Cadets is regarded in Annapolis as the most important so far. Swarthmore was the only team besides the army which won from the navy last year, and the Pennsylvanians have shown themselves a worthy foe this season. Cornell does not expect a hard game with Haverford, and will try out Coach Warner's new plays which will be used in the game with Princeton two weeks hence.

Princeton, with an eleven that is conceded to be fast and strong, feels certain that she will have little difficulty in scoring a win at American League Park to-day. The prestige of the Tigers in the football world is another of the factors that tend to this opinion. Columbia, on the other hand, has but little to point to as a basis for her claim, yet the students and members of the eleven are equally confident with the Tigers.

There have been but three football contests between Columbia and Princeton, and of these the Tigers have captured two. In 1899 Princeton won by a score of 11 to 0. Columbia turned the tables in 1900, and won the contest by one point, with the score of 6 to 5. The last game was played at Princeton in 1902, and the Tigers scored a 22-0 victory.

On paper the two elevens appear to be about evenly matched, although the Tiger aggregation is a bit more evenly balanced than that of Columbia. From end to end the Princeton team averages 181 pounds, while Columbia tips the scales exactly a pound less. In the back field Columbia is the heavier, averaging 170 pounds to Princeton's 168¾. While in matter of weight the two teams could hardly be more evenly matched, the Princetonians are a far more experienced lot of men than that which will represent Columbia, whose players are practically green to the gridiron game. Morley, however, considers that he has rounded the team into excellent shape.

Princeton comes to this city reputed to be one of the fastest elevens turned out during the past six years. In all of the contests played thus far speed has been the essential factor that has characterized the work of the men.

With Daub and Bard in the Tiger back field the Columbia ends will have all they care to handle to prevent the flanks from being turned. Both men are the liveliest sort of players, and end runs are their strongest suits. Capt. Cooney on the tackle-back formation is figured to tear things up generally every time he hits the line. Columbia, with her slower eleven, will probably confine herself to line plunging, which has been characteristic of the eleven in all of its games this season. The back field is well fitted for this sort of play, and while it is not a spectacular style, it is a sure way to gain ground if the backs and tackles are good. It is, however, more wearing on the men than the variety of formations which the Princeton players will use.

The betting on the game makes Princeton the favorite at 3 to 1. The supporters of the Tigers are willing to offer these odds, and the Columbia men are just as eager to snap up the offers. The favorite bet, however, seems to be even money that Princeton will not score three times.

At the last minute, the Columbia eleven has been strengthened by the presence of Carter, the crack full back. He has passed off his conditions and will line up with the Blue and White this afternoon. The formality of being passed on by the Eligibility Committee will be gone through this morning.

Some of the Columbia students look to see the Blue and White score on a field goal if Columbia is in Princeton territory near the end of the second half. Schultz is counted on to duplicate his performance in the Amherst game. It would be unwise, however, to place Schultz in the game before very near the close of the battle, as he is not the equal of either of the other two quarter backs in running the team.

The line up, with the players' weights, will probably be as follows:

Princeton.	Position.	Columbia.
Cooney (190)	Left tackle	Duden (193)
Dillon (200)	Left guard	Ross (230)
Carothers (198)	Centre	Algeltinger (201)
Rafferty (200)	Right guard	Davis (190)
Phillips (185)	Right tackle	Von Saltzs (195)
Tooker (180)	Right end	Muir (165)
Dillon (155)	Quarter back	Donnovan (160)
Daub (175)	Left half back	Armstrong (175)
Bard (170)	Right half back	Fisher (165)
McCormick (175)	Full back	Carter (180)

Harvard's football coaches are greatly concerned over the game with Brown to-day. They realize that Brown has a fast efficient team and will go to Cambridge resolved to do its utmost to win. Harvard, on the other hand, has made no special preparations for the contest, Coach Reid being unwilling to sacrifice the ultimate development of his eleven for so early a game. This makes the chances of winning about equal. The practice yesterday consisted of signal work with careful attention to details. In tackling the ends played wretchedly and there was also some bad handling of punts. It is on account of Harvard's weakness in these elements that Harvard men feel so concerned about the game to-day.

The game between Swarthmore and the midshipmen to-day is regarded as the most important of the season so far, and the unbeaten Navy team recognizes that it will have to do the hardest kind of work to pull off a victory. The Navy team is somewhat crippled, owing to injuries to Capt. Howard and Half Backs Douglass and Spencer. Howard has been out of the game for ten days with a strained shoulder, but may start in to-day. Douglass has not been in the line-up this week on account of a bad leg, and Spencer sprained his ankle on Thursday.

The following will be Cornell's line-up for to-day's game with Haverford: Roadhouse, left end; Oderkirk, left tackle; Thompson, left guard; Hodge, centre; Furman, right guard; Capt. Costello, right tackle; Van Orman, right end; Rice, quarter back; Walder, left half back; Gibson, right half back; Wolheim, full back. Cornell does not expect a hard game, but she attaches much importance to the contest because all of Coach Warner's new plays, which he has been drilling for the Princeton game two weeks hence, will be tried out.

New York University will go into the game with Stevens to-day in a badly crippled condition owing to the absence of Capt. Cragin and Left Half Back Swartz. They were both seriously hurt in the Wesleyan game of last Saturday. The team will line up as follows: Left end, Connell; left tackle, Jennings; left guard, Schroeder; centre, Rabenold; right guard, Keefer; right tackle, Hulsart; right end, Wylie; quarter back, Rust; left half back, Wilson; right half back, Tietjen; full back, Mowen.

VANDERBILT LOST CUP.

E. D. Jordan Won Tichenor Cup Outright with Hildred.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 27.—The special feature of the Horse Show to-day was the competitions for the Tichenor Challenge Cup, for gig horses between E. D. Jordan's Hildred, Reginald Vanderbilt's Dictator, and J. H. Moore's Burlingham. The judges gave the award to Hildred, and as this was the second time he had won the cup it becomes his personal property. Mr. Jordan also in the evening captured the O. D. Peacock prize for ladies' pair of harness horses, with Kitty Gray and Norina. The other competitors were Messrs. Vanderbilt and Moore.

In the afternoon E. D. Jordan won first prize for a pair of harness ponies, (other than Shetlands.) His Tangerine and Dominoe, a finely matched pair, had the favor both of judges and audience from their first entrance in the arena. Mr. Vanderbilt's Frills and Spots proved hard contenders and got second prize. In the harness horse high stepping pair contest the first prize, $150, went to J. H. Moore's Lord Russell and Lord Roberts. Mr. Vanderbilt took second prize with Astonishment and Amazement.

COLLEGE TRACK MEN MEET.

Arrange for Annual Field Games Either in New York or Cambridge.

The Executive and Advisory Committees of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America were in session last night at the Fifth Avenue Hotel to approve the report of Manager Frank B. Ellis of the annual field meeting to consider amendments to the by-laws of the association, and to arrange for the next annual field meeting, to be held in May, preparatory to the regular meeting of the association, at which their action must be approved. Manager Ellis's report, showing a profit of $1,394 in the games, was approved and provision made to divide the amount among the colleges represented in three events at the championships, in proportion to the number of competitors of each and the distance traveled by the teams to the games.

Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Cornell, Columbia, and New York University were represented, and Pennsylvania, Haverford, and the College of the City of New York were absent. Of the Advisory Committee, Gustavus T. Kirby of Columbia and Thornton Gerrish of Harvard were in attendance, while the others in the meeting were W. N. Stillman of Yale, Howard Fitspatrick of the New York University, W. C. Molter of Princeton, Howard Graves of Harvard, A. L. Hoyt of Columbia, and Le Roy Woodland of Cornell.

The records made by Parsons, 1:56 for the half-mile, and of Dray, 11 feet 10½ inches in the pole vault, were approved. It was also agreed to increase the number of entries permitted from any one college in each event to twelve.

F. B. Ellis was again appointed manager of the field meet, which it was determined would be held either on Soldiers' Field in Cambridge or at William's Bridge, New York, but not again in Philadelphia. The decision between the two sites was left to the annual meeting in February to settle.

The question of whether the invitation of the Western Intercollegiate Association to a joint meeting between the point winners of the two bodies was mentioned but not discussed, the sentiment being that the meet should not be arranged, but the Western Association informed that each and all of the colleges in it would be welcomed in the National body, but sectional lines could not be drawn to limit the scope of the old body.

Harvard Tennis Cracks Defeated.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 27.—Harvard men were greatly surprised to-day when N. W. Niles, the freshman wonder, who won the Harvard University tennis championship last week, and J. Cutten, another star freshman player, were defeated by F. J. Salloway and F. W. Cole in the final match for the university doubles championship, 6—2, 6—2, 7—5. In the first two sets neither team played well, Cole and Salloway winning because their opponents did not work at all together. Individually, Niles put up the best article of tennis.

Tipman Quit in Eighth Round.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27.—Claiming to have sprained a ligament of his left thumb, Joe Tipman of this city quit after the eighth round of what was to have been a fifteen-round fight with Young Corbett of Denver here to-night.

PRINCETON vs. COLUMBIA to-day, 2:30, B'way & 166th. Best seats for sale at box office. —Adv.

POST FAVORITES WON FIVE JAMAICA RACES

Mabel Richardson Was the Only Beaten Choice of the Day.

TRUE WING FIRST BY A NOSE

Filly Beat Yorkshire Lad by a Narrow Margin for the Sayville Selling Stakes.

Spirited racing, with two head finishes as special spurs to enthusiasm, more than fulfilled the promise of the programme at the Metropolitan Jockey Club's Jamaica course yesterday, but the big crowd in attendance found vastly more satisfaction in the results than in the contests, for it was a harvest day for the form followers and the general public.

Post favorites won five of the six races, and the best-backed horses won straight through the card.

The Sayville Stakes, at one mile and a sixteenth, for three-year-olds, with selling conditions, for which four horses were named to start, produced the most sensational contest of the afternoon. The betting opened with Chimney Sweep and the Western filly True Wing equal choices, but True Wing was backed down at once, and started a decided choice at a price only a shade better than even money, while Yorkshire Lad also was backed down, Keator starting as the outsider of the field. Keator's presence in the race was something of a puzzle to bettors, after his poor showing in a sprint race on Thursday, the horse never having been called on to race over a distance of ground, but for the most part Keator was ignored. He proved to be quite a factor in making the result at that, for under orders to go out with Keator and win all the way or die in front, Jockey Miller shot away in the lead with the Farrell entry when the barrier rose, and went on in quarter racing style.

True Wing had behaved badly at the post and got quite a lot the worst of the break, but Romanelli promptly made up the lost ground and took second place, where he steadied the filly just in front of Chimney Sweep, as if content to wait there until Keator stopped and came back to him. Romanelli changed his mind almost as soon as the horses turned into the back stretch, the sight of Keator swinging along a dozen lengths in the lead proving too much for his judgment, and in the run through the back stretch True Wing was hustled along to get closer to Keator, which carried a fast pace as far as he went. On the far turn Keator already was tiring, and True Wing still was racing after him when Yorkshire Lad and Chimney Sweep, both of which kept out of the early pace, began to close. Keator held his lead into the stretch, where he began to stop fast, True Wing then going up to him on the outside, while Yorkshire Lad, hanging on the rail, closed on the inside. In the run through the straight to the winning post Keator went back to last place, while True Wing and Yorkshire Lad drew out clear and fought head and head to the judges, both under punishment at the end. Striding alternately, first one then the other showing first, the stride to the winning post fell to True Wing, which by that chance won by a scant nose, after having practically beaten herself in her ill-judged pursuit of Keator.

The one race in which a post favorite failed produced the second close finish, with six horses lapped on the winning post, and the aged gelding Knight of Rhodes the second choice, the winner. Thirteen horses ran for this event, a mile-and-a-sixteenth selling, with Mabel Richardson the favorite, Knight of Rhodes going to the front at the send-off and holding his lead throughout the race, to win, hard ridden, a head before the 40-to-1 chance Buckleya, which closed from far back in the crowd and beat Mabel Richardson a neck, Brigand, Samuel H. Harris, and Cabin, heads apart, following Mabel Richardson.

In all the other races the favorites at short prices were returned the winners, the most noteworthy performance of these winners being the galloping victory of Red Knight in the mile-and-a-furlong handicap. Miller, who rode the horse when he waited with him and was beaten by Alma Dufour a week before, again had the mount on Red Knight, but the lecture he got from the Stewards for his former effort made a big change in his handling of the horse yesterday. Instead of waiting behind, Miller took Red Knight to the front with his top weight and waited there, Red Knight then galloping in the lead all the way and winning easily from Banker, second. ATTRACTIVE CARD OF 'CHASES.

Getaway Day at Morris Park Promises Fine Sport.

An unusually attractive card is offered to-day at Morris Park to lovers of steeplechasing. The occasion is the third and last day of the meeting arranged by the United Hunts Racing Association, an organization composed largely of the most influential members of the followers of the timber-topping sport.

Five of the six races will be run through the field and over the jumps, which are now real jumps for real hunters, and not merely obstacle races for cast-offs from the company of flat runners.

Possibly the most picturesque affair of the day, certainly the most unusual, will be the Military Steeplechase, in which the contestants will be horses belonging to and ridden by officers in the regular army or one of several other military organizations. The race will be about two miles over the hunters' course, and all the riders will wear military uniforms. Lieut. J. F. Martin of the Fifteenth Cavalry, stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, will represent the army with his horse Dominion, while Putnam A. Bates, W. S. Maguire, and Victor Froment of Squadron A, and W. H. Wildey of Squadron C, will also have mounts. Gen. Fred D. Grant and his staff and Rear Admiral Coghlan are expected to see the running of this race, as well as many officers from Governors Island, Fort Totten, and West Point. Owing to the unavoidable delay in announcing this race the entries are not so numerous as they would otherwise have been, but the innovation is so heartily approved by the War Department and by army officers that there is sure to be a large entry list if the race is renewed another season.

The Great United Hunts Steeplechase Handicap, for a cup and $2,500 added money, is the principle stake down for decision, and when it is stated that the distance is four miles it becomes plain that the winner will be a good horse. Such well-known performers as Ben Crockett, Pagan Bey, Tom Cogan, and Buck o' Dowd are carded to start. In the Orange County Hunt Steeplechase, also at about four miles, the starters must all be the property of members of hunts belonging to the United Hunts Racing Association, and will be ridden by members of the hunts from which the horses are entered. In this race will start such horses as Mr. Strawbridge's Crow Wing, one of the best fencers ever seen hereabouts; Balford, a winner last Wednesday, Owalssia, and Justice.

Two other steeplechases and a six-furlong dash on the flat will conclude the programme of the last day of a meeting which, it is to be hoped, its promoters will see their way to repeating next season. The entries follow:

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

Sterling, winner of three races straight, and entered by M. F. Donohue to sell for $1,000 in the third race at Jamaica yesterday, was bid up to $3,200 by Thomas Sexton, owner of the horse Ostrich, and was retained by his stable for $5 additional. The bid-up cost the owner more than double the value of the purse.

The Stewards of the Jamaica meeting have communicated with H. B. Duryea by telegraph concerning the case of Jockey W. Shaw for his questionable ride of Mr. Duryea's horse Dreamer two days ago, and Mr. Duryea's answer will decide the charges against Shaw. Mr. Duryea is in the South, and as he may not return for several weeks the Stewards telegraphed to him in the desire to settle the case without delay.

The filly Awning, owned by John Devlin, and a starter in the fifth race at Jamaica yesterday, was jumped on in the crowding on the last turn and was cut down and injured so badly that she was pulled up and did not finish.

J. A. Bennett has sold to G. W. Langdon on private terms the chestnut colt Jocund, four years old, by Mirthful-Flower Dellis.

Jockey McDaniel, for misbehavior at the starting post, at the Jamaica track yesterday, was suspended by Starter Cassidy for the remainder of the Metropolitan Jockey Club's meeting.

The yearlings from the Castleton Stud that will be trained in the stable of James R. Keene for next season's two-year-old racing will be wintered at the Silver Brook Stud in New Jersey, the place at present occupied by the breeding stock of Clarence H. Mackay. The Mackay horses will be sent to Kentucky on the last of this month, and the Keene yearlings, about forty in number, will take possession.

Ed Feakes, formerly a noted jockey, and in recent years a successful trainer, has bought from James Galway the well-known New Jersey training quarters known as the Preakness Farm, a place of about seventy acres, equipped with training track and stables and paddocks. Trainer Feakes, who until a short time ago had charge of the horses owned by Mr. Galway, will use Preakness for wintering thoroughbred stock and will conduct a public training stable there.

Jockey Miller showed most prominently of the riders at the Jamaica track yesterday, with two winning mounts, while J. Jones came into notice by landing two long chances in second place, in close finishes. On Buckleya, at 40 to 1, Jones was beaten only a head, while on Invincible, at 30 to 1, he was second to Emergency.

The apprentice jockey Sewell had so close a shave in his effort to hug the rail with Yorkshire Lad in the Sayville Stakes that his boot was torn where he scraped against the fence on the last turn. The boy was not injured, and in spite of his narrow escape rode a good finish on Yorkshire Lad, being beaten only a nose by True Wing.

A partnership agreement between Congressman T. D. Sullivan and R. Angarola in the horse Workman, which Angarola recently bought from W. A. Stanton, has been registered with Jockey Club. The horse will be sent to California for the Winter racing there.

Princeton's Field House Burned.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, Oct. 27.—Princeton's field house, the dressing quarters of the teams, situated at the east side of the athletic field, was burned to-night. The house was made up of the dressing rooms, baths, &c. At the east end of the building was the big baseball cage. The fire started about 9 o'clock and was so far under way when discovered that nothing could be done to save the building. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss on the building will amount to $10,000, covered by insurance.

NEW YORK GOLFERS WIN FROM QUAKER PLAYERS

Score 10 Points to 5 in First Match of Tri-City Contest.

RECORD FIGURES FOR TRAVIS

Turns in Excellent Card of 72 Strokes for Garden City Links—Winners Meet Boston To-day.

New York beat the Philadelphia golfers yesterday by a score of 10 points to 5 in the first of the tri-city team competitions. The match was played on the links of the Garden City Golf Club, and drew quite a respectable gallery of local golfers, to which was added a dozen or more Quaker "rooters," who came to cheer their team. Although the visitors went home defeated, they made a presentable showing.

The match was also characterized by golf of exceptional excellence from even such a past master of the game as Walter J. Travis. Playing in the morning against H. W. Perrin, Travis broke all former amateur records for the course, finishing the eighteen holes in seventy-two strokes. He held the old record at seventy-four. The course measures 6,444 yards in playing distance, and nothing but steady golf and almost perfect accuracy at every hole could hope to reach a score anywhere near seventy-two. As if to cap the climax to his play, Travis holed out on the home green in two, making a fifteen-foot put. His card, which is likely to stand for some time, was:

Out ......4 3 5 5 4 5 5 3 3—37
In ......4 5 3 5 5 5 4 4 2—35—72

The opposing teams played thirty-six holes. In the morning they met in individual team play, and in the afternoon they paired off in a four-ball foursome team match. Charles H. Seely, the local champion, took first place on the New York team, and arrayed against him was R. E. Griscom, Captain of the Philadelphians. Seely won by 4 up and 3 to play. The first five men for the local team all won their matches, but the team scoring was done on the system of a point for each hole. Archibald Graham, who followed Seely, beat Dr. S. Carr by 3 up and 2 to play. Travis, playing out the bye holes, finished 10 up on Perrine. Jerome Travers beat G. J. Cooke by 5 up and 4 to play, and Findlay Douglas was 2 up and 1 to play on Oden Horstman.

Then came a break and two Quakers were returned victors. G. A. Crump was too much for Harold S. Wilcox, last year's local champion, by 4 up and 3 to play, and A. W. Tillinghast after a hot match with the ex-National champion, Charles B. Macdonald, won by a single hole. Of the remaining three matches two went to New York, John M. Ward putting out R. E. Hanson by 4 up and 3 to play, while Ralph Peters, Jr., the Princeton student, had no difficulty in vanquishing J. Nolle by 6 up and 5 to play. H. P. Smith was the third Philadelphian to win, beating Percy R. Pyne, 2d, by one hole in a nineteen-hole game, the closest of the day. In the morning, therefore, the result was highly in favor of the local players, as they stood 7 to 3.

The leaders won the afternoon four-ball foursome contest by one point, as the visitors took two matches of the five. Travis was paired with Peters, and they beat Griscom and Carr by 6 up and 5 to play. Travers and Pyne won by 4 up and 2 to play over Perrin and Tillinghast, while Graham and Macdonald led Smith and Nolle by 5 up and 4 to play. For the Philadelphians, Cooke and Crump beat Seeley and Ward by 3 up and 2 to play, and Horstman and Hanson defeated Douglas and Wilcox by 2 up and 1 to play.

The lowest best ball score in the afternoon was 75, made by Travis and Peters. The only two holes that Peters beat the ex-champion on were the eighth, where he got 4 to 5 for Travis, and the tenth, where a long put after two long shots through the green gave him 3, the distance being 338 yards. Travis took 5. Travis's individual score therefore was 78. The best ball card of Travis and Peters was:

Out ......3 3 3 5 4 0 5 5 4—38
In ......5 4 4 5 4 5 5 5 3—40—78

Duryea Cashed on Steer Race.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 27.—Being forced to abandon their bear hunt in Mississippi for the time being on account of heavy rains, H. B. Duryea, Woodford Clay, and other Eastern and Southern sportsmen who came here to spend idle time, to-day caused much amusement for natives in West Memphis, a village in the lowlands across the Mississippi River, by arranging first a "pulling" match between yokes of oxen and afterward a dash of a quarter-mile between two large steers. Stakes were posted, and Duryea picked the winner after spending most of the afternoon listening to returns from the Jamaica track in a nearby poolroom. Although his investments on the Jamaica races were of modest proportions, the wager with Clay on the oxen race was the first Duryea cashed during the day.

John H. Sassa, a Japanese tailor in business in the Alpine Building, 53 West Thirty-third Street, was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Leavitt on an order issued on the application of Sassa's wife, Mrs. Jennie Sassa, who has sued for a divorce. Mrs. Sassa swears her husband deserted her and married their servant.

TEWKSBURY MATCHED TO RUN

Intercollegiate ex-Champion to Race 100 Yards for $1,000 a Side.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., Oct. 27.—A foot race that will undoubtedly create widespread interest among the followers of the sport in this country, owing to the reputation of the principals involved, was perfected here to-day between J. W. B. Tewksbury, ex-champion of the University of Pennsylvania, and Edward Flynn of this city, who is rated as the fastest professional sprinter in the mining regions hereabouts. He has participated in a number of races, and has beaten his men rather handily.

According to the agreement signed by the backers of the two men, they are to run 100 yards for $1,000 a side in this city on Nov. 23, to start at the report of a pistol. The match has been talked of for some time, the greatest obstacle in the way of clinching the affair being the distance. Tewksbury was the only runner in the State who was looked upon as likely to beat the Scranton wonder, and now that the match has been made his backers propose to send him to the mark in the best possible form. They have engaged George Turner, a veteran trainer of runners, to look after Tewksbury's interests.

Tewksbury, while a student at the University of Pennsylvania, gained considerable fame as a sprinter, being the intercollegiate champion at 100 and 220 yards in 1898 and 1899. He ran the hundred in both years in 0:10 and the 220 in 0:21 3-5. Tewksbury hails from Wilkes-Barre, and there are many around the ex-amateur's old home who believe that he is the one man in this country who can lower the colors of Flynn.

AUTOS FOR ECONOMY TEST.

Nine Cars Ready for Run—Trade Difficulties Cause Withdrawals.

Final arrangements were completed last night at the Hotel Cumberland by the Contest Committee of the New York Motor Club for the National economy test, starting next Monday. Nine entries instead of fourteen qualified for the week's contest. The withdrawal of the others, most of which had been entered by one company, was due to the decision of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers against taking part in any more competitions this season. This resolution was adopted some time ago. There is, it is admitted, nothing in the resolution which would prevent individual members of the association from entering reliability events if they so desired, but there were other trade difficulties that could not be amicably adjusted, hence the withdrawal.

The nine entries, however, give promise of an excellent test. They are all of the moderate horse power variety, so that the results will be helpful to hundreds of owners of cars of similar power. Most of the cars will carry four passengers, but one of the Reo cars is a wagonette 'bus of sixteen horse power, which can carry ten passengers. If it does not run filled it will be obliged to carry ballast sufficient to make an aggregate weight of ten ordinary passengers.

Three of the cars that should prove interesting are the 12-16 compounds, whose engine is of the compound gasoline type, presenting somewhat novel features over the usual gasoline motor. The list of the nine starters with drivers and observers is:

Freyer-Miller, 24 horse power, 5 passengers. Entered by Lee Freyer; driver, Lee Freyer; observer, W. C. McAllister.

Reo, 16 horse power, wagonette 'bus, 10 passengers. Entered by Reo Motor Company; driver, Richard L. Lockwood; observer, Arthur Green.

Reo, 8 horse power runabout, comfortable for four passengers; driver, Charles C. Singer; observer, Henry Wilson.

Marmon, 20 horse power, 4 passengers. Entered by Theodore C. Schulz; driver, Conrad Largensen; observer, J. B. Cochrane.

Compound, 12-15 horse power, four passengers. Entered by E. H. V. Company of Middletown, Conn.; driver, B. F. Graham; observer, W. C. Hancock.

Compound, same; driver, F. C. Carter; observer, E. Q. Williams.

Compound, same; driver, E. C. Hatch; observer to be chosen.

Oldsmobile, 8 horse power, four passengers. Entered by Oldsmobile Company; driver, Freeman Munroe; observer, O. N. Slezer.

Wayne, 20 horse power, four passengers. Entered by Wayne Auto Company; driver, A. L. Kull; observer, H. H. Lehman.

The Contest Committee has selected as referee Ezra H. Fitch, who was prominent as a successful competitor in the Glidden tour, and a member of the Touring Committee of the American Automobile Association. Other officials have been selected as follows: Superintendent of Observers, H. H. Everett; Superintendent of Garages, M. C. Reeves; Quartermaster, W. R. Coleman; Chief Inspector, E. L. Ferguson.

McAdoo Is Looking Up the Evidence—Bon Ton Decision Ready.

Police Commissioner McAdoo announced yesterday that he was making an investigation of the conduct of Capt. McNally of the Church Street Station, in whose precinct Sergt. Costigan broke into two strongly fortified places alleged to be poolrooms yesterday; Former Acting Captain Bourke, who was in command of the Mercer Street Station, and Former Acting Captain William J. Eggers, late head of the Vice Squad.

Mr. McAdoo said that he was being assisted in the investigation by David McClure, Chairman of the Advisory Committee. The Commissioner said that it would be several days before any conclusion would be reached whether there is sufficient evidence to put any of the three commanders on trial. All three are under a shadow as the result of raids made over their heads.

Mr. McAdoo was asked why his decision in the Schmittberger-Dooley investigation for the raid on the Bon Ton Social Club, in Thirty-first Street, had not been made. He was told that some thought he was holding it over until after election. Mr. McAdoo replied:

"The election has not the slightest thing to do with the case. You can make that as strong as you want to. I will say that I have arrived at a conclusion in which Mr. McClure heartily concurs, and I will make it public in the early part of next week."

EX-SLAVE PENSION SWINDLE.

Three Years' Sentence for Man Who Preyed Upon Credulous Negroes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Pension Commissioner Warner and the officials of the Law Division of the Pension Bureau are congratulating themselves over having put another crimp in the ever-recurring ex-slave pension swindle, which their utmost efforts heretofore have been unable to stop.

This time they have secured the conviction of Butler Harris, who did a large business in North Carolina under various aliases. He traveled around among the ignorant negroes, representing himself as an agent of the Government appointed to grant pensions to ex-slaves. It was his custom to collect a number of old slaves and have a religious service with them, reading the Bible and offering prayers. Then he swore each negro on the Bible to tell only the truth, and to such as declared, after taking this oath, that they were ex-slaves, he promised a pension of $12 a month.

In addition to this pension, each of them who subscribed 50 cents in cash would receive within ten days a sum of $75, or if they subscribed a dollar they would get $100. For each additional dollar in cash given to Harris the subscriber would receive an additional hundred.

Of course Harris found numerous subscribers, and was doing a thriving business when the pension authorities gathered him in. Word has been received at the Pension Bureau that he has been sentenced to three years' imprisonment at Atlanta.

They received from the interior $5,375,100 and sent to the interior $6,164,200, including $1,539,000 National banknotes sent to Washington for redemption. The loss to the interior was $789,100.

Receipts of new gold were $2,625,300 namely: Assay Office balances on imported gold, $373,500; New York Assay Office checks for domestic gold, $466,800; San Francisco Mint checks and telegraphic transfers, $656,100; Seattle Assay Office checks, $1,128,900.

Ordinary disbursements by the Sub-Treasury were $18,240,700. Payments by banks to the Sub-Treasury for customs, internal revenue, 5 per cent. redemption fund, &c., were $20,591,000. The loss on Sub-Treasury operations proper was $2,350,300.

The total loss to the interior and on Sub-Treasury operations proper was $3,139,400. Deducting from this the gain by new gold the net loss was $514,100.

The net loss to the interior was caused by some large shipments of currency to Philadelphia and by an unexpected demand from the South. One bank received $200,000 from an Atlanta bank less than two weeks ago, and last week was called upon to ship $150,000 to the same bank. Receipts from the interior, however, were larger than for any week since the middle of August.

The amount of $373,500 gold imports included in receipts of new gold represents Assay Office checks for balances. The practice of the Assay Office is to pay 90 per cent. of the estimated value of the gold when offered and the balance after the assay has been completed and the exact value determined. This completed payment for all the gold bars imported on this movement, and the official figures for the entire amount are $8,717,100, comparing with the unofficial estimate in round numbers made on Oct. 17 of $8,780,000.

The loss on Sub-Treasury operations proper was caused chiefly by payments into the 5 per cent. redemption fund for correspondent banks and transfers of internal revenue. Customs collections fell off slightly, being $3,843,800, comparing with $4,149,700 in the preceding week. Pension payments were $1,554,000, comparing with $3,216,000 in the preceding week.

The Sub-Treasury received from banks and sent to Washington for redemption $3,397,000 mutilated currency.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Lower; Call Money Rates, 3@4 Per Cent.

Market Sells Off at Close After Early Firmness—The Harriman Interview.

In the early trading yesterday the stock market was subjected to considerable pressure in the shape of sales for London account, the London market having moved weakly as a result of similar sales there for the Continent and the general uneasiness over the outcome of the Russian disorders. The Paris and Berlin markets were weak through the day, Russian bonds losing from 1¼ to 1½ points in each city, but slight recoveries were made at the close. This was also the case in London. The sales made here as a result of this European uncertainty were absorbed with considerable ease. Opening quotations were a trifle lower than the closing figures of Thursday, but prices at once hardened, and, while irregularity marked the movement, moderate advances were made by many issues and extreme gains scored by special stocks, including Great Northern, Northern Pacific, American Smelters, and Rubber preferred. Shortly before the close, however, prices generally fell sharply, the movement finding assistance, if not actual initiative, in Mr. Harriman's prediction of an era of competitive railroad building. Certainly the downward turn came with the publication of this prediction, and its force was sufficient to cancel earlier gains in almost all active stocks, substituting therefor losses running from fractions to full points. The specialties alone retained a part of their earlier advances.

Mr. Harriman's prediction seemed especially significant to Wall Street owing to the fact that for some days past reports of a contest between the Union Pacific and the Burlington over a route in the North Platte region have been insistent and were yesterday capped by the news that each side had secured injunctions from the Nebraska courts in pursuance of this contest. Mr. Harriman, however, designated this particular phase of competition in railroad construction as unimportant, and it is altogether probable that he had in mind the larger projects now under way, including the Western Pacific, the St. Paul's Pacific extension, the reported intention of the Burlington to go to Salt Lake City, which is denied by Mr. Hill, and the competitive construction along the Columbia River. There was nothing in the interview to justify the belief that the Hill-Harriman forces are to engage in any struggle for territory in the West, but, nevertheless, speculative Wall Street, recalling all the incidents of the Northern Securities affair, apparently chose to believe this, at least for the time being.

At one time yesterday sterling exchange was within striking distance of the gold export point, and the belief prevails in banking circles that shipments will be made early in the coming week. The quotations declined late in the day, but closed above the range on Thursday. Call money rates were again easy. The preliminary estimates of the currency movements indicate only a moderate loss of cash this week by the banks, the figures running from $75,000 to $500,000. The loan account is the stumbling block in any forecast of the bank statement, but the market activity of the week may well have resulted in an increase in this item, unless non-Clearing House institutions have again assumed loans. The Lehigh Valley reported an increase of $177,000 in net earnings for September, while the Rock Island system reported a decrease of $218,000 for the same period.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Discussing trade conditions, Dun's Review says in its issue of to-day:

Almost without exception, reports are favorable regarding the Nation's commercial progress. A needed decline in temperature has stimulated distribution of wearing apparel and other seasonable merchandise, relieving anxiety that heavy stocks would be carried over at the end of the season. Some wholesalers are receiving supplementary orders in these lines, but, as a rule, duplicate business has not become general. There is no decrease in the inquiries for Spring shipments from jobbers, and little idle machinery is found in the leading manufacturing industries. Production and consumption of steel are at a new maximum, without the unsettling influence of a return to the inflated prices of a few years ago. The railways have been purchasing new equipment freely, yet there is the usual delay in moving frieght that has apparently become inevitable at this season. Textile mills are well occupied, although the labor situation is more uncertain, and the teamsters' strike had a tendency to interrupt business.

***

Gratifying conservatism still prevails as to prices of iron and steel products, with the natural result of well-maintained activity. Consumption has steadily broadened until production keeps pace with increasing difficulty. Many lines are sold so far in advance that contracts are not considered unless deliveries may be deferred until the second quarter of next year, such small lots of spot goods as are available commanding substantial premiums.

***

Textile mills are assured of activity for some time on old orders, but new business comes into sight slowly. As to cotton goods, the situation is considered healthy, but buyers are inclined toward conservatism and the market is in a sensitive position.

***

Bradstreet's says:

Activity—in fact, buoyancy—still characterizes practically all lines of trade and industry. Cooler weather is a stimulus to retail trade in all but a few small and relatively unimportant sections of the country. Reorder business reflects this in a steady call from jobbers for dry goods, clothing, shoes, hats—in fact, all lines of wearing apparel. Holiday trade in many lines also shows effects of early buying. The practical lifting of the last of the Southern quarantines is helping Southern trade, as is also the higher price of cotton, which is loosening up the movement of that staple. The long-awaited materializing of European demand for our breadstuffs is apparently now at hand. Business in this line, it is claimed, is now limited only by vessel-room capacity. Higher prices for nearly all farm products have helped demand in agricultural districts, and to a certain extent improved collections.

***

Bank clearings for the week ended Oct. 26—$2,885,078,728—are 3.5 per cent. larger than last week and 3.8 per cent. in excess of last year. Exchanges outside New York City total $1,012,763,037, 3 per cent under last week, but 13 per cent. above last year.

GOLD MAY GO OUT SOON.

Banking Houses Think Exports on Tuesday Are Probable.

Foreign exchange rates moved still nearer to the gold export point yesterday. Most bankers, while saying that no gold could yet be sent abroad, thought that exports next week, possibly by Tuesday's steamer, were probable. It was said that in addition to the gold that may go to Paris, large shipments will probably be made to South America. It was said that several banking houses were arranging to send an aggregate of $3,500,000 to Buenos Ayres.

That the Russian loan would be indefinitely postponed was generally accepted as a fact by New York bankers yesterday, but it was thought that gold would go out despite the putting off of the issue of Russian bonds. At the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. it was said that no announcement of a postponement of the loan had been received by the firm. It was added, however, that the negotiations were likely to drag along slowly owing to the disturbances in Russia.

New York bankers inquired of their Paris correspondents yesterday concerning the willingness of the Bank of France to allow interest on gold while in transit. They received the reply that no such concession would be made at the moment. The payment of interest on gold while in transit, as was done by the Bank of France last Spring, probably would result in immediate gold exports.

Cable transfers were in large demand yesterday, and the margin between that form of remittance and demand exchange was wider than usual. Demand sterling sold as high as 4.8715 and closed at 4.8705, a net advance of 5 points. Cables sold as high as 4.8775. In addition to the heavy maturity of bills, another reason for the present strength of exchange is the return to this market of large quantities of American stocks that have been held abroad for some months. American bonds placed abroad some time ago are also being resold in this market.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Money was in keen demand in the market to-day for Stock Exchange payday and month-end requirements. Borrowings from the Bank of England are increasing. They have reached nearly $20,000,000. Discounts were firm.

Operators on the Stock Exchange were mostly occupied with the completion of the settlement, with which some difficulty was experienced, particularly in the Kaffir market. A few old bull accounts had to be arranged. The tone was generally flat, the spread of the Russian strike movement causing an uncomfortable feeling.

Russians were particularly weak on Continental selling, leading to bull realizations in many stocks. Consols and kindred securities were depressed by fears of a high rate for money at the coming settlement. Home rails declined moderately on profit taking, but closed with a better tone.

Americans opened weak on the rise of exchange and New York selling, and sagged to well below parity. The operations were restricted, and the market closed dull and unsettled, with some stocks above the lowest quotations of the day.

Foreigners were weak. Japanese receded.

Kaffirs were depressed by liquidations.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 102.

Bar silver quiet at 28 15-16d per ounce.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 28.35; Lisbon, 5.50.

The amount of bullion taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day was £11,000.

CONTROL UTAH COPPER.

Guggenheims Will Develop the Property and Greatly Increase Its Output.

The Guggenheims have now obtained a controlling interest in the Utah Copper Company. Col. E. W. Wall of Salt Lake City obtained an injunction two or three months ago preventing the stockholders of the Utah Copper Company from increasing the stock to $6,000,000, and authorizing a $3,000,000 bond issue. The action was taken with the understanding that the Guggenheim Exploration Company would take enough of the new stock and the new issue of $3,000,000 convertible bonds to acquire control. Col. Wall was induced to confer with the Guggenheims, with the result that, at the special meeting in Jersey City yesterday, the stockholders authorized the increase in stock and the new issue of bonds.

The United States Reduction and Refining Company has sold to the Guggenheims for $1,000,000 its interest in the Utah Copper Company. The approval of the plan which fixes the control of the company insures the early completion of the 6,000-ton mill now being built by it. It is expected to be finished in a year, and will produce seventy-five or eighty million pounds of copper every year.

The 6 per cent. bonds now authorized are convertible at the option of the holder within five years from the date of issue, each bond being exchangeable for 50 shares of stock, (par value $10.)

The San Pablo

This is the name of one of the mines of the SAN LUIS MINING COMPANY which makes a most remarkable showing. The peculiarity of the mines of this Company is that they are silver on top—many of them were worked as silver mines down to the water level by the ancients—but at the water level copper and gold begin to come in, not to take the place of the silver, but in addition to it. The silver remains practically constant at all depths, but the copper and gold increase with the depth obtained.

In the San Pablo there is only silver at the surface. On the 100-foot level we are taking out ore that runs 100 oz. silver to the ton and is 3½% copper. The copper value increases until in the very bottom of the mine we have ore that goes 16% copper, with the silver about the same as above, but with the addition of considerable values in gold, which comes in with the copper. At the top the vein was narrow, but it widens continually as it goes down. It is in a highly mineralized locality, and the surface indications can be traced nearly a mile on our property. It is turning out to be not only one of the richest, but one of the largest of mines.

The peculiarity of this mine, as of all our properties, is that the gold and silver values more than pay the entire cost of production, and the copper costs nothing. It is all profit. This is not a theory, but a fact, demonstrated by actual results, and the San Pablo is only one out of many such properties, all of which belong to the SAN LUIS MINING COMPANY, so that their earnings will go to swell the San Luis dividends. Already from the earnings of only two of these mines we are paying not only all the expenses of their own operation and equipment, but the expenses of developing and equipping six of our other properties.

To provide a fund for the opening of still more of the many properties we own—all with silver values at the surface and gold and copper coming in as we get farther down—we are offering for subscription the balance of our Treasury stock. Meantime the earnings are rapidly accumulating in the Treasury in the form of betterments, and will be distributed among the stockholders when the melon is cut.

Prices will be quoted on application.

World's Supply of Cotton.

The Middle States had 73, New England 23, Southern 30, Western 28, Northwestern 7, Pacific 10, and Territories 7. Canada had 23, against 31 for the preceding week. About 84 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 10 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

New York, October 2, 1905.

TO THE HOLDERS OF

First Preferred, Second preferred and Common Stock

OF THE

ERIE RAILROAD COMPANY

On September 20, 1905, the Board of Directors authorized the issue of $12,000,000 of the Four Per Cent. Convertible Gold Bonds of the Erie Railroad Company secured by its General Mortgage dated April 1, 1903, for the purpose, among other things as specified in said mortgage, of acquiring more than a majority of the shares of common capital stock of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company.

These new convertible bonds are to be designated as Series B. The bonds are to be dated October 1, 1905, maturing April 1, 1953, with interest payable semi-annually on April 1 and October 1, and at the option of the holder they are to be convertible at par into common stock of the Company at $60 per share, at any time after two years and before twelve years from the date of the bonds. Their issue has been authorized by the Board of Railroad Commissioners, to whom application will be made to authorize the stock increase necessary for such conversion.

The General Mortgage authorizes the issue of $50,000,000 convertible bonds. $10,000,000 of such bonds (designated as Series A and convertible into common stock of the Company at 50 as therein stated) have heretofore been issued and appropriated as proposed in the Erie Circular to stockholders dated February 16, 1903. Upon the issue of the $12,000,000 Series B bonds above described, the total amount outstanding under the said General Mortgage will be $22,000,000. The General Mortgage covers the railroad, property, and franchises of the Erie Railroad Company therein described, and also will cover the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway stock acquired with proceeds of the Series B bonds.

There is now offered to the registered stockholders of the Erie Railroad Company on October 21, 1905, a preferential opportunity ratably to subscribe for and to take the $12,000,000 Series B bonds at par and accrued interest. The Company has entered into a contract with Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., as Managers of an Underwriting Syndicate (in which themselves and other members of the Board of Directors are included), whereby the Underwriting Syndicate, for a commission of 2½ per cent. of the par amount of said $12,000,000 Series B bonds, has agreed to take any and all of said $12,000,000 Series B bonds which shall not be taken by the stockholders under this offer.

For the purpose of determining the right to subscribe to said bonds, the stock transfer books of the Company will be closed at three o'clock P. M. on October 21, 1905, and will be reopened November 15, 1905, at ten o'clock A. M.

Only stockholders registered as such on the transfer books on October 21, 1905, will be entitled to subscribe for the Series B bonds. Holders of First Preferred, Second Preferred, or Common Stock will be entitled to subscribe for $6.75 of the Series B bonds for each $100 par value of stock registered in their name. Suitable subscription warrants will be issued to each stockholder specifying the amount of bonds to which such stockholder is entitled to subscribe.

Payments for the Series B bonds are to be made in full on or before November 27, 1905, at par and accrued interest. The privilege of subscription may be sold in whole or in part, and the warrants will bear an appropriate form of assignment for this purpose.

No subscription or assignment thereof will be recognized unless made on the warrants furnished by the Company.

Stockholders residing in Great Britain or Europe may make their subscription and payment at the office of Messrs. J. S. Morgan & Co., 22 Old Broad Street, London, E. C., England, who are authorized to receive the same for transmission to New York at a rate of exchange of which due notice will be given.

Holders of Stock Trust Certificates must exchange the same for Stock Certificates so as to be able to subscribe.

By order of the Board of Directors.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Standard Oil Jumps 15 Points—Most Stocks Sluggish.

Copper Stocks Stationary—Chicago Subway Makes Slight Gain—Albany and Susquehanna Bonds Active.

Standard Oil's jump from 683 to 696½ was the only enlivening feature of the trading on the curb yesterday. Subsequently the stock fell back to 695, but the gain from Thursday's close was 14 points. As a whole the trading was very sluggish; the volume of sales was small, and there was but little movement in prices. Chicago Subway's high and low prices were 2 points apart; it hovered most of the time between 45 and 46 and closed at the latter figure. Greene, United and Boston Copper were stationary. White Knob preferred rose from 1½ to 2. American Tobacco fell 5 points. There were no sales of Western Maryland stock, and only five of the bonds changed hands. Mercantile Marine preferred fell early in the day but in the afternoon regained most of the loss. Albany and Susquehanna bonds were heavily traded in.

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with high, low, and last prices, were as follows:
